Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Neuberger, of Ventura, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marie, to Arnold Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Miller, of Swaledale.

The wedding date has not been announced.

Marshal Smid Resigns, Buseman Takes Over

Henry Smid, who has been Marshal of Klemme, since Mayor Cook was elected to the office has resigned, effective January 1. Smid has done a good job, but feels that the office takes too much time.

George Buseman, who resigned as Marshal when he went to work in the creamery, has again taken on the job. He will still work at the creamery during the day time.

Accident Monday Noon Damages Two Cars

Monday, about 1 o'clock, a two-car collision took place on the corner by Mayor Virgil Cook's home.

Reverdy Mace was driving north and Jacob Hess was driving west. Apparently neither driver was aware that the other was approaching the intersection. The ensuing crash did considerable damage to both cars, but neither driver was hurt.

Mayor Cook said that the corner was a bad one as far as visibility is concerned and that something will have to be done to better the situation.

Klemme Grocer Richer by Ten Dollars

Last summer Ed Thompson, local grocer, started to handle cigarettes, and in order to draw peoples attention to the fact, he hit upon a pretty good idea. Good enough, in fact, that it was published in the "Progressive Grocer", which publication paid Mr. Thompson ten dollars for the right to publish his idea.

Ed took a cardboard roll from the inside of a roll of linoleum and mounted half of it on the outside of the front store window and half of it on the inside. It was all painted white except one end which was painted gray and red to simulate ashes and fire. He then placed a tin can in the outer end and put lighted punk in it so that it would smoke. Painted streaks of Bon Ami, representing cracks in the glass, completed the display.

As we recall, the display looked very realistic, and Ed says that one customer said he was crazy for breaking that glass just to advertise.

Business Changes Take Place During Past Week

Trees in Klemme Park Being Thinned

Laurence Greimann, Garner saw mill operator has been busy the past couple of weeks with a crew of men taking out some of the trees in the Klemme Park.

According to Mayor Cook, the trees are being taken out so that those remaining will have a better chance, and so that the grass in the park will have an opportunity to grow. Cook also said that some of the trees were hollow, and that some of the larger branches were splitting off.

Present plans call for planting more trees in the spring so that as the older trees become unsound, there will be new ones to take their place.

DeMotts No Longer With Wellemeyer Store

Howard DeMotts, who has been a member of the firm of The Wellemeyer Store, Inc., has sold his share of the stock to Don Bacon. Bacon has been associated with the corporation for the past 16 months and will continue to run the business in the same manner it has been conducted in the past.

Henry Wessels, who has been employed by the store as floor covering man, has purchased that department, and will be in business for himself. Mr. Wessels has had considerable experience in this line of work and should be able to give the same good service that he has been giving while an employee.

The deal leaves Mr. Bacon with a furniture store, Mr. Wessels, with a floor covering business, and Mr. DeMotts will return to the position of adjuster for the Iowa Farm Mutual Insurance Co. He held this same position before becoming associated with the Wellemeyer Store.

Klemme and Kanawha Basketballers Split Pair Here

Shamrockettes Keep Victory Record Intact Over Kanawha

In the first game of a double header played here Tuesday night, the Shamrockettes kept their victory string intact over the Kanawha girls. They had hard going throughout the game with the lead changing many times, but in the final seconds they drew away and finished strong, winning by a score of 51-43.

The score by quarters gives a pretty good indication of the kind of battle the two teams had. At the end of the first quarter, Klemme led 12-5, but by halftime, Kanawha had pulled up to make the score 21-20, with the Shamrockettes still leading. At the end of the third quarter, Kanawha had the lead by a score of 34-33, and the last quarter was a see-saw affair until the last couple of minutes when the Shamrockettes went into a stall. Then Kanawha began to open up their defense and to foul quite heavily in an attempt to gain control of the ball.

They didn't get the ball, but they succeeded in making it easier for the Shamrockettes to score.

Dorothy Lacey led the scoring for the Klemme girls, with 31 points, while Carol Bridges had 14.

Emmons handled most of the scoring for Kanawha, as she collected 24 points for the evening.

Mrs. Alice Grosshuesch Injured in Auto Accident Near Waterloo

Sunday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, Mrs. Alice Grosshuesch, of Marshalltown, was injured when the car in which she was riding with her daughter, Gertrude, hit a patch of ice, went out of control and overturned. Mrs. Grosshuesch suffered a broken arm, but Gertrude and a girl friend, who was with her, were not injured.

They had been to Waukon to visit Bill Grosshuesch and family and were on their way back to Marshalltown. The accident happened near Waterloo, and Mrs. Grosshuesch is in Allen Memorial Hospital. She will be there until Friday, and then will return to her home in Marshalltown. Her addresss in Marshalltown in c-o Deaconess Hospital.

Gertrude, who is a nurse in the Veterans' Hospital at Fayetteville, Arkansas, was enjoying a 6-day leave, from her duties. She was to have been back on the job Monday, but she has been able to get her leave extended and will be with her mother until Sunday.

The car was rather badly mangled about the top, but otherwise was not in too bad condition.

The Boston NewsLetter is the oldest newspaper on file at the Library of Congress.

Shamrocks Take Second Licking from Bulldogs, Lose 50 - 39

Playing without the services of Barz and Baack, the Shamrocks again bowed to the Bulldogs from Kanawha. Last time they met the Bulldogs handed them a 10-point shellacking, and this time they met, they added one point to their victory margin.

The game was more interesting than the final score would indicate. Kanawha led at the half 25-19, but with approximately three minutes left in the game, the Shamrocks pulled to within four points. However, the Kanawha boys pulled the same act that the Klemme girls did. They went into a stall, forcing the Shamrocks to pull out of position and to foul.

Jackson, of Kanawha was high scorer for the evening, with 16 points, while team mates Jack Mewes and Sampson had 10 and 9, respectively.

Larry Stille, who went out on fouls just after the fourth quarter got underway, led the attack for Klemme, with 11 points, while Thiemann had 10 and Terhufen, 8.

TWO GAMES

Next two games for the locals will see both boys and girls in action at LuVerne on Friday night, January 9, and the boys only at Garner on January 13.

Eisenhower Urges Nation Support March of Dimes

President-elect Eisenhower meets 1953 March of Dimes Poster Girls Pamela (left) and Patricia O'Neil, of Raleigh, N. C.

NEW YORK CITY—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower called on the American public to support the 1953 March of Dimes being conducted throughout the nation during all of January.

He joined in the annual appeal after meeting the two Raleigh, N.C., sisters who are pictured on the 1953 March of Dimes poster. They are Patricia, 6, and five-year-old Pamela O'Neil, both of whom were stricken with polio but now are recovered completely.

"It's hard to believe that these are the same little girls whose pictures are on the March of Dimes poster," he noted. "Now they're completely recovered from polio, thanks to the generosity of the American people."

He urged all Americans "to help the others like them by joining the March of Dimes."

Later, he joined the poster girls in making a short film which is being shown by television stations throughout the nation.

This year's March of Dimes follows the all-time record polio epidemic of 1952 in which more than 55,000 were stricken. At the beginning of 1953, there were 58,000 polio victims of former years still undergoing treatment, with financial help from local March of Dimes chapters.

CEILINGS

We don't know what Churchill is after this time, but we are of the opinion that "Ike" won't promise him too much. If by chance he should, with congress in the mood it's in, there will be some ceilings hit!

TELEVISION

The more we watch TV, the more we are convinced that it is really something. To be able to sit at home and watch a man get off a plane or a boat 1500 miles away or to see the Rose Parade 2,000 miles away it's still hard to believe.

15 DHIA Supervisors' Positions Open

Positions for Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors are open in 15 Iowa DHIA associations, according to Hancock County extension director, Paul Henderson.

He reports men are needed this winter in Henery, Linn, Scott, Johnson, Delaware, Jones, Black Hawk, Mahaska, Winneshiek, Clay and Palo Alto Counties.

A training school for those interested in herd testing work will be given at Iowa State College Jan. 15-30. There's no tuition for the course, but prospective testers must pay their room and board at Ames. The course is open to men from 18 to 65 years.

DHIA supervisors keep production and feed records on a group of dairy herds and visit each farm once a month. In addition, many supervisors handle owner sampler testing.

Also, Henderson says several counties are interested in expanding their production testing program, and positions are available to trained men in these areas.

Those with farm background who are interested in applying can get further information by writng Don Voelker, extension dairyman, Iowa State College.

Enough Chlorophyll in Iowa Alfalfa Crop for 815 Years

Iowa raises enough alfalfa in one summer to keep advertising men busy for 815 years proclaiming the wonders of "natures magic ingredient."

And it would take assembly lines of workers just as long rolling out miles of toothpaste to use up one summer of Iowa's "magic ingredient."

At six pounds per ton, Iowa's 2,582,000 tons of alfalfa hay cut in 1952 would produce 15,402,000 pounds of chlorophyllin.

The magazine, Chemical Week, reports the chemical industry manufactures six pounds of chlorophyllin from a ton of alfalfa.

Producing this dark-blue green "wonder" material is a slow process. One Minnesota manufacturer is now marketing ten pounds of chlorophyllin a day.

The chlorophyll boom has skyrocketed in the past two years. The sale of chlorophyll-containing products at the retail level in 1951 reached $22million. The 1952 retail sales of the same products was expected to hit $59 million.

Last year the total consumption of chlorophyll for commercial products was 19,000 pounds. Iowa's two-crop cutting season produces enough chlorophyll to keep the industry rolling for 815 years at the 19,000 pound pace.

Drake Community College to Offer Courses at Mason City

Drake university's community college will offer two courses in Mason City this spring, Dean J. H. Hutchinson of Drake has announced.

They will be "Creative Art and Crafts in Childhood Education" taught by Helen Rogers Hyde and a course in economics.

Enrollment in Drake's community college (evening and off-campus classes) reached a total of 2172 students this fall. About two-thirds took work in off-campus centers throughout Iowa.

The Mason City classes will meet Thursday evenings starting January 22 with registration and first class meeting at 6:30 in the high school.

Of special interest to persons in the field of education, the courses will carry three semester hours of credit which may be used toward the four-year plan.

Mrs. Hyde is a graduate of Colorado State Teachers college and taught in the Denver, Colorado schools and also at the University of Denver. Her specialty is art crafts.

Willim Zabilka Weds Cedar Rapids Girl, Marilyn Ward

Miss Marilyn Joan Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ward, of Cedar Rapids, and William Wesley Zabilka, son of Dr. and Mrs. William Zabilka, of Oskaloosa, exchanged wedding vows at 7:30 p. m. Saturday in St. Paul's Methodist Church.

The bridegroom's father, assisted by Dr. Marvin Kober, of Cedar Rapids, read the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with poinsettas, Christmas greens and white candelabra.

A reception was held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony, and then the couple left on a trip to New Orleans and Florida.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Zabilka are graduates of Cornell College at Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Zabilka has been teaching at Taylor School in Cedar Rapids. Her husband is band instructor at the Geneva and Chapin Schools. They will be at home in Hampton after the first of the year.

Dr. and Mrs. Zabilka entertained at a dinner Friday evening at the Roosevelt Hotel honoring the couple and members of the bridal party.

Klemme folks will remember the Zabilka's, as "Bill" graduated from high school here, and Dr. Zabilka was pastor of the Klemme and Liberty Churches for a number of years.

Iowa Industry Has Taken to the Air

More Iowa business firms are using planes as a means of closer contact with the retail market, the Iowa development commission reports.

The state aeronautics office says the largest single increase in plane utilization has been in Iowa's industrial field.

The state has an estimated 500 planes used by companies for business and pleasure. One hundred of these planes are owned by the companies and earmarked for business flying specifically.

This increase in business flying has been noted by the jump in aviation gasoline consumption the past year.

Last year Iowa pilots, commercial and private, burned 3,725,482 gallons of gasoline. In 1952 the total, spurted by business flying, topped the 4.5 million-gallon mark.

ICE FISHING

Ice fishing got underway at Okoboji early in December. Perch furnished the main attraction as the season opened.

1952 Iowa Corn Crop 12% of World Total

When it comes to producing a billion-dollar corn crop, the Iowa farmer has the world at his feet.

Iowa's 685,736,00 bushels of corn raised in 1952 represents 12 percent of the world's total production, the Iowa development commission reports.

According to the U. S. department of agriculture, the estimated world corn crop is 5.6 billion bushels with the state of Iowa leading all the corn raising nations.

In the race for average yield per acre, Iowa's 68 bushels took top honors again. Canada's 52.5 bushels on this year's crop was second best.

Russia keeps silent on her 1952 yield. Latest figures from Ivan's cornfields, 1950, indicate his acre-yield was only 16.7 or 150 million bushels.

Other acre-yields reported in 1952 were Austria, 32.4 bushels; Spain, 25; and France, 22.7.

Brazil, a big corn grower with 230 million bushels in 1951, produced a low acre-yield of 19.7 in 1952. Argentina's acre-yield was still lower at 15.9 bushels. Chile hit 19.7 in 1952 and Uruguay dropped to 8.5.

Turkey's 1952 crop produced 29 million bushels with a 19.1 acre-yield. China's and Manchuria's latest figures show a low 20 yield.

Hancock County Men to Attend Electrification Training School

Four county men will attend a training school in Ames, Jan. 8-10, for leaders of the 4-H farm electrification special activity, in Iowa, according to the report of Leonard Harrington, county extension youth assistant.

These men are Kenneth Juhl, REA Manager; Melvin Jones, Iowa Light and Power Company; Jerry Fox, leader for the Orthel boys; and Leonard Harrington, County Extension Youth Assistant. They will serve as leaders for the special activity in farm electrification to be conducted Feb. 1 to April 1 for 4-H members in Hancock County.

At the training school, Hancock County leaders, along with leaders from 15 other northern Iowa counties will get help in organizing county activities and for training on subject matter to be covered in the activity this year. Four main areas of study will be followed—understanding electricity, efficient and safe electric wiring, adequate lighting and care and use of electric motors.

The 3-day training program is sponsored by the Iowa Agricultural Extension Service and the agricultural engineering department of Iowa State College; cooperating with the Iowa Utilities Association. The school this year is the third held for Iowa 4-H leaders in the farm electrification activity, and the first school held for leaders of the activity m northern Iowa

Tree Seedling, Orders to be Accepted by Conservation Commission

Farmers may now place their orders for tree seedlings, multiflora rose, and other wildlife plant stock, the State Conservation Commission announced today.

Available seedlings include multiflora rose, douglas fir, norway spruce, red pine, black locust, dogwood, green ash, russian olive, wild grape, and stratified black walnut.

Prices on evergreen stock and multiflora rose is $17.00 per thousand seedlings, and hardwood seedlings are being sold at $10.00 per thousand with the exception of black walnut, which is $6.00 per thousand nuts. No less than 250 plants of any one species will be supplied, and each order must total at least 500 plants. Commission spokesmen say that the multiflora rose seedlings are of particularly good quality this year.

Orders may be placed with the local county extension directors, state conservtion officers, or Soil Conservation Service personnel.

New Oil Ratings Replace Old Ones

THEY'RE BASED ON HOW HARD ENGINE'S WORKING

Motor oil manufactures have come up with new oil ratings based on how hard the engine works.

Dale Hull, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College, says the new ratings were approved this year by the American Petroleum Institute. They replace the old ratings—regular, premium and heavy duty—which were confusing and unsatisfactory.

These new ratings first divide all motor oils into two types, one for diesel engines, the other for ignition engines—such as those using gasoline and LP gas. The ratings are stamped on the side of the can.

For gasoline and other spark ignition type engines, the specialist report the ratings classify oil into three grades.

Called "ML," "MM" AND "MS"

The first is "ML"—for light service Hull says this oil is for ordinary use in cars, light trucks and tractors. That's where there is not many starts and stops, nor long hard drives. It's also preferred for engines that are fueled by an oil gas mixture—such as power lawn mowers, some garden tractors and outboard motors.

The second in "MM"—for moderate service. It's recommended for long drives and an average number of starts and stops. This is the type usually used in passenger cars, light trucks and farm tractors.

The third is "MS"—for severe service. The engineer reports this oil works best in cars, trucks and tractors that pile up lots of mileage quickly, or for those that make many starts and stops—such as delivery trucks. It's also recommended for passenger cars equipped with hydraulic valve lifters. "MS" oils will give the best lubrication for short trips around town and for tractor chore work.

NEW WINTER RATINGS

Hull adds that an "MM" or "MS" oil will work under less severe work loads. For example, an "MS" oil will lubricate just as well in severe as in light service, but usually sells at slightly higher prices.

Besides the new ratings, the specialist say motor oils are still classed by thickness or viscosity. Viscosity—or SAE—numbers are based on air temperatures under which they must operate. And there are some new winter ratings.

These are 5W, 10W and 20 Hull reports 5W is for motors which operate in below-zero weather. The others are used according to dealers' recommendations.

Also, there are the regular 20, 30, 40 and 50 SAE numbers They are used when air temperatures are above 32 degrees. A 50 SAE oil is used in high summer temperatures

The specialist says operating handbooks in new cars, trucks and tractors now specify the correct, new API rating, along with SAE viscosity numbers.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

Today the top command of the Iowa highway patrol changes hands. David C. Herrick, formerly a patrol lieutenant stationed in Atlantic, becomes chief, and S. N. Jesperson, head of the patrol since 1946, becomes assistant chief.

Jesperson asked privately to be relieved as chief some four months ago because he felt to continue longer in the demanding post would impair his health. He repeated his request until the change was made.

Jesperson had been chief of the patrol for seven years and during that time carried the complex responsibilities of the assignment on a virtual 24-hour-a-day basis. It wasn't in his character to leave the demands of the job in the office at the end of a day.

His record and service to the people of Iowa deserve to be reviewed because he was chief of the patrol during a critical period in its history and the present organization carries his imprint.

When he took over as chief early in 1946, the wartime manpower shortage had reduced the patrol to little more than 100 men, Jesperson supervised the rebuilding of the patrol to its present strength of 225 men, maintaining the high caliber of officers against the competition of better-paid jobs in private life.

As chief, he also supervised a major re-organization in the patrol's structure. Under his leadership, the patrol increased its reputation for courtesy, efficiency and discipline while doing one of the most hard-to-please-all jobs in the world—enforcement.

Any review of Iowa's traffic story has one obvious starting point: The year brought the greatest reduction in traffic deaths on record, except for the war years of gas rationing and curtailed traffic. About 75 fewer persons were killed in 1952 than in 1951.

But a review of even 1952 cannot end on a wholly encouraging note. The fact remains that some 530 men, women and children did die in traffic accidents. Final figures for the reduction and total deaths are not yet complete.

The worst accident of the year occured about 10:30 one clear, dry night early in June. Two cars collided near Pella and six persons died. A mother, a father and a child died in each car. One child survived in each car.

Neither of the drivers involved had ever had an accident before.

The part of the state hardest hit by traffic deaths in 1952 was Blackhawk county where 27 persons were killed. Dubuque county with 16 deaths was next, followed by Clinton county, 11, and Franklin county, 10. Only Adams and Dickinson counties went through 1952 without a traffic death.

During the year, three highway patrolmen were seriously injured in the line of duty. At this writing, one is in his fifth month in the hospital.

The year also saw the patrol force build to its greatest strength as some 30 men were graduated from a recruit school to bring the organization up to 225 men

But a backward look at 1952 probably is not so important as a question 1953 has barely begun to answer: Who are the more than 500 who will die in Iowa traffic accidents this year?

The answer will come to us in pieces, day by day, if drivers continue to make the same old mistakes.

Mrs. Herold Ridder of Nora Springs spent the week end here visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schaefer.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Gast, who were married January 1st, have gone to Sioux City and live at 3632 Vine Avenue. Mr. Gast is attending Morningside College.

Corporal John Clements is now stationed at Camp Sutton, North Carolina. He has been stationed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, at Aberdeen, Maryland for some time.

20 YEARS AGO—

Miss Jeanne Thada entertained a number of young ladies at a New Year's Eve party. The young ladies attended the dance at Belmond and then returned to the Thada home for a slumber party. All report a fine time.

Roy Schaefer started hauling ice from Clear Lake last week and will continue until his ice house is full.

Bernard and Henry Smid have been cutting wood on their father's farm which is tenanted by Ed Buntenbach and family.

Irven Ax spent the latter part of the week at the Bennett home in Mason City. Irven was a former vocal pupil of Mrs. Bennett and they spent some time in rehearsing songs.

30 YEARS AGO—

An oyster stew was enjoyed by the congregation out at Liberty church last Friday evening.

Miss Norma Barz was visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs Lena Schroeder, several days the past week. She returned to her home in Garner, Friday.

The dance at the Idle Hour Monday night was well attended, in spite of the bad weather. The music by Hunter's Orchestra was especially fine and all enjoyed a good time.

The court at Garner has been a pretty busy place last week. Many ex-service men were there having their bonus applications made out and the Treasurer was busy as a cranberry merchant making out auto license.

The Klemme young people who attend Morningside College at Sioux City returned to their place Tuesday morning after spending their holiday vacation in Klemme. They are Earl Josten, Lena Bergmann and Mildred Johnson. The latter is just beginning, as she is going to take a music course there.

KLEMME COOPERATIVE CREAMERY COMPANY
Kenneth Medin, Mgr. Klemme, Iowa

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Fourteenth Installment

THE CREAMERY

The Klemme Cooperative Creamery Company was organized in 1913. Eighty farmers put in $100.00 each and formed a corporation with eighty shares of common stock. A brick building was erceted and equipped with butter making machinery, and opened for business September 1st, 1913. It was a success right from the start. Arthur Wellemeyer and Paul Griesmer were the chief promoters of this project and sold shares of stock.

At the first meeting of the stockholders, Clarence A. Arnold, a friendly and capable man was their choice for president, and Nels L. Palmer was the first Secretary.

Several years later Val Josten became secretary and during his management the Creamery paid out a thousand dollars per day for butterfat and continued to do this year after year.

In 1935, the building was enlarged and old equipment was replaced with new and better equipment, making it almost a a model manufacturing plant.

About this time the form of incorporation was changed. All the shares of stock are now held by the producers of the cream. A sort of "revolving fund" arrangement, which seems to be the last word in financing Cooperative organizations.

Our creamery now processes and delivers milk and cream to the homes and stores of our community. Both pasturized and homogenized milk are available, and our town consumes about 100 gallons of milk and cream each day. In addition to this some farmers buy milk.

The dairymen who supply our creamery with milk must have their cows tested and their barns inspected for cleanliness, so that the milk and cream you buy is the best in quality.

Most of the butter manufactured by our Klemme Creamery is sold thru the "Iowa State Brand" creamery organizaton of which our creamery is a stock holder. The buttermilk is sold thru the "Tri-County Drying Associaton" of Whitemore, Iowa. Our Creamery is one of the twenty-seven creameries who own and operate this plant.

The money paid out to the patrons of our creamery for butterfat amounts to about $4000.00 per week. About half of the farmers who milk cows use milking machines and the quality of the cream recieved has shown steady improvement year after year.

The personal of the creamery includes: Kenneth Medin, manager since 1945; Harvey Barkema, assistant manager; George Buseman bottles the milk; Quentin Stille and Wayne Buseman haul the cream. They will add another hauler in the spring.

Officers and directors: Alvin Goll, president; F. W. Klinge, Vice Pres.; Elmer Beier, Secretary; Melvin Buseman, Bob Hinman, Cecil Katter, Mitchell Bock, Edw. Thieman, and Clarence Lenz.

MILK MEN

In the horse and buggy days of our town, about half of the business men owned a team of horses. The others would hire a team now and then from the livery barn. Those who owned horses also kept a cow, and those who did not own a cow bought milk from those who did.

With the coming of the automobile, the horses began to disappear, and soon the livery barn was torn down. Some of the older residents continued to keep cows for a while longer so they could sell milk.

But, when the dairymen started, with their government tested herds kept in clean barns with white washed walls, they delivered to our door every morning milk and cream of a superior quality, put up in sterilized glass bottles. Thus they deserved the business and they got it too, and the town cows left.

Ralph Elder started his milk route in 1919, served our town for twenty-five years and sold out to the creamery in 1944. Albert Koerner started in 1926 and sold out to the creamery in 1947, after twenty-one years of service to the community.

The creamery put in equipment for pasturizing and homogenizing, and thus it seemed more practical and more convenient for the dairymen to sell their milk in bulk to the creamery and let them process it and make the deliveries from house to house.

MILLINERY AND DRESSMAKING

In 1892, Miss Elizabeth Renziehausen, a native of Watson Iowa, who had served her apprenticeship as a seamstress in Minneapolis, came to Klemme, built a store building, size 22x36, on main street, moved right in and started making dresses and selling hats to the ladies of this community.

Those were the days before ready-to-wear items were available, and most of the dresses, mens shirts, mittens etc., were made at the home by the housewife on her own sewing machine, but, when the lady of the house wanted an especially nice garment she came to the dressmaking shop and had it made there.

Miss Renziehausen also taught dressmaking to the young ladies of the community. She often had several young ladies helping and learning in her shop.

Not too long after her arrival in Klemme, in 1901 to be exact, Miss Renziehausen changed her name to Mrs. John Josten, and finally in 1919, after 27 years of business activity sold her building to John Baumgartner. This building is now owned by Don Christiance, who operates a barber shop.

MORE INFORMATION

In regard to the history of the Park, a gentleman who knows, wrote me that my story was not quite accurate in regard to selling hard liquor on the park site.

Says he, "The deed reads, that if ever the town votes to allow hard liquor sold in the town, the land will revert back to the H. J. Klemme heirs. Thanks."

In regard to the history of our branch of the Rock Island Rail Road. Our local agent feels that it is O. K. to write the history of the R.R. but that I should keep my personal opinions to myself, and I should not have intimated in my writing that our Railroad will soon be a "dead duck".

"Why won't it ?" I asked. He replied, "No person or business will last for ever, and while we cannot predict what will happen 50 years hence, still our branch of the Rock Island is healthy at the present time". He continued, "The Belmond station does $500,000 annual business, Klemme $85,00, Garner $150,000, Forest City, maybe $300,00. And all the other stations are doing well, The rail road is not thinking of quiting at all." "How about the local freight hauling?" I asked.

Our agent answered that, "Local freight hauling did not pay by rail, but that the Rock Island owned many fleets of trucks which they operate in various places, for instance local freight between Des Moines and Kansas City is not hauled by rail, but by Rock Island trucks, same is true between Davenport and Omaha."

I asked if the Rock Island was thinking of extending their truck service to Klemme. He did not have this information. However, Mr. Harson is a good agent, keeps his office in "apple pie" order does what he can to serve the public.

Some of the information used in my R. R. story was obtained years ago from T Blank, and I do read the papers. Then, I've patronized the rail road for over 40 years.

I was pleased to receive word from Ivan Blumer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blumer, now stationed in Germany, that he enjoys reading the Klemme Times, and also reads the History of Klemme.

MORE OMISSIONS

It was brought to my attention that more names were left out of the listings of KHS graduates.

The following names should have been listed in the class of 1952: Judith Brede; Shirley Beier;Roger Howard; and William Roths. 1932: Gladys Kothenbeutel

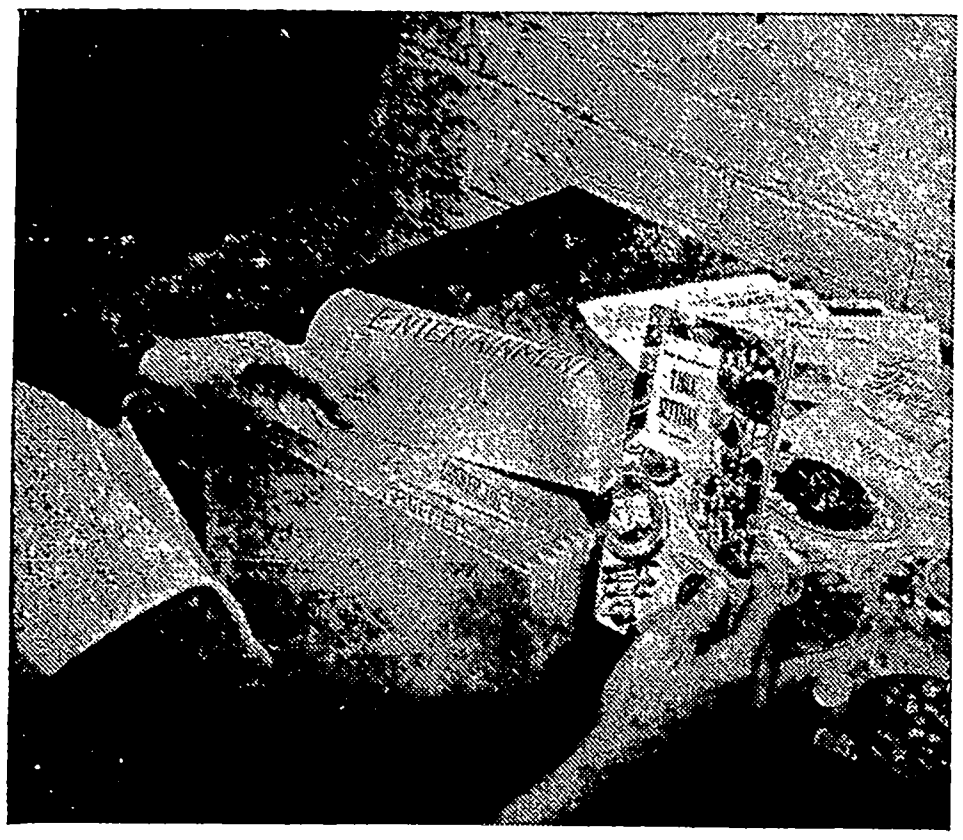
Work Out a Filing System to Help You—

Keep Recipes at Your Fingertips



An expanding or "accordion" letter-size file, sectioned off alphabetically, is one quick way to keep track of your recipes and meal planning aids. You might have one file for Entertainment, another for Everyday Meals, and a third for Canning and Freezing.

A collection of enticing recipes and meal-planning aids doesn't do you much good if you haven't a workable way of keeping every item right at your beck and call.

So—if you're guilty of collecting without organizing — take time out to remedy the situation for 1953

DEEP KITCHEN DRAWER

Let's see the possibilities in a deep kitchen drawer or an old-style unused flour or bread bin, says Leslie Smith Iowa State College extension nutritionist. Perhaps you could section off that deep drawer and outfit it for a card file of recipes, menu suggestions, canning and freezing directions, and so on: Remember, you can get all sizes of file cards to suit the purpose.

That unused flour or bread bin might be just the place to convert for your recipe files. If it's deep enough, you might even decide to use regular manila file folders.

A WOODEN BOX

Another holder for your systematized recipe files might be simply a covered wooden or metal box in a handy place.

If you have a desk or "business center" just off the kitchen, that might be were you'd keep your recipe files for easy access when you're planning your meals or making out your grocery list.

RIGHT SYSTEM FOR YOU

If you're meticulous and efficient, you'll probably like the card file system best. Then again, you might like to keep scrapbooks, using paste or tab-type fastners. If you've ever worked in a business office, regular manila file folders may be your choice. For another woman, a sturdy cardboard accordion file might be the quickest, most convenient way to do the job.

WORK OUT SECTIONS

First step, after you've decided on the system, is to get out all those recipes and booklets and clippings you've collected. Go through them carefully and jot down main headings and subheadings as they come to mind.

For instance, under your "Entertainment" file might come these sections: afternoon tea, appetizers, birthday parties, bridge luncheon, buffets, children's parties, holiday dinners, cocktail parties, dinner for eight, emergency meals, formal teas, potluck ideas, stag parties, treats for teens, quantity menus and meals. Include ideas for table settings centerpicces, special games and activities in each section. Menu suggestions complete with individual recipes and a grocery list for the meal will come in hadny too.

In your "Everyday Meals" file, you might have such sections as: broiler meals, breads cakes and cookies, cheese dishes, dessert salads, economy meals, family favorites, frozen desserts, Lenten meals lunchbox meals, miscellaneous recipe leaflets, main dish salads, oven meals, pies, quick meals, sandwiches, soups, snacks

If you have a good deal of food [illegible] you may want a [illegible] would include canning and freezing information.

Get the system that's best for you then make it work It will save time and frustration

AAA Offers $2,275 to Children in Contest

Art students in elementary, junior high and high schools throughout the nation have an opportunity to win cash prizes totaling $2,275.00 in the American Automible Association's ninth annual National Traffic Safety Poster Contest, according to an announcement today by Floyd L. Link, safety director for the AAA Motor Club of Iowa. In addition to the cash awards, the ten posters judged best will be reproduced and sent to teachers in more than 150,000 elementary and junior high schools throughout the country to assist in teaching safety during the next school year.

Encouraging all young Iowa artists to enter, Link added that a special "all Iowa" judging will be conducted in connection with the contest, and additional prizes totaling $75.00 awarded for the best posters submitted by students from this state. He said also that Iowans had done extremely well in the last two contests, carrying away three national first place awards.

Endorsed by leading educators and educational organizations all over the country, the contest has a two-fold purpose—to stress the importance of safety education in the school and, at the same time, permit individual students to make a vital personal contribution to the protection of other school children.

"In spite of the fact that a special announcement, containing full contest imformation, is being sent to school all over Iowa, there may be some that will not recieve it," Link said. In these cases, he suggested that art teachers, supervisors or other school officals write immediately to Poster Contest, 218 East Third Street, Davenport, Iowa, requesting information and preliminary entry forms.

Record Number of Cattle Being Fed

FEEDERS MAY RISE, FAT CATTLE DROP IN SPRING

Look for a normal seasonal fat cattle price spread between upper and lower grade cattle this year.

That's the outlook forecast by William G. Zmolek, extension animal husbandman at Iowa State College.

With record cattle numbers on feed this winter, the specialist reports that here will be a usual seasonal price drop in the upper grades of fed-cattle this spring.

LESS SUMMER RISE

Cattle slaughter probably will increase 10 to 15 percent this year-compared with 1952. Prices paid for upper grades of fed-cattle are not likely to show as much usual summer rise this year as in recent years. With increased slaughter of both fed- and grass-cattle, the summer and fall markets are likely to act much as they did in 1952.

Also, good weather in the range country this spring could cause a price rise for feeder cattle after mid-March. Heavier marketings and lower fat cattle prices probably will pull feeder cattle prices down next fall below the 1952 level.

ZMOLEK OPTIMISTIC

Zmolek expects further price adjustments, both in the fat and feeder cattle markets. While price adjustments from the 1951 levels have been sharp in many cases, beef producers must realize that they were on a very high price level in 1951.

Beef prices are still good in relation to other classes of livestock. Population growth plus a broader demand for beef adds strength to the market

Profits in the beef feeding business will be more likely to come from efficiently converting farm feeds into beef rather than from extensive price margins, he says.

Weather is Key to '53 Insect Crop Damage

The kind of weather we have in Iowa through the early stages of the coming growing season holds the key to insect damage to crops, say Iowa State College entomologists Harold Gunderson and J. H. Lilly.

A wet, cool spring would bring heavy infestations of cutworms and sod webworms in corn growing on sod, and wireworms might be severe in local areas as would seed corn beetles and maggots. These conditions would put rootworms on the increase, but trouble wouldn't be expected from chinch bugs or grasshoppers. In this kind of season, firstbrood corn borers might cause trouble, with a buildup expected in the second brood.

A normal spring, according to the entomologists, would find rootworms on the increase, grasshoppers heavy in local areas, and first-brood corn borers heavy with severe trouble expected from second-brood borers. Cutworm infestations would be heavy in bottomlands and wireworms heavy in some low areas. Heavy infestations of sod webworms would occur in local areas. Chinch bugs might bother southern Iowa.

In a dry spring trouble would not be expected from cutworms or sod webworms, and damage would be light from wireworms, restricted to scattered fields. The rotworms would be at about their 1952 level, but chinch bugs would be locally heavy in the southern third of the state Grasshopper damage would be moderate to severe. The first-brood corn borer damage would be heavy, although second-brood damage would be less than expected following a normal spring.

Deer Problem to be Presented to Public

For the first time, an overall picture of Iowa deer and the problems they present will be published in the January IOWA CONSERVATIONIST, which will be completely devoted to the Iowa whitetailed deer herd.

Published monthly by the State Conservation Commission, the magazine will contain articles on the future of Iowa deer, their past history, their sizes and weights, mortality, management and other aspects of our herd.

In the past twenty years, deer populations have literally exploded in the midwest, and are increasing rapidly in Iowa each year. As a result, crop damage and car-deer accidents have become serious problems in some areas. During 1951 and 1952, a total of 475 deer were killed on Iowa highways, 38 of them in November alone. Now found in every county of the state, there are nearly 11,000 animals in Iowa.

The CONSERVATIONIST will be available to interested non-subsribers after the 15th of January. Copies may be had free of charge by writing the State Conservation Commission, East 7th and Court, Des Moines.

Seven U. S. vice-presidents have succeeded to the presidency because of a vacancy in the office.

January 31st Deadline for Sealing Some Crops

The closing date for loans and purchase agreements on oats, soybeans, flax and barley under the 1952 Price Support Programs is January 31st, 1953, an announcement from the Hancock County PMA Office stated.

The 1952 crop of oats is supported at 76c per bushel, soybeans at $2.57 pr bushel plus premiums up to six cents for beans of low moisture content, flax at $3.80 per bushel, and barley at $1.24 per bushel.

It is suggested that producers desiring loans on these grains make application within the next several weeks so that the sealing and loan papers can be completed before the closing date.

Purchase Agreements are available to those producers who wish price support, but do not wish CCC loans.

By signing a Purchase Agreement, a producer is not obligated to sell any of the grain covered by the Agreement to Commodity Credit.

Corporation, but is given an option to sell to them any quantity not in excess of he number of bushels signed for on he Agreement.

He is given a thirty-day period prior to the date that loans for the same kind of grain are, due, in which to exercise his option to sell to Commodity Credit Corporation, by giving his County PMA Office written notice of his intention to sell to Commodity Credit Corporation.

Loans on sealed oats, flax and barley mature on April 30th, 1953; on sealed soybeans, the loans are due a month later—May 31, 1953.

Safety Department Explains Limitations on Revoking of License

"Why was he still driving?"

That question, which stumps the public whenever a driver with a long record is involved in a widely-publicized accident, got a detailed answer Thursday from the safety department.

Milo Chalfant, director of safety responsibility, explained that limitations in Iowa law make it almost inevitable that a driver suspended for a bad record will get back on the highways in a comparatively short time.

The department may not suspend a license for more than one year unless the driver involved is found to be mentally or physically incompetent, he said.

He gave as an example the case of a young driver in eastern Iowa with a two-year record of 13 accidents and violations. After a number of previous suspensions he has now been given the maximum one-year suspension.

"However, unless he is convicted of driving during the suspension period, he can, after one year, get a new license simply by passing a routine examination," Chalfant said.

Suspension periods usually run shorter than one year. Their length is based either on a court recommendation, which the department usually follows, of on consideration of the record of the driver involved.

Chalfant pointed out that some drivers the public might think should be taken out of traffic immediately may not be touched by he law.

This happens when a driver with a previously clear record commits a traffic offense that causes the death or injury of someone else in an accident.

Unless the driver is convicted of one of the few charges requiring mandatory revocation the department cannot take his license.

If the driver proves he has insurance or cash to cover judgments resulting from the accidents, he goes right on driving.

The department's authority to suspend comes into play in such a case only after a driver has proved himself habitually reckless or negligent by compiling a record of convictions or accidents in a short period of time.

In other cases, the department may suspend at its own discretion only when a driver mentally or physically incompetent, has permitted unlawful use of his license, has committed an offense in another state that would be grounds for suspension in Iowa, or has been convicted of an offense that requires mandatory revocation.

The department is limited to the following reasons for mandatory revocation Chalfant said:

1. Driving while intoxicated.
2. Conviction of manslaughter or a felony with a motor vehicle.
3. Failure to stop and render aid to the injured in an accident.
4. False statements relating to ownership or operations of a motor vehicle.
5. Three convictions for reckless driving within one year.

Chalfant pointed out that convictions on two reckless driving charges and one speeding in a year would not be grounds for mandatory revocation under the present law though the degree of differences in the offenses might be very slight.

"Limits on the authority to impose suspensions or revocations and the limit on the suspension period allowed, account for the reappearance on our highways of some of our most dangerous drivers," Chalfant said.

OLDEST

Calhoun County lost its oldest native, December 14, in the death of Mrs. Alice Stanfield, of Lake City, at the age of 93. She was born in a three-room log cabin near Lake City, and lived all her life within a few miles of her birth-place.

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Better Days are ahead for Hancock hog producers, Francis A. Kutish, extension farm economist at Iowa State College, believes. Hogs should be worth good money next summer and fall.

Kutish rests his prediction of beter profits on two reasons: The sharp cut in hog production that is now going on, and a prospect for a continued high level of consumer buying power through 1953.

Official U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates now show hat he 1952 fall pig crop was cut back 11percent. All of this reduction came in pigs farrowed after the first of August. You can figure on about a lag of around 7 months between farrowing date and marketing time, as an average for the counry as a whole.

This means that the effects of the smaller 1952 fall pig crop will really begin to show up along in March. This is about the time the spring seasonal hog price drop begins.

So Kutish expects that the hog price drop this spring from the late winter will be more moderate than usual.

Futhermore, farmers' December intentions were to cut the 1953 spring pig crop to 15 percent. The reduced spring pig crop will mean a corresponding summer cut in the supply of packing sows—and right on the heels of this will come the smallest fall and winter supply of butcher hogs in 10 years.

Even in the face of larger beef slaughter, this can only mean ont thing—a more profiable hog bbusiness, as long as the general demand for meat holds up.

Here, Kutish reports, we find that the general business is more favorable than appeared likely a few months ago. The latest survey by the Department of Commerce shows that American business is planning to continue spending for new factories and factory equipment at about the same high rates as in 1952 and 1951. The construction industry is more optimistic about 1953 than it was a couple of months ago.

Defense spending will rise further—although not as much as expected under earlier plans. And the good Christmas sales in retail stores have pepped up business optimism in the retail trade.

The main weakness has been in the commodity markets—caused mainly by more adequate supplies. Agricultural marketings probably set a new record high last year, for example.

That's why Kutish believes that the smaller hog marketings coming up from late winter on spell better times for Hancock hog raisers.

VACATION

Pupils of the Fan rural school, near Waukon, will get a longer Christmas vacation than most school students. Fire destroyed the school house last week.

Visiting around Iowa

We Kept West Iowa

Folks in Iowa's 31 western counties certainly are lucky.

They wouldn't have been Iowans at all, if a few eastern politicians in the 1840's had had their way.

In those days the argument between northern and southern states was taking shape. A clique maneuvered things around to slice off 31 Iowa counties and squeeze in another state. That would give them more states, more votes, against the southerners.

But, being Iowans, our folks stood up for their rights . . . no cliques or factions were going to jockey them around. And they raised such an uproar that we kept our western counties.

That spirit in defense of our common rights and freedom of choice, is just as alive today as it was then. Sure, every so often one clique or another will bob up and try to slip something over on us. But they usually don't get very far. Because we live up to our State Motto—"Our liberties we prize and our rights we will maintain.'

March of Dimes Fund Drive to Get Underway

Sometime within the next week or so, volunteer ladies will be coming to see you, looking for funds for the March of Dimes. The money raised for the fund will be used to support the fight against infantile paralysis.

Last year was the worst year in history for the state of Iowa insofar as this affliction was concerned, and the Infantile Paralysis Association is badly in need of money to futher their work.

Money that you contribute for this cause, while not hurting you, can be of tremendous help to someone who gets hit by Polio. Dig!

Two Cars Overturn Due to Ice on Country Roads

Last Saturday, Dean Burgess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burgess, who live four miles south and a half-mile east of Klemme, was unlucky enuogh to slide off the road and upset the family car. Dean and his younger brother, Tommy, were on their way to Klemme, when they met Wilbur Haefner with his grinder. Dean pulled over to meet Wilbur, and when he tried to pull back to the track, the car skidded. went into the ditch, and upset. Neither Dean or Tommy were hurt, but the car was damaged considerably about the top and one side.

NANNEGA UPSETS

This morning, Henry Nannega was on his way into town when he met Sumner Trumbell just west of John Waddinghams. They met just after Nannega came over a hill where there is a blind spot in the road. Due to the ice, Nannenga had difficulty in getting his car over to the side of the road. He just ticked Trumbell's rear fender, lost control of his car, and into the ditch he went. The car a brand new '53 Mercury was banged up considerably, but Henry was unhurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peters, of Kanawha, are the parents of a baby boy, born at the Mercy Hospital in Mason City this morning. He weighed in at 9 pounds and 10 ounces and has been named Roger Allen. Mrs. Peters is the former Joan Hummel. The new arrival makes Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Hummel grandparents for the first time.

Klemme Teams Suffer Defeats by Luverne and Garner

Boys Do Well at Luverne, Not So Good at Garner; Girls Lose One

Last Friday night, the Shamrocks and Shamrockettes both met defeat at the hands of the Luverne cagers. The girls went down by a count of 83-39, and the boys lost a close one, 57-53.

In the first game of the evening the Shamrockettes found the Luverne girls just too much for them. They were behind all through the game and apparently never had a chance of doing anything about it.

Dorothy Lacey led the scoring for the Shamrockettes, with 27 points, while Carol Bridges had 11.

Haper led the scoring for the Luverne girls and for the game. She scored 38 points.

SHAMROCKS GO DOWN

In a tight game that saw the score close from the start to finish, the Shamrocks couldn't quite make the riffle with Luverne. The score was tied at 26-all at the half, and the margin was never very great either way. However, the Luverne quintet managed to pull ahead in the final minutes, and finished the game out in front by four points.

Scoring for the Shamrocks was pretty well divided with Stille having 17, Terhufen 13, Thieman, 12, Ridder 3, and Jacobs 3.

Henderson, of Luverne, led the scoring for the evening with 19 points.

GARNER WINS

Tuesday evening, the Shamrocks and the Little Shamrocks, both lost to Garner. The Little Shamrocks went down by a score of 47 - 22, and the Shamrocks took it on the chin 73 - 50.

The Shamrocks played the fast Garner five pretty well for three quarters of the game, staying within ten points of them, but in the final period, Garner spurted ahead to finish with a 23-point victory margin. Garner is undefeated and has a fine team this year, so we don't feel too badly about the Shamrocks losing to them.

Terhufen led the scoring for the evening, by dropping in 23 points. The rest of the Klemme scoring was pretty evenly divided.

Jass had 17 for Garner, and Koolbeck, 15.

GAMES HERE JAN. 16 - 19

Friday night, January 16, will see both the Corwith boys and girls on the Klemme floor, and Monday, January 19, the Goldfield boys and girls will be here. Be there and add your moral support to the teams.

Fake, Drive and Shoot

The old formula pays off again as Larry Stille goes in for a lay-up during the recent game with Kanawha. Larry had faked his man (No. 9) out of position and drove in unmolested to sink a fielder. It was to no avail, though, as Kanawha won by a score of 50 - 39.

Legion Saw World War II Combat Films

Tuesday night, January 13, Adam-Schaefer Post No. 625, held their regular monthly meeting at the Grade School. Attendance was not too heavy, but those who were there had a very enjoyable evening.

During the course of the business meeting, it was decided that if the town council was agreeable, the Legion would sponsor a celebration next spring in Klemme. The same show company that was here last spring has contacted Commander Schlei, and would like to book into Klemme.

Highlights of the evening came after the business meeting, when Signal Corp films of World War II combat were shown. The films covered parts of the Italian campaign, Iwo Jima landings, and the battle for Manilla. Since these Signal Corps films are readily available, it is thought that more will be shown in the future.

Kenneth Kluckhohn and Graydon Back took care of the lunch proposition, and their coffee was delicious.

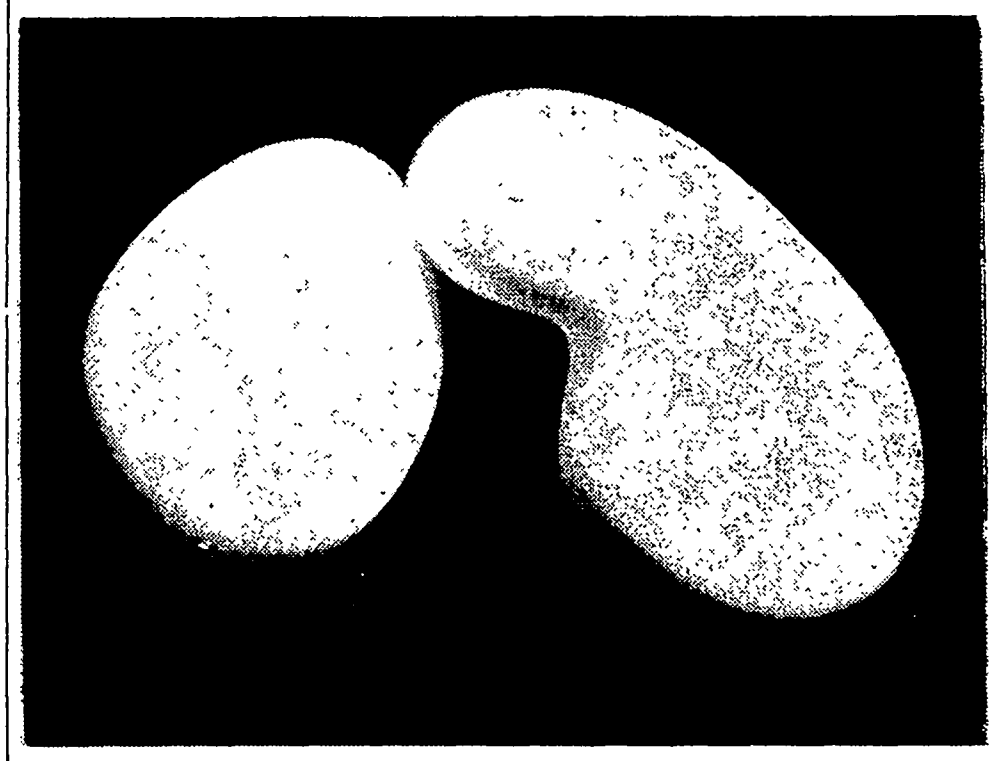
'53 Model



Ausborn Brothers, who live five miles east and a mile north of Klemme, have several different kinds of chickens on their farm, so they don't know which particular breed to give credit for the squash-shaped egg pictured on the right above. Compared to the normal egg on the left, it is rather a wierd looking specimen. We don't know whether the hen that layed this particular egg is going to produce the same model all through '53, or whether it was maybe just a freak. In any case, we have never before seen one like it.

"Shorty" Ausborn, who brought the egg to The Times Office, suggests that maybe there has been too much excitement around the place lately. They have been doing some building and remodeling, and have completed a 10x16 enclosed porch on their house. Besides the porch, they are nearing completion on a new 8-pen hog house.

WATCH IT!

There are several wildlife areas in this territory, and in these areas, wildlife is protected.

We don't think that the acts we have been hearing of have been intentional, but Joe Schuldt says that planes have been "buzzing" shelter areas on his farm.

It's a little bit illegal boys, so it would be a good idea to check and find out where these places are. Besides, planes are numbered, and it's not too hard to trace them down.

MARCH OF DIMES

Don't forget to "feed the kitty" for the March of Dimes. You never know when it might be you that needs the help of the Infantile Paralysis Association.

TROUBLE

We have had rather a hectic week. Our linotype broke down and in a day and a half we got just about twenty minutes worth of type set.

This week has been designated as National Printing Week, but for awhile we thought that we weren't going to get any printing done. We kept working at the machine, though, and eventually it began to see the light.

We're a little later than usual, but at least we made it.

OLEO

Butter is dern good food and we don't blame the Oleo people for wanting to copy it. Looks to us, though, like maybe they could find some color of their own if the legislature repeals the tax on their product. There are lot's of pretty colors besides yellow.

Safety Commissioner Praises Newspapers for Part in Safety Education

State Safety Commissioner Pearl W. McMurry Thursday officially thanked Iowa newspapers for their part in the 1952 reduction in traffic deaths, the greatest the safety department has on record.

McMurray said preliminary figures prepared by the department show that 531 persons were killed and 18,561 injured in 57,421 Iowa traffic accidents during the past year.

This compared to 690 killed and 19,837 injured in 61,933 accidents in the state during 1951, according to department records.

"The general reduction in deaths, injuries and accidents is all the more remarkable when you consider that traffic in the state actually increased from 4 to 5 per cent during the year," McMurray said.

"The total resuts of 1952 indicate that the attitudes of thousands of Iowa drivers have begun to shift toward active safety-consciousness."

He praised Iowa newspaper for "their many years of outstanding safety education work which has brought the problem squarely in front of drivers and done much to influence this shift toward safety.'

McMurry thanked all enforcement officers, civic groups and safety organizations that have conducted safety programs during the past years.

He said the saving of 78 lives on Iowa's highways in 1952 "indicates what we can do as drivers and citizens when we work together for safety. Iowa's good record can continue just as long as the majority of our people want it to."

Fire Department Made Run Saturday Night

The Klemme Fire Department made a run to the Verner Stromer farm, Saturday night. A spectacular chimney fire had gotten started in the tenant house on the Stromer farm, and things didn't look so good for a bit. However, everything was soon under control and no damage was done.

National Printing Week

This week, January 11 - 17, is National Printing Week.

Printing has come a long way since equipment like that pictured above was in use, and the human race has progressed with it.

Here at The Times, we are proud of the fact that we are part of the industry that printing has grown to be. We are, of course, small by comparison with other concerns engaged in this work, but we do our best to serve the needs of our community.

We don't know who said it, but we agree whole heartedly with the statement, "Printing, the inseparable companion of achievement."

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Grain prices will be favorable compared with fertilizer prices in 1953, according to Francis A. Kutish, extension farm economist at Iowa State College. And this means maximum application of fertilizer is likely to prove profitable on soils which respond to these applications. Corn prices are guarnteed at 90 percent of parity for the 1953 and 1954 crop. This puts less risk from price standpoint in grain than in most other products produced by Iowa farmers. And it calls for crop production plans which turn out the top possible corn production in keeping with the long-time producing ability of the soil.

Hancock farmers will profit best by ordering their fertilizer early, however. This will assure purchase of the kind and amount of fertilizer desired.

CATTLE PROSPECTS

Nothing is in sight to offset the lack of wheat-pastured cattle on the winter market this year. This would strengthen the price of lower grades of slaughter cattle by late winter or early spring.

Late winter and early spring traditionally is the best time to sell lower grades of slaughter cattle. There are not so many of them at that time—as compared with later in the summer and fall, when grass cattle flood the market. What's more, packers have additional competition from cattlemen who are looking for cattle to put on grass.

Holding lower grade cattle beyond late spring normally is bad business—unless there is a general inflation pushing cattle prices in general upward. For it throws these cattle into competition with grass cattle. And that normally means lower prices We are not likely to see any general inflation this year, according to Kutish.

Farm Bureau Kick-off on Membership Drive

The Hancock County Farm Bureau opened its 1953 membership drive at a county-wide kick-off meeting in Duncan on January 8th at 8:00 p. m.

The membership campaign will feature the efforts of more than 275 volunteer workers, who will invite every farm operator and owner in Hancock County to join the state's largest independent farm organization.

Tory Nodland, Kanawha, chairman of the Farm Bureau's membership committee, annouced that the 1953 quota is for 1414 member families. Hancock County has 1341 members in 1952, he said.

The kick-off program was planned to give township membership drive captains a final opportunity to divide responsibilities among the volunteer workers as means of insuring that every farmer in the county is invited to join Farm Bureau.

About 150 persons attended the meeting. An address by Al Hagen, State Organization Director was a highlight of the kick-off meeting.

The township quotas for Hancock County are as follows: Amsterdam, 95; Avery, 62; Bingham 91, Boone 76, Britt 81, Concord 179, Crystal 47, Ell 133, Ellington 81, Erin 68, Garfield 106, Liberty 95, Madison 85, Magor 70, non-county 8. The state quota Orthel 68, Twin-Lake 69, and this year is for 136,045 members, which would give Iowa the highest Farm Bureau membership in the history of the organization. 786 had paid their dues up to the kick-off meeting.

Sherf Discusses Corn Diseases and Control

Arden Sherf, Iowa State College Plant Pathologist, discussed corn diseases with 161 Hancock County farmers at the Garner High School Monday night, January 5th. Sherf presented colored pictures of the diseases and gave the known methods of prevention and control of them. He also included some insect pests in his discussion. Oat disease problems were also aired. Varieties resistant or tolerant to these diseases were mentioned. The disease that accompanies the purple coloring noticed on corn stalks the past fall was also discussed. It was pointed out that there is a lot to learn about the disease or conditions causing it. Things being studied include: fertility of soil, variety of corn, fertilizers used, rotation, time of planting and others in the greenhouse experiments.

Seed treating of oats is still highly recommended and very profitable according to Sherf. Seed cleaning is also very important in getting rid of some diseased grain. Sherf says, do both.

This meeting was set up jointly by Lyle Hullinger, Garner High School Agriculture teacher and Paul Henderson, Hancock County Extension Director.

EDITORIAL

It was a dreary day in school, Monday, with everyone back from vacation taking up where they left off December 23rd, 1952. As a matter of fact, the whole week seemed longer than usual, and no one was too happy about it. By now most of us are back in the swing of things, and we are getting ready for the semester tests which are on Thursday and Friday of next week.

We have been minus one teacher this week. Mr. Harvey Johnson is in the Mercy Hospital at Mason City where he underwent an operation. Nevertheless things have been running smoothly with Mr. Whitford helping out, and Mr. Ahrenkiel teaching government and history.

Now that it is 1953, time is getting shorter, and the seniors really have to buckle down if they want to get the yearbook finished on time. We have been pushing the sale of subscriptions, getting pictures, the will, history, and prophecy organized, and now we have set a date when a photographer from Russells will take pictures. All in all, things will soon be buzzing. For now, that's 30.

KINDERGARTEN

We have been busy taking our Christmas decorations down. Now we are coloring pictures to put up.

Everyone agrees Santa was very good to them. We are going to have a Toy Day soon so we can show each other our toys.

We are finishing up our farm unit by making our booklet of colored pictures of farm animals.

-Miss Johnson

FOURTH GRADE

On the opening day of school after vacation, we took Iowa Basic Skills Tests. We found some tests easy and others real hard.

Our room helpers this week are Rosemary Medin, Patricia Ulrich, Daryl Kothenbeutel, Billy DeMerrit, Eldon Nuehring, and Darryl Nuehring.

Billy DeMerrit returned his signed dental acrd.

We began dividing by fives and are learning about the fractions one-half and one-third in arithmetic.

THIRD GRADE

Since we returned to school we have been busy taking Basic Skill Tests. We finished Tuesday noon.

We decided our room looked very bare after all the Christmas decorations were taken down so we made a few pictures of snow men in keeping with the weather out doors.

We told about our Christmas gifts and we think everyone must have been very good to get such nice gifts from Santa Claus.

BAND NEWS

The band is now working on some of their numbers for the County Music Festival to be held February 11 at Garner, Iowa. Linda Swalve has joined the senior band adding another clarinet. The band has lost two of its players, thus cutting down the clarinet and bass horn sections. There is room for a lot more members even though the "chicken coop" isn't very big.

Glee Clubs

Mr. Whitford is again trying to organize boys and girls glee clubs. The girls are to meet on Tuesday at 2:40 and the boys are to meet at 2:40 on Friday. I'm sure Mr. Whitford would be glad to see anyone that is interested in singing.

TEACHER INTERVIEW

Eugene E. Fisher was born at Marshfield, Wisconson, on August 25, 1918. Mr. Fisher is 6 feet 3 inches tall. He has dark hair and blue eyes.

Fisher's pet peeves are: Catching someone in the act of doing something which he isn't allowed to do and then having him deny it. People who like to show off.

He attended Riverside school near Marshfield for eight years. After graduating from grade school, he worked at home during the day and attended a night school. In the years 39 and 40 he worked in an ice cream plant. In 40 and 41 he was employed in a lumber and veneer mill. He was drafted into the Army in the fall of 41. He served 4½ years as a radio operator. When he returned he took a high-school course for veterans in Chicago. On finishing the course, he attended Westmar College at Le Mars, Iowa. He received his V. A. Degree after 3½ years of study.

Mr. Fisher had hoped to study for forgien missionary service, but his age would not allow him to do so. After finishing college, he worked with a construction crew for 2 years. He attended summer school to qualify for Drivers' Education course. He came to Klemme in 1951. Here he teaches Drivers' Education, World History, and Industrial Arts.

Mr. Fisher has several favorite foods. They are: ice cream, corn, peas, fried potatoes, bread and jelly, and fruit sauces. His favorite band is the Cities' Service Band of America. George Beverly Shay is his favorite singer. His hobby is photography, and his pastime is fixing things.

He was married in 1947. His wife's name is Grace. They have 3 children whose names are Jerold, John and Susan.

Someday Mr Fisher wants to take up construction work.

We have been studying the slavery system.
Business Arithmetic
We are cumputing compoud intrests.
Physics
Heat currents, ventilation, useful convection, stoves and furnaces for example are the subjects we are studying.
Bookkeeping
We have started working on our practice set which we can only do in class. Mr. Johnson thinks we copy too much. He just does not know us seniors. That will conclude our first semester of this stuff.
Adv. Typing
We still are trying to cut down on errors. When we came back from Christmas vacation, some of us found that we had forgotten some of it.

Semester tests are here again! Much to the happiness of most of us seniors, they are our last semester tests. This makes us aware of the reality that graduation day is rapidly approaching.

Four years ago, graduation seemed like something in the far distant future. It didn't matter so much then if you got that history lesson, or that algebra problem. Now we realize that there was a reason for taking each course required of us, and the teacher wasn't just a tyrant, trying to spoil our fun.

Of course, there must be time for fun as well as study, but the class room isn't the place for juvenile play. Take part in activities outside the class room which will develop your personality as well as your mentality, for "all work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy." But also, all play and no work will not make an interesting person.

Yes, school is work and school is play. If we were again freshmen we would make more of the privilege which is ours of attending high school. For now, we realize that school is not a tedious chore, but a foundation we are building for the future.

Your life can be only as good as this foundation which is being built here in high school.

With these thoughts, fellow students, we leave you until next week.

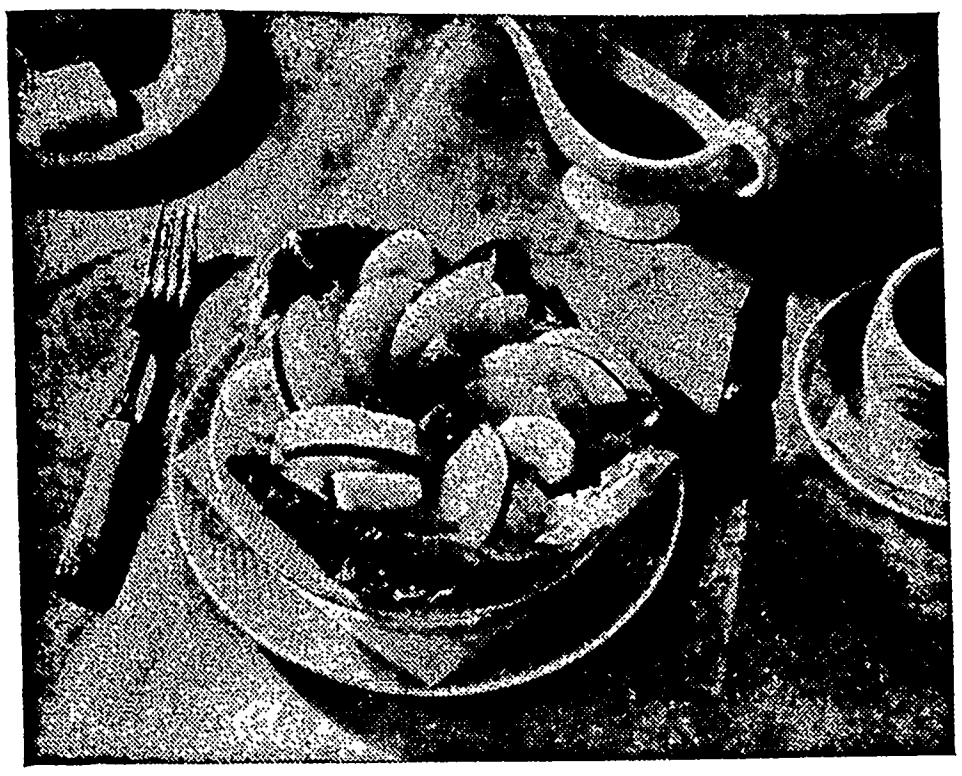
Serve Them Often, With Great Variety—

Wintertime Salads at Your House



This fruit salad bowl could be the main attraction of your luncheon or light supper. Line each salad bowl with crisp salad greens, fill in with orange and banana slices, wedges of unpeeled, red-skinned apples and perhaps some juicy, tangy tangerines. Center your fruit mixture with two or three dates, and serve with French dressing or your favorite fruit salad dressing.

Salads, colorful and inspired, are the glamor girls of the food family. You can't overdo them, can't serve them too often to please most folks.

"The man, woman or child who says he doesn't like salads, just hasn't been introduced to enough members of this wonderful clan," says Leslie Smith, Iowa State College extension nutritionist.

If you've been relying on five or six different salads and letting it go at that, you have an adventure in store next time you explore cookbook and magazine for salad ideas says Mrs. Smith. For new discoveries or perhaps simply "rediscoveries" are just across the page. There are hundreds of different kinds of salads, using an endless variety and combination of ingredients.

SALAD TRICKS

As you study recipes and compare notes with other homemakers, you'll learn more of that multitude of special tricks—such as crumbling cheese in the dressing at the last minute, that special way to section a grape fruit, curling olives by slicing them round and round as you remove the pit, cutting cold cuts of meat into thin slivers or shapes with your kitchen shears, scooping out balls of melon or meat, frosting grapes by dipping them in lemon juice and rolling in sugar, slicing tomatoes vertically so they'll hold their juice better, and curling and cutting carrots and radishes into all sorts of swirls and shapes.

And one trick that's essential to good salad making, according to Mrs. Smith, is this one: Always, always wipe clean the cap or lid to your salad dressing. Otherwise the small bit of oil that adheres to the cap or lid will quickly turn rancid and transfer its off-flavor to the rest of the dressing and then to your salad.

There are light fruit salads just right for dessert, or hearty meat (or fish) and vegetable-filled salads that take over the main part of the meal. There are molded salads, tossed salads, all kinds of cabbage slaws, salads with cheese, eggs or beans as the center attraction. There are so many kinds and combinations that exploring and experimenting is never dull.

TRY NEW DRESSINGS

You may be content with commercial salad dressings, but it is fun to add your own touch. Try seasoning the dressings with different kinds of cheese, fruit juice, minced celery or onion, spices, herbs. And there are lots of wonderful recipes for other dressings, starting from scratch.

FOR GOOD HEALTH

What do salads supply that contribute to good health? You get vitamins A and C in most green and fresh fruits. And if the salad includes meat, poultry, cheese, eggs or fish, you get the B vitamins, too, plus iron, other minerals and protein. Green and raw vegetables supply bulk, and salads are one of your best friends if you're concentrating on keeping your weight down—just watch out for the dressings. Be sure they're low-calorie ones.

If you'd like a bit of extra help and some inspiration on salad-making at your house, ask for the Iowa State College bulletin called "Good Salads" at your county etension office. Or write to the Bulletin Office at the College.

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

When Wally started out as a claims adjuster with an auto insurance company, he had all the bright confidence and initiative you like to see in a young man beginning a new job.

He had a large Iowa territory to cover and he worked it hard, driving long hours during the day investigating accidents, and working late into the nights talking to claimants.

In two short years, Wally built up a reputation as one of his company's best and most conscientious adjustors. But in that time, something had happened to him.

His briskness no longer was so much initiative as it was a desperate drive to keep up with the flood of accident claims in his territory. But worse than that, he had lost confidence in his ability to protect his own life on the highway.

He had probed into so many wrecked cars, talked to so many mangled people in hospitals, visited in so many homes split by the terrible blow of a traffic death that he had come to believe there was any safety left, for him or anyone else.

Friends and the men he worked with noticed that Wally was sinking deeper into despondency. Sometimes, while traveling with a companion, he would drive for miles without speaking, gripping the wheel tensely as though waiting for something to happen.

At other times, perhaps while taking a quick cup of coffee, he would stare at his cup and seem to forget where he was and who he was with. "I know how I'm going to get it," he would say "I'm going to be killed in a traffic accident. That's how I'm going to die."

It ws so bad that Wally's boss called him for a talk. They decided that perhaps a warmer climate would help and he was transferred to southern California. That was about a year ago. A few weeks ago the word came back. Wally had been killed. His car had been found 200 feet off a curve. He had lain there all night.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Fifteenth Installment

THE OIL BUSINESS

Kerosene, or coal oil as the customers called it, was sold in Klemme's early stores with every grocery order. It was used in every home for lamps and lanterns. The grocer had a large tank in a back room of his store from which he filled the customer's oil cans, using a gallon measure and funnel, after which he stuck a small potato on the spout and carried the sometimes dripping can, to the entry of the store, thus keeping all the mess in one place. Later, the merchants installed underground tanks with measuring pumps.

The Standard Oil Company had large supply tanks at Belmond, and from there they distributed the kerosene, by tank wagon, to several nearby towns, including Klemme.

A four horse team of matched horses, well shod and in good and fancy harness, pulled the tank wagon from town to town on the oil route. For many years, John Hughes, was the Standard agent at Belmond. He and a helper usually made the trip to Klemme once each week. They would park the tank wagon on main street, unhitch the horses, take them to the livery barn for feeding, come back to the wagon and carry the kerosene in five gallon pails from the wagon to each of the stores until all were supplied.

Just a few years later, the stores began handling gasoline. This at first was shipped to Klemme by rail, in fifty gallon barrels. The farmers were using gasoline to run small, one cylinder gas engines.

This arrangement worked fine and dandy until the automobile, the trucks and tractors began to appear, which increased the consumption of gasoline so that the Belmond station could not handle all the business.

Thus it happened in about 1916, that the Standard erected two oil tanks in Klemme next to the R. R. tracks. Nearby property owners objected strenuously and wanted the R R. Co. to have them built farther out, as they considered it a fire hazard to have the tanks so close to other buildings. But their objections were over ruled and the first two tanks were built on the present site.

Henry F. Lemke was hired to distribute Red Crown gasoline and Perfection kerosene with his tank truck to the people, of the Klemme community. Yes, Henry F. Lemke was number one, the first truck operator living in Klemme.

He was followed in 1925, by Jack Poort. Next Will Madson tried it for a while. Then Will Kirkwood took over and supplied us with gasoline and kerosene for a half dozen years or more. Finally, Harvey E. Barz became Klemme's "Oil King". He has been serving us since 1930, a total of 22 years. His assistant is Graydon Back.

The Standard now has large storage facilities at the Klemme R. R. tracks; four large tanks of 18,000 gallon each and one tank of 3,300 gallon capacity.

The D-X people also have two drivers in Klemme. They are Ernest L. Henschen and Frederick Bell.

The Hancock County Co-Op Oil Association have two drivers. They are Dwight Hummel and Everett Weiland.

It seems these six oil truck drivers are all busy. In addition to the gasoline and kerosene, they sell and deliver many other petroleum products such as, heater and furnace oil, and tractor fuel. Also different kinds of grease, anti-freeze etc. Just lately they have added to the list a special hi-test aviation gasoline for the airplanes of our flying farmers. This as yet is handled only in barrel lots.

Some of these petroleum products come to Klemme in special tank cars by rail. Much more comes to Klemme by the big-transport oil trucks who load up at the various pipe line terminals.

It is estimated that the farmers of Klemme, spend on an average of $800 per year for petroleum products. The oil business of the nation as a whole is reported to be the largest industry in the United States. Thus we must conclude that the oil business has grown to be big in Klemme, too.

AIRPLANE PILOTS

There are only one or two people in this community who own an airplane, but we do have ten people who have a "Private Pilots License". They are Martin Barz, Marie Blank, Howard DeMotts, Clarence Christians, Graydon Back, Lyle Green, Harold Christians, R. A. Jorgenson, Donald Schaefer and Elwyn Etchen.

FIRST SERVICE STATION

The first service station was built by Henry Lewis on Main Street, near the lumber yard in 1922. Ernest "Stub" Lewis operated it for two years. Then Mrs. Helen Kirkwood, assisted by Fred Nagel, ran it for many years. They gave good service and enjoyed a good business. In 1940, Dr. D. P. Anderson purchased the building and has arranged it for his veterinary office.

THE HI-WAY STATION

Carold Larson built up a service station a half mile west of Klemme on Hi-way 69. This was in 1936. He operated it for a number of years, and then sold out to Don Schaefer. The place is known as Don's D-X station. It has always been a healthy place.

HANCOCK COUNTY CO-OP ASSOCIATION

After the hotel fire in 1926, the site was leveled off and a nice filling station erected under the efficient management of Herman Paul, who stayed 18 years. This station did a rushing business. Then in about 1945, they removed the old building and pumps and a large super service station of brick was erected. Three overhead doors admit autos and trucks to the repair department. The front end, of course, is for office, display room, rest rooms, etc. The pumps are outside in front. Three men and one boy operate the place. Harold Kothenbeutel is the manager. The place is well located and continues to give much needed service to the public.

THE CHRISTIE BUILDING

Verner Christie put up a brick garage and service station on our main street in 1945, size 30 x 60. A very desirable location. It has changed hands often and was owned and operated by the following: Verner Christie, Earl Smith, Wilbur Haefner and Walt Rosendahl. At the present time Lyndon "Pete" Kilgore leases and operates the gas pumps at the front end of the building. We understand that last week Bert Lieuen, of Mason City, purchased the building, and will soon take over the station there.

HENRY LAU SONS

Henry Lau was one of the very first business places in Klemme. He had a warehouse on the R. R. tracks as mentioned previously Later he built on the north side of main street.

His sons still continue the business. They are George, Wesley and Erwin. They sell farm machinery, radios, electrical appliances, and do an excellent job of radio repairing. They also sell hybrid seed corn.

Their new brick building, size 24 x 70, was erected in 1919, and an addition, size 22 x 48 was put on in 1951.

RIDDER, ETCHEN, BRINKMAN

In 1896, when Klemme was six years old, Fred and August Ridder built and equipped a large roomy shop on the lots where Mrs. Fred Ridder now resides. They did wagon work, horse shoeing, rebuilt steam engines and general blacksmithing. This shop was known far and wide for good quality repair work. It was a busy and a prosperous place.

Fifteen years later, in 1911, the Ridder Brothers dissolved partnership and Fred Ridder built a cement block shop, size 40 x 60, and continued the business as a smith shop and garage. He also sold Ford and Buick automobiles.

In 1923, the business and building were sold to the Etchen Auto Co., with John Etchen in charge of the auto repairing. Martin Brinkman, who had worked with Ridder for several years, was in charge of the blacksmithing part of the business.

Fred Ridder, then for a number of years, conducted a plumbing and heating business.

In 1948, John Etchen sold the north half of the building to the Klemme School Board. Martin Brinkman bought a lot in the same block and erected a new shop, size 26 x 28, into which he moved and continued in the blacksmith business. Mr. Brinkman has been a blacksmith in Klemme for thirty-six years.

AUTOMOBILES

Albert Koerner brought the first automobile to Klemme. It was a "Pierce Racine". We were all very much impressed and interested in this new piece of machinery.

Then in about 1909, the International Hi-wheel auto appeared. We remember three: J. P. Larsen, contractor; Harry Gibbs, farmer; and Chas. Jahnke, liveryman. In 1911, Ford put out his famous "Model T" and everybody bought a touring car. Several Buicks also appeared Hugo Neff, John Waterman and Laurence Larson were some of the first owners.

After that the auto business grew rapidly. Tractors were developed and horses gradually dissappeared, except maybe the saddle horse which is still very popular.

FORD DEALER

Ed G. Ell was one of our early Ford Dealers. He was in business around 1915 to 1918. His repair department was in charge of Cloyd Lawhorn.

About this time Henry Ludeke, built a home made tractor which was partly constructed in the Ell shop. Since then Mr. Ell has been saleman for the Thompson Hybrid Seed Corn Co. at Belmond.

Junior High Loses Twin Bill to Corwith Cagers

The Junior high teams were defeated twice, January 10 at Corwith. Coach Juhl's "Rockettes' were trving to win their second game of the year but failed. The score was 25 - 20. The girls played one of their better games, but lost due to the missing of 37 free throws. Barbara Thompson was high with 16 points. Fonda Bier, Thiemann and Myrna Barz played a good defensive game. Berleen Bridges also starred on defense. Our record now is 1 win, 4 lost.

The boys lost a real thriller, 36 - 37. After losing Bob Larsen due to fouls in the third quarter, the boys jumped out in front 35 - 27. In the last few minutes of play, Corwith hit for 10 and we connected on only one free throw. Inability to hit free thows lost us the game here too. We missed 51 chances while making only 6. Martin Brinkman was high with 11 points but missed 25 consecutive free throws. Larson hit for 9, Josten 8, Nuehring 4, and Baack 4. Our record is now 3 wins, 2 loses. Our next home game is January 22, at 3:30 with Thornton.

The G. S. C. S. held a meeting on January 5, at the home of Jo-Ann Bacon. The meeting was opened by singing several hymns, after which Margaret Haefner told the story of each. Margaret then led the lsson which told about the schools of Africa, the missionaries and there work.

The business meeting was opened by president, Kay Jacobs. The secretary's report was read and corrected and the treasurer's report was appoved as read. There was no new business, so the meeting was adjourned.

Lunch was served by Jo Ann and co-hostess Carol Bridges.

Nine girls and three leaders were present.

Secretary, JoAnn Bacon

Know the Meaning of Seed Test Report

Knowing the meaning of every item on a seed sample report is important if the grower is going to find out what he needs to, about the quality of his seed, says Paul Henderson, Hancock County Extension Director.

Henderson says each item of the short summary of the seed reports that many Hancock County farmers have already received from the Seed Testing Laboratory at Iowa State College tell an important fact about the seed.

Each seed report contains figures showing the percentage of pure seed, other crop seed, weed seed and inert matter. It also includes the germination of the pure seed. The seed is also rated as "good", "satisfactory" or "unfit for seed".

In explaining the meaning of some of these terms used in these seed reports, Henderson points out that pure seed is only that percentage by weight of the sample which is actually seed of the crop involved. For instance, alfalfa seed sent in for testing would be pure alfalfa seed and any other seeds such as clover or oats would be listed under "other crop seed." Inert matter refers to such things as chaff, dirt and broken seeds. It does not include weed seeds, since these are listed as "weed seeds" Germination doesn't merely refer to all seeds that sprout—but to these that produce plants capable of continued growth under favorable conditions.

All growers in Hancock County who sell seed must meet labeling requirements of the seed law unless they sell to a seed dealer or seed processing plant. Seed that contains primary noxious weeds, or has over three percent total weed content, or doesn't meet labbeling requirements or hasn't been tested during the preceeding 9 months cannot be sold as seed in Iowa.

Good Bedding for Cows Helps Reduce Mastitis

Provide your cows plenty of bedding this winter.

That's the way to help insure clean milk and hold down mastitis, according to Robert Fincham, of Iowa State College.

Cows lying on damp, cold cement or dirt floors often tend to develop mastitis and they pick up dirt which later drops into the milk.

Cows also need plenty of ice-free water in the winter, Fincham recommends offering water in individual drinking cups.

Corwith and Goldfield Both Too Much for Shamrockettes

The Klemme girls just didn't have enough to handle Corwith, Friday night, or Goldfield, Tuesday night. They tried, but it wasn't there.

In the Corwith game, they pulled up fairly even early in the third quarter, but finally went down by a count of 59 - 37. Corwith has a girl who can hit from pretty well out on the floor, and she just wasn't to be stopped . . . or if they did stop her she fed off to the post forward, and she scored.

Lacey led the scoring for the Shamrockettes for the evening with 21 points. Sharon Bridges had 10, and Carol Bridges, 6.

, Peterson, of Corwith, hitting from out on the floor led the scoring for the evening with 29 points, and her team mate, Bonnstetter, at the post position, got 17. Spangler contributed 13 to her team's total.

LOSE TO GOLDFIELD

In a game that was never in doubt, the Shamrockettes went down before a sharpshooting crew from Goldfield, Tuesday night, by a score of 64 - 34. This is much better than they did with the visiting crew when they played on their floor earlier in the season, but it is still a rather decisive defeat.

Goldfield has girls that are all freshman and sophomores, and if they improve with experience, they should have a whiz of a team in a couple of years.

Lacey took care of most of the Klemme scoring by banging in 19 points. Sharon Bridges got 7, and Carol Bridges and Christians, each got 4.

Whyte had 26 for Goldfield to lead the scoring for the game, while M. Axon, got 24.

SECTIONAL TOURNEY

Next action for the Shamrockettes will be when they meet Joice in the Sectional on the Klemme floor at 8:30 next Tuesday evening.

Survey to Hunt Out Possible TB Cases

The 11th annual contact case-finding program in Hancock County was announced this week by C. E. Barnes, president of the Hancock County Tuberculosis (and Health) Association.

The search for possible cases of tuberculosis in the county will be directed by Mrs. Mattie Peterson, R. N., public health nurse. She will search for those persons known to have been exposed to tuberculosis of for unknown cases of this disease.

Family physicians have been urged through the State Department of Health to give a skin test. If there is a reaction to the test, a chest X-ray is encouraged. All information obtained by the nurse is strictly confidential.

Dr. L. W. Eller, president of the Hancock County Medical Society, has indicated the approval of the medical profession for this survey. The survey will be financed by the Hancock County Tuberculosis (and Health) Association and the Tuberculosis Division of the State Department of Health, and the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association. Christmas Seal funds defray part of the expenses of this survey.

Girls' Sectional Tourney Here Next Week, Starts Monday Night at 7:15

Klemme will be host to a girl's sectional tournament next week.

Monday night will see Alexander and Fertile in action at 7:15, and Goodell and Hanlontown, at 8:30.

Tuesday, Meservey and Ventura meet at 7:15, and Joice and Klemme, at 8:30.

Semi-finals will be on Thursday evening, and the finals will be played Saturday night.

Flu Bug Bad in Klemme Territory

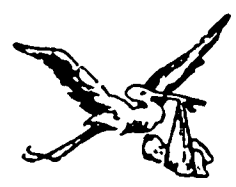
We started to make local items of all the people who were sick with flu, but we just had to give it up. There are so many people that are sick, have been sick or are afraid they will soon be hit with the bug, that it would use up all our space to mention them all individually.

The malady affects people in different ways. Some are not much worse off than if they had a bad cold, while others are really sick, and have to put in quite a bit of time in bed.

Last Friday, there were six of the Klemme School teachers down with the bug, and as a result school had to be called off for that day.

Between the flu and the ice last week, two days of school were missed for the country students, and the kids in town missed a day and a half. We suppose this has some bearing on the smallness of The Shamrock this week.

Stork Club



Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Back are the proud parents of a baby girl born to them at the Belmond Hospital, Saturday. The little Miss has been named Mary Jo, and tipped the scales at 7 pounds and 6 ounces. Papa Back was dishing out cigars like mad for a few days, but we understand he has tapered off, now.

Mary Jo has one sister "Becky".

Cub Scouts Hold Pack Meeting, Tuesday

The January meeting of the Cub Scout Pack, was held in the basement of the Grade School on January 20th. A chili supper had been prepared by the Den Mothers assisted by Mrs. Thiemann. Display tables covering the last three months were set up. These themes were, November, "Faith of His Fathers"; December, "An Old-Fashioned Christmas"; and January, "Transportation". Models of all forms of transportation were on display.

The formal meeting was opened by Den 1 with their November skit of "The First Thanksgiving". All of the Cub Scouts gave the Promise and the Laws in the form of the Living Circle.

Each boy passed through the group with any two of his models on transportation. After a short discussion period, the meeting was closed by everyone repeating the Flag Pledge.

There were over 50 present for the supper and 60 for the meeting that followed.

Shamrocks Split In Games with Corwith and Goldfield

Last Friday night in what was probably one of the most hectic ball games seen around here in some time, the Shamrocks managed a 37 - 31 win over the Corwith boys.

A combination of a brand new slick ball, and what seemed too much hurry, had both teams giving the ball away, kicking it, and doing about everything, except getting it in the basket. However, the Shamrocks managed to connect for the most counters.

Klemme led all the way, and the score at the end of the first quarter was 7 - 6. At the half the score stood at 15 - 13, and at the end of the third quarter, the Shamrocks had built up a nine-point, 27 - 18 margin. Corwith whittled it down some in the final period, but the Shamrocks managed to stay out in front and hang on to their six-point victory margin.

To give you a idea of how relaxed the teams were, Klemme missed 33 out of a possible 43 free throws, and Corwith missed 17 out of 25.

Stille led the scoring for Klemme with 10 points. Terhufen had 8, Ridder 6, Thiemann 5, Baack 4, and Barz 3.

Mulen had 8 points to lead the Corwith attack.

LOSE TO GOLDFIELD

Tuesday nite, the Shamrocks tangled with a fast Goldfield aggregation, and played what some thought to be their best game of the year. They lost, but they looked better losing than they did winning against Corwith.

They led 12 - 11 at the end of the first quarter; were behind 24 - 22 at the half, and at the end of the third period the score was knotted at 36 all. In the last quarter, Goldfield got the best of things, and pulled out to win by a score of 53 44.

Terhufen led the scoring for the Shamrocks with 13 points, while Karjens, seeing action for the first time this season, dumped in 12. Thiemann had 3, Ridder 6, Stille 3, and Barz 2.

R. Smith was very sharp with a quick jump shot, and racked up 15 points to lead his Goldfield mates to victory, and take scoring honors for the evening.

COUNTY TOURNEY TONIGHT

The Shamrocks meet Britt in the first round of the County Tournament at Garner at 6:30 tonight. Be there and give them a boost.

INFORMATION, PLEASE

Much has been written pro and con about the controversial colored oleo problem. The dairymen, it seems to us, are going about the business of protecting their interests in an entirely unsatisfactory way. They complain that since oleo is a substitute for their product, butter, that it should be taxed and have some distinguishing color, so that it can be readily determined that it is not butter. They put out loud noises that oleo will take too much income away from the farmer.

We agree with them that oleo is a poor relation to butter. Strictly, an imitation. And, we think that the only reason the oleo people want to color their product yellow is so that they can gain sales by trading on butter's reputation. We don't agree with them that oleo should be taxed. In fact we think that the tax now imposed on this product is discriminatory, and highly unfair. We agree with their loud noises about loss of income . . . unless they wake up.

Certainly butter is a wonderful product. One worth telling about. Why don't they tell the public how good their product is, how much more healthful than oleo. Get out a public information program proclaiming the benefits to be derived from the use of their product, instead of yelling to the high heavens about what oleo is going to do to them if given an even break. This is rather a defeatist attitude. Especially in view of what they have to brag about.

Tests have been run that prove conclusively that if we as a nation went on a diet that had vegetable oils substituted for all the animal fats that we find in natural foods, we would soon be "over the hill". Our health would break down, and we would become a rather poorly lot . . . if not extinct.

At the University of Minnesota, calves were used in tests to determine what would happen if the only fats they received were in the form of vegetable oils. Healthy calves were chosen for the experiment, and were fed skim milk with a high grade of soy bean oil added . . . plus Vitamins A and D and essential minerals. All calves, healthy to start, died within a few weeks after being placed on this diet. Not a very good recommendation for vegetable oil products.

The Lee Foundation for Nutritional Research, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in a recent bulletin, makes the following proven statements:

"Butterfat is the Nation's best source of Vitamin A.

Unit for unit, the Vitamin A in butterfat is three times as effective as the Vitamin A in fish liver oils.

The natural Vitamin D in butterfat is found to be 100 times as effective as the common form of Vitamin D (viosterol).

Butter, described by physicians as a remedy for tuberculosis, psoriasis, xehophthalmia, dental cavities and in preventing rickets, has been promptly effective.

Butter carries Vitamin "E" in its true form in sufficient quantities to prevent deficiency reactions.

Experimental work with animals shows a loss of secondary sexual characteristics after two or three generations on substitute diets. Males lose their heavy masculine frame, their make up begins to resemble the female. Females also tend to lose their distinguishing build so that both sexes approach a state of physical neutrality."

All these things would seem to add up that dairy men should stop complaining about oleo being given an equal chance with their product, and get out and inform the public why butter is their best buy . . . even at a higher price.

Good Records Vital to Farm Business

Like many Iowa farmers, you have probably had a tough time wrestling with this year's income tax return.

And for many the job would have been easier if they had kept good farm records, says H. B. Howell, extension farm management specialist at Iowa State College.

A good account book includes a place to enter the details of sales and expenses in columns. And it's best that these details include the date, description and amount for each transaction. Each item may not seem important at the time of entry, but Howell adds it's better than relying on memory at the end of the year.

SPACE FOR INVENTORIES

A good account book also provides space for detailed inventories of feed and livestock, and depreciation schedule for machinery and buildings. Although feed and livestock records are not required for tax reports on a cash basis, they are valuable in spotting items that may be included for capital gains tax benefits.

The specialist says modern farming requires accurate records not only for filing income tax returns but for making complete and accurate credit statements.

HELP ANALYZE BUSINESS

Besides furnishing an accurate record for tax payment, Howell says records are an aid in analyzing your farm business. Through kept-up records, you can see for what you spend and from what you get the most return. Many farmers can pick up profits through their pencils by keeping good records.

The first of the year is the best time to begin keeping a good farm record book. That's when you've brought the year's finances to a close and can begin the new year fresh.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

For the past few years, Iowa highway patrolmen have been reasonably certain that most people know who they are and what their business is. Now they aren't so sure.

Three patrolmen were working on a roadblock recently inspecting cars and drivers' licenses. Everything was going smoothly and quickly until an ancient vintage auto drew up and the driver leaned out with a friendly, "Who are you fellers?"

Prepared for anything but this, one patrolman stumbled through an explanation while another moved closer to get a whiff of the driver's breath. He was sober.

"Well, just what business are you fellers in," the driver persisted. The patrolmen told him they wanted to look his car over to be sure it was safe, would he please turn his lights on?

The driver said he didn't exactly know where the light switch was. Didn't drive much anymore. A patrolman found the switch and found the car had no lights. "Didn't reckon I did," the driver agreed.

Now would the driver please produce his license? "What's that," he wanted to know. Another patient explanation followed with the driver nodding and smiling at the news. "Why, I didn't know I had to have a license," he said finally. "I been driving for 30 years too."

The driver accepted his ticket and prepared to drive on. He paused for a moment and looked the patrolmen over, apparently going over in his mind again all he had just heard. "You know," he said at last, "I think you boys have got a good idea there."

And speaking of incidents at roadblocks, officers in an Iowa city recently discovered what they claim to be the prize offender in mechanical safety. The driver was operating a car with dim headlights, a light switch that failed every time the car hit a bump, bad brakes, a slipping clutch, a loose steering wheel, windshield wipers that didn't work and no registration certificate on the steering post.

Use Care Choosing Varieties Planted

One of Quickest Ways to Raise Crop Yields

Planting improved crop varieties is one of the quickest and most effective ways of increasing production, says I. J. Johnson, who is in charge of farm crops work at Iowa State College.

Years of patient work by plant breeders and disease and insect control specialists go into developing crop varieties which will produce top yields. Thorough testing of these varieties on farms follows before they are offered and recommended to Iowa farmers.

Of course, the new varieties can't shoulder the whole job of boosting yields to the maximum, Johnson points out. But improved varieties are available now for about all crops. With the best management practices, they will consistently turn out better than average yields. In each major crop there are several improved varieties from which to choose.

WHICH ALFALFA?

Johnson makes these suggestions to Iowa farmers now considering which alfalfa variety to buy for spring seeding. Get a variety with the hardiness needed to withstand our Iowa winters. This means southern common strains from California, Arizona and New Mexico are not recommended, except for green manure crops which don't need to survive the winter.

Northern common seed produced in Canada, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Montana is generally satisfactory for two crop years, Johnson reports. But for longer stands, he recommends picking one of the new varieties—the improved varieties are usually better yielders than the common strains, too.

Ranger is a high yielding, winter-hardy and wilt-resistant variety that Johnson recommends for stands to last more than 3 years. Buffalo is the equal of Ranger in yield and wilt resistance and will persist 3 or more years in central and southern Iowa.

FOR 2-3 YEARS

Johnson recommends two high yielding varieties for 2- to 3-year stands—Atlantic and Ladak. Ladak recovers somewhat slowly after cutting, but it is one of the highest yielding varieties for 2- to 3-year stands.

Grimm—one of the oldest of the improved varieties—is winter-hardy and a top yielder for only the first 2 years of stand. It is susceptible to wilt. Cossack is equal to Grimm in yield, but slightly better in persistence of stand. Cossack seed is scarce, Johnson points out.

Certified seed grown in California and Washington is supplying an increasingly large part of our alfalfa seed, according to Johnson. This seed— if it was grown from foundation stock maintained in this area—is satisfactory for Iowa farms.

EDITORIAL

Now that we have finished the semester tests and begun a new semester, most of us are anxiously awaiting the return of our report cards. The end of his semester marks the beginning of the last lap of the high school education for the seniors. We hope that most of the students are pleased with their first semester grades. It seems there are always some students who think they should have had higher grades. Getting good grades in high school is one thing that won't come by doing what comes naturally; you have to put forth a little effort of your own.

A good high school record is always a comfortable thing to lean back on when you want to get a job or enter college.

You're just gambling with your life when you think you are wasting time by going to high school. Don't turn the tables on yourself; make your high school education work for you by working for your high school education.

TEACHER INTERVIEW

Charles D. Whitford was born at Spooner, Wisconsin, September 6, 1922. He has black hair, hazel eyes and is five feet and eight inches tall. After attending grade school and high school at Webster, Wisconsin, he attended Superior State Teachers College for 2½ years. The army took care of him for the next three years and after returning, went to the University of Minnesota for 2 years.

Kids who "cut up" in band and chorus are his pet peeve.

"Chuck" is his nickname. His hobby is photography and reading is his pastime. His favorite food is T-bone steak; favorite movie stars are Doris Day and Jimmy Stewart; favorite movie was "The Red Shoes"; favorite band is Tommy Dorsey and his favorite saying is "nuts".

Mr. Whitford is a member of the Methodist Church and directs the church choir. He is also a member of the Lions Club.

This is his sixth year of teaching. He has taught at Blackduck, Minnesota, for two years, at Ringsted, Iowa, for one year, at Jillett Grove, Iowa, for one year and at Klemme for two years.

He has no definite plans as to how long he will teach.

Plans for First Annual Are Well Underway

Monday was a confused day at school because the pictures for the annual were taken. At the time the Seniors were photographed an agreement with Russells Studio was made to take these pictures. The first picture taken was of the band. This caused a little confusion, but with the help of the Music Mothers each member was successful in getting his own uniform and not someone else's. Following the picture of the band, others were taken of the school board, teachers, basketball groups, and group pictures of each grade, kindergarten through 12th.

We are trying to get as many articles for the annual written as soon as possible. A few of the articles being written now are the class will, prophesy, history, and dedication.

The outline of the year book will be sent to the publisher at the end of the school year. We feel it will be a more complete book because it will include graduation, the banquet, and many other activities which occur later this semester. However, we will not receive the finished copies until sometime in August.

Because of the help of the businessmen we are sure it will be a success.

Soluble Phosphate Fertilizers Lead

True for Both Short Long-time Experiments

Soluble phosphate fertilizers—such as superphosphate and calcium metaphosphate—which supply phosphorous in a form that's quickly available- contiue to hold the edge as boosters over the slowly soluble forms such as rock phosphate and colloidal phosphate.

H. R. Meldrum, agronomist at Iowa State College, says this is indicated by experimental work conducted at the college.

In both long-time and short-time studies, soluble phosphates have usually produced the more profitable yield increases.

APPLIED EQUAL COST

This is true for experiments that have been in progress over a 20-year period. And it's true for 3-year experiments in which rock phosphate and superphosphate fertilizers were applied at equal money value. Actually, about three times as much total phosphorous equivalent was put on in the rock phosphate as in the superphosphate.

Different crops respond differently to the phosphate fertilizers, according to Meldrum. For the past three years, a small amount of superphosphate—50 to 100 pounds of 0-20-0—in the hill has given a response on corn about equal to an 800-pound rate of rock phosphate. Also, rock phosphate plus a small amount of superphosphate have been about as effective as a larger amount of superphosphate alone.

LEGUMES LESS "FUSSY"

Oats have shown a greater response to superphosphate also. Legumes have made good use of phosphate in both forms, and the differences in response to the different forms have not been as great as for corn.

In general, Meldrum says, the soluble phosphate fertilizers are superior to the slowly soluble forms on well-limed soils, soils with excess lime present and on soils that are slightly acid.

The slowly soluble forms have limited use in Iowa. They are best suited for medium to strongly acid soils and for legumes such as clover or alfalfa. They are not suited for hill or row application, and when they are used, adding a small amount of superphosphate is also recommended.

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Buy your baby chicks early for best poultry profits, Iowa State College extension specialists advise.

Francis A. Kutish, extension farm economist, reports that Iowa farmers had about as many layers on farms during December as a year ago. But for the country as a whole, poultrymen had about one and one-half percent fewer layers. And they had considerably fewer pullets that had not come into production as yet.

This means that egg production during the heavy spring laying months of March, April and May. And in turn, egg profits during those months should be better.

Usually when there is a fairly good egg market during the spring, it invites many "in-and-outers" to get back in the business again. These producers load up on chicks during the spring months—late March, April and May according to Kutish.

These late-hatched chicks won't come into production until the end of 1953 or early 1954. And if there is much of an increase at that time it will bring troubles to the egg market. On the other hand, early-hatched chicks will be producing large eggs in time to benefit from the brisk demand.

That's why Leonard Z. Eggleton, extension poultry marketing specialist, strongly urges Iowa poultrymen who want to make the most money next year to buy their chicks early. And the sooner the better, he says-March 15 at the latest.

There's less competition from field work if chicks are bought early. Chicks grow better and faster in the cool months. That means less time is needed from the date they are hatched until they begin to lay. And the chicks are old enough to go on range just at the time when spring pastures are at their best. This This cuts total feed costs—compared with birds which go on range later in the summer when the grass is dry, Eggleton points out.

There's an added advantage in early chicks from the standpoint of sale of cockerels. The fryer market often begins to break about the middle of June. Everybody seems to have fryers by the Fourth of July! Since it takes about 12 weeks to make a fryer, this also takes us back to mid-March as the latest date to get chicks started, Eggleton emphasizes.

Puzzle Over Drop In Butter Prices

Milk Production Is Up More Butter Imported

Dairymen in the butter-producnnnnn nneeeee ettte eet ttt ing areas are concerned about the recent unprecedented, unseasonal drop in butter prices.

Butter prices fell to support levels in November, 1952. Cheese prices have also reached support levels. Dry milk prices are slightly above a year ago, but support prices are 2 cents higher per pound than a year ago, so government purchases of nonfat dry milk solids increased sharply in November.

Henry Homme and John Shaul, extension dairy marketing specialists at Iowa State College, say some observers lay the blame on the importation of nearly three times as much dry whole milk from foreign countries and an unexpectedly early rise in the volume of milk production this fall in most areas in the United States. Meanwhile, demand for butter has been light. This decline in demand is in line with the long-time trend, the marketing specialists say.

SUPPORTS UNTIL APRIL

Support prices will put a floor under further price declines until next April. The present support prices are intended to place dairy prices near 90 percent parity.

Since 90 percent is the upper limit allowed under the Agricultural Act of 1949, the U. S. Department of Agriculture could reduce the floors to 75 per cents of parity after next April 1, but may not raise them significantly. The extent of which the support prices are reduced will determine how much butter will be sold to the government next spring, the marketing specialists say.

1953 LOOKS BETTER

Prices in the fluid milk markets are still high, holding fluid milk prices to about 103 per cent of parity for butterfat. However, Homme and Shaul point out, local milk markets art beginning to limit the flow of milk to their markets, thus making fluid milk opportunties precarious for new producers.

The marketing specialists say dairy farmers, in spite of the recent high prices, should still find hemselves relatively better off compared to beef and hog producers in 1953 than they were in 1951 and 1952. The relative situation of dairying as compared to meat production, they say, remains about as forecast in outlook meetings held with farmers earlier in the fall.

Corn Cob Plays Vital Role in U. S. Industry

The low man on Iowa's agricultural totem pole is fast becoming a highly valuable and respected raw material in the development of the nation's industrial world.

Today the Hawkeye state's lowly corn cob, once burned or trampled deep in feed-lot mud holes, isn't just used by ingenious service station attendants to clean off buggy windshields or as pipe bowls or in fertilizer and commercial feed

The corn cob has now marked his place in such industries as synthetic rubber, plastics, nylon, and petroleum.

Iowa is the principal source for this newly discovered raw material.

One major manufacturer of furfural, an industrial chemical, uses 4,000 tram carloads of Iowa corn cobs each year. This plant is the giant Quaker Oats mill, largest in the world at Cedar Rapids.

The Cedar Rapids plant at one time was the only one of its kind in the world to manufacture furfural.

E. J. Petranek, manager of the Cedar Rapids mill, says Iowa's corn cobs are the basic ingredient used in the manufacture of this new chemical.

Furfural is vital in the manufacturing of nylon, synthetic ruber, plastics and in the refining of lubricating oil, diesel fuel, vegetable oils and wood rosin.

The Quaker Oats company also has a new $4.5 million plant in Omaha which uses about 10,500 carloads of corn cobs a year with Iowa as the main source for this new raw material.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer Installment Sixteen

THE EGG AND POULTRY BUSINESS

In the beginning, the stores took care of the egg business and Henry Lau bought all the chickens sold by our farmers.

In about 1913, for several years, a small station would appear on main street every now and then, paying cash for eggs, cream and poultry. They were little fellows buying for some big fellow like Swift. Every year a new manager would come and get starved out. Finally they quit coming.

All through these years there was one steady local buyer of eggs and poultry, by the name of Ed G. Ell. He did a prosperous business until 1917, when he took a notion to quit the egg and poultry business and sell Ford automobiles for which there was considerable demand. He then sold his egg and poultry business to Henry Lewis, who had worked for him for several years.

Henry Lewis and his wife bought the old bank property a half block north of main street where they continued the produce business, and for a while lived in the rooms over their store. Their business grew a little every year until 1944 when the husband, Henry Lewis, died. Then for two or more years the wife Rose continued to operate the business hiring extra help in rush times. Thus it happened that Fred Bell became her assistant, and the business kept thriving. Then the next thing we knew those two were married and the business is now operated by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell.

There is a flock of hens on every farm, being well housed, and correctly fed, with Bolson's feed purchased from Bell. They lay a lot of eggs, which are sold to Bell. When the hens get tired of laying and the roosters get tired of crowing, all are sold to Bell.

Bell leaves early in the morning twice a week to gather up eggs from the farm homes. He also helps them cull out the non-laying hens from their flocks.

The question is, how does he get all this work done? You have probably guessed the answer—his wife helps him, part time.

THE WILES BUILDING

Clarence W. Wiles was somewhat of a promoter. He started several business places in Klemme and elsewhere, would get them going good, sell out at a modest profit, and move on to another job.

Thus, in 1918, he built a garage on our main street; a good structure of hollow block, size 44x100. In 1920, he sold to Carl Beier. After two years, Aaron Greimann became the owner. Two years later, John Pritchard took over and remained six years. George Born bought it in 1931 as an investment. Louie Tokmon rented it for a few years, and Fred J. Arnold used it to house his garage business. Dorance Day also carried on for a year or two.

Finally in 1949, Arthur Wellemeyer became the owner and remodeled the building to house four tenants: A living apartment occupied by Wm. Montgomery; a shoe store and repair shop operated by Kenneth Kluckhohn; warehouse space used by the Klemme Hardware Co; and a repair shop for autos and tractors under the management of Elmer Langlitz.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

When Klemme was three years old, in 1892, our present bank was organized as a State Bank with a capital of $10,000.00 The stockholders at that time were: Isaac Sweigard, Marion A. Fell, John E. Wishman, Chas. W. Knapp, August Barz, J. J. Upton, A. C. Ripley, Fred Arnold Sr., and C. H. Weigman.

A few years later, in 1895, F. A. Arnold began working in the bank as bookkeeper. He worked his way up until he became president, which position he still held at the time of his death in 1950. 55 years of service.

In 1913, the bank became a National Bank, and the capital increased to $25,000.00. At this time they built a nice new fireproof building. The old frame building was moved off main sreet and is now owned by Fred Bell our progressive poultry and egg dealer.

In March 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt closed all of the banks in the United States. Our First National Bank was among the first in the State of Iowa to re-open, its condition was good.

At the present time our bank has: Capital, $35,000.00; Surplus, $35,000.00; Undivided Profits $57,000.00, which brings their total capital account to $127,000.00. Their statement of June 30, 1952, shows total assets of $1,650,000.00, which puts them in a strong position.

This bank has been doing business in Klemme continuously for sixty years and is the oldest bank in Hancock County.

In the beginning, two men operated the bank, a cashier and a bookkeeper. Books were kept with pen and ink. Long hand and no adding machines made it difficult sometimes to balance the books.

Today, five to seven people work in the bank and they use a dozen or more machines for posting, calculating and other accounting. They literally keep the books for the entire community.

They have a separate vault with 350 safety boxes for customers use and will soon enlarge these accomodations.

Our bank is protected by various insurance contracts. Even your deposit is insured up to $10,000.00. The customer of this bank is thus safe and secure from loss. We did not have this protection in the olden days.

This bank is normally a busy place. At least when the weather permits people to come to town. But they are really rushed and put on extra help from January 1st to March 1st of each year. At this time they help their customers make out income tax returns. They process 500 or more returns during these nine busy weeks each year.

The officers of the bank at the present time are: E. J. Arnold, President; A. R. Arnold, Vice President; C. G. Waterman, Cashier; Martin Barz, Teller; Stella Lemke and Beverly Beier, Bookkeepers.

Don't give it away, sell it with a Times want ad.

Iowans Live Longer

Aunt Hettie, age 82, was feeling her oats last week.

"It says here that Iowa has the oldest age group of any state," Hettie boasted . . . "That's what the board of social welfare reports."

"You mean Iowans live longer?"

"Right," and she sort of preened herself.

That set me to wondering. Why do Iowans live longer? And, taking our town as an example, the nearest answer I could get was the fact that we live our lives with MODERATION.

We get things done, but don't tear ourselves to pieces. We have time to visit our neighbors, to look around, and to mellow a bit in the process.

That principle of MODERATION is a good one to follow, in our daily lives, and our habits; too. It's one reason why a mild, temperate glass of beer is my favorite beverage . . . and that of so many other Iowans.

With moderation in our habits, opinions, and even in our prejudices, we'll not only live longer lives . . . but happier lives, too.

Hunt Up Your Egg Recipes

Plentiful, nutritious and low-priced, eggs can take the spotlight in many tempting meals. Here hard-cooked eggs are served over crisp fried noodles with a nippy, well-seasoned cheese sauce.

"Plenty of eggs at low prices from now on until spring"—that's the current marketing report that sets a homemaker to thumbing through her recipe file of hearty casseroles, crispy salads, luncheon and breakfast dishes that call for lots of eggs.

For the modern hen—better fed, better housed and far more productive than any of her feathered ancestors—is helping out with meal planning these days. Her eggs in our breakfast furnish protein that wards off that "11 o'clock slump" explains Iowa State College nutritionist Leslie Smith. They also have the power to help us avoid the all-in feeling that often hits as late afternoon rolls around.

BOOSTER EFFECT

How we feel is partly tied up with our blood sugar level, says Mrs. Smith. Protein has a booster effect on the blood sugar level and helps us maintain it longer Many a modern reducing diet recommends two eggs for breakfast for this very reason. And proteins in eggs are complete—which means they contain all of the amino acids necessary for vigor and body maintainance. Eggs also contain other valuable minerals and vitamins.

There's hardly a food more versatile, so a homemaker should have little trouble making the most of the season's plentiful, high-quality eggs. She can use them in desserts, beverages, casseroles, salads, and a multitude of other dishes. Here are some recipes recommended by Mrs. Smith.

EGG POT PIE

Place the following cooked vegetables in bottom of a 2-quart shallow casserole: 1 cup tiny onions, 2 cups diced celery, 1 cup diced carrots. Add 6 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely cut, as second layer. Blend ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, ¼ tsp. celery salt and ¼ teaspoon ginger and sprinkle over eggs. Then pour 2 cans of undiluted condensed cream of mushroom soup over the eggs.

Top with pastry strips rolled ⅛ inch thick. Bake in 450-degree F. oven 25 to 30 minutes.

EGGS DELMONICO

Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine over low heat, add 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon dry mustard and a dash of cayenne. Add 1½ cups milk. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Blend in 1½ cups cheddar cheese, chopped or grated.

Top each of 4 slices of toast with a slice of luncheon meat and 1 sliced hard-cooked egg. Pour cheese sauce over each and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese Bake in 450-degree F. oven until sauce is bubbly—about 10 minutes.

CABBAGE AND EGGS

Here's an unusual way to serve cabbage. Steam 2 cups of finely chopped cabbage in butter in a covered skillet until cabbage is transparent. Beat 2 eggs with 1 tablespoon cream and a sprinkling of salt and pepper. Add 1 tablespoon vinegar immediately before adding eggs to the cabbage. Serve at once.

HOT EGGNOG

Beat 4 egg yolks very light and sprinkle with nutmeg. Add a dash of salt and your choice of flavoring. Stir in 2 cups hot milk, serve at once. This makes 4 servings.

LEMON FLUFF DESSERT

Beat 4 egg yolks until thick. Add ½ cup sugar, juice and rind of 1 lemon and a dash of salt. Heat over hot water, stirring, Fold in 4 beaten egg whites, chill until mixture thickens. Remove. and serve.

FRUIT WHIP

Wash ½ pound of dried prunes or apricots, soak overnight and simmer in same water until tender. (Remove stones from prunes.) Chop of cut the fruit into small pieces, add ½ cup sugar and heat. Remove from fire. Add ½ tablespoon lemon juice, then fold in 4 or 5 stiffly beaten egg whites. Chill and serve with custard made from leftover yolks.

MILK IS TIME'S GREAT FOE!

YOU NEVER OUTGROW YOUR NEED FOR MILK . . . no one does. MILK is basic in the nation's diet as a source of minerals, proteins and vitamins for energy and health. MILK is America's favorite in refreshment, too. A glass of MILK always pleases . . . always satisfies . . . and you know it's good for you. MILK is truly time's great foe . . . for no one ever outgrows the need for MILK.

Garner Wins in County Tourney

Shamrocks Bow to Britt in 1st Round

Garner came through with ease to win the Hancock County Basketball championship. Garner, in winning the tournament, bet Corwith 72-45, Crystal Lake, 61-49, and Britt, 61-26, leaving no doubt as to their superiority this year.

The Klemme Shamrocks, playing without the services of Larry Stille, who was entertaining a case of flu, couldn't "cut the mustard" with Britt, and went down by a score of 52 - 45.

The third quarter was really their downfall. The score at the end of the first period was 14 - 13 in favor of the Shamrocks. At the half Britt led by 25 - 24, and at the end of the third quarter they were out in front 44 - 32. The 12-point deficit was too much for the Shamrocks to overcome, and although they got within four points, they just couldn't make it.

Karsjens and Thiemann were the big guns for Klemme with 16 and 14 points, respectively, while the Britt scoring was very evenly divided. Hampe had 13, Shaw and Diehl 12, and Garman 9, to account for most of the Britt total.

Major upset of the tournament was when Woden out-played and out-shot Kanawha to win by a score of 49 - 41. That game was doped to go the other way, by everyone but Woden. They went to work on the Bulldogs right at the start, and stayed in control of the game all the way.

Business Changes Hands; Mason City Man Buys Pete's Service Center

A couple of weeks ago The Times carried an item to the affect that Mr. Bert Lieuwen of Mason City, had purchased from W. H. Rosendahl, the building housing Pete's Service Center. At that time we stated that we would have more later on the transaction.

Last Thursday, Mr. Lieuwen purchased the service station stock and equipment from Ye Ed, and he is now operating under the name of Bert's Standard Service.

Mr. Lieuwen is rooming in Klemme at the Don Christiance home for the present, but as soon as suitable quarters become available, he expects to move his wife and household goods here.

We wish Bert luck in his venture here in Klemme, and think he will find it a nice town in which to make his home. We know that with the experience he has had in station work that he will have something to offer to the public that they will want. He operated a station in Mason City for 22 years.

Ye Ed is especially happy with the transaction, as we can now devote our entire time to necessary work at The Times office. Having two places on our hands, was just a little rugged.

Light Companies Plan Merger

Stockholders Will Vote On Plan April 7th

A plan for merging the Iowa Electric Company with the Iowa Electric Light & Power Company was announced today, following meetings of the Boards of Directors of both companies in Cedar Rapids.

According to Sutherland Dows, President of both companies, the merger plan contemplates an exchange of stock. Each share of Iowa Electric Company 6½% preferred stock would be exchanged for 8.4 shares of Iowa Electric Light & Power Company common stock. Each share of Iowa Electric Company 7% preferred stock would be exchanged for 8.8 shares of Iowa Electric Light & Power Company common stock.

The exchange would require 211,379 shares of Iowa Electric Light & Power Company common stock, of which approximately 94% would go to the Iowa Electric Co. preferred stockholders and 6% to the Iowa Electric common stockholders.

According to a letter sent to all stockholders today, current market value of the Iowa Electric Light & Power Company common stock to be received by the Iowa Electric Company preferred stockholders is equivalent to approximately 85% of the par value of their stocks plus the dividend arrearages. In the opinion of the management, this is a fair and reasonable settlement of their total claims, since prospects for any reduction of such arrearages would appear remote.

The plan which was approved by the Board of Directors of each company has been recommended to the stockholders for approval as being of mutual benefit. According to J. B. Bachofer, Vice President of the Iowa Electric Company, the merger would not mean any change in the operating policies or personnel of the Iowa Electric property. It will, however, strengthen the financial position of the Iowa Electric Company and insure the growth of its facilities to meet the increasing demands for gas and electricity in the area it serves.

Final approval of the merger depends on favorable action by the stockholders of both companies at meetings which have been called for April 7th in Cedar Rapids. The merger will become effective upon a favorable vote by two-thirds of the stockholders of each of the corporations entitled to vote and a majority vote of the preferred stockholders of the Iowa Electric Light & Power Company.

Girls' Sectional Basketball Tournament in Full Swing

Shamrockettes Lose to Joice by Two Points; Meservey Looks Good

The girls' sectional basketball tournament is in full swing in Klemme this week. All the first round games have been played and Thursday night will see the semi-finals get underway.

In Monday night's games Fertile downed Alexander in a very tight game. Fertile led all the way, but not by any appreciable margin. At the end of the first quarter the score stood at 12 - 11. At the half it was 18 - 16, and at the end of the third period, they were out in front 25 - 21. Final score was 34 - 27. In the other game of the evening, Hanlontown had it easy in downing Goodell 66 - 44. Highlight of this game was the scoring of Virginia Veldhouse of Goodell, who accounted for 36 of her team's 44 points. She leads all scorers in first round competition.

Tuesday night saw Meservey trounce Ventura by a lopsided score of 74 - 43. Meservey looks like a cinch to win through to the championship. They led by a rather small margin, 28 - 21 at the half, but from there on they really poured it on.

In the last game Tuesday evening, Klemme and Joice, played a tough one with the Shamrockettes coming out on the short end of a 48 - 46 count. The two teams played on even terms all the way through, with Joice having just a bit the best of it most of the way. The Shamrockettes played them hard right down to the wire, but couldn't get the necessary points to give them the game.

Dorothy Lacey had a good night from the field to score 28 points for Klemme, but Haroldson, of Joice, did even better, and came up with a 29-point total.

Thursday night will see Fertile and Hanlontown go into action in the first game, and Feservey and oice will tangle in the last game of the evening. Finals will be played on Saturday evening.

Safety Leaders Make Annual "Driver of the Year" Award

DES MOINES—A former Clear Lake policeman with an 18-year record of accident-free truck driving was selected today as the Iowa trucking industry's "Driver of the Year."

James T. (Tom) Hartin, driver of a petroleum transport for the Clear Lake Terminal of Ruan Transport Corp., was chosen from among nine "Drivers of the Month" honored last year by the Iowa Motor Truck Association.

Chosen for the annual award by a state committee of public safety leaders, Hartin won on the basis of his safe driving record and also an act of heroism in which he rescued two elderly persons from an overturned car in a water-filled ditch.

Last April 10, on Highway 65 near Glenville, Minn., just north of the state line, Hartin was driving cautiously on the icy pavement when he saw the car which had skidded off the road. Trapped inside were Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Cross of Mason City.

At first, Hartin was unable to get the car doors open. Then, from other cars and trucks, he assembled three tow chains and hooked the overturned car onto a truck. The truck moved the car just enough to permit Hartin to open the doors.

Standing in ice-cold waist-high water, Hartin helped Mr. and Mrs. Cross out of the car an onto dry ground. Both were speechless with shock and exposure. Assisted by others, Hartin wrapped them in blankets and helped them into a warm car.

Except for three years as a Clear Lake policeman from 1947 to 1950, Hartin has been a truck driver since 1933, and has never had a chargeable accident or traffic violation. He and Mrs. Hartin and their two daughters live at 304 South Shore Drive, Clear Lake.

Runner-up for the annual award was Virgil W. Wright, 41, Des Moines, driver for Des Moines Transportation Co. In 16 years as a truck driver, Wright was credited with 1,175,000 miles without a chargeable accident. In addition, the recognition was based on two acts of outstanding helpfulness along the highways.

Results of the "Driver of the Year" contest were announced by L. E. Crowley, executive secretary of the Iowa Motor Truck Association.

Judges were Pearl W. McMurry, state commissioner of public safety; Claude V. McBroom, chairman, Iowa Safety Council, state commerce commission; Ed Vaile, commercial editor, Des Moines Register; and Frank Ulish, state safety education director.

'52 Iowa's Best Year for Traffic Safety

State Saftey Education Director Frank B. Ulish announced Thursday that 39 of the 63 cities and towns eligible to compete in the all-Iowa traffic saftey contest went through 1952 without a traffic fatality.

"It is the best saftey record for Iowa communities I can remember," Ulish said. "The many years of saftey education and work by local authorities are begining to show real results."

Largest cities in the state to remain fatality-free in 1952, led by Le Mars which had its last traffic fatality in 1940 Iowa Falls and West Des Moines have not had a traffic death since 1945 and remained tied for the second longest saftey record in Iowa.

U. S. President Jefferson never exercised his veto power.

Hunting Season to End

The 1952-1952 hunting season will end at midnight, January 31, with the closing of rabbit season. In spite of snow cover on brush and thickets in some areas, good hunting has been reported over the southern and southwestern portions of the state, bearing out early estimates of good populations.

Although this means the close of this year's game hunting, there is no closed season on red fox, gray fox, and coyote. Sportsmen in many areas have been successfully carrying on circle hunts for these species.

EDITORIAL

The usual phrase passing between the seniors this week is, "Do you have your pictures yet," or, "May I have one of your pictures?" The usual gripe is over the three day service which is offered by the picture company making the swaps. Most of the deliveries have been made in a month.

The year book is now beginning to take a definite shape since two of the layout plans have been completed. This is very re-assuring since the publishers have been sending frequent letters questioning our progress.

Because of conflicts in the time of classes, a new schedule has been arranged for the second semester. By the time this is printed most of the students will be familiar with the new schedule and studying hard to raise their grades by the end of the school year.

JUNIOR

Here it is, the beginning of the second semester where everyone is changing subjects and subjects are changing everyone.

Economics

Since everyone struggled through government (we hope) we are ready to tackle Economics

Literature

In case anyone sees the juniors quoting old English you will know Lit. has taken English's place.

Business Law

This is the subject which has taken the place of Business Arithmetic. Well, good luck all you lawyers.

Drivers Training

Well we're through with it but good luck to the next group. I hope they don't do any more damage than we did.

Shop

This is one subject that keeps most of its students the year around.

Typing

I guess as soon as semester tests are cleared up, we'll be picking away again.

Shorthand

Here is another subject that just keeps grinding away semester in and semester out.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

What's this I hear about Faye going with Roger Howard and Harriet going with Stanley Helps. I guess Fritz and Elmer are just shadows for sure now.

Say, Dorothy, you'd better be careful. Harlan and Paul are getting pretty chummy. And you do like them both.

What's this I hear about Lois J. and her brother's car in Garner last Sunday: It seems it stalled for her. Did you have any help starting it Lois Ann?

So Merlyn got all torn up by Marlene, along came Carole M. and glued him back together. Then Leola came along and took him in her great big heart.

Terry and Jo Ann, and Shirley and Noel were really in the spot light, weren't you kids? You may make it to Hollywood if you keep it up.

It seems that Ione and Tom are no longer going together. Just because of the little flirting going on between Shirley and Tom. Naughty, naughty, Tom.

So Bob B. is sporting two blondes around now, huh? Anyway, I think that's what Lois J. and Miriam P. are. Be careful, Bobby.

Shirley B. has another class ring. Who's is it now? None other than Noel Egeland's. I hope she keeps this one longer than she kept the other ones.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer Installment Seventeen

THE WELLEMEYER STORE

There are three men who guided the Wellemeyer Store from its beginning until the present time.

Sixty years ago, Eli Schaefer, in his early 20's came to town from Liberty Township, rolled together a few niggerheads for a foundation and built up a little frame store building, size 22x36, with living rooms overhead. He carried clothing for men and boys, furniture, reed organs, and coffins.

Eli Schaefer was a brother of our townsman, Edw. J. Schaefer.

Eli was particular about his personal appearance. He dressed well; even wore patent leather shoes, and his sandy colored mustache was always trimmed "just so". After his building was completed, he drove to Garner with his matched pony team and shining top buggy and brought back Julia Kaste as his wife. Miss Kaste had operated a dressmaking shop in Garner.

The Schaefers then built an addition to the store and put in a line of dry goods, which under the capable management of Mrs. Schaefer, soon became known as the most complete stock of dry goods in Hancock County. After eleven years the Schaefers sold out and moved to Hebron, Ill. where their son Kenneth is still operating a dry goods business.

The next owner of the business was Edw. L. Schaub. He built a large addition to the north of the old building and increased the stock of merchandise. Mr. Schaub was a young man of 21 years when he came to Klemme. He borrowed all of the purchase price from a relative, stayed five years and made enough to complete his college education. Later he became head of the department of Phylosophy at Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois. He was a brilliant man.

In the spring of 1907, Arthur Wellemeyer became the owner, and called it The Wellemeyer Department Store. He carried groceries, dry goods, men's wear, furniture, pianos and provided funeral service.

After twelve years of business activity, the old building with its seven lean-tos and additions, and with its poor foundation, was almost beyond repair. It was then, in 1918, that he built a new two story brick building, size 51 x 100 on the lots where the Knapp and Bastan Store stood. The business at that time employed ten clerks, with four or five extra people on rush days.

In 1930, Wellemeyer remodeled the building and divided the business. The general store business was sold to Walter L. Thada and the furniture department and the funeral service were retained by Mr. Wellemeyer. Then for twenty years all departments of the store kept growing. The Thada Store, now under the management of Ed Thompson, needed more space, and the Wellemeyer Furniture was very much crowded. After much discussion as to what to do, Ed Thompson finally solved the problem by building a new brick store building on the Jacobs lots. Thus in 1950, the Thada Store moved out and Wellemeyer used the additional space for his furniture, linoleum and carpet lines.

In the fall of 1951, after the store had been remodeled and redecorated, Wellemeyer took in two partners and then for several months the business was operated by these three men: Don. L. Bacon, Howard DeMotts and Arthur Wellemeyer. Then, DeMotts wanted to get out and sold his shares back to Wellemeyer who again reorganized the business and the operation of the store was again divided three ways as follows: Don. L. Bacon is head man in the furniture department, Henry Wessels, who has been with us for many years, purchased the floor covering department, and Arthur Wellemeyer is still in charge of the funeral service. He also sells the items in "the basement store" such as window shades, venetian blinds, curtain rods, sewing machines, luggage, and he is manager of the upholstering shop.

Ethel Bacon and Helen Wessels are the chief bookkeepers, and it seems everybody finds plenty to do, except perhaps Wellemeyer who tries to get out of work so that he can find time to write these crazy stories for the "Times".

INSURANCE

In the early years of our history, most of the life insurance was sold by Geo. W. Kluckhohn. He was a master salesman, with a good company, the "Equitable Life", and for several years was high producer in the state. Later he was promoted to be the company's general agent for several counties.

The fire and windstorm insurance was sold by the bank.

But today, 1953, there are so many kinds of insurance needed that it takes a half dozen men to supply us. They are: First National Bank, Wm. C. Keraus, Sumner Trumbell, Ralph Elder, Henry Ward, Herman Gast and Allan Barz.

FRANK GRUETZMACHER

It should be mentioned in this history that Frank Gruetzmacher came to Klemme in 1892, and built the building where the post office is now located. He was a harness maker and dealer in shoes, in fact it should be called a leather goods store. The following year Elizabeth Stille became his wife and they began housekeeping in the rooms over the store. He was mayor of Klemme for several terms.

THE PAVEY SHOP

The Pietzeke Brothers built the first blacksmith shop in Klemme. After a few years of operation, they sold to George and John Nissen who moved the building across the street, and sold the former lot to the State Savings Bank for the erection of a nice brick building.

Later the Nissen Brothers sold the blacksmith shop to Jim Scott who operated it for five years. Then, Pete Norgaard took over and lasted two years.

Finally in the fall of 1913, Wallace Pavey bought the building and the business. Mr. Pavey is really getting to be one of the old timers in our town; 39 years in his own shop and previous to that he worked for Fred Ridder 3½ years and for Jim Scott 3 years, making a total of 45½ years.

Horse shoeing was considered an art when Pavey first learned the blacksmith business. Today, just a few saddle horses need to be shod. Pavey, of course, has kept up with the times, and repairs and sharpens hundreds of plow lays each season. One of his specialities is making fancy metal railings for your outside stairs. Years of experience in iron work brings him the many customers who frequent his place of business.

Mr. Pavey is also our Justice of the Peace.

THE BAACK BUILDING

In 1922, thirty-one years ago, William and Gustaf Baack built a nice brick store building on main street.

The following tenants have operated in this building to date: Scotty Irving, Restaurant; Luvern Smith, Pool Hall; and Restaurant; Gus Abels, Pool Hall; Sam Harvey, Pool Hall; Pete Moulton, Pool Hall; Clarence Thompson, Pool Hall; Pete Culver, Pool Hall; E. L. Henschen, Pool Hall; L. A. Ridder, Pool Hall; Joe Finnegan, Pool Hall; and Fred Aegerter, Pool Hall.

THE THEATRE BUILDING

In 1896, Steve Day built the building when he was appointed postmaster. He lived overhead and occupied the place for four years. Next there were tenants: Ben Kaste, a store; Ell Brothers, a produce station; Sam Kirkwood, a restaurant.

In 1916, it was remodeled into a theatre called "The Idle Hour", which served until 1934.

The building was torn down and the lot sold to C. A. Larsen.

CARPET WEAVING

Klemme has always had a carpet weaver, until just now we do not have a loom which is in operation.

The first carpet weaver in our town was Mrs. E. A. Suckow. Later Mrs. Thompson carried on. Then, Mrs. Quentin Stille obtained a new model weaving machine, and was "Our Lady of the Loom" for several years. It was surprising what fancy rugs she could produce from a bushel of carpet rags and colored warp.

POP CORN STAND

Mrs. Wallace Pavey owns a little building on main street where pop corn of good quality has been made and sold, hot from the popper, to the public for 28 years. Her corn is so good that she has no competition.

Magellan's ship was named the Victoria.

COMMERCIAL

Rush

We are almost snowed under this week in our upholstering department. Two davenports with chairs, five studio couches, besides a bunch of dining chairs, some items to be rebuilt, and others to be recovered, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Osman and Lew Griffen were helping this week. Mr. Wellemeyer supervises the rebuilding of the springs and frame, Mrs. Osman cuts and sews the material, using a heavy electric sewing machine built especially for upholstering work.

We take great pride in our shop work, and most of our jobs go out stronger than when they were new.

We charge on the basis of "time and material" and with proper tools and experience at this work, we give you a lot for your money.

Nearly all Iowa Farms Now Have Electricity

The Iowa farm standard of living climbed a step higher on the windmill ladder in 1952 when the state reported an increase in farm electrification.

The Iowa development commission reports 97.1 percent of the state's 199,427 farms have electricity. This is a five percent increase since 1950 and a 56 percent increase over farm electrification 10 years ago.

George Charlesworth, state commerce commission's electrical engineer, says Iowa farms have virtually reached the saturation point for over-all electrification.

With the increase in electricity on Iowa farms, the state's farm standard of living now stands at 177 points, highest in the nation, according to the U. S. department of agriculture's bureau of agricultural economics. The national farm standard of living average is 122 points.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

The boy's reaction was unexpected and violent. He stared back at the driver testing equipment lined up in the school auditorium. "That junky stuff don't prove anything," he sneared.

"It isn't being used against you," the man in charge of the test said quietly. "It's just a warning that your vision is too poor to drive safely. Your distance judgement is very poor, but probably it can be corrected."

"I can see as good as any of those guys," the boy said, waving at the group of classmates watching the incident. "And I don't need glasses."

"You or someone else can decide that," the man said, "and it will come up when you apply for a drivers license. In the meantime, don't try to drive a car."

As the man was leaving town that afternoon, he thought of the the belligerent boy again. It was pretty obvious he knew his own defect but wouldn't admit it. And there was a good chance he was driving without a license.

The man decided his job wasn't quite done so he looked up the parents of the boy and explained to them that their boy's eye sight could make him a dangerous driver.

He got another unexpected reaction. "The boy was home for noon lunch," the mother said, "and he told us how you held him up in front ot all the others. I don't think that was fair or decent. The boy can see as good as any."

As the parental comments grew stronger, the man decided to leave but before he went he managed to get in a point blank question: "Do you let that boy drive a car?" Both parents said no, the boy was to young.

Little more than a month later the boy killed himself when he drove the family car squarely into a bridge abutment at something like 70 miles an hour.

Will Hold Night School On World Affairs

If you are interested in becoming better acquainted with peoples of other countries enroll in this series of night school lessons on World Affairs, to be given the first and third Monday of each month for a period of nine lessons. February 2 will be the first lesson to be held at the REA building in Garner at 8 p.m. according to an announcement made by Lois Hueneman of Garner who is responsible for setting up the lessons in Hancock County. Only three counties in the state of Iowa have the opportunity to participate in these studies for the purpose of finding groups of people who are interested in discussion group meetings on World Affairs.

All persons interested in these classes should contact Lois by January 30. A fee of two dollars must be paid at that time.

The major purpose of this series of programs is to help citizens help themselves to a better understanding of the state of the world today through informed discussion of the peoples and the national problems of selected countries in key "trouble spots" of the globe, some of which include India, Japan, Iran and Britain.

To help promote fruitful discussion, a combination of materials—essays, maps, and discussion guides—have been prepared, to be used with selected documentary motion pictures.

Is The New Bible Really The Bible?

Once again we lift our voice in protest against the R. S. V. Bible. As one looks over the revision, he wonders what its translators were endeavoring to do. "This is what we might expect when we note the list of translators. Out of the 22 men named on the jacket, five are professors in Union Theological Seminary, the very fountain head of what is known as "modernism". Few of the translators have ever professed belief in the historic Christian doctrines of the diety of Christ, His virgin birth, His bodily resurrection, His substitutionary atonement, etc. Many of them have publicly denied that the Bible is an infallible Book, and our greatest and surest source of fact and truth." Dr. Allan A MacRae, Oriental studies U. of Pennsylvania, U. of Berlin, the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem and professor of Old Testament in Westminister Seminary and now president of Faith Theolcgical Seminary.

Dr. Luther A. Weigle, Committee chairman, Dr. W. Russell Bowie and other are listed by the Un-American Activities Committee of U. S Congress, to have made common cause with many "Red" organizations. Dr. Harry M. Orlinsky of Jewish Institute of Religion, N. Y., being Jewish in belief rejects the diety of Christ. We cannot understand why he was invited to assist in the publication of a Bible for Christians. There is not a man on the entire committee who could be considered evangelical in the correct sense of the word.

This Friday, January 30, 7:30 p m. Rev. Clair L. Saliers of Forest City, will be the speaker for a Back to the Bible Rally at the Belmond Baptist Church. The public is cordially invited.

4-H Building Drive Needs Extra Push, Says County Farm Bureau

The time for making final payment on the new fairgrounds at Britt is less than one month away. If the $25,000.00 payment is to be made on March first, everyone will have to make a very liberal donation.

At present the top contributing townships have been Ell with $1187.50; Liberty $949.00 and Crystal with $853.50. The local 4-H clubs throughout the county have been holding up their end of the load also. They have donated $724.50 since 1951. When all figures are totaled there is a total of $6,351.00 to date. Of this sum $2,750.00 has been paid down on the new site.

People should remember that their donations are for the benefit of our farm youth. The title to the new fairgrounds will belong to Hancock County Fair Association which includes every eligible voter in the county. The fair board only manages the operation of the fairground business.

The need for a 4-H, FFA fairgrounds can be easily shown by the example that previously a girl's blue ribbon apron received a premium of only 6c. With a new fairgrounds our State Aid will be increased nearly two fold and the premium rate will then be higher. Another example is that from 90 purebred and market litters only five were shown, from 75 dairy heifers only 18 were shown.

If these swine and dairy 4-H members can be assured a disease free place, such as the Hemp Plant, the number of swine and dairy animals shown should increase considerably.

What does all this mean? Simply that everyone must give all they possibly can if our farm youth in Hancock County are to have the same benefits as other Iowa boys and girls. Hancock County is one of the 4 counties in Iowa that does not have a fairgrounds. Why not put your heart in the heart of 4-H so Hancock County can take her name off the non-fairground list.

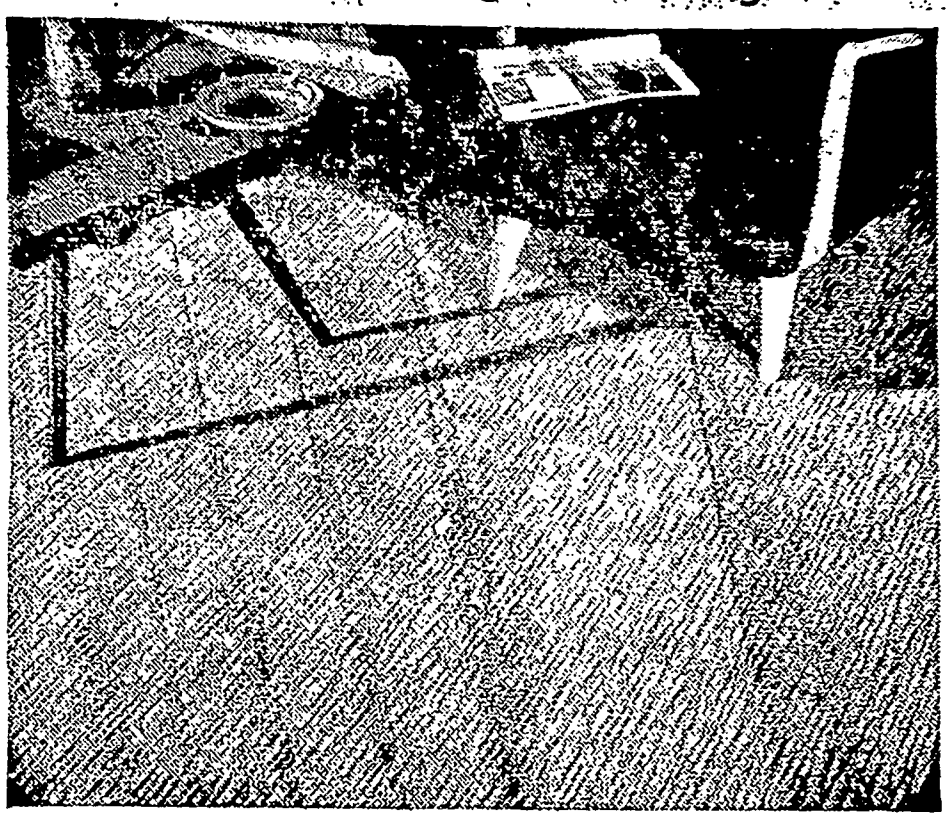
New Textures, Colors, Fibers Underfoot—

Research Brings New Rugs



A rug can set the mood of your room. Study your furniture, your color scheme. Decide how much you want to spend. Then take your choice of the amazing new textures, colors, fibers, and designs. Look for informative labels, good construction, color-fastness, and easy care.

Today's homemaker can "build" a room around a rug. Starting with any hue on an artist's palette, she can make her carpeting a cue to the color and character of her other furnishings, or she can use her floor covering to tie her room and furniture together in a wonderful new way.

The soft-floor-covering industry offers her an almost limitless choice in price, fiber, texture, design, weave and color. And it's all come about in just a few short years.

Here's how June Brown, Iowa State College home furnishings specialist explains it. During World War II when wool became scarce and prices rocketed, rug manufacturers turned to other fibers. They found a gold mine in the use of cotton, rayon and linen, and they gradually developed rugs made from blends of wool and new synthetic fibers. These are no longer substitutes for wool, but vigorous competitors with attractive prices.

COTTON CARPETS

Cotton rugs now come in a variety of weaves and with a surface of cut pile, long-twisted loops or small low-twisted loops. Some are made on regular looms. Some are constructed with loops stitched into a canvas back. Others are flat-woven and reversible. The tightly twisted construction means long wear and soil resistance. The woven backing gives dimensional stability and body.

Cost of cotton carpeting is reasonable, colors are almost endless Construction is good. Cotton is mothproof and non-allergic. Any stains should be removed quickly.

Buying tips: Check to see if color is fast to sun fading. Cut pile picks up soil, mats down and sheds lint more than a twist surface.

LINEN RUG

A good-quality linen rug is easy to clean, doesn't hold dirt. Its flat weave makes it reversible. Furniture marks show very little on its hard, inelastic surface. It is non-allergic, moth, and mildew-proof. Colors are not always fast, but will fade evenly.

FIBER "E," NYLON

The Fiber "E" (viscose rayon) rug has price appeal and many advantages. Strong and tough with a "built-in" crimp, it is moth-resistant, won't ignite and can be home-shampooed. Colors are lustrous and are fast if vat dyed. Rug may lose its shape due to shifting yarns and must be protected from mildew. Manufacturers are working to improve it.

Luxury-priced 100 percent nylon rugs are most resistant of all to abrasion and wear. They are moth proof. Colors are strong and clear but may fade. Manufacturer will redye the rug if need be.

BLENDS

About 70 percent of the rugs being produced are blends. Combining man-made fibers with each other or with natural fibers makes possible bulky dimensional textures and sparkling colors Experimental work is still being done, so it's hard to know just what to expect from most of these lovely and often luxurious looking rugs. Prices are reasonable.

In a rug made up of rayon and wool, rayon lends strength, better surface coverage, stain resistance, less fluffing and shedding. Acetate lends these same properties to wool, but at present the acetate fiber is static and ends to draw dirt.

Safety Essay Contest for Iowa Children

A prize safety essay contest for children of Iowa industrial employees was anounced Thursday by the industrial division of the Iowa Safety Council.

Any boy or girl not older than 18 whose father is actively employed in an Iowa manufacturing plant may enter the contest by writing an essay of 100 words or less on the subject, "Why My Dad Should Work Safely."

Essays should be headed with the writer's name, age address and name of the company where his, or her, father is employed. Entries should be mailed to the Iowa Safety Council, 720 Grand Avenue, Des Moines, not later than midnight, March 15, the closing date of the contest.

One-hundred prizes with total value of $1,000 will be awarded in two age groups, the first up through 12 years, and the second from 13 through 18 years, according to R. W. Stebbins, Des Moines, contest chairman.

Bicycles will be given to the two state winners in the first age group and radios will go to the two top winners in the second group during the Iowa Safety council assembly in Des Moines, April 2.

A total of 50 prizes will be awarded in each group, including cameras, ball gloves, pen and pencil sets, skates, model airplane kits, fishing rods and many other items.

Stebbins said the purpose of the contest is to "stimulate safety consciousness and discussion in the families of industrial employees."

Farm Bureau Reaches 82.4% Of 1953 Quota

Orthel and Amsterdam townships joined Garfield township in reaching their 1953 quotas of Farm Bureau Members, reports Paul G. Shurts, County Fieldman.

To date 1166 farm families have paid their 1953 dues. The state quota is for 136,045 members this year. If reached, it would be the highest total in the history of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation. The 1952 membership was 132,442.

In 1942, just ten years ago, said Mr. Shurts, Hancock County had just 570 members. When the 1953 quota of 1414 Farm Bureau Members is reached this will show an increase of 844 members, or in figuring its percent wise, there's an increase of 248%.

New TV Program to Focus on Families

"Focus on Families", a new series of televised programs dealing with relationships among family members, will commence at 2:30 p.m., February 3, over Your Home Hours, WOI-TV, Iowa State College. The first program of the 4-program series will focus attention on "The Beginning Family." Featured on the program will be a newly-engaged couple. Moderator for the program wil be Dr. Glenn Hawkes, head of the Child Development Department at the College.

Programs on succeeding Tuesdays will feature the "Family with Young Children" the "Teen-Age Family," and the "Launching Family" whose children are starting out on-their-own.

'Members of a beginning family have much to think about in the new venture of married life, according to Dr. Hawkes. "Their new roles, their acceptance of each other, their cultural expectations,, their conflicts and how they can solve them, and what kind of a family they want to be are just a few of the very important considerations for them to face together."

These and many other points will be talked over on the "Focus on Families" program, Tuesday afternoon, February 3.

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Hancock County laying flocks should pay a little better this spring, Iowa State College Extension Specialists believe. But they stress that it will take good feeding and mangement practices.

Egg production on American farms last year was a record-smasher—4 percent over the previous all-time high. The December sharp price drop in the money, Hancock County farmers got for their eggs stemmed mainly from this record output, according to Francis Kutish, extension farm economist. It dropped the relationship between egg prices and feed costs below that of a year ago—and well below average.

Looking ahead to late winter and spring, however, Kutish expects egg prices to average higher than last year. We had a larger than usual percent of our hens and pullets laying in December. But by the end of February, the number of birds laying should be down compared with a year earlier. This is because we had a sharp drop in late hatched pullets last year. And this reduction in late layers should be enough to more than offset the higher rate-of-lay we are now getting.

So total egg production this spring probably will fall a little short of last year's mark. Meanwhile, demand should be fully as strong as last year.

This outlook for 1953 egg profits should make profit-proven pay especially good returns to Hancock County farmers this year, extension poultryman, L. Z. Eggleton believes.

He says the "number one" management practice is to cull continually as we go into the spring and early summer. Maintain an average egg production of at least 60 percent as your goal. Birds taken from the flock at this time of year bring more for meat and are in better health and flesh, Eggleton points out. And you never can afford to keep a hen that isn't laying. The poultryman also recommends keeping the litter as dry as possible by adequate use of insulation and ventilation. Spring days bring wet litter in many houses. And this means extra work in cleaning eggs, says Eggleton, or a cut in price because of dirty eggs.

Finally, resist your temptation to let hens out when grass and warm weather arrive. Here's why: A change like that lowers production. It also contaminates your farmstead with disease, which may infect your new chicks. What eggs you get will likely be dirty too, from the mud and dirt on the farm yard.

Shamrocks Down Thornton, Lose to Belmond

Shamockettes Drop Game to Thornton

Basketball activity the past week saw the Shamrocks winning one from Thornton, and losing to Belmond. The Shamrockettes went down before the Thornton girls, and the Little Shamrocks lost a close one to the Belmond seconds.

Friday night at Thornton, the Shamrocks had to fight all the way to get themselves a 50 - 47 win. They led by 5 or 6 points during most of the game, and managed to stave off a late rally by the opposition, to hold onto their slim victory margin.

Karsjens and Stille led the scoring for the Shamrocks with 17 and 14 points, respectively. Siskow looked best for Thornton, with 13 points.

In the curtain raiser at Thornton, the Shamrockettes held an 11 - 9 lead at the end of the first quarter, trailed 18 - 26 at the half, were behind 29 - 30 at the end of the third period, and wound up on the short end of a 47 - 41 score.

Sorenson led the scoring for the evening when she dropped in 20 points for the Thornton sextet, while Lacey got 18 for Klemme.

Belmond takes Two

Tuesday night, the Belmond Broncos came to town, and took care of both the Little Shamrocks and the Shamrocks.

In the opener, the Klemme seconds led most of the way, only to have Belmond tie the game before the final gun. In the overtime that followed, the little Broncs sunk a bucket and a free throw to take the game. There was a slight tangle as to whether Belmond's winning bucket was before the gun or not, but it was finally decided that it was. Then, since the shooter was fouled, he was given a free throw, and made that too, to make the final score 40 - 37.

Jacobs and Tom Waddingham led the scoring for the Klemme seconds with 14 and 11 points, while Hall and Hansen each had 12 for Belmond.

In the feature attraction, the Shamrocks gave the Broncos a rugged battle for three quarters. but faded rather badly in the final period to lose by a score of 49 - 66.

Playing good ball most of the time, the Shamrocks stayed close to Belmond most of the way, and had them really worried when late in the third quarter they drew within 3 points. However, in the final period, superior height and the weight of experience told the story, and the Broncs made it a runaway.

Karsjens and Thiemann led the Klemme scoring with 13 and 12 points. Stille had 10, Terhufen 9, Barz 5, and Baack 1.

Helland, Meyer and Hoppel handled most of the scoring for Belmond, with 16, 15, and 13 points respectively. Hoppel was responsible for Belmond's last period spurt, with his sharpshooting from out on the floor.

State of the Union

We are in accord with most of the views expressed by "Ike" in his "State of the Union" address, Monday.

Whether or not he will be able to work everything out as he wants to, remains to be seen. However, we think that he is very sincere in his approach to the problems confronting the nation, and we hope that he will get from Congress the kind of cooperation that he needs. We feel that if ne does, he will put into action policies that will be beneficial, not only to this country, but to the whole world.

Floods

The little boy who plugged the leak in the dike with his finger, would have been out of luck if he had been involved in the present dike situation in the low countries of Europe.

Parts of England, Belgium and Holland are affected by the freak storm, which has caused the flooding of the low lands, but in Holland is where the situation is the worst.

The Dutch have always fought the sea, and not since the middle ages have they had anything comparable to the catastrophe that has befallen their country now. The ocean has breached the dikes, inundated their farm land caused the death of many of their people, the loss of untold numbers of their livestock, and damage to their villages and dwellings, that is almost beyond comprehension.

Some of the land that is covered with salt water now, has only recently been reclaimed from the flooding it underwent at the hands of the Nazis during World War II. Imagine how those people must feel. They just begin getting things in order after one tradgedy, and now they have it all to do over again . . . on a larger scale.

When Mother Nature decides to get rough, she can make the worst efforts of mankind look puny.

Ground Hog Day

If the ground hog was out of his hole at the right time Monday, he no doubt saw his shadow. Most of the day, though, he was out of luck. It was for the most part a cloudy, raw day. The sun did manage to get through a couple of times, but only for a few moments.

According to tradition, superstition, heresay, or propaganda, if Mr Ground Hog sees his shadow on February 2, we are due for six more weeks of winter weather If he fails in his shadow-spotting attempt, then we are to have mild weather and an early spring.

Perhaps this is true, but it seems to us that more times than not, we have our worst blizzards, and most unpleasant weather after this furred forecaster comes out of his warm den to look things over.

Insofar as we are concerned, we doubt if the old boy knows too much about weather. Anybody that doesn't have to work all winter for a living, and comes out of a nice warm den on a day like Monday, is slightly off his rocker. We doubt if he could tell whether the sun was shining or not, let alone tell what is going to happen for the next six weeks.

Boy Scouts

If we had a boy, and it was possible, we would want him to be a scout. The things that are taught in the regular scouting program, are all toward making better and more useful men. We don't say that because a boy is a scout, he is automatically a better man, but we do say that if you are exposed to enough good teaching, some of it is bound to be absorbed.

1953 marks the 43rd year of scouting, and for all these years, men of good will have been giving of their time to help further this fine program; always under the asumption that building boys is better than mending men.

Jet Age

A week ago last Saturday night, we attended a meeting of the Hawkeye Press Club at Mason City, and were privileged to hear of some of the personal experiences and opinions of a young man recently returned from Korea.

The young man was Lt. Bob Paige, of Mason City. He is an Air Force pilot, flying Thunderjets, and we were surprised at the grasp he has of the "big picture" in the far east. Apparently, the armed services are keeping their men pretty well informed. More so than they did those of us who were in World War II.

Listening to him answering questions thrown at him by various members of the club, we began to get an idea of how much different this war is than the one in which we took part a few years ago. The jet propelled airplane has changed many things for the figting man, but one of the things that impressed us most, having served in the infantry, was the speed with which air support can be brought to front line troops.

Communications among our troops in Korea are apparently as nearly perfect as they can be gotten, and a front line commander can have planes attacking a bothersome enemy strongpoint within eight minutes of the time that he sees the need for such action.

Quite a change from what we remember of our combat days.

EDITORIAL

The basketball season has almost come to a close but before the players put their suits away, there is the excitement of tournaments. For the past week we have been preparing for the tournament by printing the game schedule folders for each night and drawing a picture to represent each team in the tournament.

The cheering section was well organized but something must have been lacking since our team was defeated by Joice despite the good showing our team put up. We are sorry that we didn't win one of those beautiful trophies which we have been keeping until the tournaments. There isn't much we can do about it though, except try again next season.

Galen and Emily

EIGHTH GRADE

We have started Civics and found it a very interesting subject. This past week we made charts to show what we had been doing the past week.

In arithmetic we are studying car and life insurance.

Health is also one of our new subjects for the last semester.

In English we are studying how the principal parts of verbs are used in tenses. We also have written stories of English and will pick the two best stories to put in our paper at the end of the year.

Our motto for this week is, "When you have something to say that is worth saying, say it simply and clearly."

Beverly Christiance

LAST LICK

Postal Clerk: "Is something wrong son?"

Boy: "Yes, it was on the tip of my tongue a minute ago and now it's gone."

Posatl Clerk: "Well, think hard and it will come back to you."

Boy: "I don't believe so -- it was a three cent stamp.

Junior High Trounced by Forest City, 52 - 31

Coach Juhl's Rockets traveled to Forest City last week and were thoroughly beaten by a tall and strong Junior High team. The score was 52 - 31.

The game was close for the first three minutes and then things fell. The big boy from Forest City, Bjorenson scored 29 points. Brinkman and Baack had 8 apiece for Klemme.

Our record now is 4 wins and 3 lost. The second team lost a thriller to the Forest City reserves.

FIFTH GRADE

For the past week we have been learning to work long division problems with a two numbered divisor. Most of the boys and girls are becoming very accurate in their work.

We are very proud of the free hand drawings we made of an ear. We are learning the parts of an ear and their uses. It is important for us to know the care of our ears, so we are studying very hard on these health lessons.

Last week we completed the study of our Northeastern States in geography. We have begun the study of the Southeastern States and we find them just as interesting. Our history lesson has taught us about the war with Mexico. Through this we know how the United States got the Spanish Southwest.

For art class we are painting pictures on paper plates with water colors. Many of the boys and girls have done a very good job. We will use them to decorate our room.

EFFICIENCY

"Where's my pencil?" demanded the impatient executive.

"Right behind your ear." replied the secretary.

"Come, come," snapped the VIP. "I'm a busy man. Which ear?"

Government Aid Helps Hold Down Cost of Meals

Klemme Public School is fortunate to have an excellent hot lunch program. At eight o'clock in the morning the cooks, Mrs. Alvin Thiemann, Mrs. Roy I. Schaefer, and Lydia Bock, are busily preparing the meal for the day. Their day does not end until two-thirty in the afternoon. They begin serving the kindergarten at ten minutes after eleven and conclude with the high school at ten minutes after 12.

The hot lunch program has been in operation for eight years now. In 1945, when the program was begun the meals were served in the home economics room of the high school building; at the present time the program is operating in the basement of the grade school building.

The price of meals is thirty cents for the fifth grade through high school and twenty-five cents for the kindergarten through the fourth grade. Meal tickets are sold for five dollars and four dollars respectively, which lowers the price of each meal five cents. On an average, one hundred and sixty five meals are served daily.

The following are approximate figures for a typical month:

Total income from teachers and students is $775. Aid received from the state is five cents on each milk meal and three and a half cents on each non-milk meal, which amounts to about $125 a month. The expenses amount to approximately $900. About one-third of this amount is paid for labor and the remaining two-thirds for food and equipment.

2500 half pints of milk are used monthly.

This year we were fortunate to receive government surplus consisting of hams, turkeys, cheese, canned cherries, peaches, and green beans. We are not assured of any surplus at all.

This hot lunch program is definitely a nonprofit organization. Sometimes expenditures exceed the income and it is necessary for the school board to make up the difference.

The purpose of the hot lunch program is to provide students with a good meal at as low a price as is possible. Next week we will give you an example of the meals that are served.

What's this I hear about Faye Janssen going with Gene McNutt Thursday night to the Tournament at Klemme. It seems that they had a little ticket trouble, huh Faye?

It seems that Jo Ann is a free girl again. Or is Joe just busy lately. Well anyway, we haven't seen him around for a week or so.

So Virgil S. wants to go with Darlene R. but he is too bashful to ask her. Get brave, Virgil, and don't use L. H. for your messenger and ask her yourself. Maybe she'll accept and then again she won't. But good luck anyway Virgil.

Say, Harriet and Faye, where were Roger and Stan last Tuesday night, It seems that Tommy took both of you gals home. You haven't lost them already have you? But I think that Tom rather enjoyed it. didn't you, Tom? There were also two other gals that kept him company. Guess Who?

Has everyone heard the latest ... affair? Gracka and Lee are going together. Well, good luck kids.

Does anyone know who is going with Gerry Kastler? Be sure to tell me all facts when you hear them. If I'm not mistaken it may be Norma.

It seems that the basketball girls that are going to Des Moines are all excited, and they have a month to wait. Wouldn't it be terrible if we had a snow storm? Keep your fingers crossed.

It seems that everytime Francis comes home he goes right out to Lois Helps' place. It must be hat nice country air.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

As the car moved out of the darkened town, Ed, the district sales manager, settled more comfortably behind the wheel and grinned at the new man sitting beside him. He looked a little worn.

"Well now you see how it's done," Ed said. "We had a pretty good day. Does me good to get out in territory once in awhile like this. Keeps my hand in. Keeps me thinking right." He flicked on his brights, pushed the car up to 60 and settled down to the business of getting home before midnight.

The new man wanted to close his eyes. He was exhausted. All afternoon and late into that night he had followed Ed around the town from house to house, knocking on doors, giving the sales talk, the demonstration.

Ed was teaching him the business. After every sales that day, Ed would look at him sternly and say, "Now, this is the crucial moment. You've just made a sale and you feel like knocking off for an hour. If you're any good, you keep moving. Keep moving." And they had kept moving.

"I'm a little tired myself," Ed said as the car moved swiftly into the night. "I guess I'm a little out of shape. I envy you young guys just getting started. Half the fun of success is getting here. Just take a good look at where you're going and then keep moving. Yes sir."

At the moment he spoke, Ed had absolutly no idea where he was going. He was driving 60 miles an hour. The car was covering 88 feet of highway every second, rushing into the vold of darkness beyond the headlights where Ed could see nothing.

Ed fell silent and the new man began to doze. Just before his eyes closed he thought he saw some darker object just beyond the headlights But he was too sleepy, too sleepy. If it was anything, Ed would see it.

But Ed's elder eyes saw nothing unusual until about a second later. Then they were 88 feet too close. A few seconds more and Ed stopped moving.

I KEEP WONDERING if Ike has not bitten off more than he can chew.

Choose Certified Seed When Buying

Won't be Certified if It's Not High Quality

If you buy crop seed "blind," you are taking a chance with one of the most important phases of crop production, warns Joe L. Robinson, secretary of the Iowa Crop Improvement Association.

Robinson lists three precautions to observe in buying seed:

(1) Buy certified seed if it is available. Certified varieties are adapted to Iowa conditions and are recommended by farm crops specialists at Iowa State College.

(2) Buy from a reputable seed dealer of a farmer you know. Attractive claims made by salesmen are only as good as the company behind them.

(3) Avoid paying "sky-high" prices for seed. Exceptionally high prices do not always mean seed of a better variety. Chances for a profitable crop are reduced if you do not buy your seed right.

Look For Blue Tag

One way to be sure the quality in the seed you buy is to look for the blue tag on the bag, Robinson points out. The blue tag is reserved by law for use with certified seed only.

Certified seed is grown under the rigid supervision of trained fieldmen. These men check the growing crop to be sure that it is pure for variety and free from other crops and noxious weeds. Later, laboratory technicians check the seed for purity and germination.

Tag Tells All

All information concerning the seed is printed on the blue tag, Robinson says. That tag identifies seed which is adapted, pure for variety, free from excess weed seed and high germinating.

There is still seed available for most certified varieties. The certified seed directory, listing Iowa growers of certified seed, may be obtained from county extension directors or from the Iowa Crop Improvement Association at Ames.

Don C. Roe, Garner, to be Easter Seal Sponsor

Gerard S. Nollen, chairman of the Board and former president of the Bankers Life Insurance Company, has been named for the second consecutive year to serve as the state chairman of the annual Easter Seal Campaign, Louis F. Kurtz, president of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults, announced today.

Don C. Roe, Garner, has been appointed by Nollen to serve as Easter Seal sponsor for Hancock county.

In accepting the responsibility and honor as Easter Seal sponsor, Roe said, "Helping crippled children and adults in our community is a cause deserving our utmost effort. Today it is recogcognized as both economically important to our nation and as a humanitarian necessity".

According to Nollen, March 5 will be the beginning of "Easter Seal Month" with the campaign closing on Easter Sunday. literally hundreds of volunteer workers will be giving time and effort to make this campaign a success. Approximately 675,000 letters will be mailed to the home address of Iowans.

Mr. Nollen points out that the Easter Seals appeal raises funds to finance specialized care and service which enables crippled children to have lives more closely approximating those we want for all children. And that there is an ever-increasing concern on the part of all our citizens for the welfare of our crippled youngsters.

The appeal, conducted in 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Washington, D. C., raises funds to provide services for crippled children. Of all funds raised in Iowa, 91.7%, will remain with the state for the purpose of supplying non-duplicating services to the handicapped persons.

NO CALL

When a big fire broke out in an Albia lumber yard, a long distance call was put in for the Chariton fire department. Unfortunately the phone cable connecting the two towns ran past the burning lumber yard. Before the call could be completed, the fire burned the cable. Chariton never got the message.

KLEMME FOOD MARKET

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Installment Eighteen

Barber Shops

In the beginning Klemme had just one barber shop. Some years later it took two shops to handle the business, and two shops is what we have today.

Our first barber was John Baumgartner. He was a happy-go-lucky young man with not a care in the world. He liked to hunt, fish, and play baseball. He also played in the band, was the life of the party at our social gatherings, and naturally had many friends.

He first kept shop on the south side of main street and later purchased a building on the north side from Mrs. John Josten. He moved his family into the living rooms of the place and operated there for many years. The price of a shave was ten cents, and it cost us a quarter for a hair cut.

In those days, the stores were open from early morning until late at night, and the barber did most of his work from 6 to 9 a.m. and from 6 to 10 p.m. During the middle of the day, he would often lock up and pursue his favorite form of recreation.

Believe it or not, about half of the men wore beards of various styles and shapes, and would wear their hair rather long in the winter-time. This was especially true of the men whose work kept them outside all day long. The beard and the hair of the head are nature's protection against sinus and throat trouble.

Fur coats, seal skin caps, and fur driving mittens were good sellers in the stores.

These men with beards and long hair would come to town in the spring after the first really warm weather had arrived and keep the barber very busy getting them trimmed up for summer. The beards were of various styles; Dr. Zinn wore a goatee; Geo. Gruetzmacher preferred side burns; the younger men such as Herman Priebe, Eli Scheafer, the Josten brothers, all wore mustaches. Full beards were worn by John Gruetzmacher, the ministers and many others.

This was the harvest time for the barber. He not only attended to our various tonsorial needs, but was well informed on all the latest news and scandal. He would tell us about this while he worked, so as to keep those who were waiting entertained, and keep the one in the chair happy, so that he would overlook the "to hot" towel which was slapped on his face, or a slight cut on the point of his chin.

The barber also sold his customers various shaving supplies, like soap, shaving lotion, and some dope, a bottle of which was guaranteed to cure "barbers itch". I even bought a bottle of lotion to grow hair on my bald head. (I should have another bottle now.)

Mr. and Mrs. Baumgartner live at Rock Falls, Iowa, where he barbered for 10 years. He retired just a few months ago and is past 80 years of age.

In 1924, Baumgartner sold the building and equipment to Clarence Bachman, who remodeled the front, rearranged the fixtures and plumbing (we had city water at that time) and added an electric hair clipper to his equipment . . . the first one in town. He operated this two-chair shop for ten years.

In 1934, Don Christiance became the owner of the building and continued the business. He has been with us for eighteen years and enjcys a good trade.

Along about 1917, we had a second barber shop on the south side of main streeet. This was owned by Gerald "Zip" McCullough. He was a tall man, maybe six feet four inches, young, very active and capable. He later became a barber inspector for the state of California.

Jim Thomas is our barbber on the south side of main street today. He has been with us fifteen years or more, owns his building and has always been helpful and community minded in civic matters. Jim is very particular with his work, and is considered an artist at his job.

Barber Shop Quartette

The young folks of our town would gather on an evening at the Eli Schaefer store, next door to the barber shop, and sing popular songs. Eli Schaefer sold reed organs and always had a half dozen instruments on hand. One of these would be near the front door, which was open in the summertime. Mrs. Schaefer, a good sport, would sit down to this new "Cottage Grove Organ", price $55.00, pull out all the stops, use the knee swells and really roll out the music. The young folks on the street would wander over to the store and join in the singing of "Sweet Adeline" and other popular songs of the day. This happened on two or more nights every week and was a nice, clean way for the Schaefers to entertain their customers.

Beauty Shops

In the beginning, Klemme ladies wore their hair long. It would be rolled, braided or tufted, so that each lady expressed her individuality by "doing up" her hair in her own original way most becoming to her style of beauty.

But one day, a bunch of the younger ladies cut off their hair, and some folks thought it was a mistake for the girls to be so bold. This style, however, gradually spread until even the grandmothers cut off their silver locks. At this writing, the ladies one and all wear their hair short.

The need for a beauty shop came with the short hair, and about 1922, Miss Eunice Braund obtained a state license and opened a beauty shop. She operated for several years. Later Miss Vella Paul operated in the Jim Thomas Barber Shop for a year or two.

In 1936, Miss Marie Blank, a graduate Cosmotalogist, and holder of a state license, together with her assistant, opened for business in a small room of the Wellemeyer Store. This room was enlarged to take care of her growing business, and in 1950, a spacious room was provided for her use on the main floor of the store with a south front and a separate entrance. She now has plenty of room for her beauty work, and plenty of space for large line of the better items of gift goods which she sells in connection with the shop.

Miss Blank has always been fussy about having the latest and best of equipment as fast as they appear on the market. Thus, she is able to give the very best best service in her line.

Northern Lumber Company

The Northern Lumber Yard has been in Klemme fifty-eight years. There were others in the beginning who handled building material. Shaffer and Dow had a few piles of lumber, but soon quit and gave their attention to their general store lines. Queal and Company operated for a few years and then sold out to the Northern. The Farmers Lumber Company put up a new building and operated a nice clean yard for about ten years. The Northern acquired this property and put in a line of farm machinery. Now for many years the Northern has been our only lumber yard.

Paul Grange started as bookkeeper for the yard in 1914, and after the death of Mr. Palmer, became manager.

In 1921, the lumber sheds of the Northern were rebuilt into one large building with a fancy front on main street.

Working in the yard, we now have: Lloyd Sherwood, manager; Wm. C. Keraus, bookkeeper; Henry Smid, yard man; and John Suckow works at the drawing board, and manages the crew of carpenters.

The following carpenters are on the yard's pay roll; Orville Bridges, Roland Runge, Bernard Smid, Wesley Suckow, Charles Hitt and Ronald Brinkman.

During the summer these men build the new homes, barns, etc. needed in this community, and during the winter they build brooder houses, hay racks, etc., in their large warm shop.

Carpet Weavers

We do have two carpet weaving looms in Klemme. So gather up your carpet materials and take them to Mrs. Leppo Wessels or to Mrs. Martin Barz. They both have good machines and do plain or fancy weaving.

CAT DIES

At Albia, the John Sexton family mourns the death of Fluffy, a cat. Fluffy was 18 years old; a long life for a cat. Eight years ago the cat saved the Sexton home from burning, by meowing vigorously, when the living room drapes caught fire

Plan Short Course on Grain Sanitation

A short course in grain elevator sanitation is scheduled for Feb. 12 at Iowa State College, Ames, reports Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist at the college.

The one-day short course will center on the Food and Drug Administration program, Gunderson explains, aims at reducing insect and rodent contamination in food grains. It is in effect now on wheat moving into processing channels for human food, and probably will go into effect soon on corn.

Appearing on the short course program will be entomologists and agricultural engineers from Iowa State College. They will discuss subjects dealing with insect and rodent control in grain elevators, both the best methods and equipment needed. Grain cleaning equipment will also be discussed.

Two other phases of the program planned cover a report of the Production and Marketing Administration's plans for handling stored corn and discussion of programs to get farmers to participate in protecting grain from contaminaton during the time it is stored on the farm.

The short course is open to all elevator operators in the state and any persons interested in the grain sanitation program. It is sponsored by the Iowa Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Western Grain and Feed Dealers Association and the Farmers Grain Dealers Association.

A waterer in an open shed used five times as much electricity as one in a closed barn, in tests carried on at Iowa State College.

Provide Easy-to-use Storage for Your Child—

A Place for His Belongings

Give your children the convenience and independence of easy-to-use storage space for their clothes and playthings. Picture shows an adjustable clothes rod at a convenient height for this little boy. Shelves above will be removed and the rod raised as the years go by.

Children, even tiny tots, like convenience and a handy place to put their belongings just as much as the grown-ups do. Working out good storage space for the youngsters' belongings does away with confusion and really makes a difference.

"A child can't do constructive things in the midst of disorder and confusion," says Edith Sunderlin of the Iowa State College child developement staff. "If his room or play area is cluttered and he has a hard time finding things, he'll tend to do a messy kind of work or play."

Independence

Children like to be able to find their own things and to put them away. This comes easy if the storage space they use suits their size and needs and grows up with them.

Narrow drawers are best for play materials like papers, crayons and scissors. Sectioning the drawer helps keep order, too. Low shelves and cupboards within easy reach are better places for toys than a big storage box or chest.

A special label or picture to show a small tot what belongs where is a big help, says Miss Sunderlin.

Clothes Storage

An adjustable clothes rod at the right height means a child can hang up his clothes by himself. Shelves above the rod can be removed and the rod moved up as years go by.

It's easier for a child to keep clothes folded and stacked on low shelves than in deep drawers that are an invitation to disorder.

If you're building shelves, design them the right size and shape for certain playthings. Dividers will help your youngster know where on the shelf to find and put away each toy.

Bikes, Wagons

A special "parking space" marked off with paint on the garage floor may serve as an incentive for Junior to bring his tricycle, bike, or wagon in out of the rain or off the front walk or driveway. Another convenience would be a storage area near the back door for the baseball bat, jump rope, roller skates and other equipment used outdoors. That way, outdoor playthings won't be strung all over the house.

A youngster needs a place for his things in every room in the house. He feels he really shares the home when he has low hooks and shelves just for him in the hall closet, a special place in the living room for his books, a low rack in the bathroom, and drawer space in the kitchen for bibs or aprons.

Show Book Covers

Display books for the small child face up or face out so he can quickly recognize the book he wants by the cover picture. Some magazine racks would work well for this and would still have a use when the child is older.

Provide your youngster with the same kind of easy-to-use storage space you like yourself. You'll be gratified at the dividends it pays in a more independent, more satisfied youngster with a place of his own all over the house.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowa's Axe Man

Ever hear about Keokuk's peevish old man . . . who cut off Iowa's communication with the west in the 1870's?

It seems there was a big, wooden mast at Keokuk. This mast supported the telegraph wire connecting us with the west.

One night the wind set up such a buzzing in the wire that the old man had trouble sleeping. So he got an axe and chopped down the mast . . . and there went our telegraph connections!

It's funny in a way, but tragic, too. Because every community still has people like that peevish old man. Right in our town, there are folks who get a pet peeve and try to override the wishes of everyone else, just to exercise that prejudice and force their own narrow views on the rest of the community.

That isn't good citizenship. Let a man start chopping away at the rights of his neighbors and he's undermining the community's welfare . . . just as surely as that old man in Keokuk did 75 years ago.

Boys' Sectional to Get Underway at Garner, Monday

Next Monday, boys' basketball teams will start play that will lead the sixteen top teams into the state finals at Iowa City on March 17. Before they can get into the state tournament, though, there are three other tournaments that they must win; sectional, district and sub-state.

One of the 96 sectional tournaments will be at Garner and there should be plenty of action, as there will be both Class "A" and Class "B" champions to decide.

In the Class "B" bracket, action will get underway, Monday night at 7:00 p. m., when Meservey and Kanawha tangle, and at 8:30 Thornton and Alexander meet.

In the top half of the "B" bracket, Klemme meets Wesley, Tuesday night at 7:00 p. m. Goodell drew a first-round bye. The other game on Tuesday night will be when Garner and Britt meet in the first round of the Class "A" competition at 8:30. Belmond drew a bye for the first round.

If Klemme gets by Wesley they meet Goodell in the second round at 8:30 next Wednesday evening.

Highlight of the tournament should be the Class "A" finals on Friday evening, February 20. Garner should beat Britt in their first round game, and if this be the case the final game will be between them and Belmond. Belmond took a one-point thriller from them last Friday night, and they beat Belmond by three points earlier in the season. That should be one to see.

Treasurer Reports on "March of Dimes" Funds

According to Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, Garner, treasurer of the Hancock County Infantile Paralysis Association, $3,197.85 had been collected in the "March of Dimes" campaign by February 9.

There are bills carried over from last year in the amount of $1700.00, as there were fourteen new cases in the county, and two cases from the year before that still required assistance.

Mrs. Jorgenson wishes to thank all those who contributed, and all those who assisted in the work of collecting, and expresses the hope that the polio money will keep coming in, as there will no doubt be more cases this year to combat.

The report to date shows the folowing information:

Garner	$ 853.67
Cubs	7.26
Britt	728.05
Klemme	266.05
Goodell & Avery Twp.	423.17
Woden & Bingham Twp.	260.80
Twin Lake Township	253.50
Liberty Township	257.65
Total to February 9	$3197.85

To Hold Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lauden are having open house in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary, at their home near Goodell, on Saturday, February 14.

The hours will be from 1:00 o'clock to 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon for the relatives, and from 7:00 o'clock to 9:00 o'clock in the evening for friends and neighbors.

Churches Will Sponsor World Day of Prayer

Albert Lea Pastor to be Guest Speaker

Guest speaker at this year's World Day of Prayer Service to be held in the Klemme Methodist Church at 8 o'clock on the evening of February 20th, will be Dr. Paul G. Hayes pastor of the Methodist Church at Albert Lea, Minnesota and former missionary to China. Mr. Hayes who has also served a pastorate at Bismark, North Dakota, following his return from missionary work in China will speak on "Christians with World Outlook."

The service sponsored in Klemme by the women of the Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Klemme and Liberty Methodist Churches will be one of similar services in more than 17,000 separate communties in more than 110 countries under the direction of the United Church Women of the World.

The theme of this year's observance is "Walk as Children of Light," and the local emphasis will be on Africa, the country chosen for mission study this year by the cooperating denominations. Ladies of the three churches will conduct the service and special music will be provided by the High School Chorus and a Woman's Chorus making special preparations for the service.

An offering will be received during the service, which as in other years will support both home and foreign missionary projects. The portion devoted to home missions will benefit American Indians, Low-Income Farm Communities, and Migrants, and the foreign mission portion will be used for literature and literacy materials in Asia, Africa and Latin America, service to foreign students in the United States, and the educaton of Christian leaders in inter-denominational Christian colleges in the Orient. Both men and women as well as children of the community are urged to share in the service of prayer and fellowship.

Red Cross Roll Call Starts March 1

Workers Will Moke Canvass This Year

The Garner chapter of the American Red Cross has completed plans for the annual roll call which is to get under way about March 1st, according to Hancock County Auditor Maynard Schoneman, Chapter roll call chairman. The Garner chapter comprises the east half of Hancock county.

At a recent meeting of the chapter officials held at the Hancock National bank in Garner, a quota of $3,000 was fixed for 1953. Officials advise that the amount fixed is the minimum if the chapter is to carry out its obligation in the National and local program.

A house to house canvass is planned and town and township chairmen have been appointed and will appoint and enlist local solicitors to make a complete canvass. For the past years the annual drive has been conducted without calling on each individual. Contributions were received at several banks in the county.

With the need for Gamma Globulin to combat infantile paralysis and the constant need for replenishing the blood bank of our country in our country's defense effort, the participation of the local chapter in the National program must be stepped up according to officials and more funds are needed.

Citizens are also reminded that the local chapter conducts an extensive swimming and water safety program each year and has in recent years been called upon to aid in disaster relief on several occasions.

Roll Call Chairman Schoneman is delivering campaign supplies to town and township chairmen who will in turn distribute the material to workers in the various precincts.

The following have been appointed chairmen and co-chairmen to assist in this all-important service to community and nation. Townships: Ellington, Mrs. Harvey Sorenson; Madison, Mrs. John Kester; Garfield, Mrs. Elmer Jante; Concord, Mrs. John Love; Ell, Mrs. Harvey Goll; Liberty, Mrs. Leo Jass; Twin Lake, Mrs. Willam Sneriff, Sr.; and Avery, Mrs. Verner Nelson.

Town chairmen: Garner, I.R. Beattie and Robert Blank, co-chairman; Goodell, Mrs. V. E. Harris; Klemme, Mrs. Dwight Hummel, chairman and Mrs. Leonard Swanson co-chairman.

C. L. Strate of Garner is the chapter chairman and Fern Peck Katter is secretary.

Klemme chairman, Mrs. Dwight Hummel, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Leonard Swanson, will act as solicitors in the local canvass. Helping them will be the following ladies:

Mrs. A. J. Kudje, Mrs. Harvey Barz, Mrs. Dave Schwichtenberg, Mrs. Lloyd Sherwood, Mrs. Ed Christians, and Miss Leona Lau.

Stork Club

Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Neuberger, of Clear Lake, are the parents of a baby girl born Tuesday afternoon, February 10, at Mercy Hospital in Mason City. The little Miss weighed just over eight pounds.

Music Mothers to Meet

Music Mothers will meet in the home economics room at the high school, Wednesday afternoon, February 18, at 2 o'clock. Please notice the change of time.

Klemme Cagers in Even Break With Hayfield

American Legion Met Tuesday Night

Regular meeting of Adam-Schaefer Post No. 625 of the American Legion was held Tuesday evening at the Grade School Building.

During the course of the business meeting, plans were discussed with regard to the celebration which the Legion plan to hold in the spring.

After the meeting, the members retired to the basement where they were served coffee and hamburgers, ably prepared and dispensed by Junior Roths, chief cook, and Wes Suckow, head waiter.

At a recent meeting, combat films were secured and shown to the members present. They were so thoroughly enjoyed, that at the next meeting there will be more of them.

30th Anniversary

About one-hundred fifty relatives and friends extended best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wille on their thirtieth wedding anniversary, Sunday.

Guests were from Klemme, Garner, Ventura, Alexander, Meservey, Goodell, Kanawha, Nora Springs, Mason City and Forest City.

Shamrocks Win 56 - 38 as Shamrockettes Close Season With Loss

Early in the season when the Shamrocks played Hayfield, they had quite a scare, and just barely managed to squeeze out a 2-point win. However, they played a better game Friday night on the Hayfield floor. They took an early lead and at the quarter were out in front 16 - 5. Half-time saw them leading by 32 - 17, and at one point in the fourth quarter they led 51 - 29. Anyway, the outcome was never in doubt, and the Shamrocks played one of their better games of the year.

Stille had a good night for Klemme and led the scoring with 21 points, while Tschirki had 16 for Hayfield.

In their last game of the season, the Shamrockettes trailed throughout the game, and lost by a score of 55 - 42. They stayed within reach until half-time, and then Hayfield gradually pulled away.

S. Hauge and C. Hauge, of Hayfield led the scoring for the game with 28 and 25 points, while Lacey got 17 for the Shamrockettes.

The girls had a pretty good season this year. They won a fair percentage of their games and had plenty of hustle and fight. They were out-gunned occasionally, but they never quit.

BRITT HERE FRIDAY

Friday night will be the last regularly scheduled game for the Shamrocks. They meet Britt on the local floor and will be trying to get even for what the Eagles did to them in the County Tournament. We have a sneaking suspiciin that they may get the job done, too.

General School Election Will be March 9th

At the General School Election on March 9, the voters in Hancock County Board of Education elections, Areas I, III, IV will also have an opportunity to elect members to the Hancock County Board of Education. The six (6) year terms of the members in Areas one (1) and four (IV) have expired. The member elected from Area three (III) will complete the term of office in the Area, with two (2) years remaining. This partial term was created by the resignation of Mr. Puffer a year ago and the County Board's appointment to fill the vacancy extends only until the time of the current March school election at which time the electors fill the office for the remainder of the term.

The incumbents are:

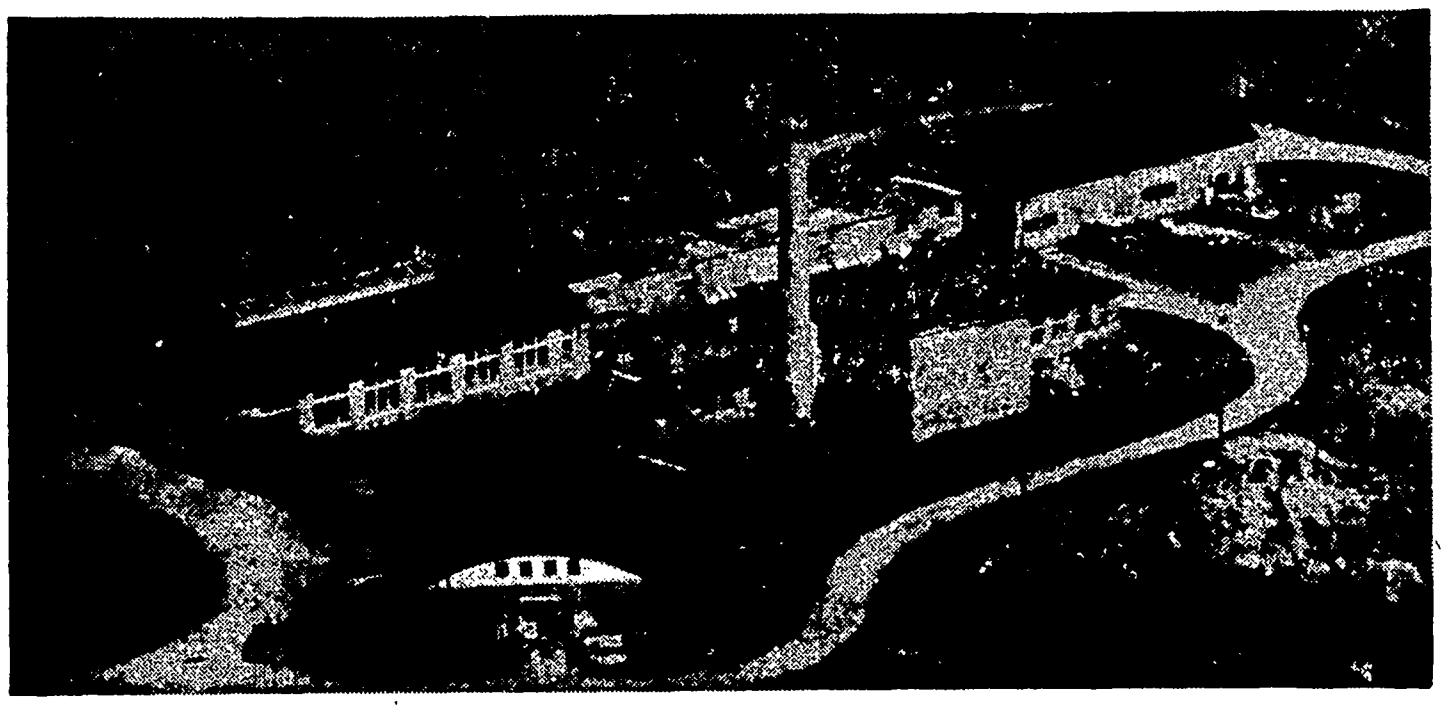
Area I - B C. Berge, Garner.

Area III - Mrs. Ethel Bonnstetter, Corwith.

Area IV - V. A. Cook, Klemme.

Nomination papers shall be filed in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools not before January 23 and must be filed before 4:00 p. m. February 17 to have the names printed on the ballot. Section 273.5 Code of Iowa 1951.

Future Hancock County Fairgrounds



By next August 4-H and FFA members will be moving their projects into these buildings to compete for local honors. These buildings along with 40 acres of land were purchased by the County Fair Board for a sum of $27,500.00. They must make final payment by March first and their only method of raising it is your donations—make them big.

Remember this property belongs to the Hancock County Fair Association and every eligible voter is a member of this Association.

We rather like our country just the way it is.

Taxes are high, beef prices are going to pot, we are plagued by strikes, and we have a war on our hands.

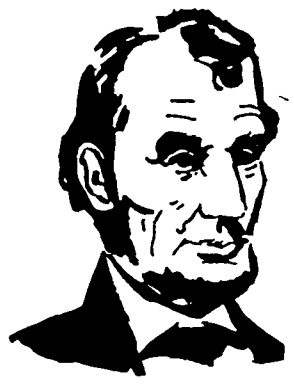
Regardless of all this, we are still a free people, live better, and are blessed with more of everything than are the people of any other land. That's why we like it here.

Nearly everyone who lives in the U. S. A. likes it, but there exists a minority group which is dissatisfied with things the way they are, and think that maybe "Uncle Joe" has a better idea.

In our constitution is a guarantee that everyone shall have the right to freedom of speech, along with many other freedoms. This is all fine, but when a person preaches a doctrine that is entirely foreign to everything in our constitution, and becomes a worker for a movement that is dedicated to wipe out our way of living, then we think that he has forfeited his right to freedom of speech. We would be all for deporting him to Russia, and letting him live under his beloved communist system.

Funny thing, though. As much as these misguided ones extol the virtues of the communist system, they aren't too crazy about living under it. Thirteen of them were recently given their choice of going to prison in the U. S. or being deported to Russia. They all chose prison.

Must be a nice system. As far as we're concerned anyone who embraces it has no place in this country.



Tomorrow, Thursday, February 12, is the birthday of a great American, Abraham Lincoln. In his Gettysburg Address, he had some things to say that we think bear out the sentiments expressed in our foregoing statements.

Everyone should know the opening paragraph of this historic speech, but just in case, we'll quote it for you.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent, a new nation conceived in Liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

Then in the last portion of the final sentence of the address, he spoke as follows:

". . . and that this government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Never In Doubt

Here's a story about Dan'l Boone that has a moral for anyone who is worried about the way things are going in the world today.

A friend of Boone's once asked the old hunter if, in all his years in the wilderness, he had ever been lost. Boone thought for a moment and shook his head.

"No", he answered. "I've never been lost in the woods. But I was once confused for four days."

Butter - Oleo

Looks like the dairy boys are in for a good licking at the Statehouse, and the oleo people have gotten more free advertising out if this squabble than they will ever get again.

Regardless, we still think it's a shame that they have to use the color that butter has made popular. Sort of a moral robbery, we would say.

County Engineer Reports On Road Costs, Program

By C. F. Merten, County Engineer

The year of 1952 was a better year for road construction than several previous years and a large program of road work was completed. From the standpoint of dollars spent this was the banner year in the history of Hancock County road construction though the number of miles graded per year has been exceeded on several occasions.

The amount spent for highway construction in Hancock County during 1952 was $364,080.75 and may be itemized as follows:

Farm to Market Fund
Paving one mile in Kanawha	$ 78,726.14
Grading 13½ miles in Bingham, Crystal and Madison Twps.	68,418.72
Graveling above graded roads	14,700.59
Right of way for above roads	8,984.60
Total Farm to Market	170,830.05
County Road Construction Fund
Roads graded and graveled in each township of Hancock County
Grading 30 miles of local roads	$ 80,630.10
Graveling above roads	30,850.00
Right of way	21,039.34
Bridges	24,004.60
Culverts	20,340.00
Gravel pits and incidentals	16,386.66
Total County Road construction	193,250.70

The total amount spent for road maintenance in Hancock County in 1952 was $323,189.90 which may be itemized as follows:

Labor	$ 93,016.60
New machinery	84,825.24
Tools and repairs for machinery	38,723.82
Gasoline, diesel, oil and grease	21,345.64
Gravel hauling by contract	34,106.78
Buildings & repairs on buildings	294.10
Tiling and drainage assessments	9,109.50
Culverts pipe	2,995.45
Misc. supplies and expenses	29,772.77
Total Road Maintenance	323,189.90

The total cost of engineering for highways in Hancock County on secondary roads for the year of 1952 was $20,319.26 of which $16,255.40 is charged to construction work and $4,063.86 is charged for maintenance work. On a percentage basis this makes the engineering cost approximately 4½ percent on the construction work and 1¼ percent on the maintenance work. The engineering cost on the paving work was much higher than on other types of construction. The engineering costs on black top work will be high as this type of construction requires a lot of inspection to secure good results.

Of the $687,270.65 spent for secondary road construction and maintenance work in Hancock County in 1952 the amount raised from Hancock County taxes on property, moneys and credits was $206,501.74. The balance came from gasoline taxes and other taxes collected on motor vehicles and accessories. Of the taxes collected by the Federal Government on motor fuel and motor vehicles, less than one-half is returned to the state for highway work while all of the tax collected from these sources in Iowa by state and local agencies is used in highway work.

The road program for 1953 as now outlined includes continuing the improvement of local roads by grading and graveling and the black-topping of the road from Kanawha to Goodell. The black-topping of the roads from Woden north and west are on the program to be built as soon as funds are available and we can secure additional inspectors, which may be late in 1953 or early in 1954. It is important that our main roads be surfaced with black top or other paving as rapidly as possible to save our diminishing supply of gravel.

Additional information as to the source of funds, the location of the roads improved, the cost of grading and graveling each mile, and the cost of each bridge and culvert may be secured at the office of the County Engineer.

The third planning meeting of the group is scheduled for Monday afternoon, February 2, at the home of Clarence Attig. This discussion will cover conservation practices used in conversation planning. At this meeting dates will be made to go over each cooperators farm to draw up conservation plans. Moss also reported maps ready for planning in groups "33" in Magor township, and "34" in Liberty township just south of Duncan. Intentions are to complete planning these groups before spring work starts.

EDITORIAL

There are definite signs that the big day for the seniors isn't too far away. Friday of last week, the whole class spent a period measuring each other for their caps and gowns. It took the class about five minutes to decide what color they wanted the gowns to be. It was unanimously decided that they should be white although there was a close decision over the tassels being red or red and white. The latter proved to be the winner.

On January 3rd, Mr. Ahrenkiel announced that our announcements had arrived. Most of the seniors are satisfied, although there was some discussion as to whether they were the ones we had ordered.

The play books for the senior class play arrived Monday morning. We will try out for the different parts this Friday. Mr. Cappon will be the play director.

Welcome to the faculty, Mr. Smith.

After graduation from Valley High in West Des Moines, he attended North Western University for 6 months and Drake University for 4 years.

Not having assignments in on time is his pet peeve and his most embarrasing moment happened when he went to introduce his wife to Mr. Ahrenkiel and could not remember his name. His favorite food is steak and french fries; favorite song is Moonlight Cocktail; favorite singer is Julius La Rosa; favorite band is Glenn Miller; favorite movie stars are John Wayne and Marilyn Monroe and favorite movie is "Above and Beyond."

Fishing and playing golf are his favorite pastimes and photography is his hobby.

Mr. Smith is married and has two children, Linda and Steve. His wife's name is Shirley.

A desire to follow in the footsteps of a former highschool teacher inspired him to teach. Plans as to how long he will teach are indefinite.

Who was the attracton that caught Darlene and Lois J. eye at the Thornton ballgame??? It couldn't be two nice looking boys, could it? What happened to them at the game with Belmond the other night? I thought they were coming down.

Why was it that Daisy turned all different colors at the game the other night when Darlene called her a certain movie stars name. It seems that Daze and Lois J. are battling hard for that name.

Why was Daisy teasing Lois H. about "szostrings" Thursday noon. It was just a slip of Lois H.'s tongue, wasn't it? It seems that Daisy beat her to a pair of real sharp shoe strings, or in other words Daze just took them away.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

February or March should see the late winter peak in hog prices, Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist believes. By late March or April, the movement of August and September farrowings will be picking up.. These are two big fall pig farrowing months.

Since farrowings in August and September were 12 percent smaller than a year ago, Kutish expects that the spring price decline from the late winter peak this year will be less than normal. And he looks for a good summer hog market. Late fall farrowings —those in October and November—were down 23 percent from the year before.

Increased beef supplies will offset a good part of the summer cut back in hog slaughter. And the lard market is weaker than a year ago. Nevertheless, Kutish figures that a $22 to $24 hog top at Chicago in July or August is probable.

February Price Break?

Ever since the war we have been plagued by a February break in commodity prices. And this year looks like a repeat proposition.

There are several forces at work which indicate it may happen again this year, Kutish believes. Domestic and world commodity prices are on the down trend as supplies improve. This situation puts the whole commodity market in a thin position.

In addition, Kutish reveals that there is a huge open interest in the Board of Trade. These longs are tired and getting on the defensive. This is especially important at this time of year—when the huge bite of tax payments restricts the private money supply. And there's another drain on money the first few months of the year: That's paying off Christmas purchase debts.

The reason men don't have so much to say is they don't have a chance to say it.

Traffic Fatalities Down for '52 But High Speed Prime Factor in Deaths

There were 72 fewer fatal traffic accidents in Iowa last year than in 1951, but many causes of highway death were almost untouched by the reduction, the state safety department said Thursday.

Frank Ulish, safety education director, pointed out that there were 86 fatal accidents on sharp curves last year compared to 85 in 1951, almost no reductioin despite the over-all decline is death crashes.

"The reduction barely reached our secondary roads," Ulish said. "There were 123 fatal accidents on gravel roads last year compared to 127 in 1951."

The 118 deaths caused last year when vehicles ran off roads was exactly the same as in 1951. The total of 48 deaths caused in 1952 when vehicles hit fixed objects was one more than in the preceding year.

"There was a sharp increase in fatal accidents involving high speeds," Ulish said. He reported that 46 death crashes in Iowa last year occurred at speeds of 70 miles an hour or more compared to 25 similar accidents in 1951.

There were 4 farm tractors involved in fatal accidents on public roads last year compared to 23 in 1951.. The number of defective vehicles in fatal crashes was alost the same last year as the year before, 27 compared to 29.

"These statistics, drawn from an otherwise excellent fatality report, indicate that certain conditions and speeds are consistently dangerous for drivers despite an improved safety record," Ulish said.

On the basis of the report, he warned drivers to reduce speed and use extra caution on gravel roads and curves.

$17 Million in Iowa Lumber Products

The annual value of all lumber products manufactured in Iowa is estimated at $17 million, the Iowa development commission says.

Iowa's 2.3 million acres of timberland produce an annual cutting of 90 million timber feet.

Principal kinds of timber grown in Iowa are oak, hickory, maple, maple, elm, black walnut, basswood, willow, cottonwood, aspen, hackberry, ash, and wild cherry.

Ag Engineer Meets With Hancock Lumber Dealers

Carol Worlan, Iowa State College agricultural engineer discussed farm building construction plans and programs with Hancock County lumber dealers and contractors Friday night, February 6th. Mr. Worlan pointed out a number of new things that research workers have found to improve construction. He also pointed out that the usefulness and ease of doing the work in the building is very important. A fancy inconvenient barn is not as valuable as a convenient low cost building.

Good construction will prolong the life of buildings. Mr. Worlan also discussed insulating farm buildings and home. He stressed having the moisture barrier on the warm side of the wall or ceiling. Too many are putting heir moisture barrier on the cold side and then have moisture condensation inside of the insulation or wall.

Additional information and farm building plans may be obtained by contacting Paul Henderson county extension director.

Highway Patrol to Hold Recruit School; Still Not Too Late to Apply

Qualified young men from Hancock County have an "excellent chance" for assignment to the Iowa highway patrol force this year if they will make early application, accordng to David G. Herrick, patrol chief.

He said about 35 men will be accepted to attend a four-week patrol recruit training school to be held at Camp Dodge beginning May 3. Sucessful graduates of the school will be assigned to the patrol or to a patrol reserve list.

"We have not been flooded with applications as yet," Herrick said, "and young men who meet our qualifications still have an excellent chance to be invited to the recruit school."

He warned, however, that applications should be mailed as early as possible to patrol headquarters, new state office building, Des Moines.

Applications blanks may be obtained from any highway patrol district headquarters.

Applicants for the patrol school must be between 22 and 32 years of age; citizens of the United States; a resident of Iowa for at least two years prior to application; and have a high school education or its equivalent.

All applicants must be able to pass a rigid character and physical examination and have 20-20 vision in each eye without glasses Herrick said.

1952 Violations Bad; Conservation Commission Takes $42,251 in Fines

Fines resulting from arrests by Iowa conservation officers during the calendar year of 1952 totalled $42,251, the State Conservation Commission revealed today The Commission reported 1,922 fish and game law violations last year which resulted in 1,702 convictions. All fines resulting from convictions are turned over to the county school fund in the county in which the fine was assessed.

Of the total convictions, 542 were for fishing violations, 985 for hunting violations, and 63 for trapping violations. The remaining convctions were for navigation violations and miscellaneous offenses. In addition to fines, the convictions also carried a total of 435 days in jail.

The heaviest fines were usually those for killing deer or for killing pheasants illegally. Such violations often carry a penalty of $100. The majority of the fines were for hunting and fishing without a license, possessing pheasants illegally, or carrying loaded or assembled firearms in automobiles. Several Iowans have recently been unlucky in not being arrested for the last offense. Instead of paying the usual $10 to $25 fine for carrying loaded guns in their cars, they paid with their lives.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

The winter sweepstakes for wrong - headed drivers is just entering its final round, and this may be a good time to point out a few of the leaders.

Conceded a good chance to win in the silly explanation division is the Iowa 18-year-old who said in a recent accident report, that he had cracked up his father's car and broken an arm because "I couldn't see the corner for fog. But that didn't make any difference because the road was so icy and I was going so fast I couldn't stop anyhow."

The top prize for team effort probably will go to three Iowa brothers who ended up in the same jail on the same night on three different driving charges. One brother was jailed for allowing an unauthorized person to drive his car, the second brother was hauled in for being the unauthorized person.

In the jail they met the third brother who had just been arrested for the second time that night for driving while under license suspension.

An almost certain winner in the "everybody but me" division is the school bus driver who sailed past another school bus stopped on the highway discharging children.

A nearby highway patrolman grabbed the passing bus driver for violating the school bus stop law.

Judges probably will disagree on the award a Florida trucker should receive. Some will want to put him in the "most sensible" competition. In any case, here's his story.

An Iowa highway patrolman found him stopped in his semi-trailer outfit smack on top of an ice-covered hill. His engine was switched off and he sat there with horror at the icy road ahead ignoring the horn-blasts from cars and trucks stacking up behind him.

He told the highway patrolman he had never seen such ice in his life and just got so scared that he was going to sit there 'till it melted.

Iowa Eggs Circle Earth Six Times

If all the eggs produced by Iowa hens in 1952 were laid end to end, they would circle the earth six times at the equator, the state development commission notes in a survey of the Hawkeye poultry industry.

The Iowa crop and livestock reporting service says Hawkeye hens laid 4,363,000,000 eggs last year to again put the state at the top as the nation's Number One egg producer. The Iowa cacklers beat their last year record by over 80 million eggs.

Minnesota fell behind Iowa by about one billion eggs to take second. Pennsylvania was third in the U. S. with a 3.6 billion egg production.

Celebrates Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lemke entertained the following relatives and friends Saturday evening, Februry 7th in honor of their daughter Pamela, who was celebrating her 7th birthday.

Lions to Hear Whitney

The Lions Club had their regular dinner meeting Wednesday evening February 4. Eighteen members and one guest, Milvern Barz, were present. Bert Jones, local telephone company manager, gave a short talk on the history of telephone service here in Klemme. It is planned that County Supt. 4-H Boys to Study Farm Electricity 270 Hancock County 4-H members will be studying better use of electricity on their farms during the months February and March. Each member will be invited to one of seven district training schools on understanding electricity and wiring. Men from the REA and Iowa Electric Light and Power Company will be present to help conduct these district training schools.

Along with the district training schools the 4-H Club members will be putting on demonstrations and leading discussions at their local club meetings. These demonstrations are ranging all the way from making an electric motor to repair of a drop cord.

The main objectives of a special activity such as this are to promote better understanding of electricity, to help boys see how they can make their work easier by using electricity and to have the 4-H members receive training in giving demonstrations and leading discussions.

Iowa Tops Russia in Use of Farm Tractor

The might of the world's second greatest power isn't great enough to push the Iowa farmer back into the feed lots when it comes to field work.

In fact, the owa development commission finds Iowa alone, despite overwhelming odds in farm-land acreage and in number of persons engaged in farming, makes Russia look like a third-rate nation in farm mechanization.

The state's promotional agency reports that the Hawkeye state not only leads the U S. in use and value of power machinery on farms but also tops Russia acre for acre.

While Russia has one sixth of all the habitable land in the world and 193 million people compared to Iowa's 2.5 million and 363 million acres of farm land to Iowa's 35 million acres, the Iowa farmer has nearly six times as many tractors than Ivan per acreage use.

For every 138 acres of Iowa farm land there is one farm tractor while in Russia Ivan uses one tractor for every 751 acres.

Based on pre-Korean reports Russia's socialistic agricultural system maintains 6,358 "machine tractor stations" for use by the nation's 123,000 kolkhozes (collective farms).

These Soviet tractor pools scattered throughout the southern and eastern farming areas provide one tractor for each 751-acre tract of farm land.

Iowa's "capitalists in overalls" owned over 253,000 tractors in 1950 for 35 million acres of farm land. Russian farmers operated 483,000 tractors on 363 million acres in 1949.

Although under Russia's fourth 5-year plan rural population has been decreasing in favor of industrialization, the number of Soviet farmers still comprises two-thirds of the nation's 193 million population.

Thirty percent of Russia's 8 5 million square miles are for agricultural purposes while 96 percent of Iowa's 56,000 squares miles are under cultivation.

County and District Presidents Guest of Local Auxiliary

Hancock County President, Mrs. Louise Smith, and Eighth District president, Mrs. Irma Tindall, both of Woden, were special guests of the American Legion Auxiliary at its meeting held Tuesday afternoon, February 3 at the home of Flora Back.

The Iowa Department has been assigned to supply sweaters to 4 Korean orphanages. Nellie Arnold reported that 3 sweaters had been sent from our unit.

The Mid-Winter Conference in Des Moines, starting February 8, was discussed. It was hoped that our unit would have a representative at the meeting.

More carpet rags were sewed during the afternoon.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Marilyn Buseman.

Twelve members were present besides the two guests.

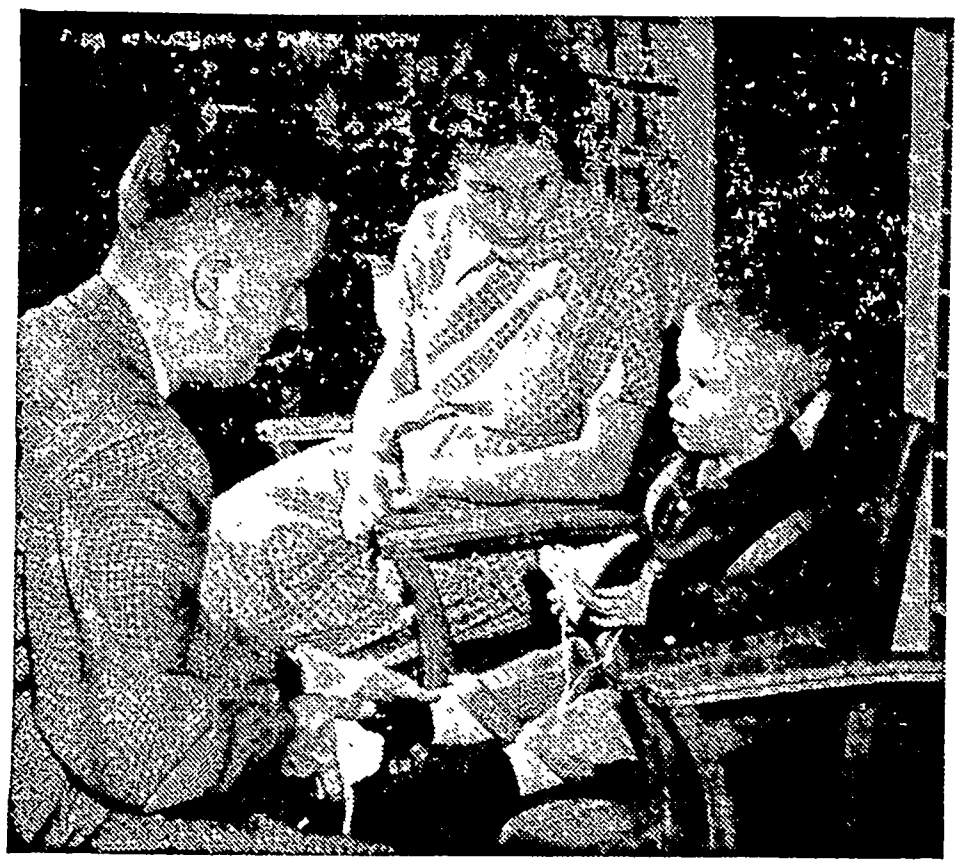
Start Your Toddler Early With—

A Trip to the Shoe Store



From the very beginning, choose a shoe store that specializes in the proper fitting of children's shoes. A correctly fitted shoe gives the foot a chance for healthy, normal development.

When your toddler starts pulling himself up to things and putting weight on his feet, it's time to bundle him off to the shoe store. From this moment on, the shoes he wears and how well they fit will have much to do with whether or not he developes strong, healthy feet.

Your baby's shoes at this time just need to be soft-soled protective one, says Lucille Rea, Iowa State College clothing specialist. When he starts to walk all by himself he'll need a different type shoe—one that has a firm sole and really fits his foot.

Even if you think you know his size, you should take him to a shoe store for a fitting each time he needs shoes. For a shoe must be fitted to the individual shape of the foot.

Proper Fitting

Here are "musts" any well-trained shoe clerk will insist upon when he tries a shoe on your youngster.

The shoe must fit snugly at the heel, and snugly and smoothly under the arch. It must correspond to the low, high or medium instep of the foot, and it must conform to the shape of the fore part of the foot. The toe shape must conform to the shape of your child's toes and allow the great toe to lie out straight. There must be enough width across the ball of the shoe and in the toe to allow for the spread of the foot in motion.

"Roomy in the toe and snug in the heel" is a good rule to remember.

From all this, you can see that it's wisest to choose a store that specializes in the proper fitting of children's shoes, says Miss Rea.

Your child's feet grow so fast that you'll need to check often to see if he's outgrown his shoes. When you take his shoes off, look for any red marks that might indicate a too-tight or misfitting shoe.

He'll outgrow his shoes so fast that you may be tempted to save them for the next youngster. But those shoes will have conformed to the first child's feet, and chances are they're wrong for another child. Remember—ill-fitting shoes can do lots of damage to a small foot in its formative stages.

Danger Signs

Some types of foot trouble don't show up until later in life when it's dfficult or even too late to take corrective measures. So be on the lookcut for these danger signals: excessively perspiring feet, bow legs, a tendency to toe out, knock knees, poor posture and signs of unusual fatigue. If your youngster shows any of these symptons, call them to the attention of your family doctor. He may be able to head off the trouble.

School Shoes

Your school age boy or girl should wear well-fitted oxfords most of the time. Although oxfords are considered best by most shoe men, there are other well-made styles that give good support to the foot, too, Miss Rea adds. The low strap-type shoe is fine for dress wear, but it usually doesn't give enough support for everyday wear.

If your Billy turns into a barefoot boy come summer, don't worry. It's good excercise for his feet if he's on sand, grass or other fairly soft surfaces most of the time.

Spring Weather Factor for Pests and Rodents

What should Hancock County farmers expect from pests and rodents in 1953?

A lot will depend on the weather next spring, says Paul Henderson, Hancock County Extension director.

A cool, wet spring will likely bring an increase in cutworms, sod webworms, wireworms and rootworms. A nomal spring can cause heavy infestation of nearly all field crop nsects, Cinch bugs and grasshoppers will be a menace if we have dry weather.

Livestock pests will be trouble makers. Cattle scab or mange appears definitely to be on the increase. Both horn flies and stable flies are expected to be abundant in 1953. A wet spring will favor horseflies.

The orchardist and home owner should be on the lookout for garden and shade tree pests. Red spiders seem to be on the increase. Most kinds of plant lice would thrive in a wet spring. Damage to home plantings and evergreen windbreaks would be increased by dry weather.

Pocket gophers are increasing. Abundant stored corn will favor rats and mice, but new methods of control will effectively cut their numbers and damage.

Survey Shows Iowa's Farmers Getting Younger

Iowa farmers are revising the words to the popular "How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm" song.

The Iowa development commission finds the tune is the same but the words should go something like this: "In Iowa, we're keepin' 'em down on the farm."

The commission says a U. S. department of commerce survey shows the Iowa farm operator is getting younger with almost 3,000 more farm operators under 25 years of age today than in 1940.

In the past eight years, the average age of the Iowa farm operator has been declining. The present average age is 46 as calculated by the federal commerce office. In 1945 the average age was 47.2 years.

Also the number of farm operators in Iowa 65 years old and over is decreasing. In 1940 there were 23,575 farm operators 65 and over. Current figures show operators now 65 and over total 20,486.

$30 Million Spent by Iowans in '52 for TV Sets

Iowans invested an estimated $30,240,000 in 1952 for new television sets, the Iowa development commission reports.

Based on a survey conducted by the National Broadcasting company, Iowans purchased 134,400 new sets at an average price of $225 each in 1952 bringing the total number of sets in the state to an estimated 294,000.

A breakdown of the three television points serving Iowa, NBC lists 98,400 sets out of the Ames area, 40,000 out of Omaha in Iowa, and 156,000 from the Davenport-Rock Island area.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Installment Nineteen

Our Doctors

Doctor Spooner was the first doctor of medicine to locate in Klemme. He arrived in 1890 and was the only doctor in town for about five years. Then, in 1895 Doctor H. A. Richter came and we had two doctors in town for about four years. Then, Doctor Richter moved to Garner.

Doctor George Zinn came to Klemme in 1899. For ten years it was Dr. Spooner and Dr. Zinn. In 1909, Dr. Spooner, after serving Klemme for nineteen years, moved to Luverne, Iowa. In 1909, Dr. W. F. Missman began to practice in Klemme, and then for twenty-four years it was Dr. Zinn and Dr. Missman. In 1933, Dr. George Zinn after 34 years of service in Klemme, sold out to Dr. A. H. Dulmes.

The two busy doctors in Klemme today (1953) are; Dr. W. F. Missman, our old reliable family physician, enriched by 43 years of experience serving the Klemme Community.

And Doctor A. H. Dulmes, who during the 19 years that he has been in Klemme, has become well established and well known. He built a new brick office building on main street some years ago. You always find the doctor or his nurse at the office.

Dentists

For the first thirty-three years, Klemme had no dentist. If a fellow had a toothache, he either went to our local doctor of medicine and had the tooth pulled or drove to some town where there was a dentist.

Along about 1922, Doctor Parsons located here, but after a few years he moved to Belmond. Then about 1925, Doctor Hesselhuis tried it. He was a good chap and would have succeeded but other pastures looked greener and he moved on. In 1930 Doctor Sitzer came to town. He was a great musician and spent most of his time at the piano and his dentistry was a side line. After two years he left. In 1932 Doctor Bradshaw hung out his shingle in Klemme. He was experienced and a capable dentist, but after two years he became obsessed with a strong desire to go farming. We couldn't hold him. Off to his farm he went near Britt.

Last but not least, Doctor Earl G. Schaefer moved in. This was in 1934. After about seven years, the war effort needed him and he worked for Uncle Sam for the duration of World War II, and on returning located in Forest City, his home town.

Just recently a suite of new dental offices was provided in the Wellemeyer Store building, on the main floor with entrance to the east. When and if the Korean War is called off, their will no doubt be a good dentist eager to locate here

Veterinarian

Doctor D. P. Anderson passed the state board in 1924 and has been in active practice here for twenty-nine years.

In the early years of our history hog cholera was rare. Vaccination for T. B. and other ailments was not thought of. But at the present time there is a constant and steady demand for veterinary service. Hogs, milk cows, chickens and pets keep the doctor busy.

Doctor D. P. Anderson has just sold his office and his practice to a young man by the name of John D. Baker. Dr. Anderson has not stated what his future plans are but we hope he continues to live here, and that he takes good care of his farm, goes fishing now and then, and does some of the things which he has always wanted to do, but did not find time for because of his busy doctor duties.

Doctor John D. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Baker and was born on a farm northwest of Belmond. He served in the navy during World War II, and came out as a cook, second class. He graduated from the Vet College of Iowa State College in June 1952 and has been practicing with Dr. W. B. Waters at Dumont, Iowa, since graduation.

Doctor Baker is married. His wife is the former Margaret McGavran of Ames, and they have three children; Barry, age 4 Janice, age 18 months, and John, age 5 months.

Doctor Baker will take over and practice here as soon as he can get his family moved.

The Quandt Building

George Kluckhohn was our first restaurant proprietor. He built the Quandt building and operated the same for twenty years.

Mr. Kluckhohn did not spend too much time in the restaurant as he was out with his pony team writing insurance and selling land, and the family attended to the needs of the hungry public.

Mrs. Kluckhohn baked bread every day and it was the only place in town where you could buy a loaf of bread, price five cents. Not only that, but her home-made pies, do-nuts and rolls were delicious. There were no booths, but a large table fitted nicely across the south end of the room, and traveling men, merchants and other hungry people sat up to the table, like a large happy family, and passed the food around. Dinner was served at 12:15 and you had better be there or you could eat the left overs. The price 25c for the meal seemed high to us who earned maybe $1.00 or $1.50 per day.

Then this restaurant changed hands every year or two until the coming of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Quandt in 1921. They bought the building too. Went into debt somewhat, but they both worked hard through good times and bad times, enjoyed their work, and paid off their debts, made some money besides and they still kept happy. During the twenty five years or more that they were in business they served us well and ran a nice clean place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gerardi took over this restaurant about a half dozen years ago. Being young and ambitious they keep right on making changes, trying to improve the service and modernize the place. This attitude toward their job and hard work will certainly bring them success.

This Gerardi Cafe is also the "Music Center" of our town. Mrs. Gerardi gives lessons on the piano and the organ, while Mr. Gerardi is a master at playing the accordion. He must have been born with an accordion in his hands. He gives accordion lessons, and as a side line they sell many musical instruments.

The Josten Hardware Building

During the last 32 years, this building has had ten different tenants. It is a very desirable location on main street.

It was in 1920 that John Waterman, our postmaster at the time, built this brick building, size 24 x 40, and used it as the Klemme Post Office.

Four years later, Emma Gibbs became postmistress and purchased the building. Her son, Frank Gibbs, followed her as postmaster in the same building.

Then for twelve years, from 1932 to 1944, five different restaurant people occupied the place as tenants. They were: Harlan Trees, Hulda Wiles, Ben Pannkuk, Don Spears, and Tom Roths.

In 1944, Ernest "Stub" Lewis and Ernest L. Henschen purchased the building.

Ernest Lewis who had operated in the State Bank building for several years, cleaned up and remodeled the place and moved in his merchandise consisting of all kinds of electrical appliances, radios, Surge Milking machines etc. He also did radio repairing.

After three years, because the milking machine business had grown so big, "Stub" purchased the Ernest Schuldt residence in south Klemme, and gave all his time to the Surge Milker line. "Stub" and his assistant, Byrnes Lemke, sold, installed, and serviced Surge Milkers mostly in two counties, Hancock and Winnebago. During the last ten years they have installed 1100 machines, which kept their service department very busy. Recently Babson Bros. cancelled "Stub's" franchise, and the business is now operated by Dean Goll at Garner.

In 1947, Edmund K. Josten purchased all of the appliance stock and a half interest in the building from "Stub" Lewis, and during the last five years has added and built up a nice clean stock of hardware items, also TV sets.

Besides his wife who helps in the office, he has several helpers among these are, Virgil Clabaugh, who does the electrical wiring, Daisy Schaefer, who works on the floor, waiting on trade, and Bernard Pickrel, plumber.

Iowa's Popularity Triples in 3 Years

Iowa's popularity—in industry, agriculture and recreation—has nearly tripled in the past three years.

The Iowa development commission, state's promotional agency, reports requests for information concerning the state has jumped from a total of 7,501 inquiries in 1949 to 23,786 in 1952.

The office in Des Moines handles an average of 91 individual requests every day. These include inquiries from industry tourists, students and governmental agencies.

Requests for Iowa information come from every state and at least ten foreign countries. Heaviest oversea traffic for Iowa information comes from South America.

Selective Service Official Explains Registration

Early Bird!

Last Thursday, Mrs. C. A. Arnold called us to report that she had seen a robin. She said that she was so surprised that she looked the second time before she was sure that she was seeing right.

We thought that perhaps, the robin wasn't too far wrong in being here this early, as Thursday was a very nice day. However, since then, the below zero weather we have been having, has probably made the bird wish he was back in the sunny south.

Follow-up Meeting

The follow-up meeting for the Homemakers Club will be held at the home of Mrs. Clara Barz, on February 24, at 1:30 p. m.

World Day of Prayer services in some communities are held during the day but Klemme service has been scheduled for an evening hour so that the men of the community might have opportunity to attend. An offering will be received during the service which will go toward the support of missionary work at home and abroad, under the direction of the United Church Women of the country. Incidental expenses in connection with the meeting are being taken care of by the local women's groups so that the entire proceeds of the offering may go to missionary interests.

County Holds First Music Festival at Garner

The first Hancock County Music Festival was held in the Garner Memorial Building on Wednesday, February 11, 1953. A selected band of 165 and a mass chorus of 225 worked under the direction of two guest directors during the day to prepare for an evening concert, the climax of the festival. Carleton Stewart, of Mason City, was the guest band conductor and Ralph Woodward, Drake University, Des Moines, directed the mass chorus.

The towns in Hancock County taking part in the festival were Britt, Corwith, Crystal Lake, Garner, Hayfield, Kanawha, Klemme, and Woden. The directors from the schools were the committee to organize and handle the festival, but it was sponsored by the Hancock County Schoolmasters.

During the day, small groups from the various schools were heard. Five of the many groups were chosen to play at the evening program One of the five was a brass quartet from Klemme. Members of this quartet were: Fred Arnold, Jr., cornet; Val Stromer, cornet; Barbara Thompson, baritone; and Arthur Carlson, trombone.

A couple of changes in employees were made in two Klemme firms the past week. Actually, Fred will take Wayne Buseman's job as truck driver, and Wayne will take Harvey's job. Donald Peterson, who has been farming Dr. Tice's farm south of Klemme, will work at the elevator in place of Sobek.

Must Register Within 5 Days of 18th Birthday

Calling attention to the fact that failure to register is a violation of the law and makes the delinquent liable to penalty, Mr Earnest Haes, of the Hancock County Local Board today outlined registration requirements under the Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended, which he said he believed were not thoroughly understood by all of the public.

"The obligation to register," Haes said, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled. This obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male citizen and every other male person in the United States between the ages of 18 and 26, with the general exception of members of the armed forces and certain aliens."

The young man who becomes 18 is required to register at a local board within five days of the date of his 18th birthday, it was explained, but if he happens to be away from home, he need not return; he may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and the record will be sent to the local board having jurisdiction, even though it is in another state. If he is in a foreign country when he becomes 18 he registers with a United States diplomatic or consular office. After he registers, it is mandatory that a registrant keep his local board informed of any change in address or change in status. This applies after he becomes 26 as well as before. Registrants, generally speaking, who are deferred subsequent to June 19, 1951, are liable until they are 35 years of age.

Mr. Haes said he could not overemphasize the importance of the registrant giving his permanent home address as his place of residence when he registers at a board away from home, since the place of residence which he gives when registering determines the local board which will always have jurisdiction over him.

"Any person who changes from a status which did not require his registration to a status which does require it, must register promptly to be within the law," the Chairman continued.

Haes said that, in general, aliens entering the United States for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following the date of their entry. He pointed out that the maximum penalty for violation of any of the provisions of the selcetive service law is five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

Shamrocks Win First Round in Sectional

Tuesday evening, the Klemme Shamrocks won their first round game in the sectional tournament at Garner, by defeating Wesley 67 to 53. Tonight they play Goodell, and if they win that one they will tangle in the finals with the winner of the Alexander-Kanawha game, which will also be played tonight.

Legal Holiday

Monday, February 23, is the legal day for the observance of the birthday of George Washington. Consequently, the court house in Garner will be closed that day.

Shamrocks Lose Final to Britt Eagles, 62 to 58

Fight! Fight! Fight!

All season long, Klemme fans have enjoyed watching the antics of the three Shamrock cheer leaders. The girls picked out their own uniforms, work up the yells, and make up the gestures to go with them. They have done a good job, and we think are as able a set of cheer leaders as can be found in this section of the state.

Breathless Moment

Somebody let go with a long one and all eyes are on the ball as it sails toward the basket. Number 42 is Ronnie Karsjens, who led the Klemme scoring, with 18 points, and number 21 is Garman, of Britt, who sunk the Shamrocks with his 31-point scoring spree

Garman Hits 31 to Wreck Klemme

Friday night saw the Klemme Shamrocks go into action against the Britt Eagles on the Klemme floor, in the last regularly scheduled game of the season. They met a young man named Garman, and they won't soon forget him. He went on a scoring rampage that accounted for half of his team's 62-point total, and made a nuisance of himself all night as far as the Shamrocks were concerned. He was everywhere and into everything, and his fine play and accurate shooting was largely responsible for the loss that the Shamrocks suffered at the hands of he and his team mates.

The game was a good one from start to finish, and fans couldn't have asked for more of a thriller to wind up the season . . . except for the fact that the home team lost. At the end of the first quarter, the score stood at 14-all. At the half, Britt led 30 to 28. At the end of the third quarter, the score was tied again at 44-all. From there on out, it was dog-eat-dog. With the score varying a point or two in one direction or the other.

Garman, who was the scoring demon all evening, really broke the backs of the Shamrocks in the last minute of the game, when he sank a fielder to put his team out in front, 60 to 58, and then with about three seconds to go, sank a pair of free throws. That ended things.

Karsjens led the Klemme attack with 18 points, and Stille had 10, but their combined efforts couldn't match the 31-point scoring spree of Britt's Garman.

LITTLE SHAMROCKS WIN

In the curtain raiser, the Little Shamrocks were slow getting started and after trailing 8 to 5 at the end of the first quarter, took the bit in their teeth, and really ran away with the game. At the half they led 18 to 12. By the end of the third quarter, the margin had grown to 36 to 21. In the last quarter they scored 23 points to Britt's 6, and wound up on the top end of a 59 to 27 score.

Tommy Waddingham led the scoring for the Little Shamrocks, by counting 14 points, while Jacobs had 13. and Haefner, 12. Waller, of Britt, was high for the game, though. as he accounted for 16 of his team's 21 points

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

The door closed and it was an end and a beginning, though she would not know it for some hours yet.

As she took the breakfast dishes from her husband's place at the table, she heard the muffled sound of the car starting in the garage. She did not pause by the kitchen window to see him drive away, there was too much to be done.

It was a Monday morning like almost any other Monday morning in the ten years she had been married. There was a washing to do, lunch to prepare for the youngsters as they came storming in from school, and the hundred other things that would absorb the morning.

For some reason, while sorting the clothes for the wash, she took a critical look at his shirts and decided that two of them would do better as dust rags from now on and tossed them aside.

That led her into his closet where she spent some time sorting through his clothes, putting some aside for cleaning, picking out a few items that would have to be disposed of.

After that, the rest of the morning was lost in odd tasks, the explosion of lunch with the children and dishes again.

That was really as much as she could recall of her morning when she tried to remember it later, step by step. She wanted thing, significant that might have told her she was alone, that the door had closed that morning on everything.

But there was nothing, no warning, until the moment early in the afternoon when she glanced out the front window and saw her minister and a highway patrolman walking up the steps of the porch.

A door closes and the life of a family is ended - such is the suddenness, the commonness of traffic death in our time.

Value of Iowa Farm Land Set at $5 Billion

Iowa's farm land value in 1952 increased by almost two million dollars to an estimated $5,610 billion, the Iowa development commission reports.

The commission based its report on a survey issued by the federal agriculture department's bureau of agricultural economics which noted a six percent increase in Hawkeye farm-land dollar value.

In 1951 Iowa's farm-land value was estimated at $3,611 billion, or an average of $27,560 per farm.

The report puts the value of an acre of Iowa's farm soil at an average of $201.

Iowa contains 25 percent of all the grade "A" land in the nation. Also, the commission points out, 70 percent of all the farm land in Iowa is grade "A".

Pays to Clean, Treat Small Grain Seed

The few cents a bushel it costs to get small grain seed thoroughly cleaned and treated with protective chemicals is one of a farmer's soundest investments, believes Arden Sherf, Iowa State College extension plant pathologist.

Cleaning removes weed seeds, along with chaff, foreign matter and seeds of other crops. Weed seeds planted as impurities in crop seed help complicate weed control on the farm. Routine checks show, according to Sherf, that most uncleaned seed contains weed seed in varying amounts.

Seed treatment pays in better stands and more vigorous plants which make better yields, according to tests in Iowa and neighboring states. Iowa tests which have been underway for 13 years, seed treatment of oats has resulted in 3 bushels more oats per acre, Sherf reports.

The cleaning and treating job can be done succcessfully on the farm, or a good job will be done at nominal prices by any of the 300 custom operators now in business in Iowa.

Recommended treatment for oats, wheat or barley is Ceresan at ½ ounce per bushel. The treatment may be made any time now up to 24 hours before the seed is planted.

Get no more seed treated than you will need, Sherf advises. Treated seed is not safe for livestock in any proportion with untreated grain. Hold leftover seed for planting another year or plant it in the chicken yard for early greens. But don't feed it.

Your hat is too old to wear when a feller refuses to take it from a crowded rack.

Maybe two CAN live as cheaply as one - but not as quietly.

FIRE

When Bob Jackson's Pontiac caught fire at Bedford, Cliff Hanshaw hooked on with a tow-truck and took the blazing auto to the fire station. Firemen put it out promptly.

LAND MARK

Fire destroyed a 75-year old landmark near Exira recently. The old Bintner school, which had been in use for three-quarters of a century, burned to the ground.

EDITORIAL

Most of the articles at this time of the year are written about Lincoln's birthday, but we are going to be different and write about St. Valentine's Day.

Saint Valentine, the name given to several saints and martyrs of the Christian Church, of whom the most celebrated are two martyrs whose festivals fall on February 14. One was a priest at Rome and the other a bishop in Umbria. They both lived in the third century and died on the same day. The traditional anniversary of their death has become known as Saint Valentine's Day, and has long been observed as a lovers' festival. This has no connection with the saints, but the a sociation of the lovers' festival with Saint Valentine seems to have arisen from the fact that the feast of the two saints falls toward spring, and is purely accidental.

Considering the fact that few people know the origin of St. Valentine's Day, we thought the above paragraph would be interesting.

JUNIOR

Drivers Training

We are studying from our Good Sportsmanlike Driving book and we hope to get into the car soon.

Economics

We have been studying the importance of the budget and how to make out a budget. When we start our homes we will be regular little economy bugs.

Literature

We have advanced from poetry to short stories. Just so we remember our short stories as we go along and we don't forget our poems, we'll really be lucky.

Typing

You'll usually hear these sayings if you come into Lit, which is right after typing: "Did you go in the hole today?" or "Is he still taking off 10 for every error made?" What a time we do have.

Business Law

We are studying Bankruptcy and Discharge of Contracts.

Shorthand

We had a test over the brief forms the other day and of course no one got a perfect paper and since we have to do them until we get 100 per cent, it looks like everyone will be doing them over again.

SENIOR

We are writing essays for literature; they may be biographical, critical, editorial, reflective or informative essays.

"The Tragic Era of Reconstruction" is the chapter we are now studying in history.

In business law we are studying the chapter about bankruptcy.

We are concerned with the musical sounds, pitch, the siren, the ear, the doppler effect, and other topics in physics.

We are studying the various phases of driving a car in our "Sportsmanlike Driving" books.

SEVENTH GRADE

The biggest mystery in our room is how many bricks are in the sidewalk!

In science we planted corn and soy beans in order to study cotyledons. Most of us are proud of our grades on the test over the parts of a flower and the classification of animals.

Compasses and protractors have been very much in evidence around our room. We learned how to measure angles and how to construct triangles according to specifications.

We enjoyed a movie in color—Coffee, the Pride of Columbia. It showed how coffee is grown and processed.

FIFTH GRADE

Last Friday we had our Valentine party. Our Valentine box resembled a present with a large bow on top. Everyone received many valentines. We closed our party with games and treats.

We are finishing the unit on the Southeastern States in geography. We made maps of the important cities and industries. We finished the unit with a test.

In reading class we are enjoying stories about other countries. We have read about Norway and one of the countries of Africa.

Recipe for Happiness

To be thankful for the morning sunrise for the fresh air of heaven, for nature and it's object lessons of God's handiwork, for the laughter of little children, for the day's work and strength to do it; and to fill each today with unselfish service for God and fellowmen—this is the road to real happiness

GIRLS BASKETBALL

As you all know the girls have just recently played their last game of ball for the year of 1953 with Hayfield last Friday night and came out with a defeat of 13 points.

As for this year, we have had seven wins and eleven loses. This is better than last year, which was four wins and nine loses.

We won consolation in the Girl's Tournament at Hayfield, and we received a nice trophy. We lost our first game in the Sectional tournament in a very close game with Joice.

Our letter winners for this year are:

You can see by this, that next year we will have five letter winners back to start the season with and also a few promising freshman. We hope to raise the record of wins and lower the record of loses in the coming years.

The last and probably the most exciting thing left in the season for the girls, is the trip to Des Moines for the State Tournament. This will be the 26 - 28 of February. There wil be eight girls, the coach and his wife, two cheer leaders, and the manager going.

This is the conclusion of the 1953 girl's basketball season, but don't forget to come out and cheer for us in the coming years We hope to do better as we go along.

Five Buses Haul 173 Students

Anywhere between 7:30 and 7:50 you can see five Klemme school buses leaving town on their morning routes to provide transportation for 173 elementary and high school students.

Driving these buses you will find Calvin Josten, Merlin Brinkman, Graydon Back, Wilbur Haefner and Kenny Kluckhohn.

The distance of these five routes are as follows: one route 19 miles, one route 26 miles, and the remaining three routes 20 miles each.

Two of these buses are Fords, one being a 1946 model and the other a 1950. The other three buses are Chevrolets, their makes being 1949, 1951, and 1952. Two of these are 48 passengers and the other three have a seating capacity of 42 persons.

Perhaps you have wondered about the cost of operating such an extensive means of transportation. The cost per sudent last year amounted to $50.89. The entire cost last year totaled $8,736.21. The state aid received was $4,191.57. The balance then is $4,544.64 which is paid by the township.

SIXTH GRADE

The regular monthly meeting of our room club, the Cubs, was held last week. New officers were elected and committees were appointed for our valentine party.

Our basketball games with the seventh grade were exciting. The sixth grade girls won their games with both the seventh and eighth grades. The sixth grade boys lost to the seventh grade. Mr. Juhl was referee.

We are looking forward to our valentine party tomorrow. The box committee has made a very nice valentine box, and the entertainment committee is planning games for the party.

In connection with our study of feudalism in medieval Europe we have made interesting silhouettes of castles. We are planning to illuminate our initials in the way the ancient monks illuminated their writings.

Meat Producton in Iowa Climbing

Iowa's meat animal raisers in 1952 stocked the nation's meat larder with 21 percent more beef, three percent more veal, one percent more pork and 37 percent more lamb than the total amount that came from the Hawkeye state in 1951.

Cattle slaughtered in Iowa during 1952 totaled 1,376,000 head or 237,000 more head than in 1951, the Iowa development commission reports

Iowa's total for 1952 placed the state third in the nation as a beef producer.

The Hawkeye state produced 1,388,579,000 pounds of beef. California led the nation with 1,817,021,000 pounds and Illinois slipped in second with 1,632,791,000 pounds, according to the Iowa crop and livestock reporting service.

December was the heavy month for marketing Iowa beef with 130,000 head. In 1951, January was the top month with 117,000 marketed.

Iowa again led the nation in 1952 for pork production, both in number and in slaughtered. The Hawkeye state's 12,057,000 hogs, almost a million more than in 1951, topped the nation's second best pork producer, Illinios, by almost five million head.

Based on total liveweight, Iowa was the leading hog slaughtering state in 1952, representing nearly 17 percent of the national total.

Longest Distance From Railroad 13 Miles

When the Iron Horses came chugging through Iowa on their way west, the state commerce commission believes they must have been hungry for Iowa corn.

From all four directions, the Iron Horses touched every point in the state not more than 12 miles apart.

The longest distance in the state to a railroad line is 13.6 miles. This spot is in eastern Iowa's Jackson county at a location south of a point midway between Bernard and Zwingle.

The Iowa development commission says this point, the longest distance in the state from rail trackage, has been verified by a survey made by state officials.

Iowa has a network of railroads covering 8,584 miles, placing the state fourth in the nation for railroad mileage.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Turkey prices will likely be lower in 1952, according to Gordon Bivens, extension farm economist at Iowa State College.

Eight percent fewer turkeys will be raised in the United States this year than a year ago. But total pounds of turkey won't be down that much since the biggest cut will be in the light breeds. Beltville whites will be cut by about 23 percent. Heavy breeds will be down only 3 percent. So production in pounds probably will be about 5 or 6 percent below a year ago.

Reasons for the cut include unfavorable turkey prices compared to feed prices in 1952 and record cold storage holdings—including 48 million pounds in government hands.

Iowa growers indicate they'll grow about the same number of turkeys as last year. This will be 30 percent above the 1947-51 average.

No support program for turkeys seems likely in 1953. Last year, government purses amounted to 6 percent of the year's production. With 5 or 6 percent less turkey meat, prices might be expected to be about the same as in 1952 in the absence of a government program. But more competition from broilers is coming. And more beef will compete for Mrs. Housewife's food dollar, too. So, turkey prices for 1953 as a whole probably will be somewhat lower than a year earlier.

You can't live on 'love nowadays without refinancing.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Twentieth Installment

THE GRAIN ELEVATORS

In the beginning there were two small warehouses built next to the railroad side track. Henry Lau operated on the north side of main street on the lumber yard site, and Erickson and Jackson on the south side on the elevator site.

About two years later Henry Lau moved up town and built his store selling farm machinery and windmills and buying chickens, etc. Erickson and Jackson sold out to Walter R. Bloom for $200.00.

Walter R. Bloom moved the little warehouse and built a a large new elevator, which still stands. He used two blind horses for power to run the cup-belts which elevated the grain to the bins overhead.

Bloom also built a residence, the Fred Bell home, together with a barn in the rear for his horses and cow. He kept a pair of greyhounds for pets. These fast dogs would run along when the boss drove out in the country with his fast stepping team of horses. For their meals, these dogs would run out to the slaughter house every day and pick up scraps of meat. This got to be too much bother for the dogs, so they got to stealing packages of meat and groceries from the wagons and buggies of the towns customers and Bloom had to dispose of them. Bloom kept a flock of Plymouth Rock hens at the elevator. They roosted under the driveway, laid eggs, and grew fat from the spilled grain.

In 1895, there was a tremendous oats crop of extra good weight and quality, and for several years after there seemed to be too much oats. Bloom, of course, filled his elevator to the roof, and then to help relieve the situation he built a dozen or more wooden bins, as he needed them, each size 14 x 16 and 8 and 10 feet high. The lumber used was 1 x 12 stock boards, in the rough. Floor, sides and roof all of the same lumber He filled these bins, with oats. His arrangement with the farmer was this. He advanced them eight cents per bushel and after the oats were sold he would divide the profit with them. After holding the oats for three or more years it sold for around $.25 per bushel. The bins were taken down, the boards piled up in neat piles, and sold as used lumber the balance was divided up which made some extra profit for all concerned.

Bloom sold to M. O. Hocum who continued for about ten years and then sold to the Klemme Cooperative Grain Company.

The North Elevator was built in the first building boom of our town by Finch and Hayward, and was operated by John Gruetzmacher and Henry Terhufen. They operated for about five years and sold out

August C. Lau bought the place and operated for thirty years. He was a hard worker and put in long hours. He handled grain, coal and livestock, and was considered stiff competion for other buyers near and far. The business prospered

Later, his son, Walter Lau, operated the place for a few years.

On January 1st. 1926, The Federal North Iowa Grain Company bought the place. Henry Jost was their efficient manager for many years, and when he retired Carl Finders became manager.

In 1926, they built a warehouse for storing feeds, size 20 x 50, and in 1935 they built a complete their storage capacity to 60,000 bushel.

The Federal North Iowa Grain Company liked Klemme, and had many friends, but they were never quite satisfied with the net returns on their investment, so when the Klemme Cooperative Grain Company offered them $20,00 for their property, they sold to them. This was in 1948.

The Klemme Cooperative Grain Company was organized in 1920, some over thirty years ago. The members on the first board of directors were: Hermen Stille, John C. Larson, Herman Stromer, E. J. Arnold, Clarence Arnold, Valentine Josten and George Albers.

Their first move was to buy out M. O. Hocum's elevator May 1st, 1921, and twenty-seven years later they bought out the north elevator, as stated above.

As I remember it, the following men served as manager: Herman Stille, Allie White, Lew Gimer, C. C. Kilgore, Glen Bridges and Marvin Lemke.

In 1951, the Klemme Cooperative Grain Company completed the construction of a large new feed mill with storage bins overhead and a large ware house in connection at a cost of $117,000.

The Ibberson Construction Company of Minneapolis, did the job. They started in the late fall of 1950 and worked right thru the winter and the job was complete in the early spring of 1951. In February 1951, there was an accident on this job, when two men fell thirty feet from a swinging scaffold onto the frozen ground. The first man was Noel Zunkey. He was killed outright. The other man to fall was badly hurt and was hospitalized for several months.

Since the mill was completed many other improvements and changes were made, and their set up and equipment at the present time is as good as the best in all north Iowa.

They have 426 members, and the total business for 1952 was $906,000.00. That's getting close to one million dollars. For more details regarding this mill, please refer to the Klemme Times of June 27th, 1951, which was a special edition telling all about their grand opening.

The employees at present are: Marvin G. Lemke, manager; Walter H. Lemke, assistant manager; Elmer Wessels, elevator superintendent; Alvin Thiemann mill foreman; Don Peterson, junior miller; Robert Streyle and Elmer Bachman, truckers.

The officers at present are: E. J. Arnold, president; Emil W. Lau, vice president; Raymond Barz, secretary; Verner Priebe, Les Hartbeck, Clarence Lenz and Dwight Helps, directors.

G. W. Kluckhohns Sons Company

John Waterman built this double front brick building in 1914, and for five years operated the same as a general store sell-hardware.

In 1919, the Kluckhohns purchased the building and the business. They added a line of shoes and discontinued the hardware line.

The proprietors are Frank, Clarence and Fred Kluckhohn. They are pleasant men to deal with and the store enjoys a good trade. They have been operating for 34 years.

Matt Smith

Along about 1932, Matt Smith started a rather unique business. He had a grocery store on wheels. With his large "Store Truck", he covered different farm routes, bringing his store to the farmers door. He supplied them with groceries and picked up their produce. He continued this for about a dozen years, when ill health forced him to retire.

Drug Store

The Drug Store has been in the same building and on the the same corner since the town started, but we have had several druggists.

J. L. Harr built the building, complete with sales room in the front end and a nice sunny living apartment in the rear. He stayed 18 years He was a good man in his line. George Pabst was the next owner. It was legal to sell liquor at that time and all the druggist sold a lot of it. George Pabst stayed six years.

Our next druggist was E. S. Kahrs. He was well liked and operated a nice clean place for five years, After which the place was vacant for two years. Then Glen Seney tried it for one year.

In 1926, Mr. and Mrs. "Pete" Wilson bought the place and stayed about twenty-one years. R. A. Jorgenson, Jr. then operated for about two years and changed the name to "The Corner Store"

The present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Terhufen, purchased the place about four years ago and with their two teen age sons are doing a good job of running the place.

COMMERCIAL

In about 1873, William Yoter opened up a cabinet shop in Garner. When you wanted a dining table, chest of drawers, a rocker, a cradle etc., you went to him and he would make the furniture to your order, right there in his shop.

In the event of a death in the community, he would take meaurements and build a wooden coffin in his shop He often worked nights to get this work out on time.

The neighbors dressed the body and placed it in the coffin and the pastor was the Funeral Director.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowa Reads the Papers

Jim Enrod, our local editor, is a great booster for Iowa's newspapers.

"Our newspapers have other states licked better than 2 to 1," Ed bragged last week.

"Our weeklies and dailies average one copy for each 3.33 citizens—other states one for each 6.83."

Well, that's something to be proud of. Another reason why this is such a grand state to live in.

Because, local newspapers bring people closer together. And the better we know each other and appreciate the other fellow's point of view, the more likely he is to appreciate ours.

Joe, the elevator man, votes Republican. Ed, at the filling station, votes Democratic. Joe thinks grain, feeds, while Ed thinks gas, oil. Joe likes his coffee, Ed his temperate glass of beer. Each recognizes the other's right of preference, and that's the way it should be.

So I say, hats off to Iowa's newspapers . . . and anything that brings us closer together in mutual understanding and tolerance.

Treat your Seed with "CERESAN"

Even the best seed can rot in the ground if it's not protected. That's why we recommend that you plant seed oats treated with Du Pont "Ceresan" Seed Disinfectant and Protectant. Here's how it protects your seed:

- CHECKS SEED-BORNE HELMINTHOSPORIUM blight, smut, seed decay and other diseases common in oats.
- OFFSETS BAD WEATHER—Helps step up germination, even when growing conditions are worst.

This effective protection helps you get the good stands of oats that result in higher yields of clean grain. Equally effective on wheat, barley, rye, millets and flax.

Question Excessive Price For No. 0-205 Oats

Hancock County farmers should think twice before paying an excessive premium for Mo. 0-205 seed oats, says Paul Henderson, Hancock County extension director.

This oats variety was released in Missouri and has yielded well in Iowa State College variety tests. But, according to information Henderson has received from the Iowa Crop Improvement Association, there is a supply of this seed in other states and the high premium asked in some cases may not be justified.

Mo. 0-205 compares with Reselect Clinton in maturity, but is slightly taller than Clinton and has a dark green color. While M. 0-205 has outyielded Clinton, it has fine straw and lodges on some soils. It is susceptible to Septoria blight than Clinton.

The report from H. C. Murphy, who conducts oats variety investigations in Iowa, is that M.-0-205 is a good variety that may find its best adaptation in the southern half of Iowa. He, too, cautions that the seed should not comand too much of a premium over Clinton.

Hancock County farmers can get names of growers of M. 0-205 and Reselect Clinton, as well as other varieties, from the certified seed directory of the Iowa Crop Improvement Association. This directory is available at the county extension director's office in Garner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bredlow were Sunday afternoon callers at the Elmer Beier home.

Mr. and Mrs. Tice are the parents of two sons; Dr. Arnold Tice of Waterloo and Dr. George Tice of Mason City.

Those attending from his vicinity were; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Arnold and Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Arnold, Bill Arlys and Don; Mrs. Emilie Arnold; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Arnold and Bobby; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Arnold, Clarice Ann, Marilyn and Rosalyn; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Larsen; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Greimann; Evelyn Arnold of Humboldt, and Bruce Arnold of Rock Island, Illinois.

The honorees were presented with two lovely floor lamps and several other smaller gifts.

Cub Scouts Held Blue and Gold Banquet Monday Evening

The Klemme Cub Scouts had their Blue and Gold Banquet, Monday evening at the Grade School basement with 90 people present.

The evening opened with Rev. Egeland giving the invocation, and then scouts and all settled down to eat the pot-luck meal that had been provided by the adults present. After the dinner, Allen Barz directed the group in community singing, and Rev. Jaberg, Pack Leader, gave a welcoming speech and a few remarks on the events of the rest of the evening. Eldon Hagen, president of the Adult Bible Class of the Reformed Church, sponsoring unit of Pack 56, commended the scouts on the work they had been doing and pledged the continued support of the Adult Bible Class. Mrs. Nova Stokesbary, one of the Den Mothers, gave a resume of the year's activities, and then Jim Gilruth, Secretary of the Clear Lake Chamber of Commerce, addressed the group on behalf of the Winnebago Council, Boy Scouts of America.

In a ceremony by candle light, Rev. Jaberg presented awards for achievements to a number of the Cubs.

Much of the credit for the livewire Cub Pack here in Klemme must go to the Den Mothers. They are Mrs. Nova Stokebary, Mrs. Harold Kothenbeutal, and Mrs. John Clements.

Get Foxes With Plane

In 10 days time, Arnold Anderson and Frank Leuck, assisted by other Shelby county hunters, bagged 44 foxes and five wolves. An airplane was used for spotting.

Blinding Storm Hit North Iowa, Friday

The storm that hit here last Friday night was a "whooperdo". This section of the state got in on only the lower edge of it, but that was enough.

Out in the northwest portion of the state there was five inches of snow which was whipped into huge drifts, but here, we had only about a half an inch. That half an inch really got around though. Winds of gale-like proportions whipped it into the air and made driving extremely hazardous.

The roads weren't slippery, but there was so much snow that drivers just couldn't see. Many of them drove right off the road and into the ditch, then spent the night at the nearest shelter. Some fifteen travelers spent the night at the Alex Zeiger farm, three and a half miles south of town.

We had occasion to drive to Belmond Saturday morning, and saw about a dozen cars and trucks that had been abandoned during the night's storm.

Independent Team Will Play Here Friday Night

An independent basketball team has been formed here this winter, and the boys have been doing alright for themselves. They beat Clear Lake 71 to 37, Garner beat them 75 to 63, they beat Hayfield, 71 to 54, Crystal Lake 65 to 56 and Hayfield 75 to 27.

They will play Hayfield on the local floor Friday night at 8 o'clock, and would like to have a good crowd on hand. No admission will be charged, but they will pass the hat.

Men who have been playing on the team are Merlin Brinkman, Marvin Schmidt, Allan Barz, Luverne Schmidt, Lyle Goll, Norene Pearson, Robert Juhl, Vern Greimann, Francis Johnson, and Calvin Josten.

Legion Sponsored Donor Pool in Need of Members

According to Dr. A. H. Dulmes, the Legion sponsored blood donor pool has been growing, but more members are needed to make readily available blood of any type for any emergency that might arise.

This movement was started last October by the local Legion Post, and although it has been rather slow in gathering momentum, still enough people have shown interest to make the project worthwhile.

This blood donor pool is good for one and all. Even those who register and get their blood typed may be benefited.

Dr. Dulmes is donating his services to help keep this project rolling, and if you are interested stop at his office and he will be glad to give you particulars.

Radio and TV Shows to Boost Red Cross

Sunday, March 1st, is the opening day of the Red Cross fund raising campaign, and on that day many radio and TV shows will be dedicated to the Red Cross. In addition there will be both radio and TV "Kick-off" shows. The radio show will be based on the reports of Miss Barbara Hussey, one of the first three Red Cross workers to enter Korea after the outbreak of hostilities. NBC and Mutual will carry this show at 8:00 P. M. CST, and CBS at 10:30 P. M. CST.

The TV show will be a half-hour variety show and will feature Tallulah Bankhead, Bert Lahr, Ezio Pinza, Ed Sullivan and other stars. It will be on sometime between the hours of 5:00 P. M. and midnight CST. Exact time will be announced.

Raymond A. Jorgenson, Sr., 57, who for thirty-five years was Editor and Publisher of The Times, died at his home in Garner, early Friday morning, February 20, victim of a heart ailment.

Mr. Jorgenson suffered a heart attack the last part of October, and never fully recovered from it, before another and fatal attack took him. He was hospitalized for five weeks after the first attack, but since Thanksgiving, had been at his home in Garner, and was apparently on the road to recovery, when he suffered the second attack.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, February 23, from the Methodist Church in Klemme, with Rev. E. Morris Egeland in charge, assisted by Rev. Vernon E Jaberg.

Interment was on the family lot in Concord Cemetery at Garner, and those who carried him to his final resting place were C. G. Waterman, Fred J. Arnold, A. J. Kudje, George Lawhorn, Dorance Day, and M. L. Harson.

Klemme Has New Veterinarian

Dr. J. D. Baker Has Taken Over Practice of Dr. D. P. Anderson

Dr. John D. Baker, formerly of Dumont, has taken over the practice and the office of Dr. D. P. Anderson, and is now engaged in the practice of veterinary medicine here in Klemme.

Dr Baker is a graduate of the Belmond High School and Iowa State College, Division of Veterinary Medicine. He graduated from Iowa State with the class of 1952.

Between his junior and senior years in college, Dr. Baker worked as assistant to Dr. W. B. Waters at Dumont, in order to gain practical experience. He has been associated with Dr. Waters since graduation in June until the present time.

He is a war veteran and has two years of navy service to his credit.

Last Friday, he moved his family to Klemme, and they are at present living in the apartment in the Wiles Building. The Bakers have three children: Barry, 4, Janice, 18 months, and John 5 months.

Edward Barz Home From Korean War

Edward Barz was recently discharged from the army after having served in the Korean War, and returned to Klemme last Wednesday. Ed has been in the service for the past two years, and says it is good to be home.

Sunday, his mother had a birthday dinner for him and invited Mr. and Mrs. Milvern Barz and David, and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Josten and Donna Lou, to help him celebrate.

Shamrocks Shock Experts; Win Sectional Crown

Take Wesley, Goodell and Kanawha to Win Chance at District

The Klemme Shamrocks shocked the experts last Saturday night at Garner, when they defeated Kanawha, 63 to 40, to win the sectional tournament and earn a chance to play in the district tournament at Mason City, next week.

Dopesters had picked either Kanawha or Alexander to win the Garner sectional, but the Shamrocks apparently hadn't heard what the dopesters were saying. They downed Wesley in the first round, 67 to 53, Goodell in the second round, 61 to 41, and then in the final round, went to work to even things up for the two defeats they had suffered at the hands of the Kanawha Bulldogs during the season. They didn't look too good in their wins against Wesley and Goodell, but in the Kanawha game, they hit their stride.

FIRST ROUND

The Shamrocks led all the way in their first-round game with Wesley, although they had rather a rough time in the early part of the fourth quarter. They had a spell of give-away, and handed Wesley three or four baskets right in a row. They came out of it, though, and went on to win.

Stille led the scoring for Klemme with 24 points and Karsjens had 17. Forburger was high for Wesley, with 20 points.

SECOND ROUND

Off to a slow start, the Shamrocks trailed Goodell at halftime by a score of 21 to 19. However, by the end of the third period, they had made 20 points to Goodell's 10, and led 39 to 31. In the final period, they outscored their opponents 22 to 10, and won by a score of 61 to 41.

Karsjens scored 18 and Terhufen 14 in leading the attack for the Shamrocks, and Beek was high for Goodell, with 15.

FINAL

In the final game with Kanawha, Klemme again was slow in starting, and trailed 16 to 10 at the end of the first quarter. By the half they had forged into the lead and held a slender 2-point margin, 25 to 23. From there on they rolled. By the end of the third period they led 39 to 28, and in the final quarter they went on to pile up their 63 to 40 win.

After two defeats during the season at the hands of Kanawha, this victory was especially sweet to the Shamrocks.

Terhufen, Stille and Thiemann all scored well for the Shamrocks, with 19, 17, and 13 points, respectively. Jack Mewes led Kanawha with 14 points.

DISTRICT NEXT

The Shamrocks go into district play next Tuesday night at seven o'clock at Mason City when they meet McIntyre in a first-round game. We hear that McIntyre sports a pretty fair record, but we don't know what sort of opposition they have had. If the Klemme team gets by them, they will meet the winner of the Rake-Fertile game, for the district crown, at seven o'clock Thursday night.

Scheduled for the second game Tuesday night are Holy Family and Forest City in Class A. That one should be worth seeing, too.

Farewell

Last fall an era ended in Klemme.

R. A. Jorgenson, Sr., had been Editor and Publisher of The Times for thirty-five years, and had become as much a part of Klemme as Main Street. In October he leased The Times to us and moved to Garner where he took over the management of the North Iowa Printing Company.

Thirty-five years is a long time, and during that time Ray did a lot, through the columns of The Times and by being an active member in civic groups, to improve things in Klemme. When anything came up that he thought was for the betterment of the town or the surrounding territory, he was there to help push it. He left us in a position of having quite a little to live up to.

During those thirty-five years Ray was responsible for several young fellows getting started in the printing trade, us included, and a more patient teacher would have been hard to find. He wanted things done well, but he never flew off the handle at any of his "Devils". He had a way of getting you to do things his way without being rough.

Some of the men that Ray started in the printing and publishing field are: Clarence Elder, Extension Editor at Iowa State College; Otho Keraus, shop foreman of The Mitchell County Press and Osage News; Wm. Montgomery, who at present works for the North Iowa Printing Company as an all-round printer; Elwood Geary, Editor and Publisher of The Corwith Herald; and Ye Ed.

Two weeks after Ray leased The Times to us, he suffered a heart attack, from which he never fully recovered, and when he died, last week, we lost a good friend, and the world lost a good printer.

Thirty-five years is a long time, and people who have been associated with Ray in the business world, and socially, and we who he taught, will long remember him.

10 YEARS AGO—

Monday, February 22nd was the 26th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perkins, as well as Washington's birthday.

A farewell party for the Walter Blumer and Albert Ausborn families was held Saturday evening at the Avery No. 3 school house. Both of these families are moving out of the school district.

Art Wellemeyer was going around in circles Monday. Besides being a legal holiday and George Washington's birthday, it was also Art's birthday, his thirty-seventh wedding anniversary and to make it more of a holiday, it was his daughter Ruth's wedding day, as she was married that evening. Art says "Praise the Lord and pass the Aspirin!"

Franklyn Buseman, serving with the armed forces overseas, wants to take this way of saying "Thank You" to the Auxiliary Ladies for the Christmas package they sent him some time ago. He says the package arrived in good condition.

Mrs. James G. Carlson and children, James and Candace, left this Wednesday noon for their home at Glen Flora, Wisconsin, after a visit at the parental Art Wellemeyer home. They were accompanied to Wisconsin by Mrs. Karis Kropp and small daughter who will visit with relatives.

20 YEARS AGO—

Carold Larson, of near Miller, spent the week end visiting at the Fred Kluckhohn home.

Meriam, seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Hueneman, broke her collar bone while at play on the school ground last Friday.

Mr.. and Mrs. Emil Kraus. and Arlene where Garner visitors on Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grell.

Mr and Mrs. George Christie and children and Cliff Estel of Goodell were visitors at the Harlow Helps home Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rosendahl invited many of their friends to a dance which was held at their home Monday evening. All enjoyed a good time and dainty refreshments were served.

30 YEARS AGO—

An exceptionally large antenna makes it more difficult to tune a radio sharply, and for this reason it is advised that a very short, single-wire antenna (approximately 90 feet long, measuring from the aparattus to the far end) be used. This single-wire antenna should be stretched away from all metallic objects, and run straight and clear of all obstructions.

Kenneth Kluckhohn was all swelled up last Saturday, for on that day he was eight years old. That was not all either. He had a big birthday party at which some twenty-six of his little friends were present. They had a big feed and lots of fun. Kenneth also received some fine presents, among which he proudly exhibited two jack knives.

Chevrolet Touring Car, $590.00 at Coobs and Buss Garage.

R. W. Elder returned Saturday from Ames, where he has been taking a short course in butter-making. Ralph reports a very fine meeting which was well attended by men from all over the States and some from Canada.

FINGERS

Young Jimmy Dinger of near Decorah has now been unconscious for over 100 days, following an auto accident on October 30. A fund drive sponsored by the Decorah newspapers has now passed the $4,000 mark. Jimmy's parents have sold farm machinery, cattle and corn to meet the expense involved in keeping Jimmy in the hospital.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

The boy behind the wheel didn't talk back, but made every effort to show the highway patrolman that he wasn't at all impressed. He casually lit a cigarette as the patrolan talked. The girl with him took the cue and actually yawned as the patrolman began to write the ticket.

The patrolman glanced at the girl and started to speak. He could tell her about the time he had picked up the head of a girl just about her age. He had found it in the middle of the highway near where a car had hit the back of a truck at high speed.

But he didn't tell her the story. She was young, probably not more than 16. She was simply not old enough to believe she could die in an automobile.

Checking the boy's drivers license, the patrolman found he was only 18—another one who didn't believe death could take him.

He was just about the age of a boy the patrolman remembered from a year before. He had stood by a car and looked in at that boy, to. But there was a difference.

That car had been a mass of junk speared on the iron railing of a bridge. That boy had been unconscious and the patrolman remembered how he had prayed the boy would stay that way, because the iron railing that pierced the car also pierced the boy's body.

The patrolman tore the summons ticket out of the book and handed it to the boy who stuffed it into a pocket and said "zat all?" The patrolman looked at the two youngsters who, a few minutes before, had been passing on a hill at night at 70 miles an hour. "That's all for now," he said.

Farewell Party Will Be for Schwichtenbergs

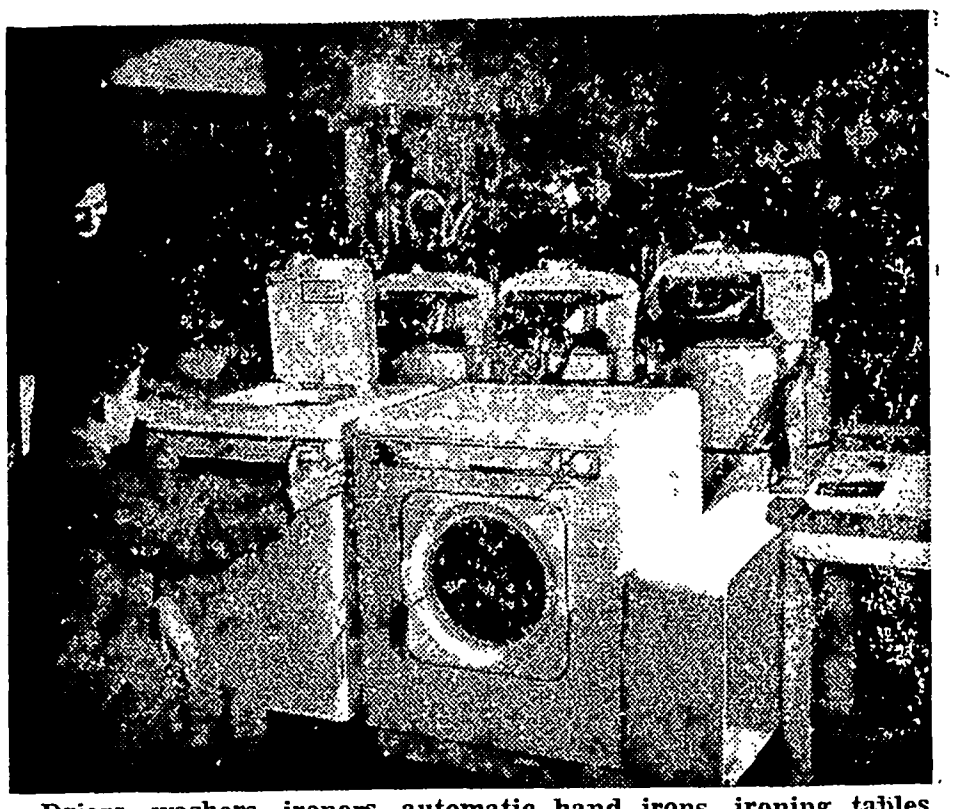
The March social meeting of the Fifty-Fifty Class of the Klemme Methodist Sunday School, to be held in the Church parlors on Friday evening, March 6th, will be in the form of a farewell party for the John Schwichtenbergs who will soon be moving south. The Class invites all members of the Church and friends of the Schwichtenbergs to share in the evening of fellowship and good wishes.

WATER

Clear Lake visitors next summer will find that water from the drinking fountain in the park will be refreshingly cool. A forty-ton ice chest, under the fountain, was filled recently with ice from the lake. It will last most of the summer.

Manufacturers Offer Wide Selection of—

Laundry Helpers for the Homemaker



Driers, washers, ironers, automatic hand irons, ironing tables and handy equipment on wheels—all these help the modern homemaker with the laundry. This year's selection of equipment is wider than ever.

Truly a miracle piece of equipment, the automatic drier has won first place for itself in the long line-up of efficient modern laundry helpers for American homemakers. A tremendous labor-saver, especially in the farm home, it keeps in tip-top working order and seldom requires servicing.

This year marks a return to a wider selection of all types of work saving laundry equipment, says Naomi Shanks, Iowa State College extension home management specialist. Manufacturers are bringing out few revolutionary new pieces of equipment. Instead they are concentrating on refining and improving present models and reestablishing others which were taken out of their lines following the Korean incident.

Some manufacturers of driers have incorporated means of trapping and eliminating lint. Several models can now be exhausted to the outdoors so that no hot, moist air is released in the house.

Perhaps the biggest step has been made by the manufacturers who offer driers for either 110-volt or 220-volt service. This means no special wiring is required for the 110-volt service drier, explains Miss Shank. However, it also means the drying job will take 1½ to 2 times longer.

IRONS, IRONERS

Ironers have been streamlined and modernized. There are double or single-end openings as well as flat plate models. All are now equipped with heat selectors for use on new type fibers and fabrics.

Some automatic hand irons have open-end handles or special "button slots" Cord minders that protect the cord and keep it out of the homemaker's way are gaining wider use, adds Miss Shank.

IRONING TABLE

"Ironing table" is the new term for the traditional ironing board. It's available in a range of adjustable heights from the 27-inch sit-down height to the 37-inch stand-up one. With this type of table that can be adjusted to any convenient work height in a jiffy, the children and even the menfolks can be encouraged to do a bit of light ironing now and then.

HOUSEHOLD CHAIR

Comfortable metal chairs with padded seat, adjustable back, and free-wheeling casters have made a place for themselves in the line-up of labor-saving equipment. With one of these convenient helpers you can sit down comfortably to the ironing, sewing, clothes sorting and many other household tasks. The free-wheeling casters mean you can roll in and out to your work easily as well as back and forth between other work surfaces.

The new rinse tubs on casters are easy to roll from storage. They come in a nice range of single and twin units, some with hose attachments, others with threaded faucet openings for a garden hose to be attached for drainage. These tubs are in the usual galvanized or enamel finish.

In water heaters, there's a return to a wider range of sizes in square and round type heaters to be installed close to where there's the greatest hot water demand.

Latest development in major laundry equipment is the combination washer and drier. It hasn't had a chance for consumer testing and acceptance as yet. It usually costs more than the two separate units and takes more space than a drier, says Miss Shanks.

EDITORIAL

February 22 marks the anniversary of George Washington's birthday. This day should mean more to us than just another holiday, it should remind us of the contributions Washington made to our country as the first president of the United States.

In his spare time, George Washington experimented with different ways of building up farm soils so it would produce better crops. By further experimenting, he made his plantation at Mount Vernon one of the best in the colonies. Although it is little known, he was a great hunter and raised superb horses and hounds with which he hunted almost every day during the hunting season.

Washington is well remembered for his Farewell Address although the country discarded it in later years. This speech stands with Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and his Second Inaugural Address, among the famous speeches of the country.

18 of 165 in Festival From Klemme Band

Students from each band in Hancock County were selected to make up a band of 165 pieces. Eighteen students were selected from the Klemme band. The band students arrived at the Memorial Building in Garner at 8:00 a. m. Immediately, we found our assiggned chair for the first practice session. When Carleton Stewart, the director, arrived at 8:30, practice was begun. This practice continued until 10:00 when we were given a thirty minute break.

This festival also included vocal selections by a combined mixed chorus consisting of students from all the schools in the county. This chorus practiced from 10:30 to 12:00.

We have a new romance in school again, Carol B. and Graydon B. Poor Cecil is just out of the race now. Oh well, Cecil, you'll live. It just takes a while to get adjusted to life again.

FLASH— latest report on school sweethearts: Elaine and Larry, Janet and Bill, Sharon and Bill, Kay and Ronnie, Tommy and Leola, Carol and Graydon, Joan and Terry, Roger and Marsha, Shirley and Noel, Faye and Donnie, and last but not least Mariam and Bobby.

Now we will have a report of the kids in school who go with kids who have already graduated or who live in a different town: Daisy and Clarence, Janice and Gene, Lois C. and Richard, Lois H. and Frances, Neva and Bill, Sharon and Dick, Dorothy and Paul (I think), Doug and Elaine and probably a few more I don't know about. Wouldn't it be nice girls, if all those boys came to Klemme School. There probably wouldn't be much studying done, right girls?

Delwyn Brede just explained to me that he was going to be a bachelor. Just wait till the right girl comes along, Delwyn, and then we will see what you have to say. Oh, by the way, I thought you sent Carolyn in Garner a real pretty Christmas card. You have a pretty good start, Delwyn, (for being a bachelor, that is)'

I guess Lois and Richard, Daisy and Clarence had quite a time last Sunday night with all that talk of hamburger and eating Daisy's fudge. But I guess you had fun anyway didn't you!

Why did Daisy and Lois look so happy Tuesday morning? It couldn't have been because Frances was home and Clarence took Daisy home from Duncan, could it? Anyway they were riding a cloud when I saw them.

I suppose Delwyn will just have to give up the idea of being a bachalor now that there is a new girl starting high school. I knew it would never work, cause I was going to be an old maid myself. (I might be yet if I keep it up), Good luck, Delwyn.

You'll never guess who Tommy W. is going with now, none other than Leola Lacy. Tommy and Leola sure do like to change boyfriends, but maybe this time its the real thing. I hope it is.

Governor Buys Easter Seals

Don C. Roe, Garner, Easter Seal Sponsor for Hancock county, announced today that Governor William S. Beardsley, following a recent visit to the headquarters of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Des Moines, issued a proclamation to the effect that the period beginning with March 5 through Easter Sunday shall be known as "Easter Seal Month".

Cars Damaged in Two Accidents

Last Sunday, Calvin Sandrey had the misfortune to overturn his car. He was on his way to a neighbors, and in some manner lost control of his car. He went off the road on one side, brought the car back out of the ditch and then flipped it over into the ditch on the other side of the road. Considerable damage resulted but Calvin was unhurt.

Monday afternoon, Glen Bridges was driving south on highway 69, just north of the Ben V. Greimann farm, when he met the Jorgenson funeral procession. He slowed down to about 20 miles an hour, and was rammed from the rear by a car driven by Roger Lyons. Walter Schubert, who was riding with Lyons received a cut just over an eye, that required three stitches, but otherwise, no one was hurt.

The Lyons car was severely damaged in the front end, and the Klemme Hardware pickup that Glen was driving, got a pretty severe jolt. Sheared the motor mounts, broke the water pumps, and pulled all the radiator hoses loose.

The state of California is ten miles longer than the state of Texas.

Missionary to Speak at M. E. Churches, Sunday

Miss Mabel Reid, a native of Traer, Iowa and long term missionary to Burma will be the guest speaker at the morning worship services in both the Klemme and Liberty Methodist Churches on Sunday morning. Born on a farm near Traer, Miss Reid graduated from the Traer High School and after teaching in rural schools for several years she enrolled at the Iowa State Teacher's College. She again taught school at Pomeroy, Tipton and Traer before going to Burma in 1924. She received her B. A. degree from ISTC on her first furlough to her home land at the close of the 1930-31 school year.

Serving in Burma until the Japanese invasion, Miss Reid was forced during the war years, 1942-1945 to transfer her services to India where she worked in the Mount Hermon School at Darjelling and the Girl's School, at Kolar in the Mysore States. She returned to Burma in December 1946 and was appointed to Kingswood School, at Kolaw, in the Southern Shan States. Here she was responsible for the rehabilitation of the buildings after military use and the enrollment of a new group of pupils.

Miss Reid returned to Iowa in June of last year and has spoken extensively in the interest of missionary work in Burma. Her appearance here next Sunday is a part of a current five months itinerary. She will be living permanently at Friendship Haven,, Methodist home for older folks at Fort Dodge, following the completion of her present speaking tour.

People of the community are urged to hear her interesting story on Sunday morning.

Junior High Gets 7th Win of the Season

Coach Juhl's 'Junior High "Rockets" Thursday afternoon, won their seventh game of the year. The score was 30 - 28 over Kanawha. This was the first defeat for the Kanawha team and also avenged an earlier defeat by them 33 - 8.

The ball game was a real thriller from the very beginning. The Klemme boys did a nice job of stalling. They stalled about three of the last four and one-half minutes.

Bob Larsen scored 13 points while playing one of his better games of the year. Keith Nuehring did an excellent job of guarding Kanawha's Lyle Thomson.

The halftime score was tied at 14 each and Klemme trailed 22 - 21 at the 3rd quarter.

Our last home game is against Garner, Monday, Feb. 23. On Monday, March 2, we travel to Garner for our final game. On March 11th, Klemme plays Britt, in the county tournament to be played at Hayfield.

Our record so far, is seven wins and four losses.

Electric Brooders Usually Save Pigs

Electrical pig brooding will usually save pigs, but brooders must be installed properly to be safe and efficient, says Ken McFate, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

For safe operation of penheight brooders, he recommends using a metal reflector with a porcelain, switchless receptable. Hang the lamps by chain, wire or brackets, and use heavy-duty appliance cord—not smaller than No. 18—and not longer than 8 feet.

Suspend the unit out of the sow's reach, never lower than 30 inches from the bedding.

Hover brooders need at least 12 inches between floor and hover top, reports McFate. Use a large, flat metal reflector and lamps that aren't more than 150 watts. Cover the hole in the brooder unit with a ¼ inch mesh metal hardware cloth.

Hardware cloth below bulbs keeps straw from being pushed against the bare bulbs. It also prevents pigs from poking their noses against the bulb—which might break the bulb and expose live wires.

The cost per pig is about the same with a corner brooder or a suspended heat lamp.

Poor wiring and improper fusing can cause fires in farrowing houses. Poor wiring can cut voltage, and this means less heat for the pigs.

The specialist suggests wiring with acid-resistant non-metal sheated cable with conductors of No. 12 wire or larger. When figuring circuits, add no more than 1500 watts per circuit. For example, use ten 15-watt hover brooder lamps or six 250-watt heat lamps. Then protect circuits of 1500 watts with fuses not greater than 15 amperes.

Check with your power supplier before installing heat lamps to see if your transformer can carry the added load.

Obituary of Raymond A. Jorgenson

(By Arthur Wellemeyer)

RAYMOND ARTHUR JORGENSON, Publisher of The Klemme Times for thirty-five years, died at his residence in Garner, early Friday morning, February 20, 1953.

He was born March 24, 1895, at Garner, Iowa, a son of Jens and Maria Rasmussen Jorgenson.

His childhood years were spent in Garner, and he graduated from the Garner High School with the class of 1915.

He began his newspaper career with the old Hancock County Democrat at Garner, and in 1917 became the Editor and Publisher of The Klemme Times.

At first, he continued to live at home, and would ride to Klemme each morning on his motor bike.

In 1919, Raymond A. Jorgenson and Mary Jane Davis, of Lincoln, Nebraska, were married. They moved into the living apartment over the basement print shop, and continued to live there for all of their stay in Klemme. Here, also, their son, Ray, Jr., was born and grew to manhood.

There was a certain thrift about Mr. Jorgenson. He was always making little improvements about the home, and was always adding new and better equipment to his print shop. His shop today is one of the best in North Iowa.

In the fall of 1952, Mr. Jorgenson leased The Klemme Times to Lyndon Kilgore, moved to Garner, and took over the active management of the North Iowa Printing Company, which he owned.

Raymond A. Jorgenson was a member of the Methodist Church, belonged to the Masonic and Eastern Star Lodges, was scout master for twelve years, and was a past president of the Hawkeye Press Club.

He was a good man in his town, a good man in the print shop, and a good man in the home. We will all miss him.

The story of his last illness is briefly told: He had the flu in September, which hung on and affected his heart. He spent five weeks in a hospital, came home and rested three months, and was pronounced well by his physicians. Then, suddenly, his heart failed.

He reached the age of 57 years, 10 months, and 20 days, and leaves of his immediate family, his wife, Mary Jane Jorgenson; his son, Raymond, Jr., Captain in the U. S. Airforce, Dayton, Ohio; his daughter-in-law, Juanita Vaughter Jorgenson, formerly of Amherst, Texas; three grandchildren, Judy, age 9, Ray III, age 5, Steve, age 1; and one brother, John Jorgenson, of Rapid City, South Dakota.

The meeting was closed by saying the 4-H pledge.

The February meeting of the Ell Tip Toppers was held at the home of Maurine Johnson on February 21, 1953.

The roll call was answered by telling, "A new unit I plan to add to my room".

LaVohn Josten was elected to take our club pictures for the year. $5 was given to help cover expenses and we are to pay 10c for each picture we want.

We decide to give $5.00 to the International Youth Exchange and $45.00 to the building fund.

Doreen Lackore will go to the music training school and Emily Goll is alternate.

Jane Renner has been sent a 4-H poster to put in a Klemme store window for 4-H week.

Parents of Mentally Handicapped to Meet

It is a tragedy when a child is born with the handicap of being mentally retarded or some illness leaves a child mentally deficient, but the greatest tragedy of all is the lack of sympathy and understanding which the public has given these children.

Until recently parents kept this tragedy locked in their hearts and homes, and from this practice developed many superstitions and misunderstandings. Now parents are finding that by uniting and working together to educate the public to an understanding of their mentally handicapped children and their problems, much can be accomplished to bring a happier way of life to themselves and their children. Parents and educators are finding that by providing these "trainable" children with opportunities to be trained at their pace of learning, much can be done to make them more acceptable in the home and community.

The basic objectives of Parents' Groups are to: 1-Learn to understand the mentally retarded child, 2-Learn to understand the problem of mental retardation, and 3-Assist in the promotion of adequate facilities for the training of the mentally retarded.

If you are the parent or relative of a mentally handicapped person you are invited to attend an organization meeting to be held at the Vocation Agriculture Building, Garner, Iowa, February 27, at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Victor Bunge, of Garner, serving as Iowa Membership Chairman of the National Association for Retarded Children, reports that four communities in the state have established local Parent Groups to affiliate with the National Association and others are working on the project.

Mr. Ray Graham, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction, Springfield, Illinois, has said, "I am convinced that every child has a soul, therefore, every child is entitled to be considered eligible for the best treatment that society can give him as a human being. It is not a problem of the slowness of the child's intellectual ability—but of the highness of man's ability to serve the child.

Creamery Reports Good Year at Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Klemme Cooperative Creamery was held Saturday afternoon at the grade school, with a good attendance. The annual report showed sales of $209,271.27, and payments to patrons, for butterfat, of $178,276.34. During the year they paid an average of 85.43c per pound for butterfat.

Three directors were elected at the meeting. They were Elmer Huenemann, Dale Schlei, and Melvin Buseman. Mr. Huenemann and Mr. Schlei are new directors while Mr. Buseman was re-elected. Eldridge Alden was elected to the post of director at at large, to take the place of Cecil Katter, who is moving out of the community.

High light of the afternoon was the showing of pictures and a talk on a South American trip, by Victor Meyer, of Ventura.

Door prizes were won by Laurice Lemke, Clifford Anderson, Wm. Sandrey, Eldridge Alden, and John Kaduce, Jr.

At the close of the meeting the wives of the directors served lunch.

Women are all alike. They just have different figures so you can tell them apart.

In arithmetic we have been making line and bar graphs. We have found these very interesting.

Barbara Thompson brought cactus candy, petrified wood, copper, and specimens of different minerals gotten from a ghost town. She brought tangerines and some other things also.

We saw the movie this week named "Treasure Island." We all enjoyed it very much.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Installment Twenty-one

The Fire of March 14, 1937

The John Day store in which the fire originated, was built in 1890, by Herman and William Stille. They put in a stock of general merchandise and operated for about five years and sold out to Henry, Chris and Mart Lau. The firm was known as Lau Brothers and the store sign read "The Bee Hive." They operated for about six years.

In 1902, Waterman and Behrens took over the business and the building. Later, John Waterman became the individual owner. He enlarged the store by adding an addition to the east. Mr. Waterman operated for eleven years, and it was a busy and popular store during his management.

In 1913, John Day bought the place and in 1936 after twenty-three years of business activity, closed out his stock of merchandise and rented the main sales room to Earl Stott. He put in a new, clean stock of groceries. Day was our postmaster at the time and reserved a part of tha building for the postoffice.

Then came the fire on a Saturday night, March 14, 1937. Shortly after the stores were closed for the day, about midnight, the fire alarm sounded, and citizens hurried to main street to see the John Day building in flames. Our fire company was on the job, and the Garner fire truck arrived to help, but the Day building and the Jacobs store burned to the ground. The Earl Stott grocery was a complete loss. The mail and considerable postoffice equipment was moved out. Mr. Jacobs phoned for trucks. and a half dozen truck men arrived and with the help of citizens, carried out much of the merchandise stock, laoded it helter-skelter, and then stored it for the night in the roomy driveways of the Northern Lumber Co.

In spite of the insurance carried, the inconvenience and interruption of business was quite a loss for the owners. For the town itself, it proved a blessing, as new brick buildings have gone up to replace them.

The Jacobs Hardware Store

This business originated in 1890 when Henry and Charles Gruetzmacher built a little frame store building, size 24 x 60. They handled groceries, hardware, farm machinery, and had a tin shop in connection. They lived over the store. Their wives were sisters, (Lydia and Lizzie Kaste).

Their day began at five a. m. Henry milked the cow, fed and harnessed the pony team, while Charles did the book work in the store every morning, before breakfast. Henry was a soft spoken and friendly man, clean and energetic in his selling. His main business was selling farm machinery. Kanawha and Hayfield did not appear on the map until several years later. Henry drove his pony team every day covering this large teritory, and sold machinery by the car-load.

I must digress just a little to tell one on Henry Lau, also an implement dealer. One year, 1912, when the times were good, and the prospects for an abundant crop of small grain seemed certain, Henry Lau took orders for thirty "Acme" self binders. These arrived and were set up in a long row on main street. Then one day in June, as per arrangement, these thirty farmers came to town to settle for their purchases. Mr. Lau took them all to dinner at the Kluckhohn restaurant. In the afternoon every farmer hitched his horses to a binder and started for home. A crowd of towns people cheered them as they left. It seems there was plenty of business for both of our implement dealers at that time.

After fifteen years of business activity, Henry and Charles Gruetzmacher sold out to their brothers, John and Charles. Henry moved to Waterloo and Charles headed for Minneapolis.

The new firm built a lean-to and doubled the size of the building. They also made room for the postoffice in their building and John Gruetzmacher was our postmaster for many years. The business continued to prosper especially in the hardware department.

In 1919, E F. Jacobs, in his early twenties, took over the business and the building. He discontinued the groceries and gave all his attention to the hardware lines. He was especially good at selling stoves and furnaces, often buying this merchandise in car-load lots. In fact, he sold a lot of everything and was stiff competition for neighboring towns. In 1928, he built a warehouse of hollow block on the rear of his lots, size 46 x 48.

And one night, March 14, 1937, fire destroyed the John Day store spread over and rapidly consumed the frame building of the Jacobs Hardware store and much of his stock of merchandise.

Jacobs did business for a time in his warehouse and proceeded at once to build a new brick store on the same site. This new building was 48 feet wide and 88 feet long, and with new shelving and new merchandise was one of the finest stores in north Iowa.

In November 1941, after four years in the new building, fire broke out about midnight and burned the new store to the ground.

Wartime restrictions did not permit Jacobs to rebuild his big store, but they allowed him to build a small store, size 24 x 40. This he did on an adjoining lot, and the following year he was permitted to extend the length of the little store to 80 feet. After 28 years of business activity, and because of failing health caused by a back injury, Ed Jacobs sold out and retired.

In October 1947, William Fuss and Harry Schuster took over the building and business. In February 1950, Mr. Schuster moved to Cedar Rapids where he is employed as an engineer in a radio factory.

Mr. Fuss remained in Klemme as the managing partner of the store. They call it "Klemme Hardware Company".

Melvin Neuberger, who was formerly with Jacobs, stayed on with the new firm. He has been chief clerk for twenty years or more, understands the business and is a nice man to deal with. Art Wille and Glen Bridges are the outside men for the firm. They install water systems, heating, plumbing, electric wiring, etc. in our community, and of course are always busy.

Perkins Gardens

About ten years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perkins started raising gladiolus as a hobby. This business has grown until it is almost a full time job.

In the summer they sell and deliver the beautiful cut flowers to all nearby greenhouses.

In the fall they dig up acres of bulbs, sort them as to size and store them, carefully labeled, in the basement of their home. In the spring they send out their catalogue and start shipping out by mail all over the state and sometimes to places as far away as the east coast.

Some folks in the east, with larges estates, don't bother to save their bulbs, but order a fresh supply every spring from the Perkins Gardens. A unique business, indeed.

OMELET

There was a highway omelet south of Harlan on Highway 59 recently. When a produce truck was upset in an automobile accident, 45 cases of eggs were strewn along the highway.

COMMERCIAL

Factory made coffins began to appear shortly after the town of Klemme was platted, 1889, when a little factory was started in Burlington, Iowa.

They made wooden coffins, wide at the shoulder, narrow at the foot end, they came to the dealer unlined and without handles or hardware. There was a sliding glass over the face, and a separate panel, called a "cap lift", which was removed from the head end so that folks could "view the remains".

They were made in four sizes, which were nested and shipped to the dealer, all four in one crate, one of each size.

They were not as good in quality as the coffins made by the cabinet maker, but they were cheaper and looked good. Each cabinet maker ordered a few of these factory made coffins and sold them to those who prefered the cheaper kind.

The dealer upholstered the coffin with a mattress and roll, lined it with crepe or satin, and put on the handles. Baby coffins sold for $10., childs $15., youths $20., and adults at $25.00.

There was no hearse or personal service provided by the dealer at that time.

BEQUEST

Honor students at Algona will be $50 richer this spring. The late Ole Madson left a bequest of $1,000 to be divided among the top 20 seniors in the graduating class. Mr. Madson had no children of his own.

Raymond Buenger, of near Aurelia, lost the tips of two fingers recently when he caught his hand in a portable farm elevator.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Farm real estate values apparently have passed their post-Korea peak. Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, reports. At least this is the indication of all current surveys.

The United States Department of Agriculture reports that it found no net change in average land values for the nation as a whole from last summer to winter.

And an Iowa State College survey of farm real estate dealers in this state indicated that land values in Iowa dropped slightly in 1952. That was the first drop in land values since 1933.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago made a survey of country bankers in the Midwest. The bankers reported that in most midwest communities, land values declined very slightly the last 3 months of 1952. The number of farms that changed hands is very low, however. This makes it difficult to really tell what is happening to the actual trend in land values in many areas.

People have become hesitant about buying farms with prices of most farm products still heading downward. Also, businessmen are showing less interest in buying farms as a hedge against inflation.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics is forecasting a downward trend in land prices for the coming months. It expects that this trend will be felt first in the poorer farms and on the pasture and range land, Kutish reveals.

Farm Exports Off

Foreign demand for United States farm products is declining. Part of this slump comes from more adequate supplies of food over the world. Part comes as a result of foreign retaliation from American trade restrictions against imports of certain foreign products into this country, according to Kutish.

In 1951, United States farmers exported 47 percent of their wheat 35 percent of their tallow, 51 percent of their cotton, 24 percent of their lard, 45 percent of their dried milk, and similarly important portions of many other products.

These figures indicate decisively that many producers of farm products, their creditors and service suppliers have a vital stake in the future foreign trade policies of the United States. Furthermore, a still larger group will feel similarly adverse effects if farmers now producing for export are forced to look for other sources of farm income, says Kutish.

DEER

Two male deer became hopelessly locked together when their antlers entangled during a fight, in Lyon county. When found, one of the deer was dead. Conservation officer, Richard Jacobson, with the help of others, put a rope on the live deer and sawed off an antler from the dead one, saving the survivor.

DIED

A 36-year old mule, quite an old-timer as mules go, gave his last kick on highway 146 near Grinnell recently. He was struck by an automobile, damaging it severely. Ed Breeden, owner of the mule, described its value as "sentimental only"

FIRST BOY

The first white boy to be born in Lyon county died last week at Des Moines. He was Walter Whitehead, who was born in Rock Rapids in 1861.

Roe Explains Use of Easter Seal Money

More than 600,000 Easter Seal letters have been mailed to the homes throughout all Iowa urging each family to generously contribute to the worthy cause of helping crippled children build happy and useful lives, Don C. Roe, Garner, Sponsor of the Easter Seal campaign for Hancock county, announced today.

"Of the total amount raised through the campaign efforts, 91.7 per cent will remain in Iowa to provide services to handicapped youngsters. The remaining 8.3 per cent will go to support the nation-wide three-point program of research, education and direct services".

Direct service to the crippled, and principally to children, is the most important phase of the work of the Easter Seal Society. Services given are of many kinds. They include purchase of braces, crutches, wheel chairs, walkers, etc., each fitted to the child's individual need as prescribed by his doctor. Other services include camping for crippled children, cerebral palsy services, loan equipment pool, and Craft and Hobby Sales for goods made by the adult, homebound handicapped.

Another important phase of the work of the Society is their scholarship program through which they are able to help qualified students become trained physical, occupational, and speech therapists, and special education teachers. In order to insure a continuing service for crippled children and adults, this phase of the program is vital.

Research completes the three-point program. The tasks of basic research have been started, but only started—the tasks of understanding the why of crippling diseases, the nature of deformity, have only begun. The Easter Seal Agency is most eager to prevent crippling conditions and thus reduce the numebr of crippled children. Meanwhile, until such research is effective, Easter Seal dollars are used to meet needs which do not duplicate the services of any other agency.

If you do not receive your Easter Seals through the mail and would like to help, you can mail your contribution to "Crippled Children, c/o Your Local Postmaster," said Roe.

March 7-15 Set as National 4-H Week

National 4-H Club Week, March 7 to 15, will be observed in Iowa as an enrollment clean-up period. The 1953 club year officially started October 1. The deadline is approaching for boys and girls to join one of the 2,800 Iowa local clubs.

State 4-H leaders at Iowa State College stress that there are many projects in which young people may still enroll. These include all home economics projects for girls. and for boys such projects as market pigs, poultry, vegetable crop and fruit production, field crops and several others in which actual work normally does not start until spring.

Many major events for club members are still ahead. Local and county achievement shows will be held in all counties later. Tours, club camps, picnics, community programs and other activities of the clubs are traditionally summer events. Those who enroll now will be ready to take part in these activities.

Iowa's clubs are about divided between home economics and agricultural projects.

At present about 45,000 boys and girls are members in Iowa. They are part of a national enrollment that exceeds 2 million.

Each club has one or more adult leaders to guide activities.

Boys and girls living in rural areas are eligible for members. Age limits are 10 to 21 years as of January 1. Each member is required to have an approved project, to attend meetings of a local club and to keep a record book.

Information on enrolling may be obtained from local leaders or from county extension offices. The 4-H program is part of the cooperative extension program conducted by county farm bureaus, the Iowa Agricultural Extension Service and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Plans were made for having a birthday party for the American Legion fellows sometime this month.

Stop McIntire at Mason City by 56 to 44 Score

On paper McIntire looked like a good bet when they tangled with the Klemme Shamrocks at Mason City, Tuesday night in the first round of the district tournament. However, the Shamrocks have been disregarding the records and the dope buckets, since they started play in the state eliminations, and they had little trouble downing the McIntire club 56 to 44.

For three quarters, the Shamrocks held the opposition to 22 points while geting 37 for themselves. However in the last guarter they seemed to slack up a little, and the McIntire team got another 22 while the locals were getting 19. The Shamrocks were never in danger, though as they took the lead right from the start and held onto it all the way.

Stille and Karsjens led the scoring for the Shamrocks with 16 points apiece. Thiemann had 11, Terhufen 9, and Barz 4.

John Martin had 20-points for McIntire to maintain his season average.

FERTILE, FRIDAY

Friday night at seven o'clock, the Shamrocks, meet the highly rated Fertile club in the finals of the district meet at Mason City, and if they keep on with their high disdain for records and dope buckets, they could come out a winner.

The other game on the program for Friday night will see Forest City and Clear Lake meet in a rubber game in the finals of Class "A". These teams have played twice before this season and each has won one game.

We're planning on being in Roosevelt Field House at Mason City, Friday night, and if our moral support will help, the Shamrocks are a "shoo-in."

Vagabonds Take Win from Hayfield 78 to 55

Fans who were on hand at the Klemme High School Gymnasium, Friday evening, saw some mighty good basketball. The Klemme Vagabonds played the Hayfield Independents and won out by a score of 78 to 55. This was the third meeting this season for the two teams, and Klemme has taken every game.

Merlin Brinkman and Norene Pearson led the Klemme attack, getting 34 and 20 points, respectively.

The Vagabond were a little disappointed, though. They have played several games away from home and have been used to seeing some fairly decent crowds. However, the crowd Friday evening wasn't enough to pay for the use of the gym.

They are entered in the invitational tournament at Garner next week, and their first game will be with Forest City at 7 o'clock next Tuesday evening.

Avery Township Red Cross Drive This Week

The ladies of Avery Township are making their Red Cross call this week. Those who are working and helping to make the canvass are: Mrs. George Stille, Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mrs. Paul Ludeke, Mrs Paul Lauen. Mrs. Leon Gilpin Mrs Earl Bachman, Mrs Ed G[illegible]. Mrs. Harlan Av[illegible] C. A. Arnold.

Three Candidates Unopposed In School Election

Church Group Sponsors Farewell Party, Sunday

The 50-50 group of the Methodist Church is sponsoring a farewell for the John Schwichtenberg family at their March meeting on Sunday evening March 8, at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone of the church is invited to attend, and each family is asked to bring cake or sandwiches for lunch.

Main feature of the evening's entertainment will be the showing of pictures and a talk on New Zealand by Betty Zmolek. She is an Iowa farm youth exchangee to New Zealand, and her home is in Toledo, Iowa. She works at the extension office in Ames.

Guest Soloist

Miss Lucille Wesson, of Des Moines, will be guest soloist at the Methodist Church, Sunday morning. She will be accompanied at the organ by Maurice Jacobs. Maurice is a student at Drake University in Des Moines.

Woodwind Trio Honored at Forest City Clinic

A woodwind trio, composed of Gracka Gerardi, flute; Lois Ann Jacobs, saxophone; and Faye Janssen, clarinet, was honored at Forest City last Tuesday when they were selected to play for the evening program at the band clinic.

Approximately forty schools were represented at the day-long meeting and each school was given the privilege of entering soloists or small instrumental groups to play for criticism before the guest directors. One of the guest directors was from Iowa State Teacher's College at Cedar Falls. The woodwind group from Klemme was one of two groups selected to appear on the evening prgram.

A mass band was also selected during the day from the schools represented, and Klemme had five band members who were chosen to be a part of this group. The band rehearsed during the afternoon, and then in the evening played a concert.

Monday, March 9 Is Election Day for Klemme District

Not too much excitement is being generated in Klemme over the coming school election. There is just no competition.

Only new candidate is Milvern Barz, who is on the ballot for a two-year term as director to fill the vacancy created by the resignition of Raymond Barz. Lloyd Sherwood is an incumbent for a three year term as director, and A. R. Arnold is an encumbent for a two year term in the office of treasurer.

Monday, March 9, is election day, and unless someone stirs up something on a write-in, it looks as though the results are pretty much cut and dried.

Others presently serving the school district are: Everett Guth, Don Brown, and Mrs. Fred J. Arnold directors, and A. J. Kudje, secretary.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

When the USDA crop and livestock reporting service finished its count of the cattle and calves on farms and ranches, January 1, 1953, a new record was on the books. The new all-time high of 93.7 million head of cattle was 5.9 million above the previous record of a year earlier

This marks the fourth straight year that cattle numbers have increased, Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, points out. And in that 4-year span, American farmers have added nearly 17 million cattle to their total numbers The 1953 number tops the peak of the previous cattle cycle on January 1, 1945, by over 8 million head.

All classes of cattle showed a rise last year. But the biggest boost again was on the beef side. Beef cows attained a record high of 2.5 million head. That's over 6½ million above the 1949 figure. Percentagewise, it figures up to over a 40 percent boost.

Such a record number of beef cows is certain to produce heavy cattle runs again this coming fall, Kutish says. Given average weather, he looks for grass cattle runs next fall to be practically as large as in the summer and fall of 1952. And if weather or price scares should bring widespread liquidation, marketings would be even larger.

We are now experiencing the typical effects that take place as we near the top of a cattle cycle. At the first stages of the cattle cycle, marketings drag. That's the natural result of farmers and ranchers holding back cattle to build up their herds. This effect showed up from 1950 to 1951, Kutish points out. Only 56 lbs. of beef were sold per person in butcher shops in 1951.

Then as beef cow numbers get larger, the natural increase pushes up marketings by its own weight. That is what began to happen in 1952. Beef supplies last year amounted to 61 lbs per person. This process will continue in 1953. Beef supplies this year will equal around 69-70 lbs. per person.

The next stage in the cattle cycle will be reached when we stop increasing total cattle numbers. Instead, we decrease them. This liquidation process throws an unusually heavy supply of beef on the market. How much depends upon how sharp the liquidation is. It could easily be 75 lbs. of beef per person or more when we pass the turning point in the current cycle, Kutish believes. And that would knock another 10 percent at least off current prices—more if business should slump.

The net result of this cattle outlook should be to produce caution on the part of Iowa cattlemen who plan to buy cattle this spring to summer on grass and then sell as feeders in the fall, Kutish warns.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

Berl felt a small twist of panic as fog suddenly streamed across his windshield closing out the world in a soundless, milky blindness.

He pulled his foot from the accelerator and began to tie the brake. The problem was that he couldn't see what was ahead and he couldn't remember whether a car had been following him closely into the fog.

He took a chance and put on the brake, cutting his speed sharply. Then he moved forward slowly, groping his way by occasional glimpses of the edge if the pavement.

Headlights drifted toward him and passed. He was thankful for their bleary warning and turned on his own, instead of the parking lights he had snapped in when he came into the fog.

After nearly half an hour of strain of driving blind, Berl decided to pull off the road, though he couldn't see enough of the shoulder to do that safely.

He claimed later that he then spent some five minutes looking into his rear vision mirror whenever he could, looking for sign of a car that might be following.

In the swirling fog, he did not see the car coming behind him with only the low, dim parking lights burning.

Berl, making the wrong guess, stopped the car in the middle of the road and was moving quickly out the right side to see how much shoulder he had to pull off on when the car hit from behind.

The impact swung the car door back against Berl's head, crashing him into the body of his own car The milky fog turned to darkness and the next three months of his life turned into a series of hospital rooms and operations.

EDITORIAL

In the difficult times of today many people all over the world are afraid of losing their freedom and liberty. Even the United States is faced with this threat. Here is what some famous people had to say about liberty.

"Our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty."

Abraham Lincoln.

"The God who gave us life gave us liberty at the same time."

Thomas Jefferson

"Free people, remember this maxim: We may acquire liberty, but it is never recovered if it is once lost."

J. J. Lousseau

"They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."

Benjamin Franklin

"God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are always ready to guard and defend it.."

Daniel Webster

"Liberty is the right to do what laws allow. If a citizen had a right to do what they forbid it would no longer be liberty, for everyone else would have the same right."

C. T. DeMontesquieu

"Our liberties we prize and our rights we will maintain."

Recipe for Happiness

You need never look for happiness if you awake each morning and say "This is the day the Lord has made. I will be glad and rejoice in it."

SENIOR INTERVIEW

Our senior this week has light brown hair and blue eyes, and she is 5 feet, 7 inches tall. She was born on a farm near Klemme on May 22, 1936. Her name is Janet Myra Stahl. "Jan" attended school at Avery No. 5 for eight years and then she came to Klemme.

Being caught eating candy in school time was her most embarrassing moment. Janet's favorites are: food, fried chicken; song, "Don't Let' the Stars Get in Your Eyes"; Singers, The Mariners, Bing Crosby and Vaughn Monroe; movie stars, Susan Hayward, Jane Wyman, and John Wayne; and movie, "With a Song in My Heart". Her pastimes are sewing and skating.

While she was a sophomore and junior, Janet sang in Glee Club. This year her activities consist of editing the "Suggestion Box" for the paper, proof reading for the year book and working in Mr. Andreae's office.

To become a receptionist is her future plan.

FIFTH GRADE

This past week we have been very busy making booklets for History. They include all the important things that happened during the Civil War. We are very proud of the five sketches we have made for them.

We are beginning the study of fraction in arithmetic. We are comparing the sizes of fractions and finding fractions which are equal in value. Our next step will be to add and subtract them.

The Great Outdoors has furnished us with many thrilling advertures of boys and girls in other parts of our land. So far we have read stories which take place in Washington and Illinois.

EIGHTH GRADE

We are getting ready for our class paper for 1952 and 1953.

In English we are studying about descriptions.

In Arithmetic we are studying about federal taxes.

In health we are getting ready for a test on Friday.

The boys have one more dental card to get in and the girls have four out. If the boys get their cards in first, the girls are to pay their way to a movie.

Our motto for this week is: "I will not let another's attitude make me lose my good manners."

JUNIOR

Typing: We had five minute tests in writing letters and in material for five minute writings. We also had a one minute writing and others to find our correct words per minute.

Shorthand: We are still on the same routine of reading and writing and having five minute writings on Friday.

Economics: We are studying about man power and labor. We think that reading our assignments in class and discussing them right away has helped some of us in getting good grades on our tests so we will continue to do that for a while.

Literature: We have finished with our short stories and will have a test over the authors and content of those. We will start essays next.

Business Law: We are on the subject of "Statute of Frauds".

Drivers Training: We are still reading out of the "Sportsmanlike Driving" book and we hope to be driving pretty soon, as most of us are getting impatient.

Grade School County Tourney at Hayfield

Hancock County grade school teams will fight it out at Hayfield next week to see who will be county champs.

First action in the tournament will come next Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock when Klemme tangles with Britt. Coach Juhl's Rockets have a good record for the year, having lost only one game. They lost that one to Kanawha, and made up for it by beating them in a later meeting.

Other games on the Wednesday program, will see Woden and Kanawha swing into action at 7:45, and Garner and Corwith, at 9:00 o'clock.

If Klemme gets by Britt they will meet the winner of the Woden-Kanawha game in the semifinals Friday evening at 7:00 o'clock.

TEACHER INTERVIEW

Mrs. Helma Proper, the sixth grade teacher, was born at Goodell, Iowa, January 15, 1908. She is five feet, seven inches tall, has brown eyes and gray hair. After graduating from the Goodell High School, she attended the Iowa State Teachers College for two years.

Shrimp is her favorite food; Vaughn Monroe is her favorite band; Mario Lanzo is her favorite singer; Barry Fitzgerald and Ethel Barrymore are her favorite movie stars and "The Great Caruso" is her favorite movie. Knitting and reading are her pastimes and collecting vases and growing flowers are her hobbies. Her pet peeve is people who giggle when they are being interviewed.

Her activities outside of school consist of: a member of the Auxiliary, member of the American Association of University Women, a member of the B. P. W, and sings in the church choir.

Mrs. Proper was married in 1932 and is now a widow.

Plans as to how long she will teach are indefinite.

SENIOR

The students in the drivers training class have finally graduated from book work to driving. Most of the members of the class have drivers licenses, but the few who don't are trying to get through the beginning manuvers of the new driver.

The literature class has finished the study of essays and are starting on poetry and ballads. Mr. Cappon read "Frankie and Johnny" to the class, but he never completed several of the sentences. We understand that you can't say such words in front of the class.

In history we have begun to discuss the chapters concerning big business. To get away from the continual work in the textbooks, we are going to have a debate, "Should or shouldn't the United State stay in the United Nations?" We are also going to prepare papers on colleges we might consider attending and the occupations we want to enter after we graduate.

Bookkeeping is demanding a great deal of our time as usual. We're traveling right along in the book, but remembering what is in the chapters comes a little slower. About this time of year some of the students are wondering what they were thinking of when they decided to take bookkeeping.

Down Kanawha In Finals 63-40

Klemme defeated the Kanawha Bulldogs in a fast moving game Saturday evening to win the Class B sectional tournament at Garner. To advance to the finals of this tournament, Klemme first met and defeated Wesley and Goodell.

Kanawha had beaten the Shamrocks in two previous home games.

All of the boys made a very fine showing in this thrilling game by hitting a large percentage of their shots. Roger Terhufen was high pointer with 19 points. Larry Stille followed with 17 points, and Graydon Barz had 13 points.

Klemme was successful in making the first two points of the game but dropped behind 16 to 10 by the end of the first quarter. After only three minutes of play in the second quarter, the Shamrocks shot ahead to tie the score at 16 to 16. The half ended with Klemme leading 25 to 23. The third quarter found the Bulldogs dragging behind 11 points. The game was a grand triumph to all Klemme fans as the final horn sounded, ending the game with Klemme leading 63 to 40.

All Klemme supporters returned home rejoicing over this victory and eagerly anticipating the next game when the Klemme team enters district tournament play. It is to take place in the Roosevelt Field House in Mason City, March 3. Klemme will then meet McIntyre.

Our team has done remarkably well and we're proud of them.

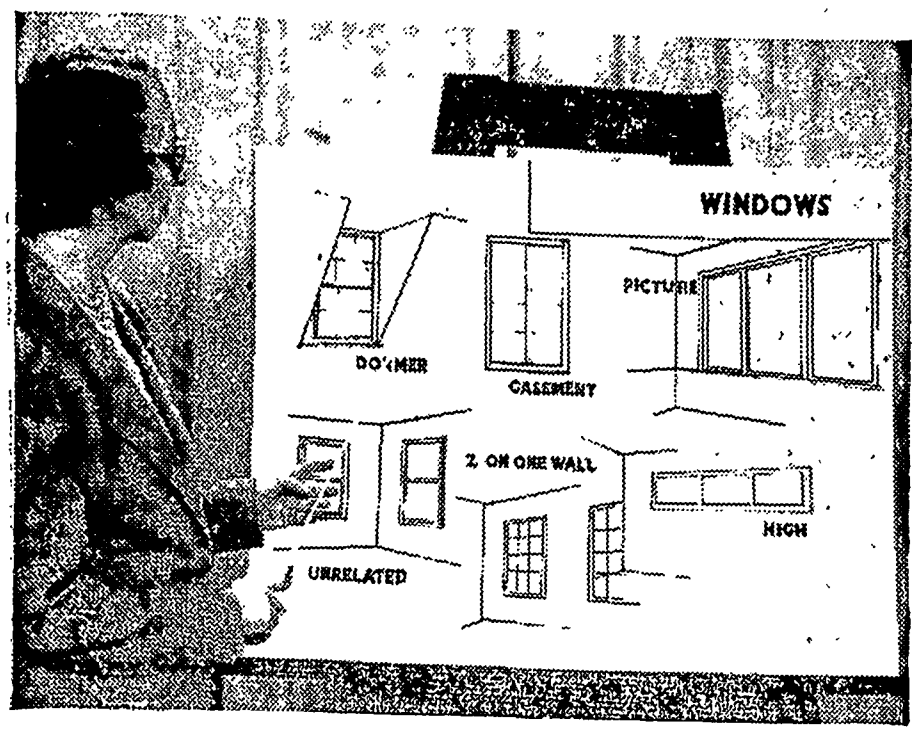
Homemakers Study Window Treatments—

TV Window Decorating Lessons



Here's a peak into a television set tuned to WOI-TV during "Your Home Hour," Feb. 13 at 2:30. Marjorie Garfield, head of the Department of Applied Art at Iowa State College, cues homemakers on the curtain, drapery or blind treatment for various types of windows in the first of a 9-program lesson series called "Sizing Up Your Windows."

Many an Iowa homemaker is solving her window treatment problems in front of her TV set as she takes part in a new 9-program series of televised window decorating lessons. "Classes" are televised over WOI-TV's "Your Home Hour," on the Thursday afternoon program at 2:30.

In the first lesson on February 12, homemakers were cued on effective drapery, curtain or blind treatments for all different types of windows by Marjorie Garfield, head of the Applied Art Department at Iowa State College. The challenge in window decorating, she explained, is to treat your windows so that they're pleasingly related to each other and the room as a whole. Even the most poorly placed window can be turned into a decorative asset, she said.

FABRIC SELECTION

For the following two lessons, February 19 and 26, Alice Waugh of the Applied Art Department discussed the selection of fabrics. Factors to consider: size of room, type furnishings, color, ease and cost of upkeep, and resistance to sun fading.

In talking of color she said that light, warm colors are almost always a safe choice. Dark, cool-colored curtains or draperies call for a large room with wide windows and sunny exposure, she said.

When she discussed and showed samples of suitable curtain and drapery fabric, she told about some new ones with which many homemakers are not familiar.

NEWER FABRICS

Fiberglas: Plain and textured marquisettes, semi-sheer casement cloth and full-bodied drapery fabrics. Fabric is woven of yarns spun from fine fiber of glass. It has high tensile strength, won't shrink or stretch, is easy to wash, dries in a twinkling, has high resistance to sunlight, mildew, heat atmospheric gases. Best on "quiet" windows where draperies or curtains are not pulled back and forth on traverse rods or blown by the wind.

Orlon: Ideal curtain or drapery fabric with high resistance atmospheric gases. It's washable, quick to dry, sheds wrinkles, won't shrink or stretch. Orlon taffeta in white or natural makes a good lining for drapery fabrics where designs show through.

Dynel: Drapery fabrics are flame-resistant, strong, won't stretch or shrink, are moth and mildew-resistant.

Dacron: It has high resistance to abrasion, wrinkling, bleaches. It's very strong, is washable, dries quickly. Semi-sheer Dacron makes up into lovely glass curtains.

Nylon: Shrinks little, wears well, sheds soil easily, is washable and dries quickly. If you want resistance to weathering and sunlight, choose nylons with a sheen or made of bright yarns. New nylons for window treatment include a sheer, textured, fine filmy gauze; nylon taffeta; sturdy nylon press cloth, which has a dull, slightly fuzzy surface.

Most of the new marquisettes of synthetic fibers come in white and in sparkling pastels that give soft, textured color against your windows.

NEW LINING FABRICS

Another newcomer is a sateen lining fabric, 50 inches wide. One side is white or ivory or ecru and the other side is black, to be placed toward the window. This makes lining less conspicuous from outside the house.

Next lesson, March 5, will be on window shades and blinds. Emelda Kunau, extension home furnishings specialist, will be guest speaker.

Ruth Circle

The Ruth Circle met February 26th, at the home of Mrs. C. A. Larsen with Mrs. A. G. Koerner as assisting hostess.

Mr. Vivian Mace had charge of the devotion. The lesson, "Blessed are the Merciful" was given by Mrs. George Schoenwetter. Everyone enjoyed the ...ording of "Angels Guard Thee", "The Lost Chord" and "The Lord's Prayer". Mrs. Henry Busse led the prayer. Sixteen members, one visitor and one hild were present.

After a business meeting, a delicious lunch was served.

Naomi Circle

The Naomi Circle met at the home of Mrs. Ida Pringnitz on Thursday afternoon, February 26th, with Mrs. Pavey as assisting hostess.

There were twelve members, three visitors and three children present.

Feed the Land
...it will feed you

It's a well established fact that fertilizer boosts crop yields. In Iowa State College experiments, oats responded to nitrogen in most fields. When there is no nitrogen deficiency, oats generally respond to phosphate. In two-thirds of the fields legumes respond to phosphate. Corn generally responds to all three elements.

When you think of your fertilizer needs, think of your Co-op. Now is the time to secure your fertilizer for spring. Either by taking immediate delivery or by placing your order now so that you will be assured of a supply.

Ducks Have Arrived; Blue Geese Due

The first large flights of waterfowl have moved into Iowa and state conservation officers report heavy concentrations of ducks in southwestern Iowa.

Conservation Officer, Ward Garrett has reported 10,000 mallards and pintails at Lake Manawa near Council Bluffs and 15,000 of the same species at Forney's Lake. According to Garrett the Forney's flock is being accomplished by forty bald eagles, an unusually large number. Worried sportsmen may be comforted by the fact that fish, not ducks, are the eagles staple food and that the ducks are in little danger of eagle predation.

In the past, the first flocks of geese have arrived in Iowa about the first of March. The peak of the migration is usually in Iowa by March 15th, when half a million geese may be found within an area of a few miles. Individual flocks may total as many as 100,000 birds.

In recent years illegal shooting has not been a serious problem. and thousands of Iowans visit the bottom areas to see and photograph the huge flocks of waterfowl.

Anyone wishing to see the main goose flight when it arrives is advised to keep in touch with the State Conservation Commission office in Des Moines, the Council Bluffs Nonpareil, or Conservation Officer Ward Garrett of Council Bluffs.

Forney's Lake will be the best place to see the flocks, and the concentration peak is expected to remain eight or ten days.

The Army and Navy versions of the Star-Spangled Banner are not identical.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Installment Twenty-two

CATTLE

Just after the Civil War, eastern speculators flocked into north central Iowa and purchased all the land they could get. They paid the government a dollar or two per acre.

Some of our enterprising early settlers would rent this unimproved prairie land from the speculators for $35 to $55 per quarter section, and take in a lot of cattle to pasture for the season at two dollars per head. These were mostly cattle which were driven in from the west. The men who brought them in, and made a business of driving cattle were called "Drovers".

William Gast, a land owner of Liberty Township (the father of Herman Gast and Mrs. Clara Stille of our city) took in cattle to pasture for many years. He would have a herd of several hundred head. His sons would follow the cattle west every morning, (I remember the many deep cow paths) and bring them back at night to the dusty corral. These boys rode western ponies, carried their lunch and had a dog or two following them. In the fall the cattle would be shipped to market by the owners. Usually to Chicago.

There were many large herds grazing on the lucious grass of north central Iowa in those days. But, with the coming of the "Fence Law", in about 1892, the herding business rapidly came to an end.

The early settlers, who were trying to pay off the mortgage on their farms and stop the ten per cent interest, used to say, "You can't go broke milking cows, but you sure can feeding cattle." So each family milked cows. Of course, they sold some cattle, such as dry cows and surplus stock, and there were always a few car-lot feeders in the neighborhood who bought up this surplus stock and fed them out.

However, the farmers prospered, and got their debts under control, and one by one tried feeding cattle. They bought the steers on borrowed money, fattened them with corn and hay, and sold them. Sometimes they lost and sometimes they made a profit. Everyone likes to gamble, and the risk of feeding cattle is a gamble. But the farmer who feeds every year enjoys it, and most of the time he is well paid for his trouble.

Just now, in 1953, it seems that we have become quite a cattle feeding community. Everybody is doing it.

Our first full time cattle buyer was Joseph E. Johnson. He was very active from 1910 to 1930 and continued thereafter at a slower pace for several years more. Many cattle feeders preferred to deal with "Joe" year after year.

Herman Priebe also bought cattle for a few years, but it was only a part time job with him.

Albert Schmidt has been buying cattle for twenty-five years or more and is still at it.

C. A. Larsen has been very active as a buyer of cattle and hogs since about 1920.

It is estimated that 9,000 head of cattle were hauled in during the year 1952 and distributed among the men who fatten cattle in the four townships of our trade territory. It is estimated that we produced 4,500 head of native cattle which were put in our feed lots too. When these are all sold it should bring in the tidy sum of about three million dollars. This is not all profit but it is a large sum.

HOGS

The early settler used to say, "Hogs are the mortgage lifters". It was easier then to raise hogs, new ground, plenty of pasture, plenty of big straw stacks, plenty of skim milk. Each sow would weigh around 1500 pounds. Yes, hogs grow into money fast if properly handled.

Today, with dirty and infected yards, no straw stacks, commercial feeds to buy, vaccination, etc., makes the problem of raising hogs more complicated. And then when you do get them sold, there are so many cash expenses. Taxes, tractor fuel, etc. that maybe you will have very little left to pay off on the mortgage. Unless, of course, you raise a lot of hogs.

But, we do raise a lot of hogs here. Our buyers tell me that we ship to market at least 60,000 head of hogs per year, and figuring them at $40 each, brings two and a half million dollars cash into the four townships of our trade territory, which will pay a lot of expense and maybe help "lift the mortgage".

Walter Bloom and August C. Lau were our first hog buyers. They were very active and would fill the stock yards every week and ship out every Saturday night when a special stock train would arrive to pick up the carloads of hogs and cattle.

The draymen would bed the cars with straw and manure, scatter ear corn over it, so that the hogs would be comfortable and could eat the corn on their way to Chicago. It seemed important that the hogs should look good to the Chicago buyers when they arrived at their destination.

They would ship out fifteen or twenty carloads on a Saturday night, except when the Lindon Ranch drove in a bunch of fat cattle, then it would take about eight cars more. I remember a shipment of twenty-four carloads going out of Klemme on one train.

Main hog buyers today are: C. A. Larsen, who rents the stock yards from the railroad company and operates from there. Arnold Doden who just recently purchased the Schmidt Stock Yards.

TRANSPORTATION

Nine tenths of all livestock hauled in and out of Klemme is done by trucks. The railroad is almost out of the livestock business.

During the daytime our truckers pick up the hogs and cattle from the farms and at night they haul them to market. They go most often to, St. Paul, Albert Lea, Austin, Des Moines, Cedar Rapids and Madison, Wisconsin. Our buyers know where to send them to get the most money.

In the late summer and early fall, our truckers make many long trips to far away places like Nebraska, Texas, Montana, etc. bringing in the thousands of cattle for the fattening yards of our farmers.

The most active of our truck drivers today are, Herb Pearson, Vern Bison, John Hanson, Lyle Hanson, Arnold Doden and Walt Rosendahl.

All of these men drive semi-trailer trucks. These big rigs cost from $7,000.00 up. License and tax amounts to about $400.00 per year. And think of those long night drives, through fog and every kind of weather. No one but a young man could stand this hard grind.

KLEMME FOOD MARKET

The frame part of the C. A. Larsen Food Market was originally built by George Kluckhohn in 1890, 63 years ago This was Klemme's first butcher shop. The Kluckhohn family lived in the rooms over the shop. It was in these rooms that our grocery merchant, Clarence Kluckhohn, was born, the first baby boy in Klemme.

After about two years, George and Henry Schroeder, known as Schroeder and Son, bought the shop. They built a lean-to on the east side of the shop and Mr. and Mrs. Henry (Butch) Schroeder lived in it.

Butch drove from farm to farm and bought the cattle and hogs which they needed for the meat in the shop. Father Schroeder attended the shop, and Mrs. Butch assisted during rush hours.

During the threshing season, Butch would disturb our sleep in the early morning when he left with his meat wagon. At about 3:30 or 4 a. m., he would load his wagon with meat for the threshing table. We lived over our store just across the street from the butcher shop. We did not mind the noise of the wagon and team, but Butch was a young man and a good feeler and being well fed, sang when he worked. The harder he worked, the louder he sang. We liked his singing and his songs, but to sing so early in the morning almost got our goat.

The Schroeders sold to Fred and John Griewe. Charles Busch also owned the shop for a few years.

The present owner, C. A. Larsen, bought the shop in 1914, 38 years ago. Larsen was a progressive type fellow. He soon owned three meat markets in Garner, Klemme and Belmond. Later he sold the outside shops and enlarged his Klemme shop. He put in groceries in addition to the meat line. This was in 1928.

After the fire of March 14th, 1937, he bought a lot west of his place of business and built a brick building, size 24 x 48, and installed a modern locker system.

Larsen himself, spends little time in his food market. He is kept very busy buying live stock and attending to some farm lands which he owns. However, he has competent help in the store and many people trade there.

COMMERCIAL

Factory made coffins began to appear shortly after the town of Klemme was platted, 1889, when a little factory was started in Burlington, Iowa.

They made wooden coffins wide at the shoulder, narrow at the foot end. They came to the dealer unlined and without handles or hardware. There was a sliding glass over the face, and a separate panel, called a cap-lift, which was removed from the head end so that folks could "view the remains".

They were made in four sizes, which were nested and shipped to the dealer. All four in one crate, one of each size.

They were not as good in quality as the coffins made by the cabinet makers, but they were cheaper and looked good. Each cabinet maker ordered a few of these factory made coffins and sold them to those who preferred the cheaper kind.

The dealer upholstered the coffin with mattress and roll, lined it with crepe or satin, and put on the handles. Baby coffins sold for $10.00, childs $15.00, youths $20.00, and adult, at $25.00.

There was no hearse or personal service provided by the dealer at that time.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowans Are Different

Iowa has had her share of governors with interesting peculiarities.

I remember one who'd never let newspapermen take his picture until he had ruffled up his hair.

Another insisted on smoking only Iowa-made cigars (in election year, of course.)

The most unusual was the governor who wouldn't eat off a plate if it had a flower picture in the middle. His plates had to have plain centers.

"It takes all kinds of people" . . . even among governors.

But Iowa would be pretty dull if people were all alike, whether governors or just neighbors. It's variety of ideas and tastes that makes folks enjoyable.

When neighbors drop in at our house, some like a cup of tea, some coffee, some a temperate glass of beer. Some talk politics, some discuss the weather. But we all respect each one's right of choice.

That's the important thing . . . recognizing that folks aren't all the same . . . and that others' preferences are as important as our own.

Kenneth Kluckhohn to Head New Organization

However, the business men need some organization to give them a chance to work together to better business and promote friendly relations, so a new club was formed. It will work under the name of the Klemme Commercial Club.

Kenneth Kluckhohn was elected president of the new club, Don Bacon, vice president, and A. R. Arnold, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Anderson Lots to Local Legion Post

Have Wanted Building Site for Some Time

Dr. D. P. Anderson owns two lots just west of Fred'ss Place, and a month ago he offered to deed to the local Legion Post, the one adjoining Fred's. Members talked this offer over during the past month and at their regular meeing last Tuesday night, it was decided to accept. In addition, the Legion offered to buy the remaining lot. Dr. Anderson named a very reasonable price, so the deal was completed.

Members of the local Post have been talking some of putting up a building for the past several months, but a desirable location, just couldn't seem to be found. Dr. Anderson's generous offer has solved this part of the problem for them.

When they will build of what kind of buliding they will put up, remains to be seen. There are many things to be accomplished before anything can be done, but now there is a good place to start from.

The entire group sang "Abide With Me" in closing.

The wedding cake was baked and served by Mrs. D. P. Anderson, youngest sister of Mrs. Haefner. The coffee was poured by her oldest sister, Mrs Carl Busch of Mason City. Ice Cream was served by Mrs. Rufus Haefner of De Kalb, Illinois. Mrs. Charles Busch of Mason City, served the other cakes.

A niece, Neva Anderson had charge of the guest book. Two granddaughters, Gloria of Mason City and Doris of Aurora, had charge of the gifts.

The corsage and boutonniere worn by Mr. and Mrs. Haefner was given to them by their only great grand child, Patricia, the daughter of Donald and Jeanne Haefner of Sycamore, Illinois.

Near relatives attending were three sons, Wilbur of Klemme, Rufus of De Kalb, Illinois, and Paul of Clear Lake, and their wives and Swanetta, wife of Burnette Haefner, deceased, and six grandchildren, Doris and her husband, Frances Waldrop, Glroia, and her huband, Frank Sherwood, Dennis, Margaret, June and David. One grandson, Donald Haefner and his wife Jeanne and their daughter, Patty of Sycamore, Ilinois, were unable to attend.

Other out of town guests were from Omaha, Nebraska, De Kalb, and Aurora, Illinois, Des Moines, Mason City, Clear Lake, Forest City, Aplington, Kanawha, Britt and Garner.

Shamrocks Lose Final to Fertile in District Play

Too Much Power As Fertile Wins 64 to 27

Theh Klemme Shamrocks met more than their match last Friday night when they tangled with the high-powered Fertile Indians in the finals of the district tournament at Mason City. The Shamrocks appeared a litle nervous when the game got under way, and to add to their discomfort, they had very tough luck on their shots in the opening moments of the game. They had several shots go about half way through and then pop out of the basket. Just seemed to take some of the heart out of them. Of course, the fact that Fertile was hot didn't improve things any.

Never, at any point in the game, did the Shamrocks threaten,, but they never quit. The fact that they had forty chances at the free throw line proves that they were trying, and Fertile wasn't trusting them much or they certainly wouldn't have fouled that heavily.

However, they just couldn't keep up with the Indians and finally went down 64 to 27.

Even considering this one-sided loss, local fans were pretty well pleased with the team's showing in the final stages of the season. They blew hot and cold throughout most of the season, but when they went into sectional play at Garner, they began to play a good brand of ball. They looked good when they downed McIntire in the first round of the district, too, and everyone was agreed that whether they won or lost when they played Fertile, they still had finished out their season in pretty good shape.

They can be sure of one thing. They lost to a good team. The way Fertile is going in the substate tournament, they are going to be down at Iowa City.

LOSE ONE REGULAR

Next year, the Shamrocks should have an even better team than they did this year. Larry Stille is the only man of the starting line up that will graduate. The rest of the team will be back, and there are some who saw considerable play this season who should be coming along.

30 YEARS AGO—

Look over the big sale ad of U. G. Smid in this issue of the Times.

Mrs. Ben Coobs was on the sick list a couple of days the past week; a victim of the grippe.

Harry Buss has been absent from the garage the past few days on account of the grippe.

Mrs. Gilbert Schaper is now working as clerk in Kluckhohn's store. She is taking the place of Geneva Schuldt, who has resigned.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Klotzback's little baby has been seriously ill the past week, but at this writing we are glad to report that the little one seems to be gradually improving.

20 YEARS AGO—

For the month of February, Lois Gast was the only pupil having a perfect attendance in Liberty No. 8. Miss Lola Gast was the only student receiving 100 in spelling for the month.

Mr. and Mrs. John Meinders and family visited at the Bert Stadlander home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Theiman and daughter Elsie, visited at the Fred Neuhring home Sunday.

Mrs. Wes Schuldt is having some friends and relatives in to help her quilt today. A fine lunch will be served.

Several friends and relatives were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Etchen last Tuesday evening to surprise Mr. and Mrs Orville Bridges on their fifth wedding anniversary. The evening was spent socially and playing games. A delicious lunch was served.

L. Tokman, Ford dealer deluxe, of Belmond, was in Klemme Tuesday on business. Louie is strong on his praise in telling about the New Ford. Louie had us almost believing that the editorial Essex was nothing more than an oil can mounted on spools compared to that new Ford V-8. We must admit that either Louie is a darn good saleman or the new Ford is a darn good car, and we'd rather believe the latter to be the case.

10 YEARS AGO—

Wallace Pavey has been working at the Ordinance plant at Ankeny for the past six months, will resign his position the first of April and wil re-open his blacksmith and repair shop here the first week in April.

Sgt. Bob Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schneider, has recently been promoted to the rank of Staff Sergeant.

Miss Marcelle Josten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Josten, provided special music at the Methodist Church last Thursday and Friday evening when she played on her marimba. She was accompanied by Miss Irene Becker on the piano.

Mrs. D. O. Turgason, who returned to Klemme when her husband, Tch. Sgt. D O. Turgasen, left for overseas service, is now finishing out the year teaching history in the high school at Wapello, Iowa. The young man whose position she is filling, was drawn into the army about a month ago.

"Every little buck helps crippled children"

Not a single person would push a crippled child out of their way and say, "Don't bother me. I've got more important things to do with my money."

But that is precisely what is done when Easter Seals received through the mails are ignored.

DON'T IGNORE—GIVE MORE!

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

Fully expecting to take the prize for the least needed information of the year, we now offer the latest fool-proof directions on How To Have An Accident.

First, choose a day when the streets are icy or wet and pull away from the curb without looking back or giving a signal. If that doesn't do your fenders in try this:

Head for the nearest intersection at a brisk pace and slam on through. Don't yield the right-of-way to man or machine. This should really do it.

If you have followed directions carefully, you should be in the hospital, your car should be in a garage and your lawyer should be in court pleading your case.

Of course, there are always those who are slow to get the hang of a thing. For them the following steps are highly recommended:

Take off after a car or truck and follow it closely. Do a real bumper-to-bumper job of driving for a few blocks. In most cases you will be awarded with some pleasant form of face fracture.

But, if even this fails, drift over to the right side of the street and make an unexpected left hand turn from there. Don't signal. That takes all the sport out of the game.

Still with us? We'll you've only got two really "good" chances left. Kick up the speed a little and pass that car ahead only be sure you are on a hill, a curve or in the middle of an intersection when you do it.

Or, if all else fails, boost your speed up to where you can just barely control your car on the road surface. If you are persistant, you will lose control and have that accident.

How do we know these things will work? About 70,000 Iowans had their accidents last year by following one or more of the above practices. You can't go wrong.

THE SHAMROCK

KLEMME INDEPENDENT SCHOOL

VOLUME NUMBER 4 | KLEMME, IOWA, MARCH 11, 1953 | NUMBER 17

SENIOR INTERVIEW

Virgil Eugene Stahl was born on a farm near Klemme, Iowa on March 9, 1935. "Virg" is 6' tall and has blue eyes and brown hair. He attended school at Avery No. 5 for eight years and then came to Klemme.

His most embarassing moment occured when he put a two cent stamp on a two cent post card. People who show off are his pet peeve. His favorites are: food: turkey, song: "Don't Let the Stars Get In Your Eyes"', singer: Band, movis stars: John Wayne Vaughn Monroe,, band: Army and Paul Douglas, movie: "Destination Moon", and saying: "Holy Cow". Roller skating is his pastime.

On the paper he handles the jokes, and he is a salesman for the year book.

He plans to be a farmer in the future.

Eunice and Marie

McIntire Downed 56-44

On March 3, Klemme played McIntire at the Mason City field house.

The Klemme Shamrocks took off in the first quarter with 11 to 0 lead over McIntire, which they maintained throughout the game. Stille and Karsjens were high with 16 points each. Theiman had 11, Terhufen 9, and Barz 4, to even out the scoring for a total of 56, points for Klemme. Ridder and Stille both fouled out in the final quarter. The final score was 56 - 44.

We will play Fertile next on March 6 at Mason City.

Twins

He: "My girl is a twin."
Him: "How can you tell them apart?"
He: "Her brother walks different."

Klemme High School Ranks High in Attendance

Better Than Average By 2 to 6 Percent

Klemme High School, we are proud to say, has a very good daily attendance of 96 percent. 90 percent is considered good, so as you see Klemme ranks high above average.

There are 97 students attending our high school, 50 of whom are boys and 47 girls.

The average daily attendance is 92.3. This attendance is figured in this way: The number of days of school in a semester is devided into the number of days each student was in school for that semester. 56 of the students in high schol are nonresidents and 41 are residents.

No student is allowed into class if he has been tardy or absent from school until he has gone to Mr. Andreae, the principal, and has received an admit slip. Absences or tardies are either excused or unexcused. The unexcused tardies are punishable by making up time after school. An excused absence is given due to illness, dental, optical, or other medical appointments, or work which prevented the student from attending school. Examples of unexcused absences are vacations, and shopping trips and are punishable by making up time, writing themes, and receiving only ½ credit for that days work.

180 days of school are required by law. If there is no more snow vacation, school will conclude May 26 and the picnic will be held May 28.

EDITORIAL

We have been working on the senior class play for four weeks and we hope to present it the last of this month. Most of the actors know their second act lines although they have spent considerable time at the basketball tournaments. If we can win the Klemme-Fertile game, we will probably postpone the play another week.

No doubt everyone at the ballgame in Mason City Tuesday night was impressed by Forest City's school spirit and cheering section. The way their cheering section was organized and the dress attracted a great deal of attention. Everyone in this section was wearing something red; this helped to show their enthusiasm and give confidence to their team by distinguishing themselves from the rest of the spectators. This type of cheering section is a great moral builder for the fans as well as the players, and we think every school should have one.

Even though it may be too late for this season, why not plan on organizing a cheering section for next season's ballgames. It will undoubtedly help our team to win more games.

? ? OF THE WEEK

What did you think of the boys basketball game Tuesday night?

Sharon W: It was good. We won!

Bob B.: I think they are capable of playing better.

Marie N.: I think they really played a good game.

Leola L.: I think they played a swell game and if they play like that Friday night we might win.

Carole M.: I thought they played a good game.

Roger Bachman: I think all the boys played as good as they could and I hope they play that way Friday night.

Margaret Haefner: I think they played a real good game.

Lois J.; I think they played a good game but I hope they play better Friday night.

JoAnn Bacon: They played real ball, and if they play as good as they did against Kanawha, they will beat Fertile too.

Conclusion: They seemed to play pretty good ball Tuesday night, but they can play better.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

So they say the younger generation is getting smart to all these new tricks. Well, take a tip from the junior - senior side. It seems the girls that went to Des Moines for the basketball tournaments short sheeted the freshman girls beds when they were out. That night when the girls crawled in bed they just thought the maid had made the beds wrong. Since they didn't even feel the itching powder the following night we'll just forget about it.

What is this I hear about Bill and Janet having a fight? It just can't be true. I suppose in a few days they will have everything patched up and forgotten about. Good luck, kids.

It seems these papers that are left on study hall tables seem to prove themselves to be very interesting at times. I found one of Harry's and if you don't know what Darlene and Harry do with themselves at night when its cold and blowing look at this — "Harry 15, Darlene 13, and Cat 21". It seems they were playing cat and rat sometime or other. This may blossom into a romance someday even though Dar is older than Harry.

It's pretty easy to tell which girls are going steady and which are still available. They are wearing dog collars around their left ankle if they are going steady and around the right ankle if they are still available. "Oh, if we only had a chain," as the boys would sy.

Do you know that pretty soon L. H. will come to school with bags every other day instead of just Mondays? Why? Because Francis just has a couple of weeks of college left. What fun!

Does anyone know if Lois J. and Calvin J. are as steady a couple as they used to be? It seems like evevryone I talk to doesn't know what she has been doing lately. Just think Lois, if that romance keeps on the way it started maybe you wouldn't have to change your intials in the future.

So, Eleanor, you are telling on yourself now. From what I hear Daisy asked you when wou went by her house at 10:30 or 12:30. And Eleanor asnwered with "A. M. or P. M." But Daisy said it was A. M. so I guess it is alright.

So Darlene and Marcia were fighting on the bus last week sometime. It seems there was a disagreement between the two of them or something and it started one of those little lady scraps. Was there a little hair pulling in the deal or was it just a mild affair?

Dick D. can't you ever be good in study hall anymore? It seems that Daisy's shorthand notebook was missing and you were the last one to see it. Of course I think Harry was in on it, myself. You two boys just pester her to death. Don't you boys?

How come Joan L. gets so mad when someone mentions Joe's name to her? It couldn't be because she doesn't care for him any longer could it? But, oh how she used to care for him!!!

Dorothy must have a strong effect on Harlan to make him run in the ditch.

We know Eunice and Ila always have a good time together especially when they go to basketball games.

It seems Neva has the blues in advance. Maybe this is because Bill is leaving soon.

Is Virgil still trying to win Darlene's affection? It would be funny if he isn't.

Janet and Bill have patched up their differences. That's good.

Does Elda still go with the guy that has the blue Chevie pickup? Anyone that has this information, let us know!

Calvin and John, why don't you behave? It seems they had some trouble at the ballgame. Sometimes a cane comes in handy, doesn't it?

Wonder why Marie always defends the state of South Dakota? It couldn't be because of those guys she met there last summer, is it, Marie?

John and Miriam play opposite in the play. They say hate is the kindred of love, so watch for developements. Bob had better guard his interests.

We still have our little love birds—Sharon W. and Bill W. Janet and Bill V., and Elaine and Larry.

Beverly still looks forward with longing for letters from her Kenny over in Korea.

Emily must have some interesting phone calls sometimes, huh? What or who does Reverdy think about in Business Law class? I wonder!

Is Jo Ann Bacon to be Cecil's one-and-only, or will he still play the field? Some days in the library they get pretty chummy.

It seems like Graydon and Carol are sure having an off and on romance.

Even though Joan L. goes to the show with a bunch of kids on Sunday nights it seems like she always sits with Bob B. Will Miriam be jealous? I suppose she feels safer just in case there is a scarry part!

What is this we heard, that Terry has a crush on Faye. You had better watch it, Faye.

What happened to Donnie T. and Faye J. all of a sudden? They're both playing the field pretty much, don't you think?

What I Don't Like About Women

This poem was handed to me by our little bachelor boy, Delwyn Brede. I will pass it on to you:

A problem which if treated right
Would stack my papers out of sight,
And fill my room and what is more
Would even fill the second floor.
But then there is no sense I fear
To tell of all the ways they're queer,
Because I know they couldn't heed them
Probably wouldn't even read them.
The power of speech in women grieves me
Ya-ta-ta, Ya-ta-ta, really peeves me.
A women's words are like a riddle,
Talk so much and say so little
Paint and powder truly harm
A real beauty's natural charm.
I paint a house to stand the rain,
But paint on people seems insane.
Set and puff a cigarette
But won't inhale on a bet,
And blow the smoke to form a cover
So they can't see each other.
Brag about their fine bridge game
And find a man to take the blame.
They're better - yes - it's probably true,
But then that's all they ever do.
I find that I cannot depend
On any woman, foe or friend.
They say one thing and do another.
When offended run to mother.
Women pout and women worry,
Always late but never hurry.
A million things I could relate,
But have no time I got a date.

(If you're going to stay our bachelor boy, Del you're sure off to a fine start.)

Girls Tell of Trip to State Tourney

Have Big Time in Iowa's Capitol City

Four of us left Klemme Thursday with Mr. Ahrenkiel. We arrived in Des Moines at twelve o'clock. Since we weren't expecting the other two cars to get there until late in the afternoon we took in a double feature at the Paramount Theater. We left the theater at three thirty and decided to go to Younkers and ride the escalators. After about a half hour of this we went to the Savery Hotel and started our two hour wait for the other girls.

Seems Mr. Johnson's car made it to the outskirts of Des Moines and that was all. Neva's car full came on in to the hotel and Mr. Johnson took his to the garage. Since most of us were there we checked in and were assigned to our rooms. Seven of us were in room 402 and the four freshmen had room 503.

It seems the seven upperclassmen managed to get a key to room 503 and did considerable damage while the others were out. (Like short sheeting their beds the first night and putting itching powder in their p-j.'s the second night.)

We ate supper at the hotel Thursday night and went right out to the field house. We had a race between the two taxies we were riding in on the way out. We saw Mr. Ellingson at the half of the first game.

We returned to the hotel right after the game and retired early. There was quite a comotion out on the street about two o'clock so we all got up and hung out the windows.

At three o'clock we finally got rid of the girls from across the hall, who thought they were going to stay all night with us. Then since there was a "boy-scout" out in the hall we decided to quiet down.

We had planned to stay in bed late Friday morning but the girls across the hall changed our minds. We decided to take a look at the capital while we were there so after eating breakfast in the hotel and calling Mr. Johnson on the phone to get him out of bed, we all piled into a taxi and rode up to the capital It cost us the enormous amount of six cents each. We decided right then we couldn't afford this again and that we were going to walk back. We climbed to the top of the dome and found when we got down again that our legs were shaking like leaves.

For dinner we ate at the West Room in the Savery Hotel and appeared on the Iowa Feature Fair at one o'clock.

After this half of the girls went to another show and the rest of us went shopping

Some of us went down to the WHO studio to watch Bobby Dick put on his show at five o'clock but we were late and only got to hear his last song. When he came out of the broadcasting room we cornered him and talked him into singing some songs for us.

We took a cab out to the field house at 6:45. Neither of the teams we wanted to win, did, but we were satisfid at having seen two good games. We had quite a time finding a cab back to the hotel, but finally found one.

Mr. Whitford came down to the games Friday night and stayed with Mr. Johnson so Mr. Johnson moved into room 402, and occupied the sofa. What a time we had in the morning with eight of us trying to use sink at once.

Mr. Johnson's plans were to leave for home at 9:30 Saturday morning but they were changed. We all decided we needed to buy dog collars so about nine forty-five we started out on a shopping trip. We got back to the hotel again about eleven thirty and started for home.

We hear Mr. Johnson's car really traveled between stops. First he'd stop for Lois (who picked up the flu some place in Des Moines) and then the car stopped.

We all had a very good time and we want to thank the school for their part in letting us go.

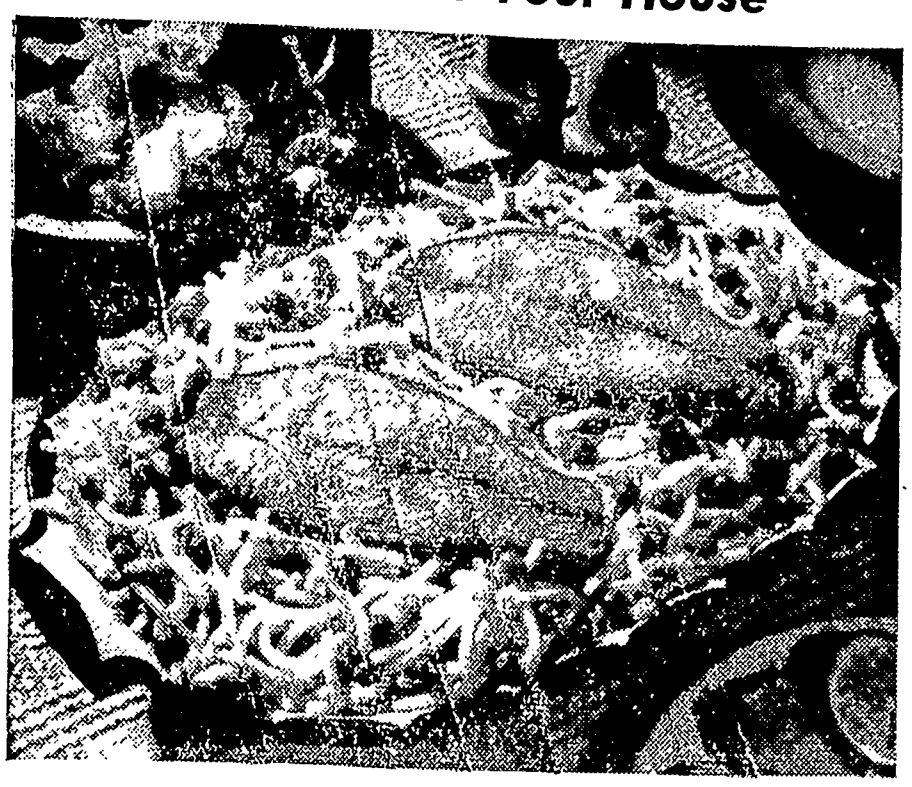
Simmered, Fried, Baked or Broiled—

Serve Fish at Your House



As you leaf through your recipe books on the lookout for Lenten menus, linger a while over the sections on fish. For, according to Edith Hewitt of the Foods and Nutrition Department at Iowa State College, fish rates high as a complete protein food and can be served in your meals with infinite variety.

You'll find lots of recipes, but if you haven't served fish very often at your house, pointers on some of the basic cookery methods may be just what you need.

Chances are you'll buy mostly frozen fish here in Iowa. Keep it frozen until you thaw it just before coking, Mrs. Hewitt advises, for fish is very perishable.

For a milder flavor and less fish odor during cooking, soak salt water fish or frozen fish in a diluted vinegar solution (¼ cup vinegar to 2 cups water) for about 15 minutes before cooking. Some homemakers like to use salt water for this soaking process (¼ cup salt to 2 cups water). Another odor-chasing trick is to rub salt on your hands and cooking utensils before washing them.

Simmered Fish

If you want to use fish in a salad, or perhaps in a cream sauce with hard-cooked eggs, simmering is the answer. Just simmer it in water until it's flaky, moist and creamy whit. You can cook fresh frozen codfish, haddock, red snapper or salmon this way.

Steam-Fried Fish

It takes a bit of practice and know-how to serve fish that's golden brown on the outside, well cooked and delicately flavored on the inside every time.

Mrs. Hewitt seasons thawed fish, about ½ to ¾ inch thick, rolls it in cornmeal or flour and cooks it in hot fat. (Don't get it so hot that it starts to smoke, however, she cautions.) Cook 3 minutes, cover skillet with a lid, remove from heat, and let fish steam for 2 minutes. Turn the pieces of fish and repeat. Fish is done if flesh flakes apart easily when pierced with a fork.

Baked Fish

Trout, pike, white fish, red snapper and salmon that weigh at least 2 pounds are best for baking. Fish should be thoroughly cleaned, but leave head and tail on if you wish, says Mrs. Hewitt. Stuff lightly with a bread stuffing seasoned with butter, pepper, salt, onion, parsley and either chopped dill pickle or dill seed. Close opening with skewers or lacing of string.

Fish breaks easily, so it's a good idea to use the same heat-resistant platter for baking and serving it. Or place the fish on foil so that it will be easy to lift onto a serving platter after baking.

Rub outside of fish with fat and baste with a mixture of butter and water every 10 minutes during baking. Bake approximately 15 minutes per pound in a 400-degree F. oven.

If you're cooking for only a few persons, place stuffing between two steaks or fillets and bake as you would a whole fish.

Broiled Fish

Preheat your broiler. Use a damp cloth to moisten steaks or fillets, then dust lightly with flour and brush or spread with table fat. Place it on foil, both to protect broiler rack and so that you can remove the fish easily. Broil about 2 or 3 inches from the flame or unit for about 8 minutes. Baste once. You don't need to turn fish. When done, sprinkle with salt and pepper, garnish and serve immediately.

Good garnishes for fried, baked or broiled fish are hard-cooked eggs, lemon, curly endive, parsley and cucumber slices.

Young People Discuss World Affairs Bi-weekly

Hancock is one of three Iowa counties that has begun an experiment in developing among young people a better understanding of "World Affairs Are Your Affairs." The local program is a part of a similar exploration being conducted in four other states.

Taking the lead in the local program is the RYP group. Members of the organization are cooperating with the Agricultural Extension Service at Iowa State College and the National 4-H Club Foundation in the study.

In an attempt to measure the effectiveness of discussion techniques, interested young people meet at regular intervals. They see motion pictures taken in foreign countries and then discuss points suggested by the films and ideas they gained from reading prior to the meeting an article in a manual of essays.

The first meeting of the discusion group was held February 2. Those taking part are continuing to meet at bi-weekly intervals. Chairman of the forum is Lois Hueneman, Garner, Iowa.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer Installment Twenty-three

SWANSON HATCHERY

The natural way to raise chicken is for the hen to sneak away, hide her nest in the grove somewhere, lay a setting of eggs, sit on them for three weeks, and then proudly strut forth with a brood of lovely little chickens following after her. She hovers them, finds food for them, and teaches them to catch bugs and to scratch for worms. In a few short weeks, they are feathered out and able to shift for themselves.

This method was best, but it was slow, so the farmers started using incubators of 100 or 200 capacity. These were heated with a kerosene lamp and it took considerable time to turn the eggs, keep the lamp going, etc. Sometimes the lamp went out which was too bad.

In 1927, Albert Swanson installed a large incubator on his farm, two miles northeast of Klemme. This incubator was heated by electricty. He had one of the Delco electricity generating plants on his farm. He could hatch 20,000 eggs at a time. This was very nice indeed. The farmers brought their eggs to his hatchery and came again in 3 weeks and took the baby chicks home. This saved the farmer a lot of mess and bother. Albert operated on the farm for eleven years.

In 1938, the Swanson Hatchery was moved to Klemme, which made it more accessible for their customers. The firm now consists of Albert Swanson and Leonard Swanson. Leonard is the managing partner.

They installed new incubators, new style all electric type, with a capacity of 80,000 eggs per setting, which is four times the capacity of their farm plant.

Besides the large main hatchery building, they have two chicken houses where the 800 laying hens live happily under the most perfect conditions. Also a mill for grinding and mixing feeds, and there is a large feed storage house. It seems they never get done building, and the hatchery property looks like a small village.

Albert Swanson also has facilities on his farm to house and care for 1100 laying hens. They specialize in Leghorn chickens. Their laying flocks are treated and guaranteed free from disease.

They hatch about 150,000 chicks during the season which is from about March 1st to June 1st each year. Most customers at the present time prefer ten day old chicks.

Their business has grown large because both their chicks and their service are good.

THE POST OFFICE

Klemme has had nine postmasters in sixty-three years. They are A. B. Schaefer in his store; Charles Grueszmacher, in his store; Steve Day, in the theater building; John Gruetzmacher, in his store; John Waterman, in Kluckhohns and in Jostens; John Day, in his store and the bank building; Franklin Kluckhohn, in the Will Johnson building.

Postmasters are appointed for a four year term. To get the job you must pass a civil service examination and you must be recommended by the congressman from your distict. And then no one is considered except a service man. But we have new laws by the "New Deal" which will allow Kluckhohn to be our postmaster as long as he lives, or as long as he chooses to stay. We all like our postmaster and would be pleased to have him stay, but we will keep our fingers crossed. Since the Republicans are in, almost anything can happen.

Our postoffice is listed as a large third class office, and with all the extra work from parcel post packages coming and going, selling money orders, bonds and savings stamps, there is more work than one man can attend to. Thus, our present postmaster, Franklin Kluckhohn, has one regular full time assistant, Garland Brinkman. When extra help is needed, Mrs. Dwight Hummel helps out.

Klemme has one free delivery route established in 1924. Sumner Trumbell has been our first and only mail carrier to date. He serves 140 patrons daily. In case he is sick or on vacation, there is a substitute carrier, Orville Bridges, who takes over, as the mail must go out every day if at all possible.

The business seems to grow from year to year. In April 1890, the total stamps sold for the month was $13.60. For the same month in 1952, it was $388.00. During the Christmas rush this year, they sold $100.00 worth of stamps in one day.

During the last war, a mail ship was sunk in the ocean. Months later divers recovered the mail sacks. One wet letter was returned to Klemme. The address was illegible, but the postmark said Klemme and our postmaster was able to return same to the writer.

The biggest headache for our postoffice is the misdirected mail which comes in. The postmaster makes inquiries and tries to help this mail to its destination. Every day the same old chore. Another headache is the outgoing packages. So many are poorly wrapped and badly tied.

SHOE REPAIR

The Gruetzmacher Harness Shop was really a factory, as the harnesses were hand made right here in Klemme. One or two men were kept busy making harnesses for this community. Mr. Gruetzmacher also employed a cobbler who mended shoes. For many years there was always a cobbler in the Gruetzmacher Harness Shop.

In 1919, when Wellemeyer moved into the new building, a repair shop was added in connection with the shoe department. Our cobbler not only repaired shoes, but also framed pictures, repaired sewing machines, vulcanized tires and did "Tinker Jobs" of all kinds. Among the men who operated in our shop were: Chris Blumer, Art Freemeyer, Frank Carpenter, Fred Gates and Ned Howard.

The last cobbler to operate in the Frank Gruetzmacher building was Walter Kimball. He moved out several years ago.

In 1949, Kenneth Kluckhohn, opened up a shoe store and repair shop in the Wiles Building. He has more eqiupment than any of his predecessors, is naturally a good mechanic, and takes pride in turning out really good work. It is a fact, that any pair of shoes will give double wear or last twice as long if you take them to Keneth now and then for repair. A stitch in time you know saves nine.

He also repairs binder canvass, tarps, and other canvass goods, repairs and oils harnesses, and sells boots and shoes. His business has grown so that his space had to be enlarged. He now has twice the space he formerly had.

LLOYD LAU

In the early days, when all merchandise for the stores arrived by rail, Lloyd Lau was our drayman. He was always careful, dependable and accomodating. In 1918, he bought his first truck and later disposed of his horses.

Today, the draying business has just about vanished, but he now has four trucks and helps folks move, hauls rubbish and ashes in the spring. Indeed the town could hardly get along without the services of Lloyd Lau.

His main business just now is shelling corn. He has good equipment and will shell 300,000 bus- of the 1952 corn crop.

Lloyd Lau has been our junk dealer for thirty years or more. He shipped out 220 tons of steel recently.

ROY I. SCHAEFER

For the past six years, Roy Schaefer has been a ditch contractor. He puts in from 15 to 20 miles of tile each season.

He also puts in farm water systems, sewers and similiar jobs. George Griemann, the inventor, usually operates the trench machine.

Roy and his men are dependable and their work gives satisfaction.

COMMERCIAL

Little furniture factories started up here and there in about 1890.

The cabinet makers could not keep up with the demand for furniture and the factories were needed. They did produce staple furniture items for less money than was possible in the cabinet shops.

The cabinet maker could build a good quality dining chair for from 75c to $1.25 each.

The factory turned out a simple but strong "bow-back" chair which sold in the stores for 55c each.

Thus, the cabinet maker disappeared and the furniture store took his place.

And, the furniture dealer also sold coffins and in later years developed into the funeral director of today.

BATS

14 year old Walter Searcy, Independence, who is a budding naturalist, recently found a cluster of hibernating bats in an old brewery, brought them home and put them in a card-board box. A few days later the bats warmed and made things rather lively in the Searcy household. They killed 20 bats.

DIES

Elkader lost one of its oldest residents recently, in the death of 91-year old H. D. Brown. He had lived in Elkader since 1884.

100TH

At Stanwood, Mrs. Sarah Graft recently observed her 100th birthday. Born in 1863, she's a pioneer resident of Cedar County.

Traffic Accident Report to be Made Easier

Simplified traffic accident reporting is ahead for Iowa drivers a bill introduced in the state senate wins passage, according to Milo Chalfant, director of the state safety department's safety responsibility division.

S. F. 267 would allow a driver to include information concerning his liability insurance coverage on the accident report he sends to the state safety department.

The department would forward this information to the driver's insurance carrier for verification and, in the meantime, accept it as proof of insurance in effect at the time of the accident.

Now, a driver involved in an accident must depend upon his insurance company to send proof of insurance in effect (S. R. 21) to the state safety department, and the department must match the information with the correct accident report among hundreds received daily.

"A delay or clerical error in the S. R. 21 can cause unnecessary work and trouble for all concerned," Chalfant said.

He pointed out that under such conditions, a driver might be accused of failing to comply with the safety responsibility law when actually, he may have attempted to meet all requirements.

Chalfant said passage of the bill would pave the way for use in Iowa of a new accident report which is now being approved for national use, which includes a section for insurance information, and which will reqiure less information than the present form.

Farm Workers Placed Through Job Clinic

The Iowa State Employment Service reports that fourteen farmhands were hired by that many farmers at the first Farm Job Clinic held in Mason City on February 25th. Frank Fiala, manager of the Mason City office, considered the Clinic a big success. The fact that seventy per cent of the farmers who attended the Clinic found a man is very encouraging, he added.

«Seven of the workers who found jobs were single, and seven were married farmhands. The wages ranged from $100 to $150 for the single workers and $150 to $225 for married workers.

Including the fourteen placements that were made at the Farm Clinic, a total of fifty-nine were made during the month of February. Twenty-two of these were made by the Volunteer Farm Placement Represetatives in the five-county area.

There still remain forty-six farm job openings, and Carl J. Grosland, Farm Placement Representative, anounces that a second clinic will be held on Wednesday, March 11th, from one to three p. m., and he urges all available workers with farm experience to attend.

Liberty Busy Bees Met With Eunice Huenemann

"This is the way I fluff my pillow, fluff up my pillow, fluff up my pillow, as I do my daily work", was the song Carolyn Jass sang as she gave the talk on "Daily Care of My Room", at the February 4-H meeting of the Liberty Busy Bees at the home of Eunice Hueneman. Susan Haberkamp gave a talk on "How Can I Organize My Possessions". An illustrated talk "What Warm and Cool Colors Do for Our Room", by Pat Legge.

Janice Beier talked on the picture, "Rest on the Flight Into Egypt."

In the business meeting, 11 members answered roll call by a picture of some color scheme and improvement in my room, and plan I make. A bill was allowed to Mrs. Jass for the pictures for picture study.

Rosemary Josten and Virginia Baggs joined the club.

The next meeting will be on March 21 at Gail Knutsons.

Tuberculosis Program Concluded in County

During the eleventh annual case-finding program in Hancock County, 22 persons were x-rayed, according to reports from the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association and the Division of Tuberculosis—State Department of Health.

No probable cases of tuberculosis were found. The program was directed by Mattie Peterson, public health nurse, who interviewed persons believed to have been exposed to tuberculosis. She took 30 case histories, called in 20 homes and had conferences with 12 physicians.

The case-finding program is sponsored jointly by the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association, the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association and the State Department of Health. It has the approval of the Hancock County Medical Society. Local Christmas Seal funds help defray the expense of the program.

Four non-tuberculosis findings were revealed in the chest x-rays for which further medical study was rcommended. There were 17 persons for whom miniature x-ray films showed healthy chests.

The Contact Program was initiated in Iowa in 1937 and it has gained momentum until there are now approximately 80 counties participating in this casefinding survey to detect tuberculosis in its erly tage when it is most curable.

Through the continuous effort to find the case and treat the patient, the eventual goal of the more than 3,000 Tuberculosis Associations in this Nation will finally be achieved—The Eradication of Tuberculosis.

Good Records Stressed at Farm Loan Ass'n Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the United National Farm Loan Association of Forest City, was held at the Methodist Church basement of Forest City, Iowa, on Thursday evening, March 12, 1953. The Women's Society of Christian Service served a very appealing dinner, which was enjoyed by everyone. A record crowd attended.

Two very interesting speakers pleased the audience with informative speeches. Thomas A. Maxwell, Jr., Treasurer of the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, expressed the necessity of good, accurate, and complete records, and gave illustrations to carry out his point of view. He also gave report of the activities of the Federal Land Bank, which predicted that the Federal Land Bank will not need to raise its interest rates during the next three years. The Federal Land Bank loaned over 28 million dollars in 1952 to farmers in the four states of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, and Wyoming.

Rev. Sidney A. Rand, President of Waldorf College, expressed his thoughts on getting more out of living, and the satisfaction and contentment that can be had from helping others.

C. M. Palmer and Melvin J. Bergland were reelected to succeed themselves for 3-year terms as directors of the National Farm Loan Association Board.

Treasurer of the United Nat'l Farm Loan Association gave the report on the last year's business activities, which was one of the largest since the depression days.

C. M. Palmer, President of the Board of Directors, presided.

County Quota of $3,000 Should be Reached

The town of Klemme was the first precinct to complete the 1953 Red Cross roll call according to Hancock County Auditor, Maynard Schoneman, Garner Chapter Roll Call Chairman, who reported that $286.30 had been received from Mrs. Dwight Hummel, Klemme chairman.

The total receipts to date are $539.30 from the east half of Hancock county from five precincts and if receipts from other areas keep pace with those reported, the Garner Chapter will reach its quota of $3,000. Chairman Schoneman urges all workers to make a special effort to get the canvass completed as soon as possible so that reports can be processed by the end of March.

The need for Red Cross services is greater than ever and merits every citizen's attention and a generous response is solicited by local Red Cross officials.

KHS Basketballers to be Feted at Banquet

Both the Klemme Shamrocks and the Shamrockettes had good teams this season, and provided a lot of entertainment for local basketball fans. To show their appreciation, Klemme business men got together and contributed enough money to feed them all steaks.

The dinner will be next Monday evening, March 23, at the grade school, and the dads of the starting five Shamrocks are to be waiters for the evening. Some of them should look real cute in fancy plastic aprons. The Music Mothers will be in charge of preparing the meal.

Mitchell Bock Suffers Eye Injury

Mitchell Bock, who farms two and a half miles east of town, had a rather unpleasant experience Tuesday afternoon. He was cleaning out the bull-pen in his barn, a job that requires rather close communion with a five-tined fork, when the fork handle broke.

"Mitch" says he don't know just what happened then, but he must have fallen backwards and hit himself in the left eye with the jagged end of the broken handle. The upper eye lid was pierced and two gashes were cut in the eye ball.

His wife brought him into Dr. Dulmes, and after examination, the Dr. sent him on to Mason City to an eye specialist. Treatment was made and the specialist expressed the opinion that there would probably be no lasting ill affects.

"Mitch" was listening to the state tournament games while he was working, and we wonder if maybe he didn't just get too excited and heave to hard on that five-tined critter.

A-Bomb

After watching the A-bomb explosion on TV, Tuesday morning, we are glad that we were so far removed from the scene of the blast. They said that this was just a small spectacle compared to some that have taken place in the past. Could be, but it looked mighty rough to us. We'll be glad when they get through trying to see how much destructive force they can wring out of the atom, and start developing things to better living conditions for people throughout the world. If all the energy was controlled and expended in the right direction, it could be a wonderful power for good.

Around the Corner

We go through each winter's ice and snow with a sense of resignation. We know that in this part of the world there is going to be about so much snow and ice, and we try and get along with it. But, when it gets this close to spring, we get restless. Outdoors is much nicer than indoors, and we know that with good weather there are many expeditions to be taken . . . golfing, fishing, swimming, picnicing, etc. However, it seems that we always start planning too quickly, and then winter takes another shot at us and spoils things again. This is the season when spring is always "just around the corner", but it always seems to us to be so far to the corner. The last couple of weeks before spring finally makes it, always seem longer to us than all the rest of the winter.

State Tournament

The big annual fracas is under way at Iowa City again, and already there have been upsets. As we write this (Wednesday morning), we are wondering just who is going to win through. Like everyone else, we have our favorites. We would like to see Fertile go all the way, but we doubt that they have the power to stop Ottumwa, who usually puts out a hard-driving, ball-handling team. We'll keep our fingers crossed for them, though.

There is a lot of discussion, pro and con, about Roland's Gary Thompson. We have seen him play on three different occasions, and regardless of what happens to his team at the state meet, we think he is a fine ball player. As an individual, he's not flashy, but he's a workman. He seems to have the knack of being at the right place at the right time, and in spite of all the publicity he has had in the past three seasons, he is still a team player. He's playing with a pretty fair team, too, and if Fertile goes by the board, then our sentiments are all with Roland.

30 YEARS AGO—

Jeff Bell was a Garner visitor between trains yesterday morning.

Gus Baack and family are staying out in the country awhile in town to Tom Roths and wife, and they have rented their house who moved Saturday.

Snowed again Sunday night and some Monday morning. Great stuff but we are getting too much snow. Last night it snowed again! It is still snowing and there will soon be a foot on the level. This will tickle Walt Bloom, we bet.

Clint Stokebary and Ulrich Hippen with the aid of a couple of dogs, killed a raccoon last Saturday. They were out getting a load of hay when the dogs scented the 'coon. Clint killed it with a pitchfork. 'Coons are rather scarce in this neck of the woods and is quite a curiosity.

20 YEARS AGO—

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Kropp and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ridder and children visited at the Emil Beier home Sunday evening.

Wednesday of last week the children of Liberty No. 1 planned a surprise for their teacher, Miss Norma Stromer, the occasion being Miss Stromer's birthday. The last period of the day was spent playing games and refreshments were served. Mrs. H. A. Griemann baked the birthday cake.

Paul Grange spent most of the time the past week attending the grand jury at the Court House in Garner.

Mr. and Mrs. George Caroles and children and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barz were Mason City visitors on Sunday.

10 YEARS AGO—

Mrs. Ed Blanchet returned Saturday from Camp Hulen, Texas, where she had accompanied her husband Cpl. Ed Blanchet after he had been here on furlough. Mrs. Blanchet had expected to remain in Texas but the camp was quarantined indefinitely for the measles and Cpl. Blanchet was unable to leave camp until the quarantine was lifted.

Sgt. Asa Arnold, who is stationed at Camp Adair, Oregon arrived in Klemme Tuesday forenoon for a visit with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Arnold and other relatives.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Zabilka and son Billy, of Sanborn, Iowa, spent Monday and part of Tuesday in this community. They wer supper guests at the E. J. Arnold home and spent the night at the C. A. Larsen home. Billy has received notice to report for army duty in about a week. He did not attend college this semester as he was awaiting his call to the service.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer Installment Twenty-Four

CEMETERIES

In this chapter we tell about the different burial places located in the four townships nearest Klemme, namely Ell, Liberty, Twin Lake, and Avery.

The First White Burials

There were a few burials in "Upper Grove" before there were any cemeteries established in Hancock County. These were made in a spot of natural timber near the center of the north half section 29, Avery Township. This land was owned by Benoni Haskins.

The first death was that of Geo. W. Haskins, a son of Benoni and Abigail Haskins, who died June 2, 1855.

The following year, in the early summer, a lone covered wagon with a family of emigrants, camped for a few days on this Benoni Haskins farm. The wife had been complaining of a bad sore throat, and they camped in this spot of natural timber to make her more comfortable and nurse her back to health, but, in spite of their best efforts, the lady died and was buried beneath the shady trees. This was the second white burial in Hancock County. The name of the lady is unknown to us, but the grave was marked by a cutting of "live-for-ever" which the husband planted. It took root and spread over the grave and would grow green every spring for many years.

In 1863, there were three infants buried here. Two children of M. S. Gillman, and one of George Savogues.

The above five are perhaps the only burials made in this private burial ground. While Geo. Elder owned the farm, he protected this burial place with a fence, but today the fence is down, and even the "live-for-ever" is trampled out by the cattle. There are no grave markers and I find no record as to whether or not any disinterments have been made from this burial place.

A Family Burial Plot

The next cemetery in the Klemme trade territory was locatd on a sandy knoll of the Sebastian Ell farm (on the south edge of the S. E. quarter of Section 5 in Ell Twp.).

Sebastian Ell, for whom this township was named, moved in from Illinois, September 23, 1870. The following year his father-in-law, John Weidmann, age 81, died and was the first burial in this family plot. Others who were buried here included: three infants of George Kluckhohn, named Leroy, Myrtle, and William, an infant of Fred Bock; an infant of Rev. and Mrs. Gotlieb Gates; Charles Gates; John Gates; an infant of Mr. and Mrs. George Gates; Nis Nissen; two infant daugthers of Mr. and Mrs. Nis Nissen; Mrs. Horace Merrill; and Mrs. Sebastian Ell. Seventeen burials all told.

Twenty-seven years later, Sebastian Ell, then a man of 77 years, having sold the farm, arranged to have all of the bodies moved. This was in 1898. A few of the bodies were taken to the Garner Cemetery and the others to the Klemme Cemetery. This work was done by Fred Gates, Phillip Ell and John E. Baumgartner. Thus, this family burial plot was discontinued.

The Elltown Church Cemetery

The third cemetery to be established in the Klemme territory was at the Ell Township Reformed Church. (Section 7 Ell Township.)

The founders of this church, in the year 1878, purchased enough land (five acres) to accommodate the church building, the pastor's residence, and space for the burial of its members and their friends. This burial ground is surrounded with tall and stately evergreen trees.

In the beginning it was their custom to bury in rotation. Those who were members of the church were buried on the east side of the cemetery drive, and the children who had not yet attained membership, were buried in rotation on the west side of the drive. However, they later adopted the plan of family size lots.

For seventy-five years this "church yard" has been used for burial purposes and it is indeed a beautiful custom. The graves of the founders of the church, and other loyal members provide an atmosphere of quiet dignity to the entire church property.

This cemetery is well kept and will continue to be the logical place of burial for the membership of this church community.

There seems to be about 150 marked graves in this "church yard cemetery", and possibly a half dozen other graves which are unmarked.

The first burial seems to have been Henry Katter, age 57, in 1880. The oldest person buried here is Wilhelmina Upmeyer, age 88.

Township Cemeteries

The next move in the establishment of cemeteries was county wide. Each of the sixteen townships in Hancock County set aside a few acres of land for burial purposes. Where there was a town in the township the cemetery was often located near the town. Otherwise it was located near the center of the township.

At that time, without embalming, and with dirt roads and horse drawn conveyances, it was next to impossible to move a body far for burial. During the summer months the remains would decompose rapidly because of the heat. During the spring and fall, in a rainy spell, the muddy roads sometimes became bottomless, and during the winter months, the roads were sometimes blocked with snow. Thus it was necessary to have a cemetery close by, and one was established in each township.

At the present time there are four well kept cemeteries located within the four townships of the Klemme trade territory. They are: the Elltown Reformed Church Yard, mentioned above; The Ell Township Cemetery, located at Klemme, Iowa; the Liberty Township Cemetery, near Liberty Methodist Church; and the Amsterdam Cemetery, 1 mile east of Goodell, Iowa.

Today, the tendency seems to be to have fewer cemeteries and better ones. With modern embalming methods, automobiles, and paved roads, it is an easier matter to bring a body back to his home community for burial even though the distance be several hundred miles.

Twin Lake Township Cemetery

The bodies buried here have been moved, the land was sold at auction and the cemetery discontinued.

The story of the passing of the Twin Lake Township Cemetery is interesting because it is typical of many other township cemeteries, some of which are now more or less neglected and poorly cared for.

Hancock County was organized in 1858. Ten years later, the court house was built at Concord. Then on October 7, 1882, Twin Lake Township was organized. Shortly thereafter, the township trustees purchased a a two acre tract of land in the southwest corner of section fifteen (near the center of the township) size 12 rods wide and 26½ rods long, for use as a burial ground.

This cemetery was enclosed with a woven wire fence and surrounded with beautiful evergreen trees, and was indeed a nice lay-out for a township cemetery.

The first burial here was twin babies, children of Ashley and Emma Boughton, who died in August, 1885. The father marked the place of burial with two little evergreen trees.

In December of the same year, 1885, Doc Lawson, a pauper, probably single, without relatives, age 75 years, was buried by the John Christie family. So we were told by Alf. C. Carpenter of Goodell, Iowa, who said he had attended the burial service and that this grave was located near the center of the cemetery.

Five years later, in 1890, Frank and Eva Ruka laid away their first born, an infant son. This grave was located 15 feet north of the Boughton twins.

The day old infant of Gerhart Sandman buried in 1912, and a still born daughter of August Rabe buried in 1914, were buried side by side near the center of the cemetery and about six feet from the west line fence.

These are probably the only burials ever made in this cemetery. At least the township trustees of today, Ed Schoenwetter, Albert Kudej, and Sam Barber, have no record of any further burials. In fact, the township books and records were burned when the residence of A. A. Johnson, township clerk, was destroyed by fire many years ago.

Such information as we have concerning this cemetery and the burials therein was obtained from older residents of the township, namely, George Ruka, Peter Peterson, August Rabe, G. Sandman, Alf C. Carpenter and others.

Now, twenty-seven years have elapsed since the last burial was made. The township trustees of 1940 felt convinced that no family would choose to make further burials in this township cemetery and their thought was that if the relatives were willing they would move the bodies, mostly at township expense, sell the land. and thus save the expense of up-keep on a cemetery no longer needed.

The families interested were contacted and permission was obtained for the removal of all bodies except Doc Lawson, who had no known relatives.

The Ashley Boughton twins, the babies of G. Sandman and August Rabe were all moved to the Belmond, Iowa, cemetery and now each lies with other relatives.

The Ruka boy was moved to the Amsterdam Cemetery near Goodell, beside his parents, Frank and Eva Ruka.

Some of these bodies were moved December 10, 1940, and the others moved April 22, 1941.

We moved all except Doc Lawson. Fifteen test holes were made in the middle third of the cemetry where Alf C. Carpenter remembered that Lawson had been buried 55 years ago, but we could find no trace of his grave. We therefore discontinued our search. Perhaps, at some future time, when this land is plowed for crops, the outline of his grave may appear. The soil is black loam with clay underneath.

The removal of the above mentioned bodies was done under the personal supervision of Arthur Wellemeyer, Funeral Director, Klemme, Iowa, according to the rules of the Iowa State Board of Health.

On May 1, 1941, the cemetery land was sold at auction for something like $55.00 and was purchased by the land owner whose farm it joined.

And thus ends the story of the Twin Lake Township Cemetery.

COMMERCIAL

The wooden coffins, all one style, but in four sizes, did not provide enough variety to satisfy the buying public. To meet this need, by 1910, the factories started making cloth covered caskets. The name coffin was dropped from use.

Baby and children's caskets were made in white crepe and in white plush. Adult caskets were black in color, either in English crepe cloth or in all wool broadcloth, and a more elegant black broadcloth was made with a folded drape and tassels on each side.

Then came World War I and the flu epidmic, at which time the factories developed the "Half-Couch" casket. These arrived lined, complete and with handles and hardware attached.

Black caskets were out. Customers preferred gray and later other colors. The quality of covering was in great variety, and ranged frm lamskin, which was a glorified and figured cotton flannel, to a gorgeous and expensive silk plush.

A new type hardwood casket began to appear on our floor.

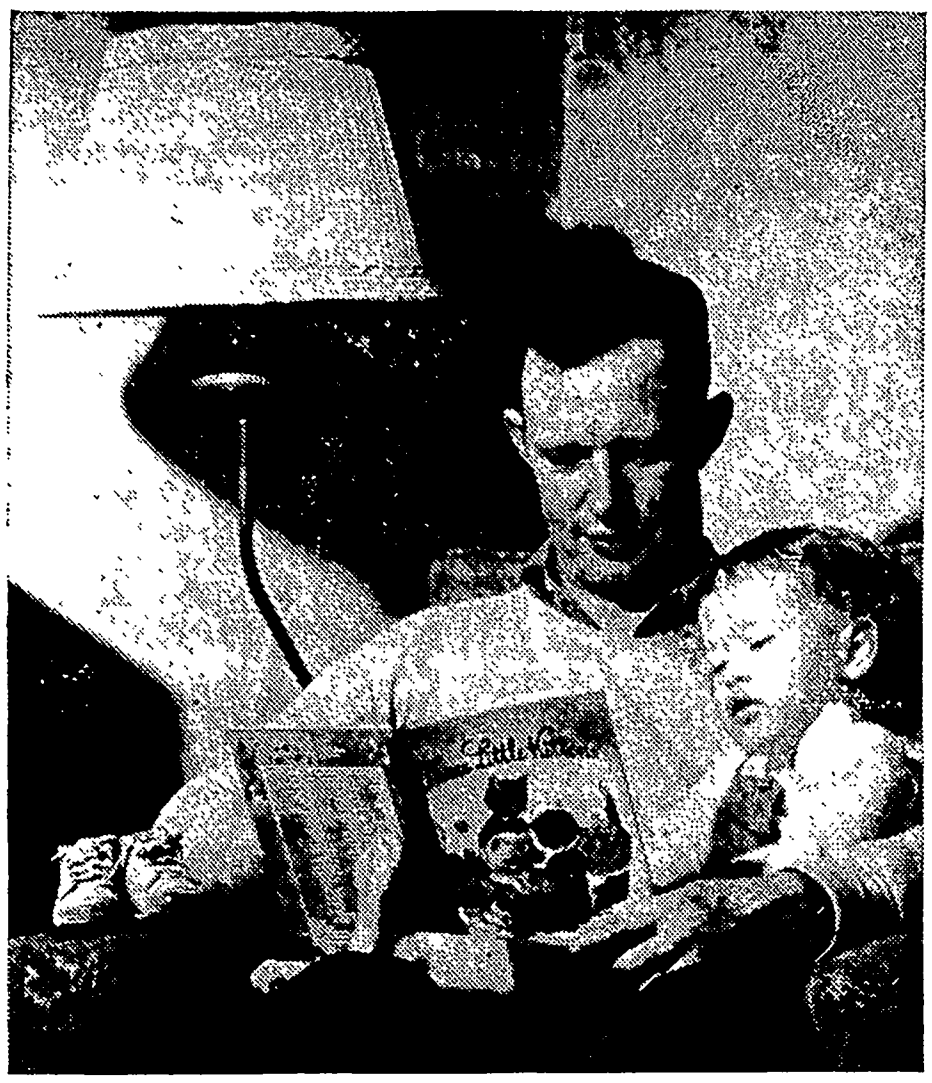
Speaker at ISC Family Life Conference Says—

"Let's Have More Family Story Telling"



The years that separate grown-ups and youngsters seem to disappear when they settle down to find companionship and fun in a good story.

Radio, the TV set, the new washer, the comforts of life—these aren't the things that will hold families together, and make home a refreshing retreat from the tensions and too-fast pace of life beyond the yard.

What does impart strength, security and happiness is a combination of all those big and little things a family finds time to do together. And family story telling is one of these all-important activities, according to Bill Martin, Jr., Kansas City, Missouri, author and professional story teller.

Martin, who is to be guest speaker on the Family Life Conference banquet program, Thursday evening, March 19 at Iowa State College, strongly believes there should be more story telling going on in the homes across the nation.

Years Melt Away

"The greatest conflict between children and adults is the element of time," says Martin. "In family story-telling sessions, the years are pushed away while youngsters and grown-ups find companionship in a good yarn."

Martin is an author of children's books, a career that started out as a hobby while he was in the army during World War II. His stories, he says, are all designed to be read out loud. He has observed in his story-telling tours throughout the country that parents seem to enjoy well-told children's stories just as much as the kiddies do.

He also feels that children often understand stories way beyond their actual reading ability. Child development authorities at Iowa State College second this conclusion. They say that many a lucky little boy or girl has been introduced early to the adventure tales woven by Bret Harte, Jack London and Mark Twain, to the wonderful upside-down world of James Thurber, to Jonathan Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," and many other commonly thought of as books for adults or older-age children.

Family Stories

Stories that never grow old in the family circle are the ones Mom and Dad tell of "When I was a little boy (or girl)," says Martin. Some of these stories that start out as bed-time tales are embellished and repeated through the years at family get-to-gethers and bring back fond memories.

"Anyone can tell a story," says Martin. And anyhow, he maintains, the techniques of story telling aren't nearly as important as just the telling. He believes that a story gains its complete emotional impact and becomes a living experience only when it's told out loud.

Many stories do need interpreting to a youngster, he adds. Often, he feels, children are not helped past the story itself and never get the meaning which may be the prime reason for using the story.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

What is probably the most sharply restricted drivers license in the state belongs to a retired farmer who is allowed to drive just two miles a day, five days a week.

He is permitted to drive to the mail box one mile from his farm home and to return. Because of infirmaties that would make him a danger to himself and to others in traffic, he may not drive anywhere else at any time.

According to Lieutenant Harry O. Brown, chief hearing officer of the highway patrol, there are many cases in which licenses are restricted to fit the needs and capabilites of the holder.

A number of aged Iowans havi licenses which they may use only to drive to and from a cemetery. They must go by a certain route which avoids heavy traffic and during daylight hours.

"They only want to drive a car so that they can visit the grave of some departed loved one," Brown said. "We find them the safest route."

Brown spends much of his time working with Iowans who, for one reason or another, have reached the end of the driving rope. Most of them have become involved in so many accidents, violations or both that they are ripe for suspension or revocation.

"People begin to take their driving privilege seriously when they are faced with the loss of it," Brown said.

He reported that some drivers who have been put on probation have changed their occupations or moved out of heavy traffic areas in order to stay out of trouble.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Are Farmers Prosperous?

"Farmers certainly had a wonderful year," said Cousin Ed, as he put the coffee pot back on the stove.

"No better than 100 years ago," I said, figuring to startle him.

Well, I succeeded. Maybe I can surprise you, too, with some figures I dug out of old Iowa records of 1857.

Hay, then, was $14 a ton. Corn 75c a bushel. Wheat $1 a bushel. But land was only $5 an acre. And you didn't have to fertilize, or pay high taxes.

Not bad! Yet I'll bet most folks would have told you that farming today was ten times as profitable as 100 years ago.

It just shows what set opinions can do to a person, if he dosen't get the facts.

Ed poured himself more coffee, and I sipped the last of my beer . . . and we both agreed that it's a good idea to consider the other fellow's facts and opinions before we get too set in our conclusions on any subject.

EDITORIAL

All over the world wherever the Irish are living, March 17th is celebrated as St. Patrick's feast day. In the United States, this day is sometimes celebrated by people who are not Irish.

The time of St. Patrick dates back to 389-463 A. D. This patron saint of Ireland was born in England, France or Scotland. The Saint's British name was Sucat, but Patrick is the angelicized form of his Roman name. His life was very romantic and adventurous. Directed by a vision to return to Ireland as a missionary, he obeyed the call in 432 and for the rest of his life worked zealously in various parts of the island.

One of the most famous legends about St. Patrick is the one which represents him as charming the snakes of Ireland by his music so that they followed him to the seashores where they were driven into the water and drowned. Much that is told about him is legendary, for though he left an autobiography, "Confession", written in crude Latin, this places the emphasis on his work not on his life.

SEVENTH GRADE

We were happy to receive a card from Linda Swalve. It was mailed from Alberquerque, New Mexico and stated that they were enjoying their trip.

Donna Carolus, a transfer from Belmond, is now a member of our class. We hope she likes Klemme as well as Belmond.

In arithmetic we are learning how to find the circumference of a circle.

Our newest acquaintance in language is that very troublesome little thing called an adverb. Let me think now—does it modify a verb or a noun?

Betty Clayton uses some kind of magic that gets stars for her in arithmetic tests. What's the secret, Betty?

Carl Heginger brought us a new plant for our room.

EIGHTH GRADE

Next week we are going to have our nine weeks tests.

Arithmetic: We have started angles and bisecting.

English we are studying propositions and their modifiers. Trying to!

Health: We are studying the different kinds of bones in the body. We also played a game on locating the bones. La Vohn Josten and Marvalyn Carolus lead the game.

We had a dental card race between the boys and girls. The boys won so the girls have to pay their own way and also the boys way to the show.

The Junior High boys played Britt in the County Tournament and lost by a one point margin, 27-26. Twenty-one free throws were missed during the game. Martin Brinkman was high with 12 points.

Our motto for this week is: Knowledge is proud that he knows so much; Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.

SIXTH GRADE

On March 3, we had a club meeting and elected new officers. Gary Kothenbuetel was elected president; Dorothy Roul, vice president; Marlin Stadtlander, secretary; and Virginia Kudje, treasurer.

Harlan Lee Baack moved away the last part of February. Now we have a total of 14 in our class.

We have started an Iowa bulletin board. We are looking for pictures of places we study, to put up. We want to show the developement of Iowa from the time it was discovered to the present.

Recipe for Happiness

O well for him whose will is strong!
He suffers, but he will not suffer long;
He suffers, but he cannot suffer wrong.

Tennyson

Alaskan Tells of Life, Legends, and Serenades

FIFTH GRADE

Friday, February 27, Richard Swalve left our room. Dickie will be attending a school in California. We hope he will be happy in his new school. Our room enrollment has stayed the same as Ronald Kulby from Hardy has joined our room.

We are completing the study of our United States. We discovered Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico are found partly in the Great Plain States and in the Western Section. During our study we learned the capitol cities, industries, chief crops, and the important cities of each state.

Our work in language stresses writing good letters, using capital letters and punctuation marks. We hope to improve our letter writing by this work.

SOPHOMORE

After having taken a test over the internal organs of the cat we started reading the chapter on digestion.

Last Friday, in history we had a test over the chapter, "New nations and a new nationalism". On Monday we started the next chapter on the "Industrial Revolution".

In literature we have been reading the poem, "Gareth and Lynete".

In algebra, we have been multiplying fractions.

Nine Weeks Test

Yes, nine weeks tests are here again, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday will not be the happiest days for high school students this week. Everyone is diligently trying to remember all they have learned the last nine weeks, to prepare for the tests to be given on these days. However, there is encouragement in reaching test days again. This means three-fourths of the school year is completed and soon vacation will come.

"Are the hot wires ready?" came the stentorian voice.
"Yes, Master, red hot."
"Is the oil boiling?"
"Yes, Master, searing."
"Is the victim tied securely?"
"Yes, Master, she cannot move."
"Is the shroud over her?"
"Yes, Master."
"Okay, then give her the five dollar permanent."

Stubborn citizen: "I wouldn't vote for you if you were St. Peter himself."

Political candidate: "If I were St. Peter, my friend, you would not be in my precinct."

"Oh, dear," she exclaimed, "I've missed you so much!"

Then she raised her revolver and tried again.

C. D. major take note:
"I broke my kid of biting his nails"
"Yeah. How?"
"I knocked his teeth out."

Church notice: "There will be a church picnic tomorrow afternoon. If it rains in the afternoon the picnic will be held in the morning.

Annual Spelling Bee Held March 4

Sixth grade entered Jerry LaFavre, Cozette Lau, and Mardell Stadtlander.

In the seventh, Karen Clabough, Sandra Medin, and Roger Olson.

Eighth grade entered Arthur Carlson, Sharleen Swanson and Martin Brinkman.

Student's Essay

The following essay was written by a student of Klemme High upon the request of the principal, Mr. Andreae. The reason can be found in the title which is, "The Advantage Of Getting To School On Time."

The advantage of getting to school on time is that it saves you the time and trouble of going up to the principal's office and getting an excuse. If you leave for school on time, you don't have to run all the way and get a side-ache or an upset stomach.

By starting for school on time, you can walk all the way and take your time. You give yourself more time to study.

By getting to school on time you save the principal's time and avoid all the extra time that you would spend otherwise on writing a page theme or staying after school. The person who gets to school on time is the much wiser of the two because he saves himself all the trouble of seeing the principal and taking the punishment he deserves.

The writer's name, I will not mention; but I think this story can be of help to fellow students as a forewarning to those who think being on time for classes not important.

Junior College Entertains

An unsuspected assembly program broke the routine of school life Tuesday afternoon. Students from the Junior College of Mason City, came to our school and gave a very fine program consisting of vocal music, a one act drama, and an informative talk about the college.

Educational And Still Interesting

Tuesday, March 10 we were privileged to have an Eskimo from Alaska lecture to us about his country. His name given to him by his Eskimo mother and his Norweigian father is Nutchuk which means little seal. At the age of two, Nutchuk's mother died when his sister was born. His father sent them to different orphanages. At the age of eleven his sister died of diptheria not knowing that she had a brother. He stayed at the orphanage until he was nineteen years of age. He received his high school education in Alaska, and then he came to the United States to go to college in Illinois for two years until he no longer had enough money to finish college. He went to work in Chicago where he received a scholarship to go to music school. He worked as a pianst in Chicago, New York, and a few other places and then went back to record the legends and folk songs of his people in Alaska.

Nutchuk entertained us by telling us many of their legends and played the piano while he sang some of their native songs.

Nutchuk is one of the best known Eskimos in the world today and is a top notch pianist and author of several most successful books.

This lecture proved informative and very educational to all.

All you have to do if you want to know whether a girl is going steady is to look at her dog collar. By the looks of things Jo Ann B. is not going steady, I guess we were all mistaken about you and Cecil, Jo Ann, or is it just a secret?

I heard from a very reliable source that Joan L. was seen with Lyle G. at the basketball tournaments. I thought it was Bobby B. you were supposed to be going with.

What's this I hear about our little Faye J. I heard that you were seen with Gene McNutt at the Belmond dance, and you will probably be with him Friday. That's Friday the 13, Faye, so you had better be careful, and don't let a black cat walk in front of you, or you might have bad luck.

From all the whispering going on among the Juniors you would think the world was coming to an end. But they are just making plans for their Junior Senior Banquet. Have fun, kids!

If you see Daisy all aglow its just because Clarence is back again. Don't let him get away this time, Daisy.

If you happened to see Daisy S. and Lois C. going down the street counting, they weren't going crazy, they were just counting the number of steps from the Post Office to Shorthand class. Incidently, there are 627 steps. (That is an authentic report.)

I heard Lois C. wouldn't go to the show in Britt Sunday. What was the name of it anyway? So you ended up in that town, (Belmond). Oh well, it was a pretty good show, wasn't it?

We hardly recognized Lois Jacobs when she came to school Thursday with a new pair of glasses. Pretty cute, Lois. I wonder whether Calvin will think so!

Commission Announces New Fishing Laws

The 1953-54 Iowa fishing regulations, with several liberal changes, have been announced by the State Conservation Commission.

Closed seasons have been lifted from yellow bass, warmouth bass, sunfish, and bluegills, and these fish have been placed on the continuous open season list with crappies. Daily catch and possession limits will remain the same.

The open season for largemouth and smallmouth black bass in the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers and the inland waters of Lee County will begin this year on May 2nd, rather than on May 30th, as in 1952. The opening bass date for inland waters remains unchanged.

The daily limit on frogs, other than bullfrogs, has been increased to four dozen, with a possession limit of eight dozen. Bullfrog bag and possession limits remains at one dozen.

Another change in the regulations is the increase in the aggregate number of fish allowed each fisherman. Fishermen may now hold fifty fish of all kinds in the aggregate, an increase of twenty over last year.

The prohibition of minnow seining in state-owned lakes has been removed.

The open seasons and catch limits of all other species of fish remain unchanged. There is no length limit on any species of fish except black bass. No largemouth or smallmouth bass less than 10 inches in length may be kept. No sand sturgeons less than one pound in weight may be kept.

There is a continuous open season on bullheads, sand sturgeon, carp, sheephead, redhorse, gar, suckers, gizzard shad, moon-eye, goldeye, buffalo, quillback, carpsuckers, dogfish, eel, burbots, and chubs.

Printed copies of the new fishing regulations will be available in about ten days.

Training Dogs on Wild Game Illegal After 15th

Iowa hunters are reminded by the State Conservation Commission that training dogs on game in the wild is prohibited from March 15 until July 15.

Upland birds will be nesting on the ground during this period and dogs may seriously hamper nesting. It has been found that if a bird is flushed from the nest by a dog during certain stages of incubation, the frightened may not return to her eggs. Although the bird may renest, she seldom lays a full clutch of eggs the second time and small broods result.

Modern Flat Paints are Non-Streak, Washable

Synthetic rubber-base latex emulsion paints have outsold the orthodox flat wall paints at every turn in the last few years. But now a newly developed alkyd resin has put the oil-base paints back in the running, according to Iowa State College home furnishings specialists. Pigments are the same type as before, they explain, but the alkyd resin—the "vehicle" part of the paint—makes the paint washable and easy to apply.

Modern flat wall paints have extreme "hiding" or covering power, come in strong, vibrant colors as well as softer ones. Color disperses easily. Even the deep decorator tones go on without streaking. The paint can be applied over almost any type of wall and requires less surface preparation than ever before.

Chief disadvantage of the old-type flat wall paints was that they were not washable and were difficult to apply without streaking.

Rural Young People Hold State Assembly

Nine members of the Hancock County Rural Young People's Club and Paul Henderson, County Extension Director, turned their thoughts to "Molding Our Future" in talks with nearly 500 other Iowa rural young people at the annual Iowa Rural Young People's Assembly held at Ames Friday through Sunday.

Highlighting the serious discussions at this meeting were 2-hour small group talks on individual and group problems in four main areas—preparations for marriage, critical decisions in starting to farm, community leadership responsibilities and spiritual beliefs.

Dr. Frank Slutz, Columbus, Ohio, author and youth consultant, set the stage for these group discussions in an address to the Asembly. Then, with Iowa State College staff members as discussion leaders, the young people talked over the important problems facing them.

"If we want to live in a democracy we must accept certain obligations," the young people agreed in the community leadership interest group. "Individuals must express their feelings and act on them."

"We have opportunities to carry responsibilities in churches, rural young people's clubs farm organizations, community programs and such," said Roger Baldwin, Jasper County. "Older persons are willing for us to go ahead—in fact, sometimes they push us too far, too fast. We should consider small responsibilities as opportunities for training so we can later carry larger reponsibilities.

The young men and women in the discussion on marriage and family tackled one of the difficult decisions facing many of the youth today—what about marriage when the fellow is slated for military service? Each couple's decision must be based on that one set of circumstances, the young people said. And they brought out important advantages and disadvantages that could be considered by young people who are seeking the answer.

Should a young wife work at a job of her own, the young people asked. Their answer—she will probably have to for a while, since the costs of starting to farm are to high. But, they emphasized that this decision had best be reached before marriage and it may well to set a time limit then for how long the wife will work.

With Wallace Ogg, extension economist at Iowa State College, young people in the discussion on spiritual beliefs applied a unique approach. Beginning with problem circumstances which might actually occur, they considered the best of means of solution.

For example, they considered one case in which a young farmer was unfairly—though not illegally—charged an overly high rental for grain storage by a neighbor. When the neighbor came to buy soybean seed from the young farmer, should he jack the price up for the neighbor or sell it at the price quoted to other buyers? The young people decided it should be the same. After recording their decisions on this and other cases, the young people listed their beliefs in God, Christ and man. They crossed-compared their beliefs with their earlier decisions on the problems to see whether their actions bore out their expressed moral and spiritual beliefs. In this discussion group, they did.

In the fourth of the groups, two Iowa State College staff members, Fannie Gannon and H. B. Howell, counselled the young people on critical decisions in starting to farm.

Set tangible goals, they emphasized. Success at farming goes to those who skillfully blend their material and human resources into management that will meet and overcome obstacles as they arise and which will steadily take the person toward the goals established.

The 1953 Assembly, the eighteenth held by this organization of county rural young people's clubs in Iowa, attracted members from all parts of the state In addition to the serious discussions, the young people attended the annual Assembly banquet and dance, elected officers for their organization and took part in other varied educational and recreational activities.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Stocks of feed grains are above a year ago. They also are above the 5-year average according to Gordon Bivens, farm economist at Iowa State College. Stocks are up compared to our livestock numbers, too.

Large stocks of corn more than make up for the smaller holdings of oats, barley and grain sorghums. There is another difference: More feed grains are in the Corn Belt states while the South is short. The biggest increase in corn stocks over a year ago was in Iowa where stocks of corn are 59 percent larger than last year, Bivens points out.

Slightly more corn is tied up—that is, either under loan or owned by the governement. More corn is under loan, but less is actually owned by the government. Despite this, there are 200 million more bushels of "free" corn now than last year, Bivens believes. Much of this "free" corn is expected to go under loan before the May 31 deadline for sealing. This will swell the government-controlled corn holdings, since sales likely will be small.

Demand from the South where feed grains are short, plus more corn under loan, may combine to force prices some higher this spring. But prices probably won't go up very much if spring crop prospects are average. If they are good, corn prices at Chicago may say by May or June.

Corn now under seal should be watched to make sure it isn't going out of condition. Delivered corn has to grade No. 3 or better. If it doesn't the borrower has to make up the difference between the amount of his loan and what his poor-quality corn will bring after making allowance for the dock. To grade No. 3, moisture content cannot exceed 17.5 percent.

Kids' Fish Day Being Set For Spring

Applications for Kids' Fish Days, the pan fish rodeos where small fry come into their own, are now being accepted by State Conservation Officers.

Sponsored in spring and summer by local organizations, the programs are designed to give the youngsters an introduction to piscatorial pursuit. In addition to their fish, the top anglers also take home prizes donated by local merchants.

Bullheads are furnished by the State Conservation Commission and are stocked in a pond or pool just before the contest. The stocking program will be continued this year, but Superintendent of Fisheries, Ken Madden has advised conservation officers to be on the lookout for suitable farm ponds, gravel pits, and other waters containing native panfish populations.

Madden believes that the cropping of such native fish surpluses will promote better understanding of fish management problems and more practical fishing know-how. It also provides a more realistic introduction to fishing than when large numbers of hungry bullheads are trucked in.

Kid's Fish Days are sponsored only by recognized conservation clubs or non-profit community service groups. Tagging fish for prizes or devices to limit participation, except for age restrictions, will not be permitted. The deadline for applicatons to the conservation officers is April 15.

Ronald Brinkman Gets Army Discharge

Ronald Brinkman, who has put in the past couple of years in the army, got home this morning (Wednesday). He has been in Germany for the past year or so and got back to the States on March 14th. He was sent to Fort Custer, Michigan, and received his discharge, Tuesday, March 24th.

Ronald is glad to be back in Klemme, and when he goes back to work, plans on carpentering at the Northern Lumber Company, as he did before entering the service.

Cub Scout Carnival

The Cub Scouts are planning on a big time and a big crowd at their carnival at the grade school basement, Friday evening. There will be fun for one and all, and we understand that the scouts have talked some of the papas into some acts that should prove highly entertaining.

There will be ten booths set up for the evening with one and two cent charges at most of them. In addition there will be ice cream, pie, coffee and chocolate milk for refreshments.

Chimney Fire

Tuesday evening, the Fire Department answered a call to the J. E. Stille home. A chimney fire had gotten started, but no damage was done. The firemen wet the roof down as a precautionary measure, and put a bomb in the stove to put out the fire in the chimney. How this bomb works is beyond us, but it did the trick.

The world has about one-third more wheat available for export and carryover than it had at this time in 1952, reports the International Federation of Agricultural Producers.

Easter Seal Campaign Brings Good Response

"Early reports indicate that Iowans are again responding well to this appeal for funds to aid the physically handicapped."

Roe points to the fact that due to the increased cost of highly specialized services for crippled children, it takes more dollars to maintain a high level of services and facilities desired in the overall program for the handicapped. There is an increasing number of children coming to our centers for help due to more effective methods of searching out those handicapped individuals wherever they may be and offering the services available. The more children helped means larger budgets for trained personnel and increased physical facilities.

"Truly the Easter Seal cause is one of the great causes of today, not only as a great humanitarian movement but one which serves to build self-sufficient individuals ready to assume their roles in a democratic society," said Roe.

Individuals not receiving Easter Seals during the campaign are urged to mail contributions directly to "Crippled Children, c/o your local Postmaster" and they'll be promptly delivered to the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults, 2917 Grand Avenue, Des Moines.

Roe said that while we are at midway point in our Easter Seal Campaign, many folks have returned their contributions, and he reminds those who haven't yet sent them along to do so as quickly as possible.

Roe added, "Although the campaign ends officially on Easter, the needs for help for handicapped children continues all year long and any contribution to this work is always welcome.

When a stock tank heater exploded recently, John Hummel of Spirit Lake received first, second and third degree burns. Gas fumes had spread through the pit and exploded when he struck a match.

Lions Discuss Plans for Fish Derby in June

The last March meeting of the Klemme Lions Club was called to order Wednesday evening at 6:30 p. m. with Lion President Don Schaefer wielding the gavel.

There were 21 members present and one guest. Tail-twister Gerardi kept the Lions roaring during the dinner, after which followed the regular business meeting.

The Lions wish to take this means of sincerely thanking the Legion Auxiliary for the splendid dinners they have served and want to extend a cordial welcome to the Band Mothers who are now serving.

Furthers plans were laid for the Kid's Fish Derby which is to be held on June 24th, sponsored by the Lions Club. This will consist of a fishing contest for the kids with prizes for the boy or girl catching the most fish, biggest fish, etc.

After the business meeting, Lion Gerardi gave a very interesting talk on the B-29 Bomber program at Wichita, Kansas, where he was a production engineer. During the war, the Wichita plant built 1600 B-29 Bombers, one being the one which dropped the A-bomb on Hiroshima.

The next regularly scheduled meeting is slated for April 1.

Check Moisture In Cribbed Corn

It Went Up in Winter More than Most Know

Check last years' cribbed corn for high moisture content, especially if you've sealed it.

Francis Kutish, extension farm economist at Iowa State College, reports that corn is going out of condition on some Iowa farms. Corn has picked up more moisture this past winter than most folks realize. With warm weather approaching, a lot could spoil if it isn't moved or restored.

If sealed corn doesn't grade No. 3 or better at delivery time this fall, you will have to make up the difference between the amount of your loan and what your poor quality corn will bring after allowing for the dock.

Needs Wind

Agricultural engineers at the college say that if your corn now tests 18 percent or higher—and is not well exposed to winds—chances are good that it will go out of condition. In many cases, you can save the corn by moving it where winds can whip through the crib, reducing the moisture.

For farmers who haven't sealed, Kutish recommends sealing before the deadline May 31. To grade No. 3 then, corn must not have more than 17.5 percent moisture, and must be in a sealable crib. With corn loans averaging $1.52 a bushel, it may pay to seal this year, then buy corn for feeding.

Sign Purchasing Agreement

Mid-March corn on the market was bringing about $1.37 a bushel. The economist says this price probably won't go much higher unless there's a bad spring.

For those who can't seal their corn because of high moisture content, Kutish recommends signing a purchasing agreement with your county Production and Marketing Administration office. This will permit you to sell your corn at loan price at delivery time this fall, if the moisture content is down by then.

Busy Time at Klemme Co-op. Grain Company

The past couple of weeks have been busy ones at the Klemme Cooperative Grain Company. It's the time of year when farmers are all in a rush to get their oats cleaned and treated. With seeding time just around the corner, and so many patrons wanting to have everything set when the time comes, the company has been running both a day and a night shift.

Any time of the day or night you can see several tractors and trailers, or trucks, parked around the mill, waiting their turn.

It used to be that farmers in this community took their seed to the experimental station at Kanawha for this work, but since the Grain Company put up their new mill and installed cleaning and treating equipment, that trip is no longer necessary.

Annual Meeting of Hancock TB Ass'n

The annual meeting of the Hancock County Tuberculosis Association will be held at Hotel Allison in Britt on Tuesday evening, March 31, beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

This announcement is made by C. E. Barnes Garner, current president of the association.

First Flower

Mrs. F. A. Arnold had the first flower in bloom in Klemme this year . . . as far as we know.

Everett Weiland was delivering fuel oil to Mrs. Arnold's home Saturday morning, and he and Mrs. Arnold discovered a crocus in full bloom.

If the hail Saturday afternoon didn't wreck it, we'll bet that it is a mighty cold flower by now. That 20-degree weather would be pretty hard on it.

Celebrate Anniversary

Thursday evening was the first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Velau. In honor of the occasion, some of their relatives brought lunch to the Velau home and helped them celebrate.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Buseman, Mr. and Mrs. LaVern Velau and Vernie, Mr. John Velau, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tiggeman, and Charles Velau.

Rev. Jaberg Talks on Value of Athletic Training in Future Life

Both the boys' and girls' basketball teams of Klemme High School were honored by Klemme business men at a banquet at the grade school basement, Monday evening.

First thought in everyone's mind was food, and there was plenty of it. Huge steaks were brought out along with heaps of french fried potatoes, salad and rolls. Coffee and milk were served and dessert was brick ice cream decorated with a shamrock. Anyone that went away hungry had only himself to blame.

Rev. Egeland acted as toastmaster and kept things livened up throughout the course of the banquet, and the program that followed. Rev. Jaberg gave the principal address and stressed how athletic training could profit one, if followed, in later life.

The Music Mothers prepared the food in a manner to make the mouth water, and it was "daintily" served by Martin Karsjens, Quentin Stille, Glen Terhufen, and Harvey Barz.

All-in-all, it was a fine evening, and one the Shamrocks and Shamrockettes earned.

In next week's issue of The Times we should have a picture or two, which we took at the banquet.

Students planning to enter the contest should make advance registration with A. I. B. Teachers of contestants are invited to atennd, Fenton said.

A feature of the contest will be demonstrations of speed and typing techniques by Ben Posner, Washington, D C. former amateur typing champion.

Phyllis McIntyre of Farragut won last year's typing contest with a speed of 65.9 words per minute. This will be the fifth year the contest has been held.

Storm

When last Saturday's storm hit, we were on the way to Boone, for a visit with the "Pat" Pattersons, and other friends.

We have been on the highway in some severe weather before, but never anything like that. It hit with no warning, and it was just like driving into a wall of water . . . couldn't see a thing. Hail stones about the size of marbles, driven before the wind, made such a roar as they hit the car, that it was impossible to hear the engine. We fairly crept along for a quarter of a mile or so, and then it was all over.

We felt sorry for the large herd of white face cattle that we saw out in the field, as the storm let up. Hail stones that size hitting with so much force must have felt anything but good.

When we got over near Stanhope, where Gene Kluckhohn used to live, there were wires down, a steel bin torn loose from its foundation, and blown into the roadside ditch, and a small building scattered all over a pasture. Glad we weren't in that vicinity when the wind hit.

Un-American

We're not so sure but what maybe Senator McCarthy is a little un-American himself. We have to give him credit for wanting to ferret out the undesirables in government, but we can't say that we approve of his methods.

Television has afforded us the opportunity to see he and his committee in action a few times, and to us he has the appearance and actions of a "wise guy".

Beef Prices

The bottom has fallen out of the beef market in the past few months, and it has been a rough deal, financially, for a lot of people. Some of the farmers who had been in the cattle game through all the war years, should have been able to stand the blow fairly well, but some of the newcomers, who have had only a year or two of the good prices, have really taken it on the chin.

What we think is the best story to come out of this slump in the cattle market, has to do with one of these newcomers.

It seems that this young fellow had been farming only a couple of years and had bought cattle with the bank's money. He had them on feed for some time, and finally just had to sell them, regardless of how the market stood. He took them to a buyer and got $1600 less for the bunch than what he had paid for them.

After he had gone to bed that evening, he couldn't get to sleep, and finally got to the point where he was up walking the floor. About one o'clock in the morning, he could stand it no longer so he called his banker and explained the situation to him. Told him how he couldn't sleep, and that for the past several hours, he had been pacing up and down.

The banker didn't say anything for a minute, and then he said, "Go on back to bed and get some sleep. I'll walk the floor the rest of the night."

30 YEARS AGO—

Harry Gibbs has installed a milking macine on his farm southeast of town. The machine will save a great deal of hard work especially in the summer when milking is no fun.

Miss Mildred Johnson came home Saturday to be present at the wedding of her sister, Maybelle, on Tuesday. Mildred is studying music at Morningside College, Sioux City, and will remain in Klemme over the Easter vacation.

The city water was shut off a number of days the past week to repair a rusted casing. The system was put in order and the pump started when a rod broke in the pump and the system again out of commission. Water was again available Monday when the repairs had been made. It was a bad time to work on the pump as a blizzard was raging and everyone was fearing what would happen should we have a fire. But being careful, they perhaps excercised more caution in looking after their furnaces and stoves, knowing that the water was shut off. But a tankful of water was carried at the pump house for emergency use only.

20 YEARS AGO—

The Klemme Rifle Club will again meet Monday night at the range for target practice. Work on the outdoor range will begin as soon as the weather will permit.

The annual school election was held in Avery township Monday. The directors elected were Will Waddingham, No 1; Adolph Schlichting, No 2; Elmer Arnold, No. 3; Nels Bock, No. 4; Mrs. Mike Kearnery, No. 5; Howard Barger, No. 6; and Merle Avery, No. 8.

One of the county snow plow outfits was operating in this vicounty Tuesday afternoon and plowed the snow off the streets of Klemme and opened the road to the highway. The roads all over the county are now pretty well open again.

Not many were out Snday to attend the church services, at the Klemme churches. But we will all have to take our hat off to Mrs. E. J. Arnold, Evelyn and Bruce, as they walked in from the country and attended Sunday School. We believe Mrs. E. J. Arnold and the children and Mrs. Martha Breddenner and Novella and Frank Gruetzmacher have about a seven year perfect attendance record for Sunday School. They were all present Sunday morning.

10 YEARS AGO—

George Lawhorn has been hired by the Klemme School Board as janitor to take the place of Clifford Montgomery who has resigned. Mr. Lawhorn begins his new duties on April 1st.

For four months, Mr. and Mrs Levi Klotzback had not heard from their son, Walter, but Saturday they were overjoyed to get a letter from him stating he was well and with the army in North Africa. Walter also wants to thank the Auxiliary women for the Christmas box they sent him.

Lucile Hartbeck and Phyllis Swanson of Klemme, together with thirty-four other students at Waldorf College, Forest City, Iowa, were placed on the honor roll for the second quarter ending February 24th. No student is eligible for the honor roll who does not maintain a grade average of "B" or better.

Heat lamps and farrowing stalls will help save baby pigs, reports E. L. Quaife, extension animal husbandman at Iowa State College.

Jolly Workers Club Met with Mrs. Bruhl

The March meeting of the Jolly Workers Club was held at the home of Georgiana Bruhl with sixteen members present. Mrs. Bruhl's mother, Mrs. Luex, of Eagle Grove, was a visitor.

The club members brought worn nylons which will be sent to Des Moines. They will be used to stuff toys.

All those having old eye glasses they weren't using, brought them and they will be sent to an old people's home.

We are sending cards to Marlys Sunkten, of Alexander. She has been in bed since fall with rheumatic fever. Luella Boelman is sending her a $2.00 gift from the club.

Each member of our club is baking cookies and Ruth Trampel will mail them to Woodward Hospital. We also gave $2.00 to the Easter Seal Fund.

We discussed the Red Cross Bloodmobile and six of our members volunteered to give blood. Volunteers were Irene Waddingham, Verbel Gilpin, Edith Kramer, Mildred Gruis, Alvina Helps, and Luella Boelman.

We plan to have a bake sale in the near future.

Following the business meeting, Georgiana Bruhl and Luella Boelman gave the lesson on "Good Gardening". It was very interesting..

Alvina Helps and Mildred Gruis furnished the entertainment.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and Louise Pearson as co-hostess.

The April meeting will be at the home of Edith Kramer with Maude Bachman as co-hostess.

SECOND GRADE

We are very happy to have two new students in our room. They are Linda Jernegan and Dianne Kubly.

Nancy Guth's mother visited our room Thursday.

The Bluejays finished their reading books and started in new ones.

We are nearing the end of the third nine weeks, so we're having a short review. ?

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

Ila Mae, what is this we hear about you and your many boyfriends from Garner? Seems you are a pretty busy girl lately aren't you?

We hear that Norma D. wants to go steady, anyway that's what she said. She seems to do a lot of flirting with Roger L. so you better look out, Marcia, even if she is supposed to be your best friend.

Just what happened at the Surf that one night? Why is it you're never seen in a certain Chevy pickup anymore, Elda?

Some of the kids seem to have their name in this column all the time but we don't very often see any of the freshmen in here. Why? Come on, kids, squeal on each other!

Why is it that Dorothy never wants anybody to mention Harlan's name to her anymore? What happened at that dance in Belmond, anyway? I guess it's a good thing Paul was there, wasn't it Dorothy?

Whose picture was it that Don T. tried to take out of Joan L.'s billfold? I hear it was one of Carole M. Could this be a new romance?

Mr. Andreae seems to have a very high opinion of the Sophomores. Wednesday, he told us and I quote, "I believe you may never be noted for your scholastic achievements, but you'll probably be remembered as the class who talked the most, but said nothing."

Has anyone seen that ring that Faye J. is wearing? It's really a beauty. Who did you say it belonged to Faye? Gene McNutt?

What's this I hear about Carol B. getting an important phone call Saturday night. Did you get the names mixed up, Carol? They do sound a lot alike.

Well I see Harriett was riding around with Stanley again today. That is as bad as "Off again, On again, Gone again, Stanley.

Say Tommy, what was that red stuff you had all over your face last Wednesday? Not lipstick, was it?

What's the matter Sharleen, are you losing your man to another girl? You'd better be more careful.

What's this I hear about Faye going with Harlan. You had better leave him alone. I think Dorothy had him first. Anyway, she has been going with him for some time, now.

Whose car was that you had Tuesday afternoon, Dorothy? Couldn't be he is from Goodell? Does he trust you with it?

I guess the most of the weeks gossip will have to come from the skating party at the Forest City rink last Friday night.

We'll start with Marcia and Roger L. since they are old lovebirds of the school. It seems that they occupied the back seat in the bus on the way home and, well, ask Ronnie for results! It seems they did a good deal of dodging.

Next there was the usual Kay and Ronnie and everything was usual in their points. But then there was JoAnn Bacon and Cecil J. We knew that you couldn't keep this romance a secret very long. But that is okay kids, best of luck anyway.

And who should be next? You would never guess anyone but Darlene and Harry and do you know what? Harry is invited to Dar's birthday party for Monday night. This may blossom into a romance since she is not interested in Virgil S. I think Stan is long gone.

And little old Carol occupied a seat right in front of Graydon B. with Alan N. But Daisy was around to keep them both in high spirits.

And we almost forgot the two most important. They are Merlyn and Joan L. Pretty soon you will probably see them riding on a motorcycle together. Young love, you know.

And the conclusion of this party was that everyone had a lot of fun at the party and on the way up, but on the way back they had to mind their P's and Q's 'cause Daisy was there with her good memory for the gossip column. But she fooled you 'cause no matter how good you are, you can't get by without her hearing about it.

Seniors to Present Class Play Tuesday, the 31

EDITORIAL

"Spring has sprung, the grass has riz, where Klemme's High School students is."

Please excuse this bit of so-called poetry as we wouldn't surpress our joy over the coming of spring.

Spring activities are being resumed as basketball is through. Although some of us have spring fever, we must stay in the grind of things as nine week tests are now under way.

Most of the seniors are rejoicing over the fact that school is almost over for them. From now till school is out, the seniors will be very busy with the play, junior - senior banquet, and commencement coming up.

Skip day will be here soon; that is if we can come to an agreement as to where we should go. The class is discussing the possibilities of going to Storm Lake or Minneapolis to the Ice Follies. The main objection to going to Minneapolis is the cost of chartering a bus. The way things stand now we will probably go to Storm Lake.

TEACHER INTERVIEW

Our eighth grade teacher, Robert L. Juhl was born at Forest City, Iowa, on March 3, 1927. Mr. Juhl, also known as Bob, has black hair and brown eyes. He is 5' 10" tall. For two years he attended Waldorf Jr. College, and he completed five semesters at Drake.

Mr. Juhl's most embarrassing moment occurred when his trousers ripped while he was refereeing a basketball game. His pet peeve is noisy people. Hamburger is his favorite food; "I Walk Alone", song; Dinah Shore, singer; Guy Lombardo, band; Gary Cooper, movie star; "The Greatest Show on Earth", movie; and "Shut up", saying.

Golfing is his pastime, and coaching is his hobby. He is a member of the Lions' Club. He was married in August, 1950, and his wife's name is Marion. They have one child, John.

A liking for young people inspired him to become a teacher. He plans to teach for five years.

Teacher: "Johnny, how do you spell "Imbecile"?
Johnny: "I-m-b-s-s-u-l."
Teacher: "The dictionary spells it "i-m-b-e-c-i-l-e".
Johnny: "Yeah, but you asked me how I spell it."

One angry skunk to another: "So do you".

The more you whine,
The less you shine.

Etiquette: Knowing which finger to put in your mouth when you whistle for the waiter.

Little boy's answer to question asked by the teacher: "I refuse to answer on the grounds that it might flunk me."

Girls who go home with the milkman aren't necessarily the cream of the town.

ATTEND THE SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The senior class will present a three act comedy entitled, "We Shook The Family Tree".

The play is under the direction of Mr. Franklin Cappon, Jr.

The plot of the story centers around Hildegarde Dolson, a seventeen year old girl who has a knack of getting into trouble by dramatizing everything. She is tired of being a wallflower, and so she takes part in a debate, "Should We Bring Back Prohibition?" She thinks this way she will attract attention, and some one will ask her to the junior-senior prom. The talk she gives creates the impression that her father is a drunkard and beats his wife and children which is not true.

Because her plan fails, Hildegarde's mother arranges a date with the banker's son, Freddie Shermer, who wears old fashioned knickers. While Hildegarde is caring for Paige Mason, a little six year old neighbor girl, Paige innocently takes Father and Mother Dolson's early love letters to play postman. She distributes these letters to all the houses in the neighborhood. Of course their is a lot of gossip.

Mr. and Mrs. Shermer come to the Dolson home to see for themselves what kind of family they are. Hildegarde disappears, and the Shermer house is broken into. A window is smashed, and letters and a valuable watch are stolen. Naturally, all the evidence points to Hildegarde.

The tickets are now on sale. Adult tickets are 50c and students tickets are 35c. The play will provide an evening full of laughter and fine entertainment. Be on hand at 8:00 p. m. Tuesday, March 31, at the high school gymnasium.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer Installment Twenty-Five

The Ell Township Cemetery

On gentle rolling high ground, the Ell Township Cemetery joins the town of Klemme on the south, and is connected to the residential part of the town by a cement walk. It is located in the extreme north west corner of the southeast quarter of section 31, Ell Township, is 32 rods long east and west and 25 rods wide north and south, and contains five acres.

It was surveyed by J. E. Rathbun and platted April 28, 1898, while Dan Webner, Asa Gibbs and Fred Bock were township trustees, and Henry Terhufen was township clerk. The papers were signed before Frank M. Hanson, Notary Public.

The Cemetery Plat shows 612 lots, each size 10 feet by 20 feet, each lot has space for adult graves. At the present time, 1953, there are more than 700 burials in this cemetery.

The drives are bordered with beautiful evergreen trees, and the monumental work is better than in most cemeteries of this size.

The price of lots has advanced from time to time. The first lots were sold for $1.50 each, then $4.50, later $10.00 and today they sell for $75.00 each. But, this price includes perpetual care.

The Ell Township trustees have a record book in which all burials are recorded. This book shows the first burial to be Alma Gruetzmacher in 1892.

Among the early settlers of this community we find head stones for Dan Webner, Asa Gibbs, Fred Bock, and Henry Terhufen who platted the cemetery.

The fee at the present time for digging an adult grave is $30.00. The annual fee for mowing lots is $2.50.

The Ell Township Trustees at the present time are; Wm. H. Griemann, Alfred Josten, Henry J. Thiemann. Other officers are Edmund K. Josten, clerk, and Quentin V. Stille, sexton.

The Liberty Township Cemetery

Liberty Township was organized October 14, 1879, and shortly thereafter the township trustees purchased a five acre tract of land, located about a half mile north of the present Liberty Church. It lies along the west edge of the southwest quarter, section 23, Liberty Township, on a sandy knoll just south of the creek.

In 1910, the writer made a drawing or plat of this cemetery for his personal use, and at that time there were 72 graves. Since then we have disintered and moved away about twenty bodies and during this time about twenty new burials have been made, thus the number of graves has remained almost stationary.

By way of comparison, in the same year, 1910, the writer, assisted by J. D. G. Houghton, made drawings and opened up a set of record books for the Klemme Cemetery, which showed 79 graves. During the past 40 years the number of graves in the Klemme Cemetery has increased to about 700.

However, the Liberty Township Cemetery is a beautiful spot, well located, near the Church, near the center of the Township, and when you wander through and read the inscriptions, you are reminded of the pioneer farmers and their wives who were the first residents of the township. How appropriate that they sleep in this cluster of graves beneath the sod of the township they loved so well.

In 1930, the township trustees sold half of the cemetery land to H. J. Stille, which reduced the size of this cemetery to 2½ acres. Since then they have hired a man to keep the cemetery mowed and it is well kept.

Such families have a family lot started, continue to bury in this cemetery. And as time goes on this hallowed ground will become a sacred park honoring the pioneers.

The Amsterdam Cemetery

This cemetery is located about one mile east of Goodell, Iowa, in what was once the village of Amsterdam, in the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 29, Avery Township. (About a half mile south of the Anson Avery farm.)

Mr. and Mrs. Anson Avery arrived in September 1854 and within the next year or two a half dozen other families arrived in this settlement called Upper Grove (see chapter on early settlers) and with this group of early settlers was one Thomas Magill, Sr.

On April 9, 1859, only 4½ years after our first settlers arrived the village of Amsterdam was platted. It contained 29 blocks, plus the "Mill lot", and the "Court Square".

This ambitious group of early settlers tried their best to have the Hancock County Court House located in Amsterdam, but this failed.

In 1877, at a meeting of the trustees of Avery and Amsterdam Townships, it was decided to buy a tract of land suitable for cemetery purposes. Members who attended this meeting were Anson Avery, Daniel Robbins, M. S. Wiles, and G. W. Rogers. At this meeting Thomas Magill, Sr. donated the tract of land listed as the "Court Square" on the Amsterdam Village plat. Anson Avery and G. W. Rogers were appointed a committee to set out evergreen trees in the cemetery. In the spring of 1879, they planted Norway Spruce which trees stand tall and stately in the cemetery today.

The size of the Amsterdam Cemetery is 76 rods long, east and west, and 17 rods wide north and south and it contains a fraction over eight acres.

This cemetery seems to have been enlarged by two additions to the west of the orginal "Court Square" plat. The old part comprises the east third. Then there is the middle third. And on the west was added a tract somewhat larger than a third known as the new part of the cemetery.

In the old part of this cemetery we find 46 marked graves, and there may be several more which are unmarked by head stones or monument. Some of these head stones are old and the weather has almost obliterated the inscriptions. Some are also more or less covered with moss.

At the present time, there are more than 500 graves in this cemetery.

Laton A. Avery, eldest son of Anson and Lavine Avery, was killed by lightning, August 27, 1887 (age 25 years) while in bed just before daylight in the morning. Lightning struck the house killing him. His wife, Emma, was paralized for several hours but recovered. She however, died the following year, 1879, age 23 years. They lie buried side by side in the old part of Amsterdam Cemetery.

Sebastian Ell

Since the town of Klemme is located in Ell Township, this history would not be complete without mention of the man whose name the township bears.

Ell Township was named for Sebastian Ell. Not because he was the first settler, though, as three or four other families located there about the same time.

But, when the Ell family arrived September 23, 1870, they were quite a large group. In fact, the Ell caravan which made the trip from Ogle County, Illinois, to Hancock County, Iowa, consisted of 21 people, 5 wagons, 10 horses and 14 cattle.

The personnel of this group included: Sebastian Ell, his wife, the grandfather, John C. Weidemann, nine children, most of them grown men and women, and several other young people who came "west" with the family. Sebastian Ell was a healthy, progressive man of 50 years, kind hearted, friendly and religiously inclined. He took part in getting the schools and the churches started in this community. With his wife and family, he estalished a home which radiated hospitality and became the center of social, religious, and business activity in the community. Whenever anyone thought of this township, they thought of Sebastian Ell, and they started calling it Ell Township, and the name stuck.

Sebastian Ell, who came to America at the age of 16, was born January 22, 1820, in the village of Elbach, Bavaria, Germany. His wife, Katherina Weidemann was a native of Hesse Darmstadt, Germany. They were married October 12, 1841, and started farming in Union County, Ohio. After 14 years, they moved to White Rock, Ogle County, Illinois, and from there, 15 years later in 1870, they moved to Hancock County, Iowa.

This journey consumed a period of 21 days, an average of ten miles per day, over rolling prairies, following faint wagon trails, fording small streams and crossing the Mississippi river on a ferry boat.

Much rain attended them on their journey, their wagons were often stuck in the mud. Some times with a long chain and two teams of horses, they could drag their five wagons one by one through the mud hole. At other times it was necessary to unload their belongings and carry them through the mud to higher ground. On one occasion, a team became unmanagable while crossing a swollen stream and one of the horses drowned.

Their cooking was done in open kettles, suspended from sticks driven into the ground. Their food consisted of bean soup, zwieback baking powder biscuits, corn bread, smoked ham, bacon, and coffee. The cows provided milk for the children. Now and then their evening meal was enriched with "prairie chicken breasts" or a mess of freshly caught fish. The horses and cattle ate grass wherever they camped for the night.

Upon arrival at their destination, September 23, 1870, it snowed and they felt somewhat discouraged and almost wished they had stayed in Illinois.

The first humans to welcome them at their new home were the Indians with whom they tried to be friendly.

They continued to live in the open for six weeks more, while they hauled logs from the Ellinton woods for fuel and for building needs, they hauled lumber from Garner and built their residence and sheds for their live stock.

They moved into their new home just as soon as the outside shell was up and completed the inside carpenter work as they found time in the winter.

Sebastian Ell selected this farm, southeast quarter of section five, because it had a creek running through it. Our earliest settlers were careful to locate near water and near timber. To provide water for his livestock, Mr. Ell dug a well 15 feet deep near the creek and curbed it with empty salt barrels. This was a temporary well. Later, they dug a sixty foot well near the building site. However, during the first winter they hauled water three miles for household use.

Sebastian Ell lived on his farm for 20 years or more during this time his children all went into homes for their own. Then his wife died, after which he sold the farm and made his home with the Henry Griewe family in Liberty Township. This was his daughter, Mary. He died July 16th, 1905, having reached the age of 85, interment was made beside his wife in the Ell Township Cemetery at Klemme, Iowa.

COMMERCIAL

Nineteen adult caskets and eight for children are on display in the Wellemeyer show room today.

Our stock includes a large variety of beautiful cloth covered caskets.

And we carry the hardwoods, in solid oak, solid walnut and solid mahogany. The German people have always shown a preference for the sturdy hardwoods.

Our stock also includes quite an assortment of the ever popular metal caskets, including two numbers in solid copper and one in pure zinc.

For the customer who wants an inexpensive funeral, our cheaper caskets are new and clean, and with a spray of flowers on top, will look appropriate and dignified at any church service. It has been truly said; "It is not the casket that we prize, but that which in the casket lies".

For those who want the best, we have it. Everyone can be served from our ample stock.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

Al walked out of the back door and stuck his head and feet smack into spring. The soft, warm morning swam about his head while his feet sank into the mud of the backyard like a couple of stoved boats.

But the morning was too fine, too promising to worry about dirtying a pair of shoes. He waded on across the yard like an infantryman and stamped his feet on the cement drive until his feet stung.

He got off most of the visible mud, but the beginning of trouble still clung to his instep, unseen.

He drove toward town and, when he came to the intersection with a major highway, he moved up, car by car, toward the stop sign, leaving the car in gear and using the clutch.

When he got to the stop sign the car was still in gear. He shoved the clutch down and gunned the motor impatiently, waiting for a briskly moving car to pass by.

What he remembered next was a blinding pain in his left ankle, then a neck-snapping jerk as the car lurched forward. Next he was in the midst of a grinding, jarring nightmare of noise and pain.

Mud on the instep of his shoe had caused his foot to slip off the clutch and the car had jumped into the intersection.

Spring Burning is Wasteful and Dangerous

Iowa landowners are being urged by the State Conservation Commission to use great caution this spring when burning debris. Such burning, which includes the burning of brush and clearing of land, is responsible for a high percentage of woodland and grass fires in state fire protection districts.

Farmers and landowners are also being asked to refrain from burning off woods and fields. This custom is not only unnecessary, but damages grass, timber, and soil fertility. Burning does not improve the soil, although it may appear to do so because of the strong contrast between the new plants shoots and the black ash resulting from fire.

However, if debris or land must be burned, certain safety rules should be observed. Fires should not be set on windy days or whenever there is danger of flames spreading. Burn only on quiet days or in late afternoon when the wind has died down. Have plenty of help, burn down hill against the wind, and do not leave the area until the last spark is out.

Cattle are sometimes poisoned when they lick fresh paint or eat old paint flaking off barns, gates and fences.

Iowa Ranks High Among World's Cement Leaders

Iowa's 20-million-dollar a year cement industry, after a 12 percent production increase in 1951, today grinds out more portland cement than 46 cement-producing foreign countries, the state's development commission reports.

The hawkeye state's 1952 production of portland cement reached 9,029,000 barrels or 1,697,542 tons, over a million more barrels than in 1951.

Major world cement producers are United States with a 1951 production of over 42 million tons; Russia with 12 million tons; West Germany, 12 million tons; and Belgium with 4 million tons.

Iowa's five cement plants produce slightly more than Mexico's total production of 1,615,000 tons and about 30 percent more than all of Egypt.

The Hawkeye state ranks about eleventh in the U. S. for portland cement production and seventh for consumption of cement. Iowa exports twice as much cement as it uses.

Mrs. Gerardi's Students Gave Piano Recital

On Tuesday, March 17, the following piano students of Mrs. E. A. Gerardi, honored their mothers with a program of various selections.

Marlene and Gary Kothenbeutel, Faye Janssen, Ruth and Margaret Pringnitz, John Bisom, Graydon and Myrna Barz, Carita and Carroll Kropp, Joyce Hummel, Clarice Ann Arnold, Franklin and Claudia Neuberger, Bill and Jane Renner, Tommy Burgess, and Anita Marie Gerardi.

On Thursday, March 19, the second group of students presented their piano selections: Ione and Rosalie Rosendahl, Virginia Kudje, Cozette Lau, Joyce Thiemann, Melva and Maurine Johnson, Lois Ann Jacobs, Darlene and Dorothy Roul, Roxanne Back, Miriam Hartbeck, Beverly Christiance, Lois Dirks, Gracka Marie Gerardi, and Janet Hrubes.

Merie June Reinhart was missing because of measles and chicken pox.

After each program a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Gerardi.

The mothers discussed ways of improving and encouraging students in the field of music. The importance of enjoying music was stressed and then the developing of piano students who can play for church groups and the gang that gather around the piano to sing.

Lois Ann Jacobs and Virginia Kudje gave Mrs. Gerardi a lovely bouquet of yellow daisies which added spring air. Each mother was given a shamrock to wear.

Plans were made for the spring recital that will be open to the public and will include students of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Gerardi. Watch for the date and plan to attend.

Avery Sunbeams Met at Home of Judith Gilpin

The Avery Sunbeams held their March meeting at the home of Judy Gilpin. Thirteen members answered the roll call by naming one famous woman and one sentence about why she was famous. We all enjoyed singing the songs "Dreaming" and the "4-H Field Song" before the business meeting got under way. During the business meeting we decided to form a "Secret Pal Club" in which each girl is to send a gift to the girl whose name she draws, when her birthday rolls around. We elected Eunice Helps as the girl to represent us at Fun Night as our Queen. Kay Jacobs moved that the meeting be ajourned.

Candace Carlson had charge of the program and she introduced a demonstration by Kay Jacobs which was entitled "Planned Color for Small or Large Areas." Jo Ann Burgess gave a talk which was about the color families.

Jo Ann Helps led us in some recreation which was a lot of fun. One of these games was to test our knowledge of garden seeds. She scrambled all the words and we had to figure out what the words were. The next game was a new one for all of us. It was a tpye of guessing game where you have to guess how many articles you had in your hand. If you guess even and they had an even number, then you got the amount of corn that the girl had. but if you guessed wrong, then you had to forfeit the same amount to the girl. The one with the most corn at the end of the game won.

Eunice Helps, Kay Jacobs, and Judy Gilpin served a delicious lunch.

Spring Dangerous Time for Bicycle Riders

Spring's soft weather wil bring some hard tragic knocks to youngsters untrained or careless in bicycle riding, State Safety Education Director Frank B. Ulish warned Thursday.

"Fair weather always sees the streets fill up with cars and bicycles and when there's an accident between the two, the unprotected bicycle rider always loses," Ulish said.

He said 275 persons—most of children—were injured and three killed in bicycle-car accidents in Iowa last year. Most of the accidents occurred during spring and summer months.

Ulish admitted that the fatality record was 62 per cent below the eight killed in 1951, but pointed out that the injury toll of bicyclists last year was the highest since 1949.

"This warning to parents that they must take the responsibility of training and supervising their children in safe riding habts," Ulish said.

Warning that children under nine years should never be allowed to ride a bicycle in the traveled portion of a street, Ulish asked parents to teach their children to:

Use hand signals, stop for stop signs, ride in straight lines and single file when with others, keep close to the right curb, give pedestrians the right of way, never to ride without a light at night, hitch rides, ride double or stunt riding.

He said information on how to "Scotchlite" bicycles for greater safety at night is available to parens and civic organizations requesting it from the safety education division, statehouse, Des Moines.

Soil Conservation Official Tells Benefits of Adequate Drainage

The farmer will save himself a lot of future drainage headaches by laying his tile right as he first puts it in, according to Vernon Moss, U. S. Soil Conservation Service farm planner for the Hancock County Soil Conservation District.

He may think he saves money by cutting corners when installing his drainage system, Moss said. But he soon learns that what he saves now is lost later—in wet fields, lower yields, shorter tile life, and replacement costs.

"It's often the biggest single practice investment a farmer makes," Moss said. "His rate of return on that investment will depend on how well he sets it up.

"It will save us headaches, too," said Moss. "We have to check his system when he applies for financial assistance from the Agriculture Conservation Program." A U. S. Department of Agriculture ruling directs the SCS to check and certify tile drainage systems, and all other permanent-type soil conservation practices for which the farmer asks ACP financial aid.

Such work must meet specifications before it can be approved for ACP payments.

"We are not allowed to put our OK on inadequate or poorly-laid tiling. We must check it to see that the farmer, as well as the government, receives a return in his investment in good farming through improved yields and improved soil."

The new system of SCS-ACP cooperation has been in effect only a relatively short time, and some farmers have gone so far as to backfill tile ditches before calling the SCS office for checking the job. This requires a time-consuming probe of the fields to determine grade, depth, spacing, and other specifications. Due to limited personnel to do checking of tile, we are unable to check jobs where the ditches are filled before we are called, Moss said.

"When we couldn't honestly certify his tiling, you can see the situation it puts us in—and the farmer, too." He said,"If he lets us know ahead of time, it's a simple job to catch, and correct any mistakes that may occur. Otherwise, we can't guarantee a thing."

Farmers are urged to employ registered engineers to design and layout extensive drainage systems. When a drainage system is laid out and checked by an engineer, certification can be made from cuts, grades, and sizes of tile obtained from the engineer. This saves SCS technicians considerable time.

We also have many reliable men in the county who layout and survey for tile lines. These men do a good job and should be employed for small outlets. All tile should be put in according to a survey by an engineer, or reliable person who understands surveying.

Farmers who have applied to the County PMA Committee for assistance under the ACP program, and have been notified by the County PMA office that they are eligible for financial assistance on tile drainage, are urged to have the tile system laid out and surveyed. Then when the tilers come to work, notify the SCS office (Phone - Garner 460) for a check by the SCS technicans. When checking tile systems, technicans will want to see the cuts, grades, and tile sizes being used. Moss said.

Farmers are cautioned to be sure they have an OK for financial assistance from the County PMA Committee before any tiling is started, otherwise technicians cannot make certification for payment.

Name New State Corn Champion

(Special)—One hundred eighty bushels of corn per acre is a mighty good yield on any Iowa farm, but Paul Gingerich of West Liberty, Muscatine County, topped this figure with 181.69 bushels and won the 1952 Iowa Corn Crown in the 1952 National Selected 5-Acre DeKalb Corn Growing Selected 5-Acre contest.

Gingerich's Contest plot was planted May 15th on a field of rich, Muscatine County, Iowa soil. It received no applications of manure or commercial fertilizer, nor any other special "hot-house" treatments designed to step up corn yields.

The winning yield topped those of 935 other Iowa entries in the Contest. The average yield of all Iowa farmers was 125.87 bushels—an average that was highest among the 25 states and Canada which participated in the Event.

Put Idle Space to Work—

Bakery-Fresh Foods From Your Freezer

A loaf of cake with a confectioner's sugar frosting freezes well. Omit vanilla and wait till cake is frozen before wrapping to keep frosting nice. Frozen frostings won't be as glossy as usual, so you may prefer to frost cake after thawing.

If space is playing hobo in your freezer instead of earning its way, give it a job to do. Stir up and freeze the family's favorite cakes, cookies and pies—before spring cleaning, gardening and a general sprucing up of house and yard catch up with you and leave little time for baking.

Cookie dough freezes and keeps best of all, says Jewel Graham, Iowa State College extension nutritionist. Just make up a double or triple recipe (or more if you like) of refrigerator, drop or bar cookies. Leave out vanilla, for it tends to get bitter when frozen. Wrap dough in plastic bags or freezer cellophane and freeze. Then, weeks or even months from now when a busy day keeps you stepping, you can have freshly-baked cookies quick as a wink. Cookie dough will keep as long as 6 months in your freezer.

Cakes, Frosting

Butter cakes, sponge cakes and angel cakes freeze well, says Miss Graham. Just mix and bake them as usual. Cool, and frost if you like. Confectioner's sugar frostings freeze well. Candy-type frostings like fudge and penuche will crack and crumble after a few weeks storage unless you make them with honey, sirup or molasses to help keep them moist. Freeze the cake before you wrap it, Miss Graham suggests, so as not to spoil the frosting. Loaf cakes are easier to manage for freezer storage. Store them where they won't get crushed, or protect them with a box.

Miss Graham pfefers to frost the cake after it thaws. Thaw unfrosted cake in its freezer wrapping at room temperature. You can speed the job by thawing it in a slow oven. Thaw a frosted cake in the refrigerator to keep frosting from becoming grainy.

Quick Breads, Rolss

Nut breads and most quick loaf breads freeze well. Bake as usual, cool wrap and freeze. Plan on serving them within 4 weeks. Thaw them in original wrappings at room temperature, or in a 250- to 300-degree F. oven.

Prebaked rolls and yeast bread will keep up to 2 months in freezer storage. There's no advantage to half-baking rolls, says Miss Graham. Your brown-and-serve rolls will actually be drier than the ones you bake and reheat.

Pies, Crusts

Any unbaked fruit pie freezes well, according to Miss Graham. To keep raw fruits, like apples from darkening, dip then in a sodium bisulfate solution (½ teaspoon of sodium bisulfate to 2 quarts of water.) Your best bet is deep dish pie with top crust only to avoid a soggy undercrust. Leave crust whole, no air vents and seal it well.

Plan on no more than two months freezer storage for unbaked fruit pies. Bake from the frozen state, cutting air vents in upper crust. Bake in 475-degree F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 degrees F. until done.

You'll have good luck with prebaked chocolate and lemon chiffon pies made with gelatin, too, but count on just two weeks' storage.

Both crumb and pastry crusts freeze well. Using fresh hydrogenated fat and a 20 percent soya flour in pastry will lenghten its storage life.

There's more information for you on freezing prepared foods in Miss Graham's freezing bulletin available at your county extension office. It's called "Freezing Fruits, Vegetables and Prepared Foods."

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Prices of lower grades of cattle normally are the strongest in the spring. Over the years, cows and cattle grading commercial and lower have sold best in April, according to Francis A. Kutish, extension farm economist at Iowa State College. This fact should have an important bearing on cattle marketing plans for Iowa farmers.

There are two reasons for this spring price strength, Kutish explains. There are not as many cattle of this class sold for slaughter in the spring. That's because the bulk of the lower grade cattle are sold in the fall when the cattle are taken off grass. In addition, farmers and ranchers are holding cattle for the new grass this spring.

This brings us to the second reason for the higher price for lower grade cattle in the spring. Packers have to compete with bidding from people who want to buy cattle to put to pasture. These forces are again operating this year, says Kutish. Prices of lower grades of slaughter cattle have been much steadier than for choice and prime beef the last 2 months. But he believes that there is a good chance that prices of cows and lower grade slaughter cattle will begin to drop by late spring. And he looks for a downward trend in price of grades of cattle during the summer and fall.

We will have fully as large a sale of grass cattle this year as a year ago—and probably larger. That's because of the record number of cattle on farms and ranches. With more cattle on feed than a year ago, the price structure on lower grade cattle is in a weak position for the last half of 1953, according to Kutish. But the price drop is not likely to be a sharp as last year, unless we run into drouth.

For this reason, the Iowa State College farm economist believes that farmers will find the next six weeks the best time to cull out cows and off-quality heifers that they plan to sell this year. Also cattle grading good or lower should be marketed before early May.

After considerable discussion and an unexpected proposal with regard to the possibility of having a permanent theatre in Klemme, it was decided to get the "Jack Rabbit" for the summer.

Much Enthusiasm For Senior Play

Cast and Director Deserving of Praise

The seniors presented their class play Tuesday evening before a capacity crowd . . . and the crowd went away still chuckling.

The play was well chosen, the casting was good, and under Mr. Cappon's direction, the members of the cast, without exception, turned in very able performances.

Nothing but favorable comment has come to our attention. "Best class play I've ever seen in Klemme," was one comment. "When Johnny Bisom came running in and jumped up on the davenport with those pants over his arm, I nearly split," was another. "That scuffle at the close of the play came in just right. Left everyone in just the proper mood."

All these comments go to show that the play was really enjoyed, but the best recommendation for the performance of everyone connected with the production was the silence of the audience, and their spontaneous bursts of laughter on the punch lines. They were right in the play with the actors.

Between the second and third acts, the seniors presented Mr. Cappon with a gift of appreciation for his work in directing their play. Mr. Cappon thanked the members of the class for the gift, and then thanked the audience for supporting the play.

We think we can say for everyone who attended, that the thanks was coming the other way. It was a fine evening's entertainment.

Appoint County Chairmen for 1953 Cancer Control Program

Mason City—Announcement of the appointment of Rev. M. J. Klaus of Garner as fund raising chairman for the cancer control program in the east half of Hancock county was made today by John Williams, Red Oak, state campaign chairman of the Iowa division of the American Cancer Society. Last year Hancock County raised 189 per cent of its quota under the leadership of Mrs. Casper Pannhoff of Garner.

REV. M. J. KLAUS

In accepting the appointment, Rev. Klaus stated, "I have assumed this community leadership to help do my part in saving lives both today and in the future. Our Cancer Crusade in April will be two-fold: One—the promotion of an educational program that may well save the lives of some of us here in Hancock County (20 residents died of cancer in 1951), and two—the solicitation of funds to strike back at cancer through research (one out of six deaths in Iowa result from cancer).

Heading up the year-round program of cancer education and service is Mrs. Arthur Ross, Garner, who is chapter chairman.

MRS. RAY BAKER

Annoucement of the appointment of Mrs. Ray Baker as the fund raising chairman for the cancer control program in the west half of Hancock County was made recently by John Williams, Red Oak, state campaign chairman of the Iowa division of the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. O. L. Park of Britt has been appointed county education chairman taking the place of Mrs. Baker, who served in that capacity for several years.

Mrs. Baker commented in accepting the chairmanship for the west one-half of the county, "I am very much interested in the work of the Society, and I have had the opportunity to serve as co-educational chairman for the past three years. I have been town chairman in Britt for that length of time, too.

The "kick-off" dinner will be held at Hull's dining room, Garner, at 1:30 p. m. on Wednesday April 8. The various chairmen and all of the workers are invited to attend.

Be sure to listen to the radio show over KGLO, Mason City, at 8 p. m. on Friday, April 3; stars, celebrities, music, skits, and local messages.

We said last week that we would probably have a picture or two from the basketball banquet. Pictured here is the entire group. That contented look on all the faces is a testimonial to the fine meal that the Music Mothers prepared. More pictures can be found on page 5 of this issue of The Times.

Miss Esther Jante our "hello" girl at the Koerner Telephone Co., went to Garner Saturday for an over Sunday visit with her mother.

Travelers will be glad to learn that the Rock Island will build a new depot at Iowa Falls. They now have two old depots there about 3 or 4 blocks apart, for each branch. It has not been decided where the new depot will be located, but there will be just the one in the future and all the trains will run into it.

C. A. Larsen went to Calmar, Iowa, last week Wednesday and remained there a few days. There is an expert sausage maker at Calmar, in fact one of the best in the state, and it was for the purpose of learning his secret and process of making high grade sausages, meat loaf and other products of the trade that Sam went there. Sam is a good meat market man and has had a lot of experience but he says he learned a few things he didn't know before.

20 YEARS AGO—

Tuesday forenoon large flocks of hawks soared over Klemme, winging their way northward. It was estimated by one man who saw the unusual sight that a flock of at least one hundred and fifty hawks came in one large group. All day one could see from one to a dozen hawks going over.

Cecil Katter had the misfortune to fall out of the haymow and sprain his ankle Friday evening.

Several of the young people of this vicinity attended a surprise party at the Herman Thiemann home Sunday evening in honor of Miss Mildred Theimann's birthday.

Frank Ward and Henry Busse are assisting with the digging of a basement at the Herb Bailey farm for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Etchen and Betty Jean visited at the Oscar Swanson home Sunday evening.

10 YEARS AGO—

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hanson of near Wesley and Mr. and Mrs. Don Bacon and children of near Thompson were dinner guests at the parental Art Wellemeyer home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn spent Sunday at Des Moines, visiting at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr: and Mrs. Carold Larson and family.

Next Monday Roy Schaefer will begin his annual job of shearing sheep. Last year Roy sheared over 2,500 head and expects as large or greater number this year.

Billy Zabilka of Sanborn, Iowa, spent the week end here visiting with Bruce Arnold at the E. J. Arnold home.

Pvt. Marvin G. Lemke left Monday for Camp Maxey, Texas, after spending a ten day furlough here visiting his mother, Mrs. Daisy Lemke. Marvin spent Monday visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Grange at Mason City, and left there by train Monday night for Texas.

Seed Tags Tell Best Buy

Buy your seed by the seed tag. That's the advice of L. E. Everson, who is in charge of the Seed Testing Laboratory at Iowa State College.

The label on the seed bag, as required by law, gives information you need to select good seed, covering three of the important factors influencing quality of seed and performance once the seed is planted.

FIGURE INDEX

In the seed you buy you want assurance that you will get an acceptable stand of the variety you select. Two figures on the label will let you estimate the kind of stand you'll get. They are the purity—the percent by weight of the lot that is the crop you select—and germination—the percent of those seeds which will sprout and produce vigorous seedlings.

By multiplying the two factors—purity and germination—you get an over-all index for pure and live seeds in the lot. For example, consider two seed lots—one with purity 90 and germination 70 and another with purity 80 and germination 90.

The first lot index is 63 (90 times 70 divided by 100). The other sample index is 72 (80 times 90 divided by 100). In this case, the second lot would be worth more money since it would furnish a greater potential stand.

NOTE KINDS OF WEEDS

Don't overlook information about weeds that appears on the label, Everson urges. The law prohibits sale of seeds containing primary noxious weeds, buts permits sale of seed with limited amounts of secondary noxious and common weeds. If you ignore the weed content—you may invite later weed problems. The label must list individual weeds which have five or more seeds per ounce of small seed such as clover or per pound of large seeds like soybeans. Weed seed content is often a sound reason for rejecting a seed lot.

The seed law which requires labeling puts the information needed to buy seed wisely in front of the buyer. For wise investment, Everson urges examining the label to choose the seed to buy.

Bert Teunissen, 15 year old Inwood youth, is improving following an accidental gun-shot wound. A 22-calibre slug struck him in the head, causing partial paralysis in one arm and hand.

Governor Previews New Cancer Film

After signing a proclamation declaring April "Cancer Control Month" in Iowa, Governor William S. Beardsley became the first Iowan to view the American Cancer Society's newest dramatic-documentary film for men. Titled "The Warning Shadow," the 17 minute color film is on lung cancer. Governor Beardsley urged Iowa men's organizations to book this free film to help curb the rapid rise of male lung cancer deaths.

There is little "kick" left in the Iowa four-legged farm power unit today.

The Iowa development commission finds there are one thousand less mules and 31,000 less horses on Hawkeye farms today than in 1951.

According to a U. S. department of agriculture count, in 1952 Iowa had 4,000 mules and 139,000 horses.

The decrease in the horse-mule population indicates an increase in Iowa's highly specialized farm mechanization.

In 1952 there were 449,000 power machines on Iowa farms, 252,000 were tractors. In 1951, Iowa farmers purchased 35,000 new power machines of which 13,000 were tractors.

While Iowa is known best throughout the nation for farm mechanization, replacing the hay-burners, North Carolina is the mule state, not Missouri.

In 1952, Missouri mules counted 34,000 while North Carolina reported 222,000.

EDITORIAL

"Shall we have a spring prom?" With a little extra enthusiasm, especially on the part of the boys, a spring prom could very well be a success. From reports on the Thornton prom which we were invited to last year the studnets weren't afraid to get out and try to have a good time. The last efforts for a spring prom here were a fair success, so if we had a prom every year it would seem probable that each year should bring improvements. This year is as good a year as any to start having an annual spring prom.

We would like to know your opinion on this, and let us know if you have any suggestions.

SIXTH GRADE

We are working on spring decorations for our room. We have made an Easter egg tree which makes our library corner very attractive.

Gary Kothenbuetel's mother and little sister visited our room one day last waak.

In geography we have been studying about the Scandinavian Peninsula. We think it is interesting that even though Norway and Sweden have a common boundary, their customs and industries are very different.

An arguement is two people trying to get the last word first.

What Kind of a Chap are You?

Are you one of the chaps who can take his raps,
And still not hit the floor;
Who'll stick by the gun till his task is done,
And then look around for more?
Do you grin at your work or
sulk and shirk,
When the job seems hard to do;
Are you there with the grit to do your bit,
Can the boss depend on you?
Is your conscience clear,
With nothing to fear
As you punch the clock each night;
When you leave the job, do your pulses throb
With the thought of a task done right?
Is it pleasure or dread when you pillow your head,
And to think of the coming day;
Do you breathe a prayer for strength to bear;
Does your job mean simply pay?
Just pause a bit and see if you fit in the class that's pictured here;
For it's never too late to clean the slate
And start on a record clear.

We should make the same use of a book that a bee does of a flower. She steals the sweet from it, but does not injure it.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

It seems the thing that struck me the funniest was that Joan L. has a crush on Dick G. so that is the first thing I will write about.

It seems that about two weeks ago she went to Belmond with Neva and Dick. She got pretty well aquainted and thought she kinda liked him, but she didn't know how she could see him so the next Sunday Dick, Neva, Joan and Doug rode around. The moral of this is if she wants to see Dick she will try any way she can. (Was this story stretched at all, Jo?)

Another thing that really caught me funny was the stars that are shining in Gracka's eyes. The only thing I heard about that was that Lee took her to a party not to long ago Will someone please tell me the rest of it?

So Carol went to Lois C. surprise party with Raleigh B. from Garner. This may blossom into a romance and they do make a cute couple. Say Carol just what was he doing down here in such a big car the other day? Sunday to be exact.

It seems that since Darlene didn't pay any attention to poor Virgil he had to look for a new admirer and this is who he picked! Eleanor P. When he sees her coming down the hall he whispers to her so she has to come over and see what he would like to know. That way he can talk to her longer. (He sure knows how to work it, doesn't he?)

Calling all cars! Calling all cars! Does anyone know where Richard Bohn is? Pass this message on to him when you see him. "Delwyn B. has been taking Lois C. to school pretty regular in the morning and Rich had better watch it." (Very personally though I think that Delwyn comes around Lois's place about the same time every morning cause he hates to ride the last five blocks all alone).

Why don't they put in speakers everyday for the next nine weeks at school so we can miss a few minutes of school every day. That would be a point of breaking of the same old monotony!!!

It seems like every time the juniors start talking about the banquet there is a senior in sight. Sometimes it is forgotten and they go on talking except that they change the talk so much the poor senior doesn't know where he'll be standing.

Have you seen the happy look on Lois H. face lately? It is because Francis is home from college to stay and is she happy. He did have her believing though that he had to go back Wednesday.

If anyone asks you this question, do not answer it. "Spring is coming. Do you know how I can tell? The 'saps' are running."

I'm sure that if the members from all the boys and girls basketball teams haven't thanked you personally they want to for the delicious steak supper you served them Monday. We all enjoyed it and want to tell you all thanks very much.

Klemme Band Selects Candidate for Festival

SENIOR INTERVIEW

John William Waddingham was born at Hampton, Iowa, on February 3, 1935. "Bill" has dark brown hair and blue eyes. He is five feet and eight inches tall. Klemme is the only school Bill has attended.

His pet peeve is people who think they are a little better than anyone else. Working on his car is his pastime, and hunting is his hobby. Bill's favorites are: saying, "Oh, fiddle"; movie, "The Greatest Show on Earth"; movie stars, June Allyson and Tony Curtis; band, Cities Service Band of America; singer, Marion Marlowe; song, "Jambalya"; and food, peach pie.

Bill's activities throughout high school are: vice president of the freshman class, basketball for 4 years, baseball for 2 years, and parts in both Jr. and Sr. class plays. He is a member of the Methodist Church.

He is undecided as what his future plans are.

? ? OF THE WEEK

What do you think of a formal Spring Prom?

Gracka: I think we should have one.

Shirley: I think it would be nice.

Daisy: I think it would be nice. It seems most of the other schools have one and we should to.

Noel: Great Idea.

Joan: I think we should have one. They haven't had one in the past few years, and I think it would be nice to have something different.

Gary: By all means, I think we should have one.

Dennis: If everybody would come and they would have some variety it would be all right but not too formal.

Larry: I think it is a good deal for a lot of the kids who have never been to one.

Janet: I think it would be swell and I think they should teach more kids how to dance.

Miriam: I think it is a fine idea, one was given a few years ago and I think it was quite successful

Mr. Johnson: Yes, I believe it would be nice; but then the whole school would have to cooperate, and attend the prom. I believe I would see how many are really interested in a spring prom.

Mr. Smith: What is spring without a dance to express ourselves. I feel that a formal would be very nice for the experience that would be gained by it, but first I would like to know how many would be able to come because of the obligation of having formal attire.

Conclusion: It seems that everybody would be willing to cooperate if there was a spring prom.

FIFTH GRADE

We have now begun our last nine weeks period. Report cards were received last Friday. Many of us were happy but others decided we had better begin working harder.

Our room is decorated with Easter Lilies and pussy willows.

Our geography class has been studying Canada. We discovered many of the industries are the same in Canada and the United States.

SENIOR

Typing

In typing we are working on problems. Some days they are quite easy and other days they are "Dillers".

Shorthand

We have been reading and taking dictation. Most of us are taking our five minute writings on Friday at sixty words a minute. We started at 40 words and had to pass a five minute test twice and then you move up to 60 or 80 and etc.

Literature

Mr. Cappon has been reading poetry to us. Probably the most interesting poem was "Snow Bound".

History

We will start on Chapter 30, "The Progressive Era" this Thursday.

Business Law

We have been studying about bank drafts and bills of exchange.

Bookkeeping

We are continuing on the Spencer Practice Set. It gets sort of confusing some times and I don't think anyone will be sorry when it is done.

Physics

We will soon study "color".

JUNIOR

Since we have finished our tests and are back on our regular schedule, I will give you a few of the things we are doing in the different classes this past week.

Economics

We are studying how a big business operates and some advantages of the large and small business.

Shorthand

We are doing about the same in this class. We are writing out the hard words a few times so we can remember them.

Literature

We are still on poetry and hope to finish it in a few days.

Typing

We are taking one minute tests and are marking the places where we should be in a half minute, one and so on up to three minutes. Then we try to reach these goals.

Business Law

We are about the same in this class. We are studying like mad and trying to learn something.

EIGHTH GRADE

Some of the students missed being on the honor roll because of one C.

We are working on our class paper and hope to have it finished very soon.

Our motto for this week is: "You can't push anybody up a ladder unless he is willing to climb a little."

Elaine Neuberger Awaits N. Ia. Band Festival, June Ninth

Elaine Neuberger, a senior, has been chosen as the Klemme queen candidate for the North Iowa Band Festival. It is to be held, as in former years, at Mason City on June ninth.

When informed of the selection, Elaine, with sudden surprise, exclaimed, "Really?"

A senior, Elaine will be eighteen years of age, April 30. She was chosen not only for her beauty, but also for her friendly personality and her enthusiastic participation in all school actiities. The activities which she has taken particular interest in throughout the past four years are as follows:

The class offices held were—student council as a freshman, president of the class her sophomore year, class editor of the year book and juke box as a senior.

Musical activities in high school include playing french horn in the band two years and singing in the glee club and sextet.

In school sports, Elaine played basketball one year and acted as a cheerleader the following three years.

Elaine has taken part in both the junior and senior class plays.

The Methodist Church, of which Elaine is a member, also plays an important role in her life. She is a member of the church choir, the Youth Fellowship, and the Girl's Society.

We might add that Elaine has initiative, judging from the way she spends her time after school hours. Her time is divided among regular hours at the Times office, with part time at the telephone office and baby sitting when time permits.

Elaine works in Mr. Ahrenkiel, the superintendent's, office at school. Plans after graduation are as yet indefinite, but she hopes to further her education by attending college or doing secretarial work.

Elaine is anxiously awaiting the big day of June ninth. We of Klemme High feel she is as worthy a candidate as has been selected; we extend our most sincere congratulations and wish her all the luck in the world.

Recipe for Happiness

If happiness could be bought, most of us would be unhappy because of the price.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer Installment Twenty-Six

AVERY VALLEY

When the first eighty-three families moved into Avery Township, they were somewhat of a mixture as to nationality. More than half of them were English; 45 families to be exact. The Germans, 27 families, were one third of the total. Then there were ten families of Irish nationality, and one Negro family.

Young families who migrate into a new country like Avery Township was when these folks came, are not the sickly, timid, or shiftless type. (These folks stay put at the old home.) The pioneers are red-blooded forward looking and aggressive. They are the type who are willing to work hard to build up a home for their families. In this respect, the English, the Germans and the Irish of Avery Township were all alike, all good people.

The English and the Germans mostly settled on the higher ground, but the Irish wanted to be near the river. A few of the earliest to arrive formed an Irish settlement in a lovely spot next to the Iowa River, now known as "Avery Valley".

The English men were thin and wiry. The Germans were mostly short, stout and serious. But, the Irish were plump and always happy, full of jokes and idle talk. When they worked they really got busy, and when they played, they really went all out for fun.

The Irish were smart, too. When the second generation of young folks were grown, Avery Valley furnished the county with several good school teachers, mostly from the Costello and the Fuller families.

One of the first families to acquire property in Avery Valley was a Negro family by the name of Preston. Mr. and Mrs. Nels Preston and their three children, Jimmie, Pinkie and Rosie lived here for several years. They sold to Daniel Costello in 1882, and 68 years later in 1950, James Carslon became the owner.

The north river bridge in Avery Valley was called "Nigger Bridge" because of this family, and the south river bridge is called "Avery Bridge" because Lew Avery owned the land near it.

JESSE JAMES

It's the gospel truth, so the old timers in Avery Valley say, that the James Brothers, notorious robbers and hold up men, once had a "hide out" in these parts, and the story goes something likes this:

Once upon a time, many years ago, Jesse James sent a man and his wife from Missouri, to the vacant town of Amsterdam. They rented the "Old Hotel Building". The man worked out by the day now and then, but they lived well and it was presumed that good hearted Jesse James gave them the money to pay their bills.

The James Brohers would use this hotel as a hide out. Sometimes the neighbors would see several men and horses about the place, and at other times no one was there except the old couple who were the caretakers. Suddenly the place became "hot" and everybody moved out during the night.

However, some months later, in the fall of the year, two men of the gang rode in on dapple gray horses. They arrived about sun up in the morning at the Frank Costello farm, and arranged to have their horses stabled and fed. When they removed their coats, it was noticed that the men were well armed with six shooters, and the farm folks were afraid. Their visitors assured them that no one would get hurt, providing they would feed them and let them sleep during the day. They were well paid in advance for their accomodations, and toward evening they saddled their horses and rode off in the night.

Everybody in Avery Valley knows about this visit from the James boys.

NAMES AND NICK NAMES

Every town and community seems to use nick name to designate their friends and neighbors. Here in Klemme you know just who is who when you hear such names as; Fat, Buck, Bally, Red, Jack, Mike, Toke, Jeff, Pete, Cap, Bud, Stub, Kimmel, The Bears, Fritz, Kelly, Truman, etc.

Avery Township, too, had its special names which were commonly used forty years ago or more. They called Anson Avery Sr., Dad; George Griggs was wolf; John Bachman, Road Cart; Will Johnson, Kansas Bill; Fred Wilkins, Beaver; Chris Hanson, Punch; Jay Griggs, Fox; W. H. Monahon, Coolie; Jake Bachman, Eagle Eye; John Costello, Rippy; Frank Roths, Files; and there were others whose names I do not recall.

Even the school houses had special names. "Prairie Queen" was the name painted on a rural building, District No. 1, on the Paul Kramer farm. "Riverside" was painted on the District No. 3 rural school on the Clarence Arnold farm.

Several farms had names painted on the barns, such as Walt Bloom's "Red Cloud Ranch", and the spectacular "Poverty Hill" farm.

A. D. White owned 240 acres of rough river bottom land on the west side of the road. He also owned 160 acres of fertile prairie land on the east side of the road. For convenience in handling the livestock which grazed on the river bottom, he built his farmstead on a west side knoll overlooking the river bottom acres. Then as a joke he named the place "Poverty Hill", which name was painted across the side of a cattle barn in white letters two feet high. If you did not know about the good land on the east side of the road, you would think "Poverty Hill" a most appropriate name.

Some years gao, Carl Wille became the owner and since then the old buildings have been torn down, new buildings erected, and at the present time it has the appearance of a model farmstead and could now be called "Golden Acres" with propriety. This farm is 1½ miles south of Klemme.

WITHOUT WATER

Hot, dry, and no rain, was what the weather-man handed out for July and August 1854, when the Anson Avery family was on the move from Michigan to their new home in Hancock County.

The sloughs, creeks and small streams were dry, and only the larger rivers had any water m them. Many of the shallow wells had gone dry. Some of the farmers who had good wells locked the pump handle down with a chain and pad lock.

At one farm place they were allowed to water their oxen at the well, providing they left the water trough full when they moved on. The water in this well was low, so they pumped for a few minutes and then waited a short time for more water to come into the well and pumped again. Thus, they changed off and pumped all night.

One evening they came to a dry stream. They had followed the faint wagon trail all day without water. Here they overtook another caravan of immigrants in the same plight. The drivers discussed what to do, while they ate supper. As it was a moonlight night, they decided to drive on in the night hoping to come to a stream or a well as their stock was bawling for water.

About seven hours later, toward morning, they came to a rushing river. The companion caravan was in the lead, and when they were about a mile from the river, the oxen on the lead wagon smelled the water and stampeded pell-mell toward the water and upset the wagon spilling its contents into the water.

This is Jimmie Preston, who lived with his parents on the James Carlson farm in about 1880.

The Avery's, when they perceived the excitement ahead, stopped, unhitched the oxen from the wagons and let them run free to the water. When order was finally restored, they camped for a day of rest on the river bank and even caught a few fish.

After they had crossed the Mississippi river by ferry boat, they were out of the drouth area. The grass was greener and water more plentiful.

COW BELLS

On this pioneer trip, whenever the Averys camped for the night, they would turn the oxen loose so they could eat their fill of grass. Before they turned them loose, they would put a "cow bell" on each ox, so that they could find him in the morning.

One morning at about four o'clock, Mr. Avery woke up, but did not hear any cow bells. Since they usually tinkled all night, he knew something was wrong. He put on his shoes and ran around in the dark trying to find his oxen. He finally back tracked on the trail and found them, bells and all, quietly walking back toward Michigan. It was ten o'clock in the morning when Avery finally got his oxen back to camp. He was clad only in his night shirt and shoes. Not even a hat.

HORSES

Several months after the Averys arrived, it was necessary for Mr. Avery to make a trip, by ox team, to Dubuque for supplies. This trip took about thirty days.

While in Dubuque, he bought a pair of horses. They were in fact yearling colts. He also bought a saddle and a set of harness.

When these colts had grown to maturity, Mr. Avery decided to break the mare to ride. He put on the saddle and the bridle, mounted and was "thrown" three times hand running. Then he led her into a slough and rode her round and round in the soft mud until she was tired and lathered with sweat. After that she never offered to "buck" again.

BUFFALO

Some years after the first settlers arrived, they learned from a traveler that there was a small herd of buffalo grazing in the northwest corner of the county. Avery and his pals went to see about this. They found the buffalo herd near where Algona now is located. They shot two, loaded them onto a spring wagon and brought them home. They drove and rode horses on this trip.

BONES

Before the white man arrived, herds of buffalo fed on the prairie grasses of Hancock County. They provided meat for the Indians, and of course, the wolves had to be fed too.

The wolves would single out one of the herd, drive him toward a river or slough, and when the animal got into soft ground they would make the kill and eat their fill.

I suppose this went on for many, many years, for when this writer was herding cattle west of Garner in 1890, each slough was encircled with a ring of buffalo bones, and there was a string of bones on each side of the river.

Peddlers would come with team and wagon to gather up and sometimes even buy these bones. They were shipped out by the carload. The peddlers said they were ground up and used in the process of refining sugar a that time.

HEATHEN VALLEY

Along about 1880, after the Irish were nicely settled in Avery Valley, a group of their young men went to Belmond to celebrate the fourth of July.

They evidently had a good time, for they stayed very late. At midnight the business places began to close up for the night, and when the pool hall was about to close, the proprietor noticed a young man half asleep sitting on a keg in the rear of his place He shook him awake, led him to the door and said, "Who the heck are you and where do you live?"

The young Irishman answered, I'm Rip-Van Winkle and I live in Heathen Valley". His friends gathered him up and all started for home.

The nick name "Heathen Valley" was tagged to this community for years and everybody in the valley knows about the story, but no one wants to say just which one did the loud talking in the pool hall that night.

Now, with a later generation of young folks occupying these farms they gradually dropped the name Heathen Valley, and speak of their farms as being in Avery Valley.

COMMERCIAL

The old fashioned coffin was lowered into the ground and covered up without the use of an outside grave box.

Grave boxes came into use with the coming of cloth covered caskets.

Some customers paid a little extra for a heavy box made of two inch cypress lumber.

In 1918, I purchased my first metal vault. It was an extra heavy cast iron vault. I had it on display in our casket room for about three years. No one offered to by it, so I sold it to a funeral director at Fort Dodge, at a discount.

The next week I had a call for a metal vault and obtained one by express from a factory in Dubuque.

After this vaults became popular, and today half of our burials are made in metal vaults, and most of the others are placed in sectional cement boxes, which are almost as cheap as wooden boxes. And thus the pine box is not used very often, except for babes and children.

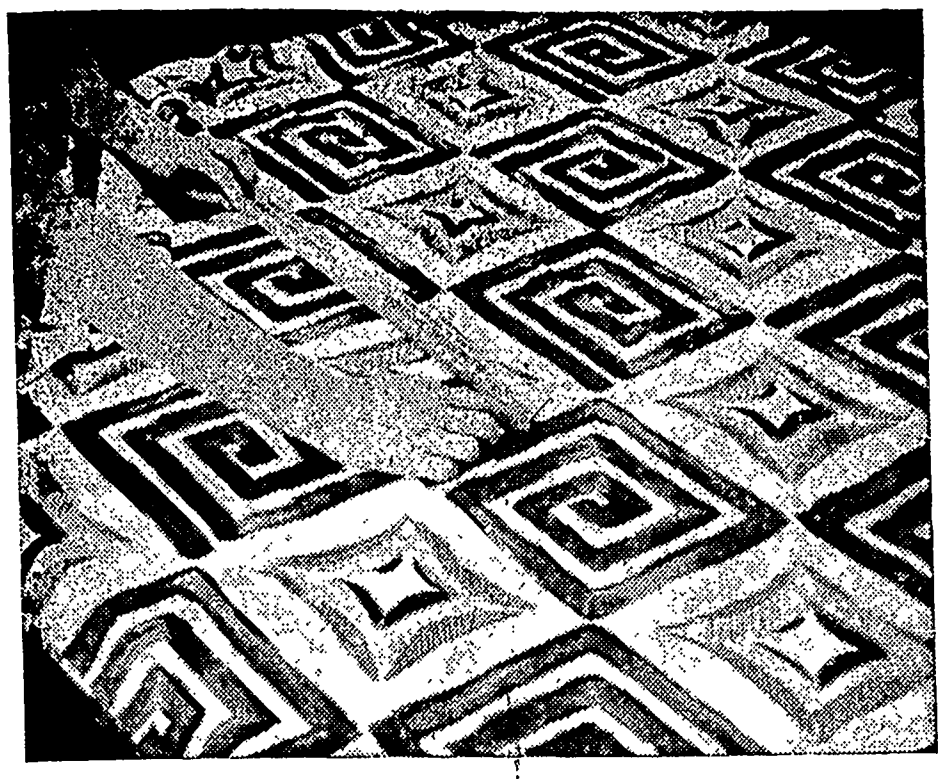
Check Measurements, Design, Colorfastness—

When You Buy Drapery Fabric



You'll probably need to buy extra fabric if the drapery fabric you like has a definite design or pattern. The extra yardage will enable you to make the drapery panels match exactly and also make it possible for the design to come out even at the bottom or top of each panel.

If new draperies figure in your spring redecorating plans, here are window measuring and fabric buymanship tips from a woman who's been teaching drapery selection and construction to Iowa homemakers.

Your choice of fabric will have much to do with how effective and professional-looking your draperies turn out, says June Brow, Iowa State College extension home furnishings specialist. Study your room, color scheme, furniture, fabrics, designs and textures. Then try out samples of the fabric you like in the room to make sure you've selected the right one.

Here are some other points to consider at the yard goods counter: Be sure the fabric is printed straight on the grainline so the draperies will hang straight and with the design even. Choose preshrunk fabric, or plan to preshrink it yourself, before sewing. Make sure the fabric is colorfast to both washing or dry cleaning and sunlight.

Measure Window

Be systematic in estimating the amount of fabric to buy so you won't run out or end up with too much.

Windows in your room may look the same size, but play safe and measure each one separately, Mrs. Brown advises. For length, measure from the top of the curtain rod to the floor, sill, or bottom of apron. Most becoming length is to the sill or floor. Add from 3½ to 4 inches each for heading and bottom hem. Some homemakers like to make a double hem at the bottom—the extra material gives leeway for future alterations and the added weight helps the drapery hang nicely. Remember, if you want such a hem, you double the hem allowance.

You can use extra stiffening for the headng or a double heading of fabric. Many commercial houses now use a double heading of fabric for draw draperies, Mrs. Brown explains. They allow 7 to 8 inches, folding the fabric twice to give a three-layer 3½ to 4-inch heading. Then baste the heading; then pleat it and remove basting. The vertical stitching of the pleats keeps the hem in place.

Avoid Skimpy Look

Don't skimp on the width of your draperies. Each side of draw draperies should be as wide as your window plus any wall space to be covered. This gives a full rich, look. Allow 1½ to 2½ inches more for each side hem. The heavier the fabric, the wider the side hems should be.

Drapery fabrics come in 36, 42, 48 and 52-inch widths. Choose a width to suit your window, if possible. Thus, you'll avoid piecing widths.

To make the designs come out even at the bottom and top of each panel, measure from the top of design to the top of the next repeat. Let's say this distance measures 16 inches. Then, if the finished drapery panel, including top and bottom hem allowances, is to be 108 inches, you'll need to add 4 inches so it is evenly divisible by 16. This means buying 112 inches of fabric for each panel and will give you 7 pattern repeats for each.

Plan for your lining to be the exact width of your hemmed drapery. Allow 1½ inches extra in length for hem at the bottom.

Before you start to sew, preshrink the fabric if necessary. Then straighten fabric for each panel by pulling a thread across the top and bottom, cutting on this line. Most drapery fabrics don't tear well. If fabric does not lie flat and even, pull it zigzag from corner to corner until it's straight; then press. Cut off selvages to keep draperies from puckering, or clip every 6 inches.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

More cattle were slaughtered under federal inspection during February than ever before in that month, Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist reports. Figured on annual basis, it was at the rate of 34 million head for the year as a whole—compared with 28 million head last year.

Total cattle numbers on January 1, 1953, were up to 94 million head. Cattle numbers will reach about 100 million head in 1955, unless stopped by dry weather or price declines, Kutish predicts. That would give us an animal slaughter of 39 million head, he adds.

Such a picture can only mean a trend toward lower cattle prices over the next couple of years, says Kutish.

Currently, the cattle market has rebounded some from the February low. But some price drop can be expected again for choice and prime cattle later this spring, when runs of well-finished cattle become more plentiful.

We have more heifers on feed this year than for several years. The supply of fed heifers will pick up more than steer beef during the next 3 or 4 months, according to Kutish. He believes it advisable to finish yearling heifers now on feed for sale as soon as possible.

Corn Supplies Plentiful

Deliveries of corn under loan or purchase agreement to Commodity Credit Corporation this fall will be heavier than the CCC committees will be able to handle, so Commodity Credit plans to put on a program to reseal corn.

Hancock farmers who will need temporary cribbing to handle such a program should get their orders in for cribbing soon. Farmers who will have to dispose of corn now on the farm should check with the county PMA committee to learn the chances of being able to deliver corn this fall.

Now is the time to do this planning, says Kutish. For some farmers the best alternative may be to dispose of their present surplus corn now to provide crib room for new corn. New crop corn that has to be dumped on the market next fall because of lack of crib space almost certainly will sell at lower prices than the present value of the old corn crop.

the Highway Story

By Bob Hullihan

To people enjoying a happier way of life, the first sight of a robin is the first sign of spring. But to the accident evaluators in the state saftey department, the appearance of the first feverish accident report is the sign that balmy weather and like drivers have arrived.

Here's how the season opened this year:

An accident report came in made out by a father for his 15-year-old son. According to the information, the son had been driving and the father sitting along side instructing.

The boy wanted to make a left turn so he pulled well over to the right side of the road and, suddenly, whipped into his turn. The car following nosed into him none too gently, as might have been expected.

Now, this type accident, while foolish, is not exactly rare, so the evaluator thought he had a routine case on his hands until he read the father's explanation at the bottom of the report. Said the father: "I was teaching the boy how to make a left turn without missing the car behind us"

Spring is here!

But perhaps a thought can be salvaged from this incident. Most of us are members of a generation of drivers that has made an ugly record on the highways.

Maybe it's time we isolated ourselves from the very young drivers. Maybe many of us are "accident-carriers" without realizing it, passing on our bad driving habits like germs.

Perhaps it's time to leave the education of the younger driver in the hands of the people who have had the mistakes trained out of them—driver education teachers.

At Alta, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hansen recently observed their 60th wedding anniversary.

Fire at Ausborn Home Destroys Second Floor

Lose Furniture and Clothing; Fire Dept. Does Excellent Job

Sunday afternoon at about three o'clock, the Klemme Fire Department answered a call to the Albert Ausborn home, two miles south and a mile east of Klemme. Fire of undetermined origin had gotten a good start in the upstairs portion of the house, before it was noticed, and things got pretty warm.

Both trucks were put into service as the water supply at the farm was not sufficient for the job. One truck would fight the blaze, while the other came to town to load up with more water. The firemen did a good job, as the fire had a big start and everyone thought that the whole house was a "goner". The insurance adjuster told them that they had done remarkably well. He said that usually when a fire had as much start as that one apparently did, nothing was saved.

Mrs. Ausborn and one of the boys were home alone when the fire started and the rest of the family was at the Jake Erdmann home. Mrs. Ausborn smelled smoke, and went outside to see what the trouble was. Smoke and flames were already coming through the roof.

The downstairs portion of the house was undamaged as far as smoke and fire were concerned, but water soaking into the ceiling caused much plaster to fall off. There was no chance to save room suites and much clothing was lost.

Treasurer Reports on Homestead Credits

Roy L. McMillin

First Half of the Homestead Credit in the State of Iowa amounted to $11,454,835.84. Of this amount Hancock County received for the first half $69,464-.37. This amount is credited to each taxing district and each property owner receives his share of the total. It is figured 25 mills on $2500.00 of the assessed value of your property, making $62.50 credit on your tax if you have this amount. If under $2500.00 it is figured on 25 mills of the value.

There is a lot of talk in the legislature or in Des Moines, that this is being increased each year and that they will have to reduce the credit for each property owner down to 20 mills on each property—making the credit $50.00 instead of the $62.50. If this is done you can see that you would have to pay the difference in your tax. Nothing has been done in this regard as yet.

We have some property in Hancock County that does not pay any tax. They receive the Soldiers exemption and also the Homestead exemption so that where the mills are not to high the exemption takes care of all the tax.

World War I soldiers receive $750.00 credit on their tax while World War II received $500.00.

Military exemption in the state amounted to $1,160,066.18. Hancock county received $6753.75.

The money to pay the Homestead exemption comes from the Iowa Sales Tax.

Klemme Drivers Involved in Two Accidents

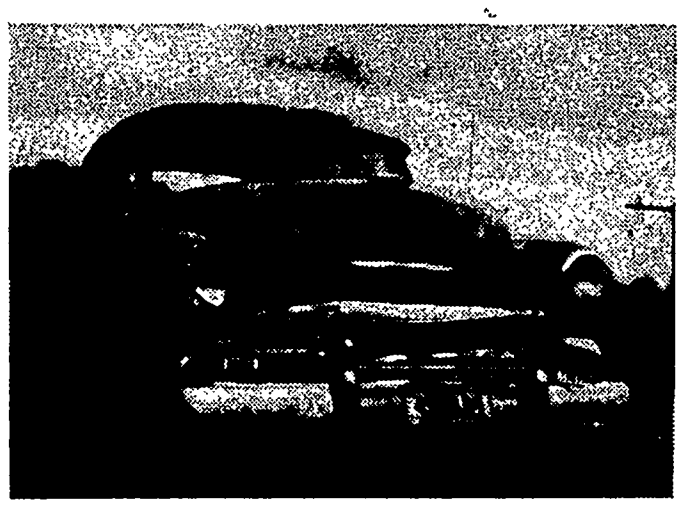
Johnson and Neuberger Cars Badly Damaged In Separate Accidents

Last Friday about eleven o'clock in the morning, George Schoenwetter was on the way out to his farm, driving his pickup. He was traveling west on the gravel road that leads out of the north edge of Klemme to highway 69. About a quarter of a mile out of town, he met his brother and both men stopped their vehicles, to visit a bit.

LeRoy Johnson, who was following George, apparently didn't see him stop, and rammed the rear end of the pickup. Neither driver was injured although George was knocked out for a bit. Says he must have hit his head on the top.

LeRoy's car was damaged considerably, but the pickup driven by George was hardly hurt. Sprung a leak in the gas tank.



LeRoy Johnson's "Chevvie" took a pretty good beating when it crashed into the rear of George Schoenwetter's pickup last Friday. About $350 worth of damage.

Lester Neuberger in Crash

Tuesday evening about six o'clock, Lester Neuberger was driving south on Garner's main street. A couple of blocks south of the court house, he got "clipped".

Lester was following another car, and a Mrs. VanOort was waiting her chance to back out of a driveway. She let the first car go by and then backed out. She hit Lester's car on the left side and the impact pushed it into a parked car.

The accident caused considerable damage to the Neuberger car, but no one was hurt. Les said he was in a fine fix. The woman got out to see what had happened, and he couldn't get out. Her car and the parked car had his doors all blocked shut.

About Face

Russia's abrupt about face has put the western world in quite a predicament. No one dares to let down for fear the communists may only be planning some further coup, yet hopes are running high among the free peoples of the world.

We go along with the president. He stated that any proposal should be taken at face value until proof showed it to be made in bad faith.

Spring Weather

Last Friday and Saturday were windy, blustery days, but Easter Sunday dawned bright and clear, and was the sort of a spring day that one usually associates with Easter. Churches were crowded for the Easter services, and the ladies were able to wear all of their new Easter finery in comfort, and without fear of having it ruined by inclement weather.

In the afternoon, many people were enjoying their first outing of the season. We drove down to Lake Cornelia to see if there were any other golf bugs who had come out of hibernation, and sure enough, the course was loaded with people. We even got in a round, ourselves. On the way, we saw several groups of people taking advantage of the warm weather to try out the fishing. Whether or not they were catching any fish, we couldn't say, but they were out soaking up the sunshine and enjoying themselves.

There is always a wealth of activity during the winter months, but so far as we're concerned, nothing quite measures up to the things that can be enjoyed out doors when warm weather comes.

Monday held bright and clear the same as Sunday, and farmers were busy getting in their oats, spreading fertilizer, and sowing grass seed. They were still able to work in the fields come Tuesday, but sometime in the night, everything "went to pot".

This morning (Wednesday) it was raining, and so far it hasn't seen fit to stop. Most farmers would just as soon the rain would have held off for a day or two, but quite a few have finished their seeding, and to them the rain is alright. If the sun would just come out again when the rain stops, things would green-up fast, and no one would complain about the day or two missed in the field.

We get quite a variety of weather this time of year, but as a rule we don't mind it too much, because we know that when it settles down it will be mild, full of sunshine, and comfortable for being out doors.

Clean Up Time

Spring, besides offering us the chance to get outside for some recreation, also brings the opportunity to clean up the winter's accumulation of trash. To some people, this is a form of recreation, but to the rest of us, it is a necessary evil.

We think that one of the things we have always liked most about Klemme and the surounding farm territory, is the cleanliness. Everything is kept picked up, and painted up, and offers an attractive look to passers by.

We have had visitors from other sections of the country, and without fail, they always comment on how prosperous, and up-and-coming things look around here. Whether or not we are so much more prosperous than other localities, we couldn't say, but by keeping things cleaned up, the people of this community have made that impression on others.

We think it is a good impression to make, and we feel quite sure that most folks around here take enough pride in the appearance of their homes that the impression will keep on being made year after year.

Sure Sign

Surest sign of spring that we have seen yet, is a group of teen-age boys walking by the shop with baseball gloves dangling from their hands.

30 YEARS AGO—

There will be no spring vacation this spring. The school board has left the question of a spring vacation to the teachers and they have decided they didn't want any. This will let school out on May 25. There will be no graduation this year, owing to the adding of the twelfth grade.

The Easter programs given in the Klemme Churches Sunday night were very good and were also well attended. They had been beautifully decorated for the occasion and the programs were exceptionally good. As the programs were held on the same evening an opportunity was not given to see them all.

Why muss and fuss around heating a tub of water, when you can enjoy a shower bath at McCullough's Barber Shop?

A new chimney graces the Farmer's Elevator. The old chimney got to leaning down instead of up and Herman decided it would not be according to Hoyle to have the smoke traveling downward. The smoke-stack again points toward the moon.

20 YEARS AGO—

Pete Josten's herd of cattle played an April Fool prank on him. Friday night Pete closed the barn door in a manner which he thought was secure. Next morning when Pete and his son went to the barn, the door was wide open and the cows had departed for places unknown. By tracking them, they were found at the Geo. Albers place, where Pete induced them to return home again.

Miss Agnes Galbreth spent the week end visiting her parents Rev. and Mrs. Galbreth at Mason City.

R. W. Elder dispatched his hired man to town Thursday morning on a horse to procure hip boots, which were gladly loaned to him by Ye Editor. Ralph, like a lot of other people, had more or less of a lake at his dairy farm. Before getting the boots he went about barefooted but that was rather chilly. Water at a dairy farm is something to say in a whisper—but, the milk seemed as rich as usual.

Tuesday noon, April 4, 1933, at one o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Anna Christians, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Christians to Lloyd Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Garner, Iowa.

10 YEARS AGO—

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Pringnitz have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Merlin Arlene to Pvt. Lowell Mau, of Lubbock, Texas.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold purchased the small house formerly occupied by the Edwin Medaus family and had it moved to her farm. The Medaus family purchased the Patet house sometime ago and reside in it now.

Capt. A. H. Dulmes, who is now stationed at the Bushnell General Hospital at Brigham, Utah, visited with old Klemme friends Thursday and Friday. Capt. Dulmes arrived here from Temple, Texas, where he took a convoy of patients to a hospital there. He reports that Mrs. Dulmes and Dick are well and anxious to get back to Iowa for a visit with old friends.

Roland Runge, carpenter at the Northern Lumber Co., injured one of his fingers on his left hand, while operating a power saw Friday. It required nine stitches to close the wound.

EDITORIAL

According to public opinion, the senior class play was as large a success as last year's play.

Despite the fact that the play almost made Mr. Cappon a nervous wreck, everything went off smoothly. Since the cast could not persuade Mr. Cappon to show the audience what his gifts were, we'll have to do it for him. The senior class presented him with a sport shirt and a reversible jacket. He was quite pleased with his presents. Now that the play is over, the seniors are one step closer to graduation.

Time is getting shorter, so we have to decide whether or not to have a prom after the banquet. The school board is willing to pay half the expenses if we have the prom and banquet on the same evening.

Let's decide what we want, NOW.

Galen and Emily

FOURTH GRADE

Dean Neuberger treated his class to candy bars last week in honor of his birthday. His treats were late because he celebrated his birthday in Texas.

The "Easter Rabbit" visited our room last Thursday and left us candy eggs.

EIGHTH GRADE

On April 14th the class is going to Des Moines on a tour. Some of the parents of the students are driving for us. We plan to take six cars and we will also pay the parents who drive a certain amount of money from our club dues.

The places which we will visit are as follows: Capitol and Historical Building, 9:00 A. M.; Radio Station WHO to see a live broadcast at 11:00 A. M.; Des Moines Central Fire Station at 1:15 P. M.; Register and Tribune 2:00 P. M.; Des Moines Police Station at 3:15 P M.

We hope we will have a very interesting day at Des Moines.

The motto for this week is; "You reap what you sow."

FIRST GRADE

We made little ducks and rabbits to decorate our room.

Karen Nuehring celebrated her birthday by treating her class to candy bars. Her mother, Mrs. Erwin Nuehring, was a visitor in our room that afternoon.

Wednesday, we colored boiled eggs and put our names on them.

We made Easter baskets in hopes that the Easter Bunny will visit us at recess time.

We have had several absences because of chicken-pox this week. They are Judy Rasmus, Dickie Meints, Donna Lou Josten and Zelda Heginger. We hope they will be back with us next week.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

I guess Lois J. got all flustered Saturday in Humboldt when she found out that a certain boy, who's name just happens to be Arnette Ter Hark was there. Did you get to hear him sing, Lois?

I guess Lois H. has a pretty cute idea. It seems that she goes to Garner with her folks on Saturday night, but it always just happens that Francis is there to take her back home again. It makes it pretty convenient, doesn't it Lois.

What's this I hear? Could it be true that Shirley Barz goes to church with Noel E. quite often on Sunday nights. She will probably be joining the Methodist Church pretty soon.

I wonder if Clarence got done working in the fields yet? It seems that he thought he would be pretty busy Tuesday night, or so he informed us Sunday afternoon. By the way, Daisy, were you slightly mad at Paul, Sunday afternoon?

How did that big date come off Saturday night, Carol? I hear that their was quite a mix-up on who got the car, but I guess Graydon won out after all, and poor Harley had to take Egeland's car.

That musta been quite a ride you had Monday night, Dick, coming home from that party. It seems that you weren't able to stay on the road all the time. That's all right, Dick, it happens to the best of us.

Poor Tom, what ever will you do next year, when Leola goes to Meservey school? It will probably be rough, but you get used to it, it just takes time.

Don't tell me that it's possible that Neva is going to go with somebody else after five years of going with Bill. You should feel pretty lucky, Gene, to think that your the lucky fellow.

We wonder who was the most bashful, Magaret or Galen. Most people didn't know that he was supposed to kiss her lightly on the cheek during one act of the play.

Does Neva always run from the boys like she did from Virgil after the matinee Tuesday?

Larry is getting to be quite a sculptor. His model of Elaine shows promise of a promising future.

What were Bill and Sharon doing on the davenport behind the curtains the other day at play practice?

It seems that Dorothy and Harlan are getting pretty steady now when she even has him going to church with her.

Was Bob really trying to help Eunice pound nails Wednesday morning or was that just an excuse?

Ila Mae who is your secret admirer? It couldn't be Dallas, could it?

What is this we hear about Doug and Joan L.? It seems Doug is trying to get a date after the prom early.

Marie says she will never be unfaithful to her boyfriend from South Dakota, but the things she did at play practice we wonder if she is keeping her promise.

We think Mr. Cappon should always wear a mustache especially the kind Eunice likes.

Just a list of the couples that were at the senior class play Tuesday night. Lois and Rich, Lois and Francis, Larry and Elaine, Sharon and Bill, Bill and Janet, Dorothy and Harlan, Kay and Ronnie, Miriam and Bob, Leola and Tom, Harriet and Stanley, Joan and Merlyn, Carol and Graydon, Cecil and Joan, Darlene and Harry, Lee and Gracka. I think that just about takes care of them all.

What happened that Marie got left in town Monday night after play practice.

Daisy what happened to your man Tuesday night? I see Paul was in town, you could have went home with him. I don't think she would get mad.

What happened to Elda Tuesday night I see you were out side before the play started.

KINDERGARTEN

We have made Easter baskets which we hope will be filled by the Easter Bunny. We are helping the Easter Bunny a little by each of us coloring an egg to put in our baskets.

The first grade enjoyed a parade of our Easter hats which we made in art. Each of us decorated our own hat as we wished.

David Miller treated us to crackerjacks for his sixth birthday.

We have had several mothers visit our room. We hope they enjoyed their visit and will come again.

SECOND GRADE

The Meadowlarks have finished reading their books. Monday they will start in their new books which are "Friday, the Apapaho Indian" and "Squanto and the Pilgrims."

Linda Jernigan has been absent with the mumps. Hurry back, Linda.

Mrs. Lau and Mrs. Miller visited our room last week. Richard celebrated his birthday and treated us to Cracker Jacks.

JUNIOR

Another week is gone and we have to think of what to write for class news. I think we have all tried very hard to learn all we could. (Can't you just see the juniors trying.)

Economics:

How we get prices on things that we buy and the different names it is given are the things we are learning at the present time in economics.

Typing:

It is about the same in this class although we changed typewriters and some are working pretty hard to do as good on their new one as they did on their old one.

Business Law:

We are studying about endorsements and holders in due courts.

Shorthand:

This class is about the same. Some of us are slowly advancing up the ladder in our timed writings and we hope to go still higher.

Literature:

This is a very interesting class at the present time as we are reading different plays. Some of them have proven to be very interesting and some are pretty comical in parts. It seems that Mr. Cappon mentioned something about writing themes in the last four weeks, with two and three themes a week so you can just see how worried the juniors are. (Can't you see the juniors worried just once about their studies?)

BAND NEWS

Saturday, March 28, a few of the band members went to Humbolt for the Sub-State Solo and Ensemble Contest. Some left at 6:30 and the others left at 8:30 in the morning. The following persons got first for their solos: Lois Christians-clarinet; Margaret Haefner-piano; Margaret Boland- tenor sax; Kay Jacobs-trombone; Eunice Helps-trombone.

The following persons got second: John Bisom-piano; Gracka Gerardi-flute; Cecil Jacobs-cornet; Fred Arnold-cornet; Faye Janssen-clarinet.

The trombone quartet got first with the following persons playing: Kay Jacobs, Eunice Helps, Rosalie Rosendahl, and Arthur Carlson. The brass chamber group also got first with the following players: Cecil Jacobs, John Bisom, Margaret Haefner, and Eunice Helps. The woodwind trio consisting of Lois Ann Jacobs, Gracka Gerardi, and Faye Janssen, received a first. The woodwind chamber group also got first with the following persons playing: Margaret Boland, Ione Rosendahl, JoAnn Bacon, Carol Bridges, and Lois Christians. Val Stromer, Barbra Thompson, Arthur Carlson and Fred Arnold played in a brass quartet and received a first.

A new venture in vocational guidance was undertaken in Hancock County last year. This was a conference called "Career Day," which was held at Britt last year, and again this year.

The purpose of this conference is to provide high school students with first hand information concerning their choice of a vocation, based on individual ability and personal interest.

Monday, March 30, was the date of the second annual "Career Day". Sophomores and seniors only were given the opportunity to attend these classes.

In the opening assembly the program was begun at 9:45 a.m. with an address by Supt. Earl Miller of Britt. The highlight of the assembly program was the address by Dr. Ray Bryan, head of Vocational Education, of Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa. Dr. Bryan's talk was rich in helpful thoughts, preparing us for the three classes to follow which we would attend. He told us the things to consider and be especially concerned about upon choosing our life work.

At 10:45 the first class period began. Previous to the conference each student was required to select three classes for the day, of which they were most interested.

A few of the most attended classes by Klemme students were: agriculture, teaching, forestry, homemaking, engineering, office opportunities, military service, and beauty culture.

The day was well worth the time spent, although all questions were not answered to the satisfaction of all students.

What You Should Know About Selective Service

Iowa State Headquarters has prepared a series of short weekly articles concerning the operation of Selective Service. Each article will deal with some particular phase of the operations as it affects the registrant. The series has been with the thought that it will be of assistance to the registrant and the general public in understanding the "How" and "Why" of Selective Service. The first article in this series follows.

Selective Service Classifications

Each Selective Service registrant is classified in one of 17 classifications. It is the Local Board's responsibility to decide, subject to appeal, the class in which each registrant shall be placed. Classifications are not permanent; they may be changed from time to time as changes in laws, regulations and conditions require. Each registrant will be considered as available for military service until his eligibility for deferment from military service is clearly established to the satisfaction of the Local Board. The registrant should understand his classification is determined solely on the basis of the written information contained in his file. It is his responsibility to keep his Local Board informed (by written notification) of any change of status which may affect his Selective Service classification.

The Selective Service Regulations provide that each registrant shall be classified in one of the following classes:

CLASS I-A Available for military service.
CLASS I-A-O: Conscientious objector available for noncombatant military service.
CLASS I-C: Member of the Armed Forces of the United States, the Coast and Geodetic Survey or the Public Health Service, and certain registrants therefrom.
CLASS I-D: Member of reserve component or student taking military training.
CLASS I-O: Conscientious objector available for civilian work contributing to the maintenance of the national health, safety or interest.
CLASS I-S: Student deferred by statute.
CLASS I-W: Conscientious objector performing civilian work contributing to the maintenance of the national health, safety or interest.
CLASS II-A: Registrant deferred because of civilian occupation (except agriculture and activity in study).
CLASS II-C: Registrant deferred because of agricultural occupation.
CLASS III-A Registrant with a child or children; and registrant deferred by reason of extreme hardship and privation to dependents.
CLASS IV-A Registrant who has has completed service; sole surviving son.
CLASS IV-B: Officials deferred by law.
CLASS IV-C: Aliens.
CLASS IV-D: Minister of religion or divinity student.
CLASS IV-F: Physically, mentally, or morally unfit.
CLASS V-A Registrant over the age of liability for military service.

Iowa Electric Merges With Iowa Electric Light and Power Company

Stockholders of the Iowa Electric Company and the Iowa Electric Light and Power Company met separately in Cedar Rapids on April 7 and voted overwhelmingly in favor of the merger of the Iowa Electric Company into the Iowa Electric Light and Power Company.

At the Iowa Electric Company's stockholder's meeting, voting on the merger proposal by classes of stock was as follows: common stock, 5097¼ shares (99½%) yes, opposed none; the 7% preferred stock, 9142½ shares (87½%) yes, opposed 55; the 6½% preferred stock, 11,328 (89%) yes, opossed 24; balance of the stock did not vote.

At the annual meeting of the Iowa Electric Light and Power Company stockholders, voting on the merger proposal was as follows: common stock, 982,860 shares (88¾%) yes, 145 shares no; the preferred stock, 129,170 shares (88%) yes, 5 no; the balance of the stock did not vote.

At the meeting of the Iowa Electric Light and Power Company stockholders, the following were elected as directors: John B. Bachofer, Robert S. Cook, S. E Coquillette, William C. Howard R. Green, Ray J. Mills, W. J. Morrison, Eugene M. Pinney, and S. W. Wilder.

At the Board of Directors meeting following the stockholders' meeting, the following officers were re-elected: Sutherland Dows, Chairman of the Board and President; C. S. Woodward, Vice President; Duane Arnold, Vice President; Herbert Henderson, Vice President; V. H. Lear, Vice President; H. W. White, Treasurer and Assistant Secretary; Ralph F. Dresher, Secretary; and F. C. Byers, General Attorney.

President Dows told the stockholders that the construction program for 1953 would call for a cash expenditure of approximately $9,400,000. This expenditure, Mr. Dows pointed out, would require some new capital, at least a part of which would be obtained through the sale of either common or preferred stock, or both. "During our heavy construction period, we must look to thrifty independent investors to furnish much of the new capital required to finance our growth" Dows said.

Twin Lake Go Getters

Saturday, March 14, the Twin Lake Go Getters met at the home of Mrs. Erwin Neuhring.

Marcella Nuehring gave a demonstration on a storage box. All girls made a hassock or storage box at this meeting.

Five girls and one leader were presnt. Janet Lange was a visitor.

A picture study will be held on April 2, at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Haupt.

Prices of products sold by Hancock County farmers are likely to average at about present levels for the rest of the year. Some will be up a bit, while others will slip some from their current mark. That is the prediction of Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State Colege farm economist.

If we figure on the same or slightly larger agricultural marketings than a year ago, this would produce a net farm income around 15 percent lower than in 1952, Kutish points out.

One of the big problems faced by farmers, in view of this outlook, centers on what to do about production expenses in face of a shrinking farm income. Production expenses have taken an increasingly larger bite out of gross farm income during the last 10 years.

High expenses in farm production stem from two conditions, according to Kutish. Prices are higher for most of the items farmers have to buy; the farmers are buying more of these production items than ever before. Machinery and labor-saving devices have made farming more productive—but also more expensive.

Hancock county farmers have about four places where they might look more carefully this year with the idea of cutting expenses without lowering production, the Iowa State College farm economist believes.

One is to do a better job of buying; look for the best buy for your particular needs. Another is to keep machinery in good repair and ready to go. One of the keys to good crop production is timeliness in getting field work done. Breakdowns of machinery in the field or when a crew is assembled are more costly than repairs ahead of time—and they usually mean lower yields when production figures are finally totaled up.

A third suggestion is to make full use of available labor. Plan work ahead. Have alternative jobs in mind if weather is bad.

Finally, keep sufficient farm records so you can spot unprofitable parts of your farm business. These can be eliminated and those showing promise of profits expanded.

State Fair Will Give Record-Breaking Amount In Cash Premiums

Des Moines, Iowa: More than $215,000 in cash premiums, a new all-time record in prizes for the Iowa State Fair, was annouced today for this year's exposition, August 29 - September 7.

Lloyd B. Cunningham, fair secretary, said most of the increase in premiums is accounted for in the livestock classes. The 1952 premium total was $208,465.

Farmers and breeders in open divisions will compete for $45,000 in premiums on cattle; $27,000 on horses; $20,000 on swine; $8,000 on sheep and $9,000 on poultry.

In addition, premiums for 4-H and Future Farmers of America competition have been boosted to approximately $33,500, Cunningham said.

Premium offerings in the agricultural, horticultural, culinary, textile and educational divisions, and various contests total more than $20,000.

"Premium offerings generally are close to the schedule of payments in 1952," Cunningham said, "with increase made to conform to the changing trends in agriculture."

Iowans desiring to compete in this year's Iowa State Fair may obtain copies of premium list by writing the Fair Board at Des Moines.

Iowa Snake Hunt

Saint Patrick may have driven the snakes out of Ireland . . . but it took pioneer cooperation to rid Iowa's Madison county of rattlers a century ago.

Those days, snakes invaded houses, barns, everything. So the pioneers down there joined forces. They held a mammoth snake hunt, killed 4,000 rattlers . . . and Madison County became a lot safer place.

But, from where I sit, the big thing about that story is the way our pioneers worked together. There wasn't much room for selfishness, narrowness, or intolerance on those prairies.

And so we built a finer state—built by folks from the land of beef, yorkshire pudding and tea . . . and folks from the land of roast pork and beer . . . and from scores of other nations. Many couldn't even understand each others' language, but they all recognized the common need for cooperation, respect for the other's rights, tolerance for the mutual good.

That heritage from the pioneers means just as much to us today. It's what keeps Iowa strong, democratic, great.

History of Klemme

EARLY KLEMME STORES

Did you ever use seven-day sulphur matches? A small box sold for ten cents. These were just going out of style when the first Klemme stores opened up for business. They were replaced by the "parlor match" which is similar to the matches used today.

Most of the coffee sold in our first stores was green coffee. It sold for six to eight cents a pound and was roasted at home by the housewife. Each household had its own coffee mill to grind the coffee. Sometimes the housewife added "coffee essence" when brewing the coffee. This made the drink black in color and strong in flavor. A few years later "McLaughlin's XXXX" coffee began to appear on the merchants' shelves. This was a roasted coffee put up in one pound packages and was a best seller in the stores for many years. It was the first roasted coffee in packages offered on the market.

Some of our German families preferred to drink tea. The stores supplied them with "Formosa Oolong" (black) tea in five pound chests. They used rock candy, which was also put up in five pound boxes, to sweeten their tea.

The early stores sold more brown sugar than granulated white sugar as there was quite a difference in price between the two kinds.

The only place you could buy meat was at the butcher shop, and a loaf of bread could only be had at the restaurant.

During the first several years the railroad did not furnish refrigerator car service. Hence, fresh fruit was a rare item in the general stores, except for lemons and oranges. These appeared in the stores almost from the beginning. However, in the fall of the year, the merchant would ship in a carload of New York apples, such as Baldwins, Northern Spy, etc., whenever the price was low enough so he could sell them at $3.00 or $3.50 per barrel. Dried fruits such as prunes and peaches were good sellers, but as fresh fruits became more plentiful in the stores, the sale of dried fruits decreased. Today dried fruits do not sell well.

The brown wrapping paper used in the stores came in sheets instead of rolls, and paper bags were as yet too high in price for economical use. So the merchant would shape his sheet of brown paper into a funnel and pour in the required amount of rice or other bulk merchandise, thus avoiding the use of the expensive paper bags.

Crackers and cookies were handled in barrels. These barrels were kept covered to keep the contents clean. Stick candy was sold from glass jars which adorned the merchants' shelves.

Many farm customers drove an hour, and those living further away would spend two hours on the road to get to town. They did not come to town as often as now, since the automobile has made the same trip possible in from 15 to 20 minutes.

When the customer did come to town, he bought liberally. Today he comes more often and buys less at a time. Then he expected to be waited on promptly, and he expected the merchant to have on hand every item that he called for, since he depended on this town absolutely for all of his merchandise needs. The merchants diligently enlarged their stocks as the needs of the customers increased, and they were very careful to reorder items so that their stock would always be complete.

The stores were open for business from early morning until late at night, but the "rush hours" were from 11 a. m. until 3 p. m. Often the merchant's wife would come down from upstairs and help wait on the trade during the busy part of the day.

It required hundreds of hitching posts to accommodate the many teams. These posts lined both sides of main street and also the side streets. At the homes, too, everyone had a pair of tie posts in front of his dwelling. Some drivers were very careful on cold days to tie their teams in sheltered locations and blanket their horses properly. Others would tie on a windy corner and allow their warm, unblanketed animals to chill and shiver from the cold. Some farmers brought feed for their horses and would unhitch on a side street and let the animals eat from the back of the wagon while they did their trading. Others would drive up to the livery barn and for a small fee would have their horses fed and sheltered during their stay in town.

Often the farmer's dog would follow the team to town. This was usually discouraged by the farmer because of the many dog fights on main street.

After the farmer entered the store where he did his trading he was the guest of the merchant. If he smoked, he filled his pipe from the box of tobacco provided by the merchant for free use of all customers. If he chewed, spitoons were located in handy places for his use. Every store had a box of smoking tobacco for customers use. This became known as the "poor box" because poor people and "moochers" would go from store to store and help themselves. At mealtime, the farmer customer, who had the long cold drive home ahead of him, would be supplied with a lunch of cheese and crackers, and maybe the good wife would bring down a pot of coffee from upstairs.

At least twice a year, the farmer's wife came along to town, usually in October and March. In the fall she would buy two-piece woolen underwear for all members of the family, cotton flannel for making husking mittens, shirting and denim for making men's work clothing, yarn for knitting mittens, socks, and stockings; shoes and overshoes, dress goods for making dresses for herself and the daughters, and maybe a cloak or two. The men of the family were supplied with duck coats, sheep-lined coats, or fur coats, and often fur mittens, These farmer's wives were careful buyers. They wanted fabrics which would wash well, but would not fade or shrink. They often inquired about the "count" of the yard goods they were buying. The merchants had a special microscope with which to count the threads per inch of the fabrics. These wives did so much sewing that they were well posted on the quality of fabrics and it was indeed a pleasure to wait on them in the store.

THE MONEY PANIC OF '93

In 1893, when our little town of Klemme was only four years old, Grover Cleveland became President of the United States, and at this time a great financial panic hit us, and the entire country underwent a period of hard times that lasted five years.

The prices of farm products were very low, and the banks were tied up in such a manner that it was impossible for the farmer to borrow money.

The farmer could not pay his store bills in money, but the merchant was a good sport and accepted such products as he could use to apply on account. Thus the farmer brought in maybe a few bags of wheat which the merchant could trade to the mill for flour, or he brought in a half a hog or a quarter of beef, or a bag of cornmeal, and on these products the merchant lived for five years.

This reminds us of the man in the scriptures who said, "Silver and Gold have I none, but such as I have I give unto you".

One odd thing about this spell of hard times was that coffee and sugar were unreasonably high in price, and both farmers and town folks roasted wheat or barley and used this for their mealtime beverage. And instead of sugar they used sorghum for sweetening. Henry Katter of Liberty Township had a sorghum mill and the farmers would raise a small patch of sugar cane which could be made into sorghum at the mill. Some of the larger families would use as much as a barrel of sorghum in a year.

If such a depression hit us now, us pampered folks of 1953, who are used to so many luxuries, would either throw up our hands and holler for relief, or would jump into our automobile and drive to the County Poor Farm.

But not so with the folks of 1893, they still had sunshine and fresh air, soap and water, books, friends, fields to walk in, plenty of work to do, and no one thought they were poor.

COMMERCIAL

A death in the family is always a tragedy, and is often unexpected. The family feels humble and low in spirit because of their failure to have saved the loved one.

In our pioneer days, the pastor was probably there at the time of the passing of this dear one, or he came soon afterwards. He offered a Prayer, spoke words of comfort, and made arrangements for the funeral.

The neighbors came and offered help. If it was a child, the neighbors sometimes made a little coffin. If an adult, the cabinet maker did the job.

Neighbors dug the grave, they dressed the body and placed it in the casket. A neighbor furnished a light spring wagon to haul the remains, and the ladies brought home grown flowers.

At the Church, the Pastor read the Bible as he walked up the aisle. The pallbearers struggled in with the coffin and placed it next to the alter rail, and the janitor seated the family.

The singing was by the congregation to the music of a reed organ. At the close of the service, the janitor ushered the people forward to view the remains.

At the cemetery, in addition to the reading of the grave side ritual, the assembled group sang a hymn. The lines were read by the pastor, and he lead the singing. After which, the young men would pick up the shovels and quitely fill the grave with the good earth.

Thus, many burials were made without the services of an "Undertaker".

Nutrition Research Findings Pose a Question—

Is Your School Youngster Well Fed?

How about it, Mom, are you turning out meals that keep your school younsters energetic and healthy as can be? Results of recent research indicates that lots of Iowa younsters are rating a B or C on their nutrition report cards—instead of that carefree A we'd all like to see.

* * *

Do the hours and effort you put into grocery shopping, food preservation, meal planning and cooking add up to alert youngsters with glowing cheeks and healthy appetites? Or is it just possible you could be totaling up a higher nutrition score for them?

Lots of Iowa mothers could be doing better by their youngsters at mealtime, according to results of a recent research study on the nutrition status of a state wide sample of school children.

Nutrient intake of the youngsters studied was measured by a careful record kept by each child of the kinds and amounts of food he or she ate for 7 consecutive days both at home and at school.

Findings of the project are not yet complete, but in the 9-, 10-, and 11-year-old group studied, one out of every eight or nine youngsters was close to borderline anemia. One out of two wasn't getting enough calcium, and one out of every five or six wasn't getting enough protein, riboflavin or niacin, or vitamin C. As for iron, one out of every eight or nine needed more than was suplied in his diet.

Your Child

Chances are your children weren't included in this special study. But, as this sample group was representative of Iowa school youngsters, the findings could well apply to them. A medical examination and a checkup on the meals at your house should turn up the facts about your youngster's nutritional standing.

What foods could be used in larger quanity to help supply nutrients lacking in diets of the children studied? Milk is a good source of calcium, protein and riboflavin, according to Iowa State College nutritionists. Youngsters need at least one big glass at each meal. Oft-neglected green and yellow vegetables will help supply important vitamin A and iron. Citrus fruits are the best source of vitamin C.

Hemoglobin Level

During the study, researchers obtained fingertip blood samples from each child to analyze for hemoglobin content. The hemoglobin level of the blood is an important indicator of nutritional status, according to Charlotte Roderuck of the Iowa State College foods and nutrition staff, who took part in the study.

Hemoglobin, she explains, performs certain vital functions. It gives blood its rich, red color and carries oxygen as it moves from lungs to all of the body cells so these cells can carry out their many chemical processes. It also helps pick up carbon dioxide and transports it back to the lungs to be expelled.

When there's not enough hemoglobin in the body, we say the person is anemic. The body, in order to manufacture red blood cells (which require hemoglobin), needs a diet constantly supplied with enough iron, protein, calories and B-vitamins (which include thiamine, riboflavin and niacin).

More Research Needed

Continued research will help complete the picture of how well fed our Iowa school youngsters are. In the meantime, we know that the reliable chart of the "Basic 7" food groups is the best guide for wise meal planning. And research results so far indicate that many an Iowa mother needs to include more milk, green and yellow vegetables, citrus fruits and protein foods (meat, fish, poultry, milk and eggs) in her family's meals.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

March was a terrible month for the yong and the very young. Its few warm and pleasant days brought sudden death to a really staggering proportion of children and young people.

In just seven days during the middle of the month, six children 12 years old or younger were killed by automobiles in Iowa. The one 12-year-old killed was riding a bike. The others, boys 2, 4, 5, 8, and a girl 5, were killed as "pedestrians".

Here were eight traffic victims whose combined ages totaled 44 years, killed in this state by automobiles in a total of eight days.

Even that is not the full story. Eight more of those killed in traffic accidents during March were between the ages of 16 and 21 years. All of these were killed in collisions, except one who died as a pedestrian.

Of these victims, two were 16, and one was 18, two were 20 and three were 21.

All this means that 16—or nearly half—the 34 persons killed in Iowa traffic accidents in March were 21 years old or younger. For them, life ended before it began.

April will be another pleasant month.

Turn Gully Into Grassed Waterway

Shape, Seed Small Ones Before They Get Large

Prevent small gullies from digging further into your land by shaping and seeding them down to make grassed waterways.

Ted Willrich, extension agricultural engineer at Iowa State College, says small gullies can be shaped now with regular farm equipment. Widen small V shaped gullies by plowing in, then shape with a disk and pack to prepare gullies for seeding.

Broadcast Corn

For fields planted to corn, the engineer suggests broadcasting the waterway with 3 or 4 bushels of corn to the acre for a temporary cover. Then disk the corn in August. This provides a mulch and shallow seedbed for fall seeding of grasses.

Broadcasting corn in the spring, followed by fall grass seeding, also will protect steep waterways in spring-sown small grain fields.

Waterways in small grain fields may be planted when you sow the field. However, Wilrich says perennial grasses must be seeded in the waterway along with the grain.

Recommend Mixture

Recommended seeding mixtures for either spring or fall seedings include brome, alta fescue, timothy, red top and reed canarygrass. Agronomists at the college recommend 8 to 10 lbs. brome per acre or 5 to 6 lbs. alta fescue per acre for all sections of Iowa. Reed canarygrass, 4 to 6 lbs., 3 to 4 lbs. red top and 3 to 6 lbs. timothy are suggested for the eastern three-fourths of the state.

The agronomists recommend including two or three grasses in the seed mixture. Either broadcast or seed shallow, then pack the seedbed. Also working in some manure in exposed subsoils will aid seed germinaton and growth.

Use of Sunglasses for Night Driving Rapped by AAA Club

Viewing with concern the staggering prospect of 66 million vacationists in 32 million automobiles traveling night and day during the coming months over crowded unfamiliar highways, E. R. "Johnny" Lange, Safety Director for the AAA Motor Club of Iowa, today sounded a word of warning on an item dear to every vacationing motorist—sunglasses.

"Wear them when driving by day," the AAA Club advises, "but take 'em off when you're driving at night."

Studies reported by AAA safety experts show that exposure to too much bright sunlight by day results in a serious vision loss at night. By wearing sunglasses with a 12 percent transmission during the day (but not at night) the after-dark loss of vision will be prevented.

But, the AAA contends, claims of some manufactures that tinted glasses will improve seeing at night are "contrary to all the evidence concerning effective vision."

High School to Have Girls' Softball Team

Something new has been added in the way of extra curricular activities at KHS. The girls are going to have a softball team. This will be something out of the ordinary for Klemme sports fans, but it should prove interesting.

When coach Francis Johnson called his first practice session, the response was tremendous. Nearly every girl in high chool turned out. From this group, Johnson plans to select about fifteen of the better performers for his squad.

The girls will probably have a couple of scheduled games this spring but in the main they will be pointing for an eight-team tournament to be held at Thornton, May 4, 5, 6, and 8. Games in this tournament will be played at night under the lights, and Klemme's first game will be with Rockwell on Monday night, May 4, at seven o'clock.

Three Teachers Resign; Reorganization Causes Release of Fischer

Three of the grade school teachers in the Klemme School system have resigned their positions effective at the end of the present school year. They are Miss Carol Johnson who teaches kindergarten; Mrs. Karna Brinkman, who teaches first grade; and Mr. Robert Juhl, who teaches eighth grade.

Mr. Eugene Fischer, who has the driver training class, was given his release since there has been some reorganization of the teaching duties with regard to classes and extra curricular activites. The reorganization put the driver training class and coaching of boy's athletic under the same teacher, and Mr. Fischer was not qualified for the coaching.

4-H King and Queen Named for 1953

Jerry Gray and Margaret Kelch, both of Magor Township, were selected as the 4-H King and Queen for 1953. Jerry is the son of George Gary of Corwith and has been a member of the Magor Mustangs for 3 years. Margaret is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kelch of Corwith and has been a member of the Boone-Magor Pals for 6 years.

The King and Queen were crowned before an audience of 475 people by Mrs. Dale Newell, County 4-H Girls Committee Chairman and Aaron Stromer, County 4-H Boys Committee Chairman. Gifts were presented to each, a 4-H bracelet to the Queen and a 4-H tie clasp for the King.

The Queen's attendants were Evelyn Formanek of Garfield Lively Workers and Patricia Legge of Liberty Busy Bees. The King's attendant was Byron Greiman of Ell midgets.

Fun night is an annual 4-H Fun Festival for all 4-H members, their parents and friends. Eunice Hueneman and Richard Formanek, County 4-H Girls and Boys Presidents were co-masters of Ceremony.

Games and square dancing were the entertainment for the evening. Games were lead by adults for those not interested in square dancing. The square dancing was conducted by Paul Henderson, C. L. Smith, Mrs. John Paulson and Janice Paulson who called the squares and furnished the music.

Lunch was served at the close of the evening.

Last Issue of Klemme History This Week

This week's Times carries the last installment of the "History of Klemme", that has been appearing since October.

This history, written by Arthur Wellemeyer, has been a well-read feature in The Times. Mr. Wellemeyer, has spent a lot of time and research in gathering the material and has presented it in an interesting manner.

Many readers have clipped each installment as it appeared and have made up a book that will have the complete story. Some readers have mislaid and lost an installment or two, and we have had numerous requests for back issues, so that they could keep the story complete.

We are glad to have carried this history, as written by Mr. Wellemeyer, and feel certain that a large percentage of our readers are grateful to him for having made this material available to them.

The game will be on the home diamond and Crystal Lake will furnish the opposition. Game time will be 3:30 p. m.

Last fall, the Shamrocks won a very good percentage of their games, and compiled one of the best records in baseball of any Klemme team in years. The same group will be on hand this spring.

To add impetus to their play, they will be decked out in brand new uniforms, and will have some sorely needed new equipment.

If it is at all possible try and be on hand at the local diamond next Tuesday afternoon and give the Shamrocks a boost in their season opener.

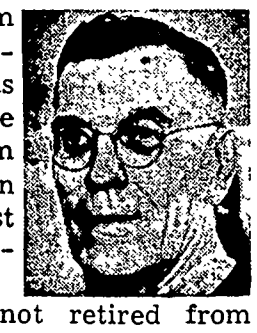
Sam Barber Active in County Farm Groups

S. A. Barber of Kanawha in Hancock County, was one of eight Iowa farmers to receive the Iowa Master Farmer Award at a luncheon in Des Moines, April 15.

The Master Farmer Award was started in 1926 by Wallaces' Farmer and Iowa Homestead. Barber joins a group of 136 other men and one woman who have since received the award.

Winners are selected on the basis of a sound balanced farming program plus their outstanding contributions to a better agriculture through community service and good citizenship.

In Barber's case, emphasis was placed on his long record of community service.



At 69, Sam Barber no longer operates his farm. But he lives on his farm and takes an active interest in its management.

Barber has not retired from community service. He is a district SCS commissioner and is on Hancock county board of supervisors. He is president of the North Iowa Experimental Association.

As a member of the Kanawha Methodist Church, Barber has served as a steward for more than 20 years. He teaches the Adult Bible class, sings in the choir, is on the board of trustees.

Barber was on the county PMA committee four years, has been a school board director, helped arrange for the Clarion-Webster experimental farm near Kanawha, helped organize Farm Bureau in Hancock County and helped organize the cooperatives in Kanawha.

What Now?

Last week the state legislature made colored oleo in Iowa a legal product . . . which is as it should be.

We wonder, though, what the dairy interests will do now.

There has been a lot of oleo consumed in the state of Iowa in the past . . . even without-out the benefit of pre-coloring. Now with the housewife able to purchase this product ready for the table, with the price of butter at seventy-three cents a pound, and oleo at forty cents a pound, plus the fact that immeasureable publicity has been afforded the oleo through the legislative arguments, we think that oleo sales will probably make some increase.

We don't think that the government can, or should, keep buying up and storing huge surpluses of butter in order to keep the price up. The longer the price stays up, the more oleo will be sold, and the more surplus butter the government will have on its hands. Somewhere along the line the saturation point will be reached, and then what?

It seems to us that the dairy interests in order to keep healthy, are going to have to devise some method of deriving more income from by-products, so that butterfat can be on the market at a price more in line with oleo.

We hope this can be done. The dairy cow is an important part of our farm economy. Besides the direct income she puts into the farmer's pocket, she is responsible for helping to keep up the fertility of the soil, thus enabling the raising of more and better grains. We would hate to see her go out of existance.

Locally, we have a stake in this dilemma, too. We have a creamery that depends on the dairy farmer in order that it may stay in operation. This creamery employs five people, and provides income for them . . . most of which is spent right here in Klemme. Every business place in Klemme would be affected if this creamery were to have to curtail its operations.

We hope that through research and planning, the dairy interests will come up with some sound workable plan that will enable them to sell butter at a competitive price, get more income from their by-products, and keep the dairy cow at work . . . without having to depend on the government.

Dick Bamman began his new duties yesterday as street commissioner and water works superintendent for the town of Klemme.

Joe Miller boarded the stock train for Chicago Saturday night. He did not get lost among the high buildings as we saw him in Klemme the fore part of the week.

We are in receipt of a letter from A. G. Lau of Mason City, in which he states that he has purchased the automobile business of what was the Empire Motor Sales Co. Mr. Lau handles the Stephens, Durant and the Star cars. He also enclosed an order for job printing. Thanks August.

Miss Eunice Brund, of Williams, Iowa, came last week for a week's visit with Miss Viola Freie.

Mrs. C. W. Wiles went to Boone, Iowa, Saturday for a visit with relatives.

20 YEARS AGO—

When Mrs. Pavey went to her pop corn stand located next to the Klemme Food Market Saturday evening to prepare for the evening's business of turning out pop corn, she found the stand filled with dense black smoke, caused from a kerosene stove which had been started earlier in the evening by Mr. Pavey to warm up the room. He had started the stove about a half hour before Mrs. Pavey had arrived. No damage was done outside of badly smoking up the interior of the stand.

The Klemme Volunteer Fire Company had their annual chicken dinner at the Quandt Cafe, Friday evening when they gathered there at seven o'clock. Mr. Quandt had made special table arrangements to take care of the Chief and his crew of helpers. Marshall Buseman was an invited guest. After the dinner the men held their regular business meeting.

Taalkeus Blank, formerly of Estherville, but who has been located at Minneapolis for the past few years, was heard by several Klemme people, April 7th and 8th, over the radio. He was one of the principal characters in a Charity Play which was presented on the Women's program from WCCO. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blank of this city.

Will Johnson drove to Hampton Saturday and brought home his daughter, Clarice, who underwent and appendix operation. She is now well on the road to recovery.

The young people of district 2, under the leadership of Ruth Abele, teacher gave a fine play at their school house Friday evening. A large crowd was present and about $22 received for the benefit of the school.

10 YEARS AGO—

E. C. Butenbach has purchased the old Sanderfeld farm two miles east of Klemme from the Metropolitan Insurance Company. The land lies across the road from his farm and consists of 240 acres.

The Misses Hardcopf and Garabrandt and Mrs. Lester Neuberger were dinner guests Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Neuberger.

Miss Frieda Schudt has returned from a two weeks' trip through the southwest and west. Highlights of her trip was a visit to the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico, and a sight-seeing trip in California. The Times will print a story of Miss Schuldt's trip later.

Harold Jost of Toledo, Ohio, arrived Saturday noon and visited until Sunday morning with his father H. F. Jost and family. Harold was on a business trip and was on his way to Texarkana, Texas.

Miss Betty Rawson has resigned her position at the First National Bank and will complete her work there Saturday. Miss Phyllis Swanson is now working at the bank.

Spring Clean-up Makes Safe Farm

Remove or Label Spots That May be Dangerous

You can get more than mere pride from a spring clean-up—you can make your home and farm a safer place to live.

That's the way Norval Wardle, Iowa State College extension farm saftey specialist, looks at clean-up week. When you tackle clean-up, it's a logical time to remove the hazards that may cause accidents, he believes.

The records show that spring is a dangerous time, Wardle reports. Over the past 5 years, fatal accidents in Iowa have been reduced by almost 24 per cent. But the spring time fatal accidents have been reduced in the same period by only 15 per cent.

Plan Clean-up

Wardle recommends giving hazard removal the same thorough, planned approach you use in your farming operations. Seek out the potential causes of accidents, mark them and remove them as soon as possible.

The county extension director has materials that will help make this job effective, he says. Get a copy of the hazard check sheet—which will serve as a guide on places to look for accident hazards—and red tags that you can tie to hazards until they are properly removed. The tag will do two things; it will remind you to remove the hazard and will also remind you to be careful if you must work in the area before the hazard is removed.

Steps to Take

These are some clean-up steps that will help promote safety too, Wardle believes: Gather and dispose of old machinery, tin cans, glass and other rubbish; pick up and dispose of loose wire, boards and such trash before weeds and grass grow up and hide the hazards; clean up feed, wood sheds and corncribs; put the farm shop in order for both efficient and safe work; rake up and burn weeds and other trash; straighten up fences, gates and doors; and organize storage so tools and equipment can be put away in a safe place when not in use.

Fertilizers are used to make up the difference between the plant food contained in the soil and what the crop needs.

Planting forage crops such as clovers and alfalfa between widely spaced corn rows has given promising results the last 2 years.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

Here it is another week and nothing to write about, but I will try my best to think of something to tell you as I know that everyone has never been good for a whole week.

It seems that Gene was going to be at Waterloo Sunday night so Daisy and Janice went to the show at Garner. They really had a nice quiet evening and no one to argue with. But who did Daisy talk to in the lobby when she was going for cokes? The returner of the lost handkerchief!

What is this I hear about Lois and Richard at the Forest City show last Sunday night? I guess it was nothing serious cause all Lois said was that it was a long show. Ask Herb and Miss Mannes for the results.

Are Carol and Graydon going together again? It seems that they just can't make up their mind. Well, good luck kids and don't let anything worry you as you have a long life ahead of you.

Looking at the front of the school house at noon you would think it was a lovers lane with everyone sitting on the side of the lane. Some of the couples are Noel and Shirley, Ronald and Kay, Tommy and Leola, Bill and Sharon, and Bill and Janet and a few others less serious. But just wait they will be up there in time. Why already Harry Anderson is trying to get someone to sit there with him and he doesn't even go with anyone, (anyway I don't think so). I guess his reason for this action is the spring air.

If you see a reflecting light and feel a breathe on a clear soft day think nothing of it, as it is only Marcia chasing Roger around the school yard. I think she should go out for basketball. She'd be the only girl who would stay in training the year around.

It seems that Carole M. really got worried when Lois C. told her that she had a secret admirer in Garner. In fact, she called Joan Bacon to find out whether it was true or not. Lois even told her on April Fool's Day but with the look she gives you when she tells you something you would believe anything.

I would have given a quarter to see Elaine and Larry when she wanted to go skating and he didn't want to go. It seems that he came up later on though to see how she was getting along. I wonder how they would come out if we would have a dance after the banquet at school. I suppose Larry would go and Elaine would come along and see how he was getting along how and then. All is fair in love and war so they say.

Some one just told me that Galen was a regular caller at Neva's house before play practice. It seems that he always picked her up and took her to play practice.

And who is Delwyn going with now? You know Delwyn, you are supposed to be our litle bachelor boy and here you go and pick up either Daisy, Lois and Lois or you wait for Miriam and Margaret. Maybe you can get Margaret if you try hard enough. Since you always liked blondes and Miriam is going with Bobby now and then you could go with her best friend and then you could see her quite often also.

So Clarence and Daisy aren't going together anymore. That really sounds interesting, but just you wait till she goes for her picture and it'll really be interesting. (I hope she cools down before she sees Paul.)

They say carrots give a shine to your eyes but I think Lee is the one who gives the shine to Gracka's eyes.

BEWARE OF HAT STEALERS, especially one who is 5' 7" tall, light hair and blue eyes. She goes by the name of Lois Christians. It seems that she knocked off a ladies hat when walking down the aisle of the Forest City theater. She returned it but maybe yours will be kept by her. This was an accident so she says but I hear she likes lots of hats. That must be why no one is wearing anything on their heads to school anymore and here I thought it was because of this nice warm weather.

Since Calvin J. is gone to the service, we wonder if there will be any communication between him and Lois Ann.

Ila sure does a good job of pinning up Harry's hair. Maybe she had better open up a beauty shop for boys. You had a nice wave up there anyway Harry.

Why doesn't Lois C. want her name in the gossip? Did you do something drastic that you don't want Rich to find out?

Poor Daisy. I hear you still carry a torch for Clarence. But if he won't go to the prom with you, I guess there will be some exchange of articles. Maybe some college student will be asked. Right Daisy?

Another skating party is past and Francis was there. Poor Dean didn't get to ask Lois for so many skates.

JoAnn Bacon couldn't get off work Friday night to catch the bus, so Terry was there to give her and Ione a lift. Drivers license sure come in handy, don't they Terry?

Tom and Leola are still getting along—good luck kids!

Supt. Linked Throughout High School Building

TEACHER INTERVIEW

Franklin C. Cappon Jr. (Cap), was born at Ann Arbor, Michigan, November 30, 1925. He is 5' 11" tall, has blue eyes, and light brown hair. He attended Mercersburg Academy, Pennsylvania, for his high school education and then attended Luther College.

Noon duty and two afternoon study halls are his pet peeves and he never gets embarrased. His favorite saying is "Let's go"; steamed clams, favorite food; "Oh Happy Day", favorite song; Rosemary Clooney, favorite singer; Woody Herman, favorite band; Gary Cooper and Betty Davis, favorite movie stars; and "Lou Gehrig" was his favorite movie. Reading is his favorite pastime and doing wood work is his hobby.

His activities out of school consist of: Lion's Club, and Gerardi's 4 o'clock Coffee Club.

He was married September 14, 1946. His wife's name is Kit and they have two children, Franklin and Kathy.

Mr. Cappon doesn't know what inspired him to teach, but it wasn't the money. He is undecided as to how long he will teach.

SIXTH GRADE

We are learning to make graphs to illustrate certain facts in arithmetic. We find that graphs help us remember by giving a clearer picture of the facts.

Our Easter egg tree is doing double duty. Now it has plum blossoms as well as as easter eggs.

Since we have been reading about Mexico we have become interested in the work and customs of the Mexican people. We are working on original illustrations of the customs which seem most interesting to us.

FRESHMAN

Math

Our teacher seems to be losing patience with us. We just can't seem to understand anything lately. Our problems are more difficult, and we all have spring fever.

English

We are writing themes, and more themes. We also are studying where, when, and how to puncuate sentences with commas and semicolons.

Home Ec.

Some of the girls are finishing up on their skirts while others are starting blouses.

Shop

We're guessing!

Science

We're studying about the origin of the universe, and the planets and their orbits.

FIFTH GRADE

Julie Ann Mathrey visited our room April 2. She attends Jefferson School in Mason City which was having spring vacation. Julie Ann is Roxanne Bock's cousin.

The past week we have been studying measures in arithmetic. We learned two rules which have helped us in solving our problems.

We have made a bulletin board illustrating our natural resources. We also have pictures showing wasted resources. In our dicussion we found ways in which this carelessness could be eliminated.

EDITORIAL

The class has finally decided to go to Storm Lake for skip day. We are going to leave at 7:30 A. M., May 1. Mr. Cappon will be our chaperon. We plan to take lunch along for a picnic dinner. With five cars going, we hope to arrive there about nine thirty.

The class has picked Larry Stille as our king candidate; and Elaine Neuberger as our candidate for queen. Here's hoping them the best of luck. According to the schedule set up for the day, we should have a big time. It is hard to say when we will come back.

Audience Yawns At This Hit Show

Nature is a generous creature. I become more convinced of that every day. Now, you take a Broadway play. If it doesn't draw crowds and garner lots of enthusiastic applause, the producers call it a flop and close it down. But nature isn't that way at all. Morning after morning, she puts on the most spectacular sunrise displays, and she's been doing it since the beginning of time. What other producer would put on a performance like that so long for such small and yawning audiences?

JUNIOR

Business Law

We are studying about presentments.

Economics

We are studying about money!

Drivers Training

By the looks of it they must be driving but no one ever says anything about it.

Typing

We are still picking away like nothing was going off the schedule.

Shorthand

All you ever hear from this class is, "I know that I will never get past sixty or never get past eighty."

Literature

We have just finished the story in play form, "This Skin Game."

Seems as if Mr. Smith thinks the sophomores need a little ride up Boone way. Are any of you planning to stay?

Intercom to be Time And Leg Saver

A new addition has been made to our school system. It is the installation of an intercommunication system. It is composed of a master station in Mr. Ahrenkiel's office with stations in each of the grade rooms in the high school building, in all high school class rooms, gym, and the band room totaling fourteen stations in all.

Mr. Ahrenkiel can speak or listen to all of these fourteen rooms from his office at the same time or to individual rooms. Also in these rooms the teacher may call the office at any time.

The purpose of this system is to make announcements and call a person from the class room when he is wanted on the telephone. It can also be used as a means of supervision although that is not the primary purpose.

The directors of Klemme Public School recognize the importance of modern methods of teaching in our public schools; therefore this is one of the means being made available to keep up the high standards in our local school.

SOPHOMORE

Algebra

We've been using fractions in equations and various other ways. We had a test Thursday, with not very good results which, of course, means more studying.

Literature

After completing one-act plays and reading Julius Ceasar, we will now begin reading "The Call of the Wild" by Jack London.

World History

After reading industrial revolution and its influence on social life, we are now entering the chapter on the advance of European civilization.

Biology

We have been reading and discussing the functions of human glands and of unlearned responses. We will begin disecting earthworms on Thursday. A trip to Woodward, Iowa, to the home of the feeble minded, is being talked about.

Rural Women's Day Held at Britt, April 6th

Eight of the ten past County Women's Chairman of Hancock County Farm Bureau Women's Committee were honored at the Rural Women's Day program held at the Britt High School Auditorium on April 6th. Those present to be reorganized and receive a corsage were Mrs. E. J. Schneider, Twin Lake Township; Mrs. A. R. Lewison, Erin; Mrs. Thor Schubert, Britt; Mrs. L. F. Weaver, Concord; Mrs. Harold Oxley, Magor; Mrs. Clarence Grieman, Ell; Mrs. Verne Grau, Garfield; and Mrs. Aaron Stromer (current chairman), Liberty. Mrs. Alice Elling of Garner was not present and Mrs. Ed Oxley is deceased. These women gave their time and effort to make the Family Living Program what it is in Hancock County today.

Mr. L. T. Nutty, Hancock County's first County Agent, was present and talked of the growth of extension in Hancock County and in our State. He is now a district extension supervisor in Southwest Iowa.

Mrs. B. L. Lambert, district Farm Bureau Committee Woman, gave greetings from State Farm Bureau.

The Hancock County Rural Women's Chorus sang two numbers. "The Silver Moon is Shining", arranged by Max Exner and "Somewhere a Child is Praying" by Elliot. The chorus is directed by Paul G. Shurts. Mrs. Carl Kuhlers accompanied the group. Mrs. Forest Eckels of Orthel and Mrs. Billy Rassmusson of Britt were co-chairman of the program committee. Together they were responsible for the narrative part of the skit "Reminicence". Each township in the county was responsible for one phase of the home economics project as given in the County Extension program since 1918.

Liberty and Ell Townships compared the clothing of the 20's with that of the 50's. These dresses were modeled by homemakers.

An Indian tribe from Britt and Orthel Townships complained because the Farm Bureau Women were taking all of their business away since they were making reed baskets.

The Square Dancers in costume were a colorful part of the program. This group included homemakers from Ellington and Madison Townships. They portrayed the recreation program of the '30s.

There was even a dress from that was made "way-back when" and a basic dress pattern that served in making everything from dresses to night gowns. Concord and Garfield furnished these items.

The Bingham-Crystal skit told of how taking the lessons on caning chairs had saved the day at their house.

The roll call of a homemakers club meeting was to show one home furnishing project that the women in Erin and Amsterdam Clubs had done. Many ideas were passed on in this skit.

Comparing the efficient homemaker with the inefficient one was the basis of the Food and Nutrition skit from Boone and Magor Clubs.

The final part of the skit was the Tailoring class who modelled the coats they made last spring in the class that Miss Lcille Rea, Clothing Specialist of Iowa State College, conducted. Avery and Twin Lake townships were responsible for this part of the program.

Exhibits of the extension lessons and the crafts that were a part of the program during this year were exhibited on special tables. There was a special table for the International Relations exhibit.

The tea table was decorated in spring colors with flowers and candles as the centerpiece. Mrs. Verne Grau and Elsie Mae Vanwert poured at the tea table.

Auto Accidents Expensive to Hancock Residents

The state safety department reported Thursday that Hancock County drivers were involved in 205 accidents at a total cost of $131,065 in damages in 1952.

The figure compare with the 197 accidents involving county drivers and the loss of $159,765 in 1951, according to Milo Chalfant, director of the state safety responsibility division.

Hancock county's traffic accident record was part of a staggering all-state record which which last year saw 57,625 accidents involving 147,084 drivers and owners of motor vehicles at a total damage cost of $27,092,253.

Tragic and costly as this record was, it still marked a genral reduction compared to 1951 when there were 63,404 accidents involving 162,486 drivers and owners at a cost of $28,978,764, Chalfant said.

Appealing Selective Service Classification

This is the second in a series of short weekly articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.

If a registrant is dissatisfied with the classification given to him by the Local Board he may appeal within certain time limits to the State Appeal Board for a new and complete consideration of his classification. A dependent, as well as an employer, may likewise appeal from the Local Board classification of a registrant.

There is nothing formal or legalistic about making an appeal and no special forms are required. All the registrant, employer or dependent need do is to write a letter to the Local Board stating that he appeals from the registrant's classification and then set forth in detail the reasons for makin the appeal. This statement relative to reasons for appeal should be done very carefully since there is no right of personal appearance before the Appeal Board and the Appeal Board has only the information in the file on which to base its decison. The Government Appeal Agent in each county is glad to assist and advise in matters of appeal. There can be no appeal from the determination of the registrant's physical or mental condition.

Ordinarily the file of a registrant, on appeal, will go to the State Appeal Board—an Appeal Board or Boards, serving the entire state. There is one exception. When a registrant is employed outside the state, and the appeal involves occupational deferment, the registrant or his employer may request that the appeal be considered by the Appeal Board with jurisdiction over the area of the registrant's principal place of employment.

Under certain conditions an appeal may even be made to the President of the United States. A registrant, employer or dependent may appeal to the President if the State Appeal board classifies the registrant in Class I-A or Class I-A-O or Class I-O and one or more members of the Appeal Board dissented from classification.

A registrant may not be inducted while his classification is being considered on appeal.

The minimum amount of fertilizer corn needs is usually 75 to 100 pounds to the acre if it's applied in the hill or row with a planter attachment.

Small Grain Offers First Step in Dairy Pasture Rotations

Early pasture on small grain can be the first phase of a planned pasture rotation program that will boost dairy income throughout the year, according to Extension Directon, Paul Henderson of Hancock County.

Small grain such as oats or rye provides some of the earliest pasture available, Henderson points out. It can be used while bluegrass or legumes are getting a start.

Dairymen who pasture their small grain only long enough to control excessively rank early growth and to firm the ground where there is new seeding are able to get good pasture from it without reducing the grain yield. They are careful to take the cows off the small grain before the grain began to "joint." They turn their cows out on the small grain as soon as it is well enough rooted to prevent pulling.

Floyd Arnold, extension dairy husbandman at Iowa State College, reports that as soon as bluegrass is 4 to 6 inches high, the dairyman can profitably turn his cows into it, Henderson says. Arnold suggests rotation grazing as a means of increasing production and getting the most possible value from the pasture. He advises keeping the cows on a limited pasture area until they have eaten it down "tight". Then they should be moved to another lush pasture. Legume and grass mixtures should be 10 to 12 inches high before the cows are turned into them, Arnold says. If the cows have eaten irregularly in the old pasture, it should be clipped for best results. Then it will grow back evenly and be at the right stage for the best nutrition when the cows are moved back to it.

Yield of nutrients from pasture was increased as much as three times in experiments on dairy cattle at the University of Minnesota when cows were "rotated" to new pasture each day. Even if you use only a permament pasture, Arnold says, it will pay to plan for rotation of the cows to different parts of the pasture, allowing one part to grow back to its best feeding stage while the cows are eating another part down tight. Tall, knee-high pastures are often a waste because tall grass often results in their cows cannot bite off the tall, tough grass. Their browsing on getting little more than the grass seeds, Arnold says. On the other hand, they must be kept off the pastures until the ground is firm enough to prevent damage by animals tramping over it and until the grass is mature enough to furnish its best nutrient value, Arnold points out.

Light Company Pays $7 Per Minute in Taxes

The Iowa Electric Light and Power Company recently paid the first installment on their 1952 taxes payable in 1953 in Hancock County totaling approximately $21,800.00 according to H. O. Sandberg of Garner, District Manager. Total taxes paid by the firm in 1953 in Hancock county is approximately $43,000.

According to Manager Sandberg the firm will pay $3,562,190.00 in taxes in Iowa in 1953, or $296,849.00 each month, $68,503.00 each week, $9,733.00 per day, $406.00 per hour or $7.00 per minute.

Having Ample Water Boosts Livestock Gains

An adequate water supply for livestock at all times will insure the most efficient use of feed supplies and rapid and efficient gains, according to annimal husbandmen at Iowa State College.

They advise keeping the feed supply and water supply close together so livestock will not have to travel long distances. An automatic water supply system is usually a good investment, they say.

Experiments have shown that providing water in automatic drinking bowls for dairy cows increases the milk yield of good cows 6 to 11 percent over water once daily. Two-year-old fattening steers need about 10 gallons of water daily.

RETIRING

The Rev. William Spiker, of Earlville, has retired for the second time. He retired once, then returned to the pulpit 10 years ago. Now 87, he spent 60 years in the ministry, starting with Easter Sunday in 1893 and concluding with Easter Sunday, 1953.

Those Oliver Tractors Don't Stand Up!
Arnold is Overhauling Them All the Time

- How many times have you heard these well intentioned (?), but thoughtless remarks? The first one is wrong. The last one almost correct.
- For every good tractor of other manufacture, we can show you one equally good or better, and we make a business of overhauling Oliver machinery. Why shouldn't they come here? This is the logical place for Oliver repairs and service and there are over a hundred Oliver tractors in this locality. This is the best place for them to be fixed and we are glad to have them here. Good repair business keeps everybody happy.

Last Year's Docks Are This Year's Dangers

Early boaters are being urged by the Conservation Commission to use caution in Iowa lakes during spring excursions.

A few docks and boats not removed from the lake last fall were frozen in and eventually crushed by ice. The floating timbers and debris that resulted can cause serious damage to speeding powerboats. These floating hazards may often be detected by watching birds that seem to by roosting on the water.

Any debris or material dangerous to boating will be removed from the lakes as soon as possible.

Flower gardeners can head off disease injury to perennial flowers with an early spray of bordeaux mixture or fixed copper compound, says Arden Sherf Iowa State College plant pathologist.

When you improve an old grass pasture by renovation, adding fertilizers and legumes, you can expect to get returns in better livestock gains.

History of Klemme

by Arthur Wellemeyer — Installment Twenty-eight

Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow

Klemme is located in one of the most productive agricultural sections of the United States.

With horses and the sod trails and dirt roads of yesterday, it was indeed a task to move the abundant crops of grain and hay and many head of livestock to Clear Lake or Belmond, which were our nearest markets. So the town of Klemme was established to provide a "close in" shipping point for the farmers of this trade territory.

Klemme was a farmers' town right from the start, and is still a farmers town. Every service we render in Klemme is first, last and all the time for the farmer.

But the people of this community were not satified in merely making Klemme a live trading point and a good market for farm products. They wanted everything else which a model community center should have.

Hence we find in Klemme: two beautiful churches, a good school system, an abundance of clear pure drinking water, a sanitary sewer system, new fire fighting equipment, a beautiful park, modern homes, pavement, electricity, and every year brings further improvements for community welfare and convenience.

When mail-order houses first came into prominence, some fifty years ago, it was predicted that the small town must soon fold up. But today the mail order shipments into Klemme are as a drop in the bucket compared to the quantity of merchandise distributed by dealers. Their competition proved weak indeed.

Again, when autos and trucks replaced horses on the road, it was predicted that the small town must go, and some of them did, but not Klemme. The same good roads which make it easy for Klemme customers to drive elsewhere, make it easy for other customers to drive to Klemme. These good roads were a blessing to Klemme. They widened our territory and increased the business of the town.

For the last few years, there has been a definite swing-back of trade to the small town. Partly because the small town merchant carries larger and better stocks than ever before, and also because of the congested traffic conditions and the parking meters in the city.

And then, the city stores with their shorter hours, other restrictions, high rents, etc., find it hard to keep up with any "live wire" owner out in the country.

Many people prefer to live in a town like Klemme. Not only because taxes are low, expenses less, no CIO, and no chain stores, but the several hundred people who belong to this community live together like one large family. This home-like atmosphere of the small town reminds us of the old adage which reads: "A friend is some one who knows all about you, and likes you just the same."

It's true, everybody seems to know all about every other fellows' ups and downs, the same as you would in a large family, but we like the bunch just the same, and greet each other by the first name. This friendly home-like atmosphere of the small town deters the individual from short changing his neighbor or pulling a shady deal. Hence, the jail in Klemme is seldom used.

Another great influence for good in any community is the children. Come to Klemme on a busy day or on an open night and behold the children. At least half of the people you meet on the street or in the stores are children. Many times city people who visit Klemme have remarked, "My the many children". Ah, indeed, what would a town be without them, the children? We enjoy them so much, and they keep us older folks, the parents, from becoming too selfish. The influence of children can be illustrated by this poem entitled: The Two Prayers

Last night my little boy confessed to me some childish wrong, and kneeling at my knee, He prayed, with tear, "Dear God, make me a man like Daddy wise and strong; I'm sure you can"

Then, while he slept, I knelt beside his bed, confessed my sins, and prayed with low bowed head,

"O God, make me a child, like my child here—pure, guileless, trusting Thee with faith sincere".

Just as today the sons of the pioneers run the farms and the stores, so also will the children now playing around our door carry on and manage affairs after we have faded out of the picture. We wish them luck and hope that they all have a good time at Klemme's Centennial Celebration in 1989.

The Horse Drawn Hearse

Our predecessor, Edw. L. Schaub, brought the first hearse to Klemme in 1902, which he furnished for a fee of five dollars. He also helped with the arrangements and the directing.

Arthur Wellemeyer was Klemme's first licensed embalmer, having passed the State Board in 1908. In later years, Andrew Wellemeyer, Joe Osman and Glen Osman also received licenses.

The public was glad to accept the services of the Funeral Director or Mortician, as he is now called, and gradually got used to the idea of embalming, instead of using ice for preservation.

With the coming of the automobile, we began to provide ambulance service, taking the sick to hospitals. And the hospital business increased. Thus more and more of our people spent their last hours at the hospital, and the ambulance was again needed to bring them home.

All this brought the need of a preparation room.

It seemed more convenient and more practical to bring the dead to our place of business, and we provided a preparation room. This room is equipped with every known mechanical aid, and here with our special training, and our years of experience, we really do good work.

We strive to do a perfect job of preservation, and then compose the body as in peaceful sleep.

All of you people attend funerals now and then, and our present day methods of conducting funerals are well known to you.

Good days are ahead for Hancock farm flocks.

The trend in egg prices probably will be steady to higher, allowing for minor ups and downs, from now until next October or November, Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist believes.

But at the same time he warns that the situation is likely to build up a sizeable late spring hatch. This puts a premium on getting baby chicks early. They should be in the brooder house now, says Iowa State College poultry specialists. If they aren't, don't delay.

Last year we had an unusually light hatch of late chicks, Kutish stresses. This resulted in a higher than usual proportion of the poultry flocks in production during the fall and early winter. The fewer late-hatched chicks now is showing up in fewer layers on farms. Numbers of hens and pullets in laying flocks is down about 4 percent from a year ago.

Cattle Prices

Over 26 per cent more cattle were killed under federal inspection during the first 3 months of 1953 than a year ago. The price drop for the same period compared with last year averaged about 31 percent. In other words, a large share of the present low price for cattle is the result of increased marketings, Kutish points out.

With cattle marketings leveling out, the Iowa State College farm economist believes that the first stage of the price adjustment to higher cattle numbers is about over. He looks for no sharp further drop in fat cattle prices for the next few months. But neither is a sharp price rise likely.

Looking further ahead, however, increased runs of grass cattle this summer and fall will force down the price of lower grades of cattle at that time. Buying cattle to go on grass for the purpose of selling as feeder cattle in the fall is a poor gamble this year, Kutish concludes.

If fertilizer for corn isn't applied in the hill or row, but is broadcast and worked in, it takes about twice as much of the same fertilizer to get the same yield increases.

Teach Them Cooking, Good Nutrition Early—

Children in Your Kitchen

Your little girl's urge to imitate you in the kitchen can be your cue to begin teaching her how to have fun with food. Start her with the easy things such as pudding mixes or jello, where she mostly stirs and can get finished before she loses interest. Boys can have a wonderful time learning to cook, too.

It doesn't just "happen" that a girl takes kindly to cooking and is happily at home in the kitchen, or that her brother or husband can proudly turn out a corking good meal. It usually means a smart mother started her youngsters gravitating excitedly toward adventures in the kitchen when they were hardly past the toddling stage. And, acording to Iowa State College nutritionist and child development specialists, many an eating problem disappears where a child has a hand in fixing the meal.

Best time to start teaching your little girl or boy to cook is when she's around 3 or 4 and a regular little mimic. Stirring jobs will delight her and if her independent streak is starting to show, she'll probably want to be left on her own.

Stirring Jobs

Jewel Graham, nutritionist at the college, suggests you start her with pudding mixes, jello, or a special stirring job. Fix a low table where she can work easily, or perch her on a high stool, give her a big spoon and she'll be all set. You'll need to help her pour the jello or pudding into molds. When it's set, she might like to decorate each dish with gumdrops or cut-up dried fruit. When it's time to eat, let her help serve what she's made—and be sure to cue the rest of the family to appreciate it out loud.

It's important to key the "cooking" job to the child's age and attention span. At 5 or 6 a little boy or girl can stir up griddle cakes or a cake from a prepared mix and try his hand at pop-overs, muffins or even a coffee cake with brown sugar and cinnamon topping. Don't let him stir quick breads too long. Have him count just 25 strokes each time he mixes wet and dry ingredients, Miss Graham advises.

At 6 or 7, youngsters will enjoy learning to use your electric mixer. With it they can mix up fruit drinks, ice cream and milk concoctions, sandwich spreads. Your boy or girl will really have a place in the sun if he can serve up cold drinks or sandwiches of his own making to company. He can be a big help fixing relish plates and salads too, with the double benefit of learning to like these foods.

Grilled Sandwiches

Children like to make grilled sandwiches, too, and this is a good beginning toward the kitchen parties they'll have with their teen-age pals later on. Cheese, meat and tomato sandwiches are good "grillers." They can make "egg burgers" to serve on hamburger rolls by adding peas, green beans, or corn or crisp bacon to scrambled eggs.

Meal Helper

Have just one youngster at a time help you with a meal, child development specialists suggest. It will give him a feeling of importance and eliminate squabbles that might develop between two little helpers as you're busy with the meal. Let the helper decide with you what to serve—you can gradually teach him about good nutrition as you plan together.

Stainless steel or aluminum mixing bowls and measuring cups will forestall breakage. And your small daughter will appreciate her own bread board for rolling out buscuits. Nail half-inch high strips of wood to the board for the rolling pin to roll on so that she can't roll the biscuit dough too thin.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

There was a point made at the recent teen-age driver conference in Des Moines that deserved more attention than it got. It came up while the youngsters were discussing recommendations that would help improve teen-age driving.

One boy got up and cooly recommended "more adult driver education." The point he made was that better adult driving would mean a better example for teen-agers to follow.

Later, in the same meeting, another boy said that when he finally got to take driver education in high school he had to "unlearn all the bad driving habits I learned from my folks."

When the final recommendations were drawn up, both the appeal for better driving example by adults and for adult driver education were included as part of the program the teen-agers wanted.

The 125 youngsters who came to this meeting from 31 Iowa communities conducted themselves with a seriousness and discipline that amazed the two adults allowed to sit in. The doors were locked to all other grown-ups in an effort to keep the meeting entirely in the control of the young delegates.

That is why their recommendations concerning adult drivers are so sobering, They were not made defensively or in the giddy irresponsibility adult presences sometimes seem to almost force on young people. These recommendations expressed some of their best thinking and deepest convictions.

They remind us that while we go about measuring the shortcomings of the teen-age driver, our generation has taught him all he knows.

Somebody "Egged" Them On!

Hilarious stunt at the Lions "Ladies Night" last Wednesday, saw the above action. Dr. Dulmes, Gilbert Jones and Robert Andreae were seated where all present could have a good view, and then their wives were given their choice of several eggs to pick from to break on the heads of their worthy husbands. Only one of these eggs was supposed to be raw, and the rest boiled. As it turned out, there wasn't a boiled egg in the bunch.

Dr. Dulmes is in the extreme left of the picture, but he has ducked to let the egg run off his head onto the floor. "Jonesy" looks like he's really had it. Judging from the direction of Mrs. Andreae's look, extreme right, we would say that friend "Bob" was lucky. Looks like maybe most of his "shampoo" went on the floor.

A beautiful birthday cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Claude White, and the birthday honors were extended to three other members of the Reinhart family whose birthdays are in April.

A tape recording was made of the afternoon's conversation, and individual messages were given for the benefit of Paul Reinhart, who is in Korea. The tape will be sent to him as a letter.

Lions Hold First "Ladies Night"

See Movies of European Trip

The Klemme Grade School basement was a scene of sheer beauty as the Lions Club held their first Ladies Night. The Lions attemped to offset the brilliance of their wives by wearing some very bright hats.

A chamber group composed of the high school band played their contest selection before the dinner was served. Rudy J. Fritsch, zone chairman from Garner, acted as tailtwister and was ably assisted by Ernie Gerardi of the local club. They managed to keep everyone on their toes, or shall we say feet, during the meal.

Following a demonstration of the proper way to begin an egg shampoo which was put on by three reluctant Lions and their over-eager wives, the guest speaker was introduced. We were fortunate to have with us Alfred J. Allen of the Allen Travel Agency, Clear Lake, Iowa. Mr. Allen had just completed a vacation tour of Europe and was able to show movies that he had taken and relate many interesting features of the trip which took place on the Continent and also aboard America's newest ship, the S. S. United States.

The enjoyable evening came to a close with the singing of "God Bless America".

Season Opens

Shamrocks Win, Lose In 2 Baseball Games

The Shamrocks have played two baseball games, one of which they lost and one they won.

Monday they played Belmond and due to some wild pitching, lost out by a score of 10 to 9. They out hit their opposition 11 to 2, but walks issued by Klemme pitchers told the story.

They walked 11 men and seven of them scored. Thiemann struck out 10 men in the four innings he worked, and Haefner struck out 6 in three innings.

Helland was the winning pitcher and Haefner, the loser.

At the bat, Karsjens and Ridder both had three for four and Barz had two for four.

Klemme committed four errors and Belmond two.

Until the last inning of a five inning game with Crystal Lake, Tuesday, Klemme was going along in fine shape. Then Thiemann walked the first man up. The next batter drove him home with a single. Thiemann completely lost the plate and walked the next two men, filling the bases. Haefner then took over on the mound to try and put out the fire. The first batter he faced, went out on a caught foul, but the next one walked, forcing in a run, making the score four to three. The last two outs were on a fly to Dulmes in right field and a line drive to first baseman Barz.

Klemme, in winning, had three hits to the Laker's two. Each team committed two errors.

Thiemann was the winning pitcher and Helm, the loser.

Medin to be Supt. In Algona Plant

Karl Huenemann, who was assistant manager of the Klemme Cooperative Creamery Company for approximately nine years, is to take over the management of the concern the first of May. He will also be buttermaker for the local plant. In 1951, Mr. Huenemann resigned his position as assistant manager here and accepted a position as head buttermaker in the creamery at Sibley, where he has been since.

Mr. Huenemann, in coming here succeeds Kenneth Medin, who has been manager and buttermaker since 1946. Mr. Medin has accepted a position as plant superintendent for the Algona Cooperative Creamery Company, and he, too, will start his new assignment on May first. The Algona plant sells milk both in paper cartons and bottles, manufactures ice cream, ice cream mix, chocolate milk, etc. In fact, according to Mr. Medin, they are in the ice cream business so heavy, that for about six months out of the year they churn no butter.

The Medins will move from Klemme at the close of the school year, and Mr. Huenemann will move his family into the house occupied by the Medins on approximately June 1st.

FINALLY MADE IT

It looks as though spring might finally be here.

After a couple of false starts and some recent 20-degree weather, this warm weather feels more like it. Looks good to see everyone running around in their shirt sleeves.

ENTERTAINMENT

We believe there is some pretty good entertainment to be had by sneaking down to the school ball diamond about 3:30 or 4 o'clock on the afternoons the Shamrocks have baseball games. We "snuck" away from the office for a few minutes Monday and Tuesday and watched them in parts of their first two games. They look preety good, too. Lost one 10 to 9, and one won 4 to 3.

GOLF

We're like "Ike" in one respect. We like to play golf. The past couple of days of warm weather have us really wanting to get out. We don't blame our president for getting out on the course and relaxing a little. He plays a fair game, too. There are thousands of golfers over the country, who would like to be able to break 90. He broke it at Augusta, and that's where the top tournament in golf is held each year.

FISHERMEN

We haven't heard of anyone catching any fish as yet this spring, but we are expecting any day now to have someone stop in with the first one of the season. Wonder who will have the honor this year?

CHANGES

The new telephone directories for the Klemme Exchange will be going to press early in May. If your present listing is not right, we would suggest that you notify the operator or Gilbert Jones before the first, so that necessary changes can be made. Just as well have it right.

"NEW LOOK"

Our park is beginning to take on a "new look". Deputy Marshall Richard Ulrich has been spending the past few days cleaning it up. Since the trees have been thinned, we think that when the grass gets green our park will have a very pleasing appearance.

EXCHANGE

We are hearing lots of comment, both good and bad, about the sick and wounded prisoner exchange now going on in Korea. The one good thing that we can see is that some of our men are getting out of the hands of the communists. Other than that, we can't see that the communists have shown any great change from their normal behavior. They are still cutting corners, cheating and taking advantage of every little thing that possibly can be turned in their favor. We wouldn't trust them any further than we can throw a bull by the tail.

WHAT HAPPENED?

John Eenhuis came up with a good one Saturday night. Upon arrival in town, he parked his car on main street, and proceeded with his business. When he returned to his car, he found that someone had hit it and mangled the rear bumper. Says John, "I guess I'm a pretty poor driver. I cant' even control that Ford when I've got it parked."

DIFFERENCE!

Remember way back when: Hogs were 2½ cents, corn was 10 cents, a new Chev was $700, you had an old wooden ice box in the kitchen, farming was still done with horses, and nobody had any money? Look at the difference today!

Hogs are at 20 cents, corn at $1.40, everyone drives a car worth from $2,000 to $3,000, kitchens are full of conveniences including electric refrigerators, farming is done with tractors, and still eveyone says, "No Money".

30 YEARS AGO—

"If cured meat is to be kept any length of time it should be wrapped in paper and placed in a tight paper bag" says H. D. Helser, of the animal husbandry department of the Iowa State college. "After this is done," he says, "the bags of meat should be hung up in a dark vermin-proof building until required for food. To protect the meat from skippers, it is sometimes dusted with borax.

Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21 is the time set for the second annual convention and short course for Iowa Radio Fans to be held at Iowa State College at Ames.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss of Goodell, were Klemme visitors on Tuesday of this week.

Dr. Zinn returned yesterday from his visit of about ten days with his father and other relatives in Canada. Doc found his father hale and also hearty.

The Creamery Company is doing a lot of repairing the past week. Art Kuck is the handy boy who heaves the mud into the bricks and is that "nigger" you saw working with the bricks on top of the smoke stack. Art gained a darker complexion due to the fact that the smoke always blew in the wrong direction. He also made the chimney a few feet higher.

20 YEARS AGO—

Floyd Greiman, seventeen year old son of Ben F. Greiman, Liberty township farmer escaped with minor bruises Saturday when he was run over by a tractor while discing at the Greiman farm.

The information is meager, but we gather that Dwight Helps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Helps and Miss Alvina Buss, daughter of Mrs. Elko Buss, were married last Thursday. Evidently the young couple stole a march on their friends, for they left no information as to where they were married or when they will be back. The Times hopes to publish a more detailed report of this happy event, and in the meantime, we join their many friends in extending congratulations.

Donald Gibbs, who attends Junior College at Mason City, came home Saturday and visited Miss Anna and Frankie. On Easter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibbs and family were also guests with Miss Anna Gibbs.

John Larson went to Chicago with two carloads of cattle Saturday evening, returning to Klemme Tuesday morning.

10 YEARS AGO—

Keith Stille of the U. S. Navy has on display a collection of souvenirs from Guadalcanal and other places in the Pacific which is attracting a lot of attention. In the collection are such items as Japanese money, cigarettes, a note book, seaman's blanket, a green shirt, knife and many other trinkets.

Palm Sunday services were made more realistic at the Methodist Church here Sunday morning when a real palm was placed near the pulpit. The palm was brought to Klemme by Mrs. E. B. Albro, of Rowan who was a visitor at the church Sunday.

Mrs. Bertha Schlei is having her residence in Klemme improved by having repairs and remodeling done. She expects to move to town soon. Her residence is the house recently vacated by Herman Schuldt and daughter, Mabel, who moved to Garner and live across the street from the high school.

A garage at the residence of Mrs. Edna Thada has recently been completed. The garage is attached to the east side of her house. Some improvements were also made inside the house.

Miss Jacqueline Kudje has signed a contract to teach in the Kanawha grade school this comin y year. She visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Art Kudje for a short time Saturday on her way back to Cedar Falls.

To Africa

Army wives have followed their husbands to the far corners of the earth, and Mrs. LaVeen Larson and family of Cherokee will be no exception The family is leaving for French Morocco, Africa, where Lt. Larson is stationed with the air force.

Henderson Receiving Entries for Master Swine Producer Project

The Iowa Master Swine Producer project is being conducted in Hancock County for its twelfth year, according to extension director Paul Henderson of Garner. To date, in Iowa, 275 top market hog producers have received recognition as Master Swine Producers.

Anyone with at least 10 sows farrowing by June 1 and who has been raising hogs for himself for 5 years is eligibile, extension director Henderson says. He urges that anyone who has 8 or more pigs per litter should get in touch with him and have his name entered in the project at the county extension direcor's office.

The spring of 1953 has been good so far for little pigs, Henderson points out, and there should be a good list of entries from Hancock County.

Henderson Tells of Rats and Controls

Reports are coming to County Extension director, Paul Henderson, of an increase of rats in Hancock County. Henderson says that new methods of rat control are good enough to give good control. He reminds us that there are a few sanitation measures needed to be followed also. Clean up, patch up and rat proof your premises. Then use warfarin or other rat poisons.

Henderson also reports city dumps alive with rats. Town councils should get on the ball with their rat control programs.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

So Eleanor had her soldier friend waiting for her at school Monday afternoon, but there was only one thing wrong and that was she wasn't in school. It seems that there were three other junior girls that sure would have liked to tell him, so he wouldn't waste too much time, but I guess they are kind of bashful. (Bashful did I say?)

We had another skating party last Friday at Forest City so I think I could dig up a little gossip from there.

We'll start with a familiar old couple known as Shirley and Noel. It seems that Noel wears glasses, but he didn't have them on all the time the other night. Did they bother you since you were close to her.

Then there was a couple new couples there. They are Margaret H. and Doug Jones. They occupied the back seat from Lee and Gracka. Since these are fairly new couples I will leave them alone for this time.

It seems that Daisy was a little here and there on the bus the other night. First with Roger and then with Graydon and even with Marvin and Bobby A. Of course, she was just keeping everyone awake and in high spirits so that they wouldn't be sleeping when we reached the "Shamrock".

A new couple for the night also was Darlene and Denny. This was just a coincidence so they say, but I think it was fixed to work this way. But they sat in the first or second seat from the front so nothing went on. I wonder if they even held a conversation between them.

Say, Elaine, don't you know that leap year is over for a while or what was the reason for getting Larry in your dad's car the other noon? Was it cause he hated to walk in this nice weather we are having. By looks of the back seat, "he never sees Maggie alone".

Say, Marcia, you had better keep a better eye on Norma than you have been cause she is your best friend and so is Roger and you know how the saying goes, "One good friend runs with another good friend."

Tommy aren't you afraid you will run out of gas some day with all the running around you do? Oh, no more will be said on this subject as Tommy nas a Chevie.They are a good car, if they run.

Would a certain someone tell a certain junior girl how she should go about asking a certain boy to a certain prom the 29th of this month. She needs help and badly.

Does anyone know how Marie and her South Dakota boyfriend are coming along? I don't think she does herself until we tell her.

The big thing that most of the kids in high school are waiting for now is the Junior-Senior banquet. This is just for the juniors and seniors, also the faculty and wives. The thing that is coming first though is the Junior-Senior prom at the Surf. Some of the girls have quite a time asking the certain boy that they want to go with and some of the boys have quite a time asking the certain girl they want to go with. What a time we kids have.

All you girls keep your hat on even though Lover Boy Green is back to town. And who were the two girls he took home from up town one night? I think they were juniors at that.

Keith Neuhring is sure shining around two juniors lately. He tells the girls in his grade that he's choosing while the choosing is good and who are these two lucky girls? You'd never guess.

How is Marie coming with all her secret admirers lately? Is the one from South Dakota still around?

Has Galen gotten Margaret kissed yet from the time he missed that part in the play? You'll never make a good movie star Galen if you keep skipping these parts as they are the most important.

Our little bachelor boy, (Delwyn) is still taking girls around in his car at noon. He sure isn't going to be a bachelor long or are you trying to take over Walley's place from a year or so back?

If you know anything about Delbert, Ralph, Emily, Reverdy and few more please tell me as I want to get their names in the paper before the school year ends. I think Reverdy used to take Emily to a show now and then and I wonder if he still does.

I think we should have another skating party for Elaine and Larry's benefit to see which one is stronger in will power.

It seems all Neva gets done is writing letters. I wonder how she gets her school work done?

How is the new romance between Galen and Emily coming along? Could it be serious?

It seems Janet and Bill haven't been fighting so much lately. Maybe it is because Bill hasn't been in school every day.

Marcia, you had better watch Roger. I notice he's had his eyes on Norma lately.

We haven't heard much about Faye lately. Is she still going with her one and only?

Bill W. and SharonW. are still geting along fine. I guess this is really it.

EDITORIAL

Judging by the weather we've been having lately, one would think winter has just arrived instead of spring. No matter what its like outside, though, school must go on.

During the past week we have overcome two major problems: one—gossiping and doing school work in the library; two—the noise and confusion which exists at the beginning of the activity period.

Under the present system of dismissal at 2:40, there will be far less noise and everyone will still be getting to his destination on time. If everyone cooperates, we will get more work accomplished with less confusion than before.

By using the cards Mr. Andreae dreae pased out as passes to the library, a closer check can be kept on students with a below "C" average being in the library This will also eliminate students from using the library as a study hall and will cut down on talking.

BASEBALL

Monday afternoon we played the first baseball game of the season. We played Belmond and lost 9 - 10. Mr. Cappon says the thing that lost the ball game for us was our pitchers walking 11 of Belmond's players, Nine out of this eleven scored.

Now for a few details about the game. Thiemann struck out in 4 innings and Haefner struck out in 3 innings. Our record for the game was 9 runs, 11 hits, and 4 errors. Of the 11 hits, Karsjens got 3, Ridder 3, and Barz 2. Belmond's record was 10 runs, 2 hits, and 2 errors. Belmond left 6 players on base and Klemme left 11 players on.

Today we play Crystal Lake here. This is to be the first scheduled game of the season. We all hope we win this game and get off to a good start on the seasons schedule.

The newly organized Girl's Softball team plays it's first game at Thornton, Friday the 24th. Here's hoping them luck.

SENIOR INTERVIEW

This week we have one of the interviewers. Eunice Jane Helps was born on a farm east of Klemme on March 21, 1936. "Toots" has brown eyes and brown hair. She is 5' 5" tall. Eunice went to school at Avery No. 1 for five years, then she came to Klemme.

Her pet peeve is people who crack their gum. Eunice's hobby is collecting napkins and various other articles. For a pastime, she sews and knits. Some of her favorites are as follows: food, cherry pie; song, "Your Cheating Heart"; singers, Perry Como and Jeanette Davis; bands, Guy Lombardo and The Cities Service Band of America; movie stars, Jane Wyman, Esther Williams, Rory Calhoun and Tony Curtis; movies, "With a Song in My Heart" and "Tropic Zone" and saying, "Oh, ish!"

Eunice has been in band for five and a half years, Glee Club for two years, trombone solo this year, trombone quartet for two years, and brass chamber group for one year. She was a prompter for our Senior class play. Her activities outside of school consist of a member of the Methodist Church and MYF of which she is secretary-tresurer. In her 4-H club, she is now president of the club, last year vice-president and two years ago she was secretary-tresurer.

Her plans for the future are to become an elementary teacher.

KINDERGARTEN

The kindergarten and first grade went on a walk Monday afternoon. We saw squirrels, some birds and some pretty flowers. The next day we drew pictures about what we saw.

Mary Harson had her sixth birthday. She was at home with the chicken pox, so we all drew her some pictures and made them into a booklet.

Several of our class are out of school with the chicken pox We hope that they hurry up and get well.

We have started subtraction in arithmetic this week.

Gary Bachman celebrated his 7th birthday and treated the class to candy bars. His mother Mrs. Alvin Bachman, visited our room that afternoon.

We are making a bird book in science.

Mrs. Mitchell Bock visited our room Thursday morning.

Once again spring is here and with it is the sight of baseball and bats. The baseball season has begun with the first game scheduled for Tuesday, April 21.

Again this year Mr. Cappon is coach, and Mr. Johnson is assistant coach. Twenty boys have competed for places on the first team. The first ten on the lineup are: Larry Stille, Roger Terhufen, Tom Waddingham, Graydon Barz, Ronnie Karsjens, Donnie Thiemann, Dennis Ridder, Cecil Jacobs, Dick Dulmes; and Dennis Haefner. The pitchers will be Donnie Thiemann and Dennis Haefner. John Bissom and Terry Koerner, who were basketball managers, are also the managers for the baseball team.

New suits have been purchased this year. They are all white with black numbers and letters. The new equipment bought this year is six bats, a bat bag, and all new catcher's equipment.

Eight games have been scheduled for this season, not including the sectional tournament Two games will be played with Crystal Lake, Hayfield, Thornton, and one game has been scheduled with Rowan and Meservey. Five of these games will be played away from home, and the remaining three will be played at Klemme.

Last year's season was very successful and resulted in Klemme being the runner-up of the sectional tournament held at Kanawha. All of the same players are back this year, so this season promises to be even more successful than last year's season.

A basic conflict is going on in the hog business these days, Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, reports.

The long-time forces at work in the hog outlook point toward the need for a lean, meaty type hog. Consumers dislike fatty pork cuts. Those chops and hams with large globe of internal fat hold little attraction to housewives.

Hand-in-hand with this dislike of fat pork cuts has come a drop in the demand for lard. Modern technology has made vegetable fats and oils substitutable with lard. This puts lard in direct price competition with lower cost vegetable oils, Kutish points out.

There is little question that the hog industry faces an uphill battle to maintain its position unless it shifts to a more meat type hog. Geoffrey Shepherd, agricultural economist at Iowa State College, has just completed a study which shows that the demand for hogs has shrunk relative to the demand for beef cattle since 1910. His figures show an average drop of 1.2 per cent per year over the 42-year span.

The position of hogs today, compared with beef steers, is more favorable than in recent years, however, but Kutish stresses that this is largely a supply proposition.

Beef kill under federal inspection is running 25 to 30 percent over last year. Hog kill is down 14 percent from 1952. Our current beef supply is the largest relative to pork since 1918. It covers up some of the basic shifts going on in the hog picture, says the Iowa State College farm economist.

The short-run supply situation has resulted in a scramble by packer buyers to get hold of hogs—regardless of weight. The price spread between light and heavy hogs paid by packers is very narrow. It makes it pay farmers in the short run to do things which are detrimental to the hog industry in the long run.

As an example, Kutish cites the case of a farmer who was offered $20.25 per 100 pounds for a drove of 225 pound hogs on March 1. He rejected the offer; instead he fed them until the end of March and sold them at 275 pounds.

The packer buyer paid him $20 per 100 pounds for them. The farmer got $9.44 more per hog. The feed cost of putting on the extra 50 pounds was about $6.60—leaving him a net profit of $2:84 per hog, for producing extra lard and fatty pork.

Kindergarten Children for Next Year to be Registered April 24

(By Supt. T. G. Ahrenkiel)

The annual registration of students for Kindergarten next year will be held in the Grade School Basement at 2:00 p. m. on Friday, April 24th. All parents who have children that will be five years of age on or before November 15, 1953 may register for Kindergarten next year. We urge all parents who will be sending children next year to attend this meeting and register their child. The school must have this information to make the necessary plans for the next school year. If you find it impossible to attend the meeting please call the Superintendent's office. Miss Carol Johnson will be in charge of the meeting at the Grade School.

Three Ways to Fertilize Corn

Use Starter, Nitrogen, Plow Under Fertilizer

Plan your corn fertilization program carefully for most economical results, advises Joe Stritzel, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

There are three major corn fertilization plans for Iowa. They include (1) using starter fertilizer, (2) applying extra nitrogen, and (3) plowing under heavy amounts of nutrients in addition to using starter fertilizer. Your field may need any one or all of the methods.

Starter fertilizer is recommended for most corn crops. It is a mixture of nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium, such as 5-20-50, 4-16-8, 3-12-12, etc. It's wise to have your soil tested to determine the ratio of nutrients to use, Stritzel says.

SOD LEAVES NITROGEN

Starter fertilizer is applied at corn planting time. It's possible that it will be all the fertilizer your corn will need, providing the soil has adequate supplies of available phosphorus and potash to satisfactorily continue the growth begun by the starter fertilizer.

Corn following a good legume sod will probably have sufficient nitrogen, and if the phosphate and potash supplies are adequate, starter fertilizer is all that is needed.

Applying extra nitrogen in addition to the starter is recommended for nitrogen-deficient soils. Nitrogen can be broadcast or applied as a side-dressing. The effect of this nutrient on the yield is the same for both types of application, providing weed control is the same.

It's more difficult to control weeds in fields where nitrogen has been broadcast than in side-dressed fields, the agronomist says.

FORM OF NITROGEN

As long as nitrogen is applied in equal amounts, it doesn't make any difference whether it is used in a liquid, gas or dry state. The benefit should be the same. Increases of from 10 to 20 bushels per acre have been obtained from an application of 20 to 80 pounds of extra nitrogen, depending on the soil requirements.

For soil low in all three important nutrients, it may be necessary to make heavy applications of nitrogen, phosphate and potash in addition to the starter fertilizer. You will probably need to apply and plow under only phosphate and potash if your corn is planted after a good legume sod. Otherwise, it will probably be necessary to apply nitrogen along with the phosphate and potash. It is generally not a good idea to plow under large amounts of nutrients unless a soil test definitely shows a need for them, Stritzel emphasized.

Fertilizer can be plowed under in the fall or spring, or disked in in the spring. Soil and weather er will often determine the method to use.

Evergreen branches that appear brown and dead in the spring may not be dead, says Margherita Tarr, Iowa State College extension landscape architect. It's wise to wait until July to prune evergreens. If there is life in the dead-looking branches it will show up by then.

Start fly control by cleaning up rubbish heaps, piles of rotting weeds, old stack bottoms and manure in barnyards.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

This accident traveled around for years in three parts. Then came a day and a moment when the three parts came neatly together.

One part was a man who would not put out his hand to signal a turn even if he had a better than even chance of plucking a $10 bill out of the air.

The second part was a careless man who seemed to bring neglect and decay to everything he owned. His property simply went to pot for lack of care. His car had no tail light.

The third part was what the patrolman telling the story called "A City Driver." He was a hurried, hard-pressed man—or he thought he was—who thought it proper to follow the car ahead by as close as 5 to 10 feet.

Taken separately, each man each part of the accident to come would have excused himself as not so bad.

The man who never signaled could say, "But they can see my tail lights go on." The man who had no tail lights could say, "But I never drive at night." The man who followed to closely could say, "I've got good brakes."

Then came the day and the moment. The man who would not signal, stopped in the middle of the highway to make a left turn. Right behind him, the man who had no tail light jammed on his brakes. Right behind him, the man who followed too closely had no warning, no chance to use his good brakes

He crashed into the car ahead and his three-year-old son, riding in the front seat, was thrown through the windshield. His life was lost before he could be taken to a hospital.

A far fetched and improbable story? The patrolmen who were there swear it is true.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Freedom of Thought

Did you read that newspaper interview with the German exchange students?

They are attending one of our Iowa colleges. And they can't get used to the way students are allowed to express their own views in class . . . even argue about a professor's opinion.

It hadn't struck me before, but isn't that one of the remarkable things about America — one reason for this country's greatness? Here, we learn to do our own thinking. We have the right to our own opinion. We learn to hear many points of view, respect them all, put them all together . . . and live with them in friendly tolerance.

Whether it's a matter of the job we choose or the friends we make . . . whether the cup of coffee one prefers or the temperate glass of beer of the man across the table . . . the other fellow's tastes are always as important as our own. That's the American way.

Long live our right to disagree . . . and our obligation not to force such disagreement onto others.

Cancer Crusade On in County

Goal Is $2500 For East Half

Volunteer workers for the cancer crusade recently met at a luncheon, and received their instructions and materials for the fund-raising project which is now underway in the county.

James L. Norvell, Mason City, a field director to the state office of the Iowa Division of the American Cancer Society, was the principal speaker for this "kick-off" meeting. He stressed the need of educating the public as to the early symptoms of cancer. Doctors, lawyers, scientists, business men, career women, housewives, teachers, pupils; yes, young and old, skilled and unskilled—each has a stake in the control of cancer, according to Norvell.

Rev. M. J. Klaus, campaign chairman for the east half of the county, stated that the goal for this part of the county has been set at $2500.00. He said that although this might sound like a lot of money, when we stop to realize that over a quarter of a million dollars was spent for cancer research right here in Iowa in the past six years, then the sum is not so large. In addition, another $600,000.00 of Iowa contributions was used for cancer research on the national level during the same period of time.

Since the month of April has been designated by Governor Beardsley as "Cancer Control Month", it is hoped that everyone will contribute as liberally as they possibly can to fight this dreadful disease. Your cooperation in extending a cordial welcome to solicitors who call on you will be greatly appreciated, remarked Rev. Klaus.

Town and township chairmen for this fund-raising campaign are as follows: Garner, Mrs. Clark Pollock; Klemme, Mrs. Gilbert Jones; Goodell, Mrs. H. E. Boller; Madison township, Mrs. Harold Rockow; Ellington Township, Peter Juhl; Garfield Township, Mrs. Emery Brown; Concord Township, Jack Hulting; Liberty Township, Mrs. Aaron Stromer; Ell Township, Laurence Radloff; Twin Lake Township, Mrs. Wm. Sheriff; and Avery Township, Mrs. Dale Shelton.

Traffic Deaths Take Big Jump in April

The biggest increase in traffic deaths since late 1951 developed in Iowa during the first two weeks of this month, State Safety Commissioner Pearl W. McMurry reported Thursday.

On April 15, the state's traffic fatality toll stood at 115 compared to 102 on the same date last year.

However, the total of 15,406 traffic accidents reported during the first three months of this year showed a decline from the 15,964 during the same period in 1952, McMurry pointed out.

The number of persons injured in traffic accidents was also down - 3,383 during the first three months of this year compared to 3,976 last year.

"I feel sure this trend toward increasing traffic deaths can be reversed if enough local organizations get into the fight immediately and carry on community safety campaigns," said McMurry.

He suggested special emphasis on alerting drivers to watch for children playing in or near streets.

Spring's Housecleaning Campaign Begins—

Insect-Proof Your Rugs, Upholstery

One of the big jobs ahead this spring is to protect carpeting, upholstery and other furnishings from insect damage. First comes a thorough cleaning. Then spray baseboards and furnishings with a 5 percent DDT emulsion or oil solution.

When you chart your spring house-cleaning campaign, set aside 2 or 3 days for a very important job—protecting yor furnishings from insect damage.

Upholstered furniture, rugs, carpeting and draperies containing wool need proctection from moths and carpet beetles just as much as the clothes you carefully spray or tuck away in moth crystals each spring, explains Harold Gunderson, Iowa State College extension entomologist. Other furnishing of rayon or cotton are subject to silverfish damage and need protection.

ONE ROOM AT A TIME

Don't try to takle the whole project at once, says home management specialists at the college. They suggest you take one room at a time. That way you won't upset the whole house and wear yourself out trying to do too much. First clean each room and its furnishings.

In cleaning each room, give special attention to baseboards, for they provide good hide-outs for insect larvae. Clean thoroughly and spray or "paint" with the 5 percent DDT solution described below.

Go over rugs and upholstery with vacuum cleaner. If they also need a thorough seasonal cleaning, you can use a good commercial upholstery or rug shampoo, or a special dry cleaning compound. In some communities you can rent commercial rug-shampooing equipment to help you do the job at home. (Fabric insects are especially attracted to soil and lint.)

USE DDT SPRAY

Spray rugs, draperies and upholstered furniture with a 5 percent DDT emulsion or 5 percent DDT oil solution. The DDT emulsifiable concentrate comes as a 25 percent solution, so you will need 4 parts water to 1 part DDT concentrate to get the 5 percent solution needed. The base for the oil solution should be an odorless, high-grade kerosene or mineral oil.

Move pieces of furniture away from the rug when you treat them, so as not to get excess spray on the rug. Be sure the room is well-ventilated when you are spraying. Afterwards, wash face and hands with soap and warm water.

Spray at the rate of a quart for a 9x12 rug, about a pint for an upholstered davenport and about ½ pint for an upholstered chair. Be sure to spray thoroughly—don't forget the back, bottom and under cushions. Draperies will need just a very light application. Spray as evenly as you can, using your vacuum attachment or a knapsack sprayer for best results.

In treating large rugs, it is best to move out all furniture so you can spray the whole rug thoroughly and evenly. Allow rug to dry completely before you walk on it or move furniture back in. You'll need to take special care with light-colored carpeting so as not to spot or soil it by walking on it too soon.

Some commercial rug cleaning firms will insect-proof your rugs for you.

DON'T FORGET PIANO

The felt under the keys and on the strikers of your piano are subject to insect damage, too. Have your piano tuner treat them—or you can dust a 10 percent DDT powder in between the keys and on the strikers to protect them. Don't use a spray, for the moisture would cause trouble.

Some Iowa Lakes Closed to Minnow Removal

Although the 1953-54 fishing regulations state that all state-owned waters except trout streams are open to minnow removal, the law requires posting of all waters in which such removal would harm game fish populations.

For this reason, it has been recommended by conservation commission biologists that most state-owned artificial lakes be closed to minnow seining and trapping for the present. Exceptions are Swan Lake in Carroll County, Allerton Reservoir, Lake Keosauqua, Beed's Lake, and Upper Pine Lake. Minnow removal will be permitted in these waters.

Also included on the closed minnow list are the following natural lakes: Clear Lake, East and West Okoboji Lakes, Spirit Lake, Minnewashta, Silver Lake in Dickinson County, Black Hawk, North Twin, Blue Lake, Brown's Lake, Manawa, Storm Lake, Lost Island Lake, and Lake Cornelia.

In these lakes the minnow populations have been found to be low to average. Since there are high populations of game fish that feed on minnows, seining and trapping would add pressure that would greatly decrease minnow populations. With minnows lacking, the fry of game fish would replace them as a food source, and future game fish populations would suffer.

State taxes on sales, gasoline, income and other items cost Iowans over $64 annually.

Younger Registrants Get Deferment if They Enlist in Guard Unit

This is the third in a series of short weekly articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.

Any person who enlists in the National Guard (including the Air National Guard) prior to reaching the age of 18 years, 6 months, will be deferred from induction under Selective Service so long as he serves satisfactorily as a member of the Guard. This deferment is provided for by the Universal Military Training and Service Act. Even though the individual who thus enlists in the National Guard reaches an age which is being currently inducted into the Armed Forces for active duty, still such registrant is entitled to continued deferment if his service in the guard is satisfactory.

The military authorities have established that 90% attendance at drills, including attendance at summer camp for approximately 2 weeks, is necessary to constitute satisfactory participation as a Guardsman.

Registrants do not have the benefit of this special provision of the law if they join organized reserve units of the Army, Navy Marine Corps or Air Force since the law is written to apply only to those registrants enlisting in the National Guard prior to attaining the age of 18 years 6 months.

Under the authority of Section 21 of the Universal Military Training and Service Act the President has the authority, until July 1, 1953; to order into the active military or naval service of the United States for a period not to exceed 24 consecutive months, with or without their consent, any or all members and units of any or all Reserve componets of the Armed Forces of the United States. The National Guard is included as one of the Reserve components of the Armed Forces.

Consequently a person who joins the National Guard prior to reaching the age 18 years 6 months could be "ordered" into the Federal service by the President but, so long as his service is satisfactory in the Guard, he could not be "inducted" into Federal service through Selective Service.

Men's Wear Features Orlon-Rayon Suits

Cool cord suits with a continually just-pressed look are among the new spring and summer fashions for the menfolks. Orlon's wrinkle resistance contributes the fresh-from-the-tailor's look in the fabric blend of 75 percent rayon with 25 percent Orlon. The suits seldom need pressing or cleaning.

According to Iowa State College clothing specialists, Orlon also gives full-bodied, lightweight properties to the suiting fabric. Another practical point is that the crisp, smooth fabric resists soiling.

Although the fabric itself is said to be washable, the suits must be drycleaned.

The new suits are offered in gray and white or tan and white. Models are single-breasted, in two or three-button styles, and come in short, long and portly in a size range of 36 to 50.

NYLON SHIRTS

Washable men's shirts of nylon tricot are practical and long wearing. The knit fabric is firm yet flexible and lends itself to fine tailoring. Neat seams do not stretch or pucker. The fabric is porous and gives good coverage. Care is a simple matter, with little or no ironing needed. Both colored sports shirts and white dress shirts with regular or button-down collars and single cuffs are available. Dacron and Orlon shirts are also on the market and have the same easy-care features.

RAYON SUITING

A "thick-and-thin" rayon yarn is woven into a new fabric used for men's and boys' slacks, suits and sport coats. The fabric is spot-resistant, water-repellent and crease-resistant and comes in a dozen or more color choices. It has a luxurious texture with a sturdy, porous, cool construction—the thick-and-thin yarn gives a two-tone appearance. Fully-lined tuxedo coat come in cream white.

Cut Chick Mortality By Having Ample Space

You may cut the mortality rate of your baby chicks in half by giving them plenty of room in the brooder house and at the feeders and waterers.

This is shown by records of demonstration flocks in all parts of Iowa last year, according to Robert McVicker, extension poultryman at Iowa State College.

Chicks from hatching to eight weeks old need at least ½ square foot of floor space per chick. From 8 to 11 weeks old the chicks need 100 feet of floor space for each 100 chicks.

Up to the time the chicks are 2 weeks old they need 3 or 4 chick waterers for each 100 chicks. From 2 weeks of age until they are ready to move to range they need two 5 gallon waterers per 100 chicks.

McVicker advises that you provide 4 feet of feeder space for each 100 chicks from hatching to 4 weeks of age. From 4 to 10 weeks each chick needs 2 inches of space at the feeder, or 8 feet of feeder space for each 100 chicks.

The Yield Is the Payoff
When Fertilizer Fits the Soil and Crop

Soils and crops differ in their needs for nutrients to produce top yields. Knowing these needs is the first step toward using fertilizers right for the best returns.

for Corn

STARTER FERTILIZER—corn will respond on most soils. Iowa State College research shows you can expect 8 to 12 bushels more corn from starter fertilizer applied at planting.

NITROGEN—especially needed on second-year corn or corn planted to ground just plowed out of grass sod.

PHOSPHATE and POTASH—extra often needed for balance to get best returns from nitrogen fertilizer.

STAND—to make best use of fertilizers you need a good stand - - at least 12,000 to 16,000 plants per acre.

Justice Pavey's report listed fines levied in the sum of $35 all of which were collected.

The board also gave final approval to the 1953 secondary road construction program as approved by the State Highway Commission. A date for letting will be fixed as soon as the County Engineers can prepare plans and specifications.

The supervisors also approved the inspection report on the boiler at the County home and courthouse as submitted by Inspector W. W. Murphy. The inspector's report lists the boilers in good condition.

Family Group Averages 60 Years

There was a family gathering in Klemme, Sunday, that was considerably out of the ordinary. Five sisters and a brother, all children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schuldt, whose average age is some over 60 years, were entertained to a turkey dinner by Dr. and Mrs. D. P. Anderson and Neva Ann. It was the first time that the group had gotten together for a family gathering in over five years.

Mrs. J. W. Haefner is the eldest of the Schuldt children and she and her husband celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on March eighth of this year. Others of the group will soon be celebrating 50 years of married life. Mrs. Anderson is the youngest, and she and Dr. Anderson celebrated their 25th anniversary on November 2, 1952.

Mrs. Anderson planned the Sunday gathering and it was a happy time for everyone present. As a memento of the occasion, C. C. Kilgore took pictures of the group and one of them is shown above. Pictured from left to right are: Mrs. J. W. Haefner, Wes Schuldt, Mrs. Wes Schuldt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Busch of Mason City, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Vic Schoenwetter, Vic Schoenwetter, Mrs. John Suckow, John Suckow, and J. W. Haefner.

WHEREAS, the general health and welfare of our citizens depends upon the wholesome surroundings arising from good clean living conditions, and

WHEREAS, the lives and property of our people are endangered by fires caused by the cluttered conditions in homes, stores, alleys, and streets, and

WHEREAS, unity of effort is required for the future development of our community,

THEREFORE, I, Virgil Cook, Mayor of Klemme, do hereby designate the week of May 4 to May 9 as official clean up week in Klemme and call upon everyone to cooperate in making our town a cleaner, healthier, more attractive place in which to live, to which end I have caused the dump to be open without charge to residents of our town from 9:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. every day of this week, and on Thursday of each week thereafter until October 1.

The maid of honor, Miss Marie Neuberger, cousin of the bride, was attired in an aqua ballerina length formal of net over taffeta. Her bouquet was of yellow variegated carnations.

Miss Marlene Blumer, sister of the bride, as bridemaid, wore a yellow formal similiar to Miss Neuberger's. She carried a bouquet of white variegated carnations.

The guest book was in charge of Mrs. Leo Blumer. Pouring were Mrs. Leland Hummel and Mrs. Ivan Blumer. Mrs. Raymond Wille cut the cake. Mrs. Merlin Neuberger and Mrs. Mervin Barkema were the hostesses. Kay Jacobs and Eleanor Priebe assisted with serving.

Mrs. Norene Pearson and Miss Margaret Buckley had charge of the gifts.

Brooder House Fire Causes Loss of Chicks at Bob Schulz Home

Tueday night about midnight, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Schulz who had been away for the evening, returned to their home four miles east and a half miles south of Klemme and discovered fire in their brooder house.

The Klemme Fire Department was called and after a quick run succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before too much damage was done to the brooder house. However, between three and four hundred chicks were lost to the fire.

The floor was burned out of the building and one side was damaged considerably, but none of the other farm buildings were harmed. With the high wind Tuesday night and the proximity of other buildings to the brooder house, it was fortunate that the blaze was discovered as quickly as it was. If it had really got going, the loss could have been very great.

Fire Whistle

When our town fire whistle sounds at noon it is a very welcome sound. It creates no disturbance in the mind, whatsoever. It simply signifies that it is time to knock off work and go tie on the feed bag.

In the middle of the night, though, it's altogether different. When the whistle sounded about midnight last night for the fire at the Bob Schulz farm, it was an ery sound. The wind was whooping it up, we were only about half awake, and there was plenty of room for speculation, as to where the fire might be.

Gives one a funny feeling. One minute you are sound asleep, and the next, you are trying to collect your wits enough to get the sound to register its significance in your "fuzzy" brain. Then you commence to wonder where the fire is and what might be burning . . . and with a wind like last night's, you hope that it is nothing big. You think of all the possible consequences of fire on the loose in a high wind, and hope that the fire department will be able to control things without too much danger to themselves or damage to property.

Finally, you stagger out of bed and get around to finding out what is going on. It's always a relief to find that it is nothing serious. Of course, the loss of between three and four hundred chicks was serious to Mr. and Mrs. Schulz, but not as though it was their house or one of the larger buildings that was on fire.

We imagine that this befuddled state is pretty much in contrast to the way the volunteers of the fire department react to the whistle. As rapidly as they get around and get the truck headed for the scene of the blaze, you would almost think they sleep fully dressed. As far as thoughts go, we'll bet they are more apprehensive about what and where than the rest of us are. After all, they have to get up and go to work. Bet there are plenty of times that they would just as soon stay right in the "sack", too.

Thank goodness we've got good equipment, and a good volunteer fire department. Otherwise that fire whistle in the middle of the night would really send the shivers up and down our spines.

Clean Up Week

Monday, May 4, through Saturday, May 9, has been proclaimed "clean up week" by Mayor Cook. During all that week the dump will be open free of charge to all residents of Klemme.

This sounds to us like a good idea. Those places that are merely unslightly now, will be unsightly and smelly both, come hot weather. Getting rid of such rubbish heaps will deprive disease carrying animals and insects of breeding places and insure us a healthier town to live in . . . as well as one with a good neat appearance.

First Fish

Last week we made mention of the fact that we wondered who would have the honor of catching the first fish this year. Eckard Zeidler came in Saturday and informed us that the first fish for the year had been caught long ago. In fact, Eckard and a few other hardy fishermen were catching fish all winter. They fished through the ice and had fresh fish to eat when the rest of us were just dreaming about such things.

"Brain Washing"

We were more than a little shocked to hear that some of the returned prisoners showed symptoms of having been taken in by the "brain washing" they had been subjected too while held captive by the reds.

Why anyone who has experienced our way of living would want any other is beyond us. And more to the point; we can't possibly see what there is in a system so brutal as communism that would appeal to anyone with a grain of common decency or common sense.

We hope that the army rehabilitation personnel can so fill their minds with the benefits of our democratic system, that no amount of "brain washing" will ever again affect them.

We Give Up

We've been talking spring for the last month. Last week, we thought it had finally gotten here, so what happen? The day after we go to press the weather turns nasty again, and we haven't had a decent day since. Guess we'll just give up, and be thankful if it ever does get here.

Armed Forces Physical Examination

(This is the fourth in a series of short articles designed to better acquaint the regisrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.)

The Armed Forces, and not Selective Service, prescribe the physical, mental and moral standards, and conduct the examintions, for determination of acceptibility for miltiary service. Normally regisrants who are classified in Class I-A, I-A-O, or I-O are ordered for Armed Forces physical examination when their turn is reached, although a registrant in any class may be ordered for this so-called pre-induction physical if his induction is reasonably imminent.

No thorough physical examination is attempted at the Local Board level. If a registrant has an obvious physical or mental defect which very clearly disqualifies him for military service, such as loss of an arm or an eye, he may be ordered by the Local Board for a medical interview with the medical advisor and upon the basis of such interview may be classified in Class IV-F without being forwarded to the Armed Forces examination station for final determination of physical fitness. The normal procedure, however, is for the registrant to take his pre-induction physical at special Armed Forces Examining Stations set up for that purpose.

Examinations to check acceptability for military service involve a determination of physical, mental and moral fitness. Generally, illiterates are disqualified for service. Registrants with criminal records are not acceptable although, in meritorious cases, moral waivers may be obtained permitting induction. No appeal to the State Appeal Board may be taken from the determination of the registrant's physical or mental condition.

Registrants are frequently ordered for second or third pre-induction physical examinations. This is made necessary by two conditions;; (1) Physical standards change from time to time.

A registrant not acceptable today may be accepted tomorrow by a change in physical or mental requirements. (2) A registrant may have recovered from a disability which previously disqualified him.

A registrant may transfer for his Armed Forces physical examination from his own Local Board to another if reporting to his own Local Board would result in a hardship to him. However, he always remains under the jurisdiction of his own Local Board. He cannot transfer his registration or file from one Local Board to another Local Board even though he may change his place of residence.

Those physically, mentally, or morally disqualified for service are normally reclassified to Class IV-F.

Teachers Give Advice to '53 Graduating Class

Girls Lose Softball Game to Thornton

The girls finally succeeded in persuading Mr. Johnson that we had to have a softball team. After several practice periods, players were signed out to continue practice. They are: Marlene Blumer, Marie Nuehring, Emily Goll, Jo Ellen Clabaugh, Carol Bridges, Lois Boland, Dorothy Lacy. Leola Lacy, Ila Anderson, Leila Anderson, Daisy Schaefer and Carolyn Carolus. The weather has been interfering so our practice time has been limited.

We played our first game with Thornton on April 23. Pitching for Klemme were Jo Ellen and Emily, Daisy was the catcher, Dorothy played on first, Carol second, Lois third, Emily and Jo Ellen alternated in the position of short stop, outfielders were Leila, Leola, and Ila. The Klemme team wound up with 9 runs to 20 for Thornton. Even though we lost, the game was good practice for the tournaments coming up May 4, 6, and 8th. We hope to play several more games after the tournaments.

The Klemme team got off to a slow start by allowing Thornton to make 11 runs in the first inning. The remainder of their runs were made in the fourth inning.

FIFTH GRADE

In language class we have been learning to make outlines, take notes, and write up reports. We are doing this in history and geography. In history we give reports on famous people and in geography our reports are on our South American neighbors. We have made statue pictures of South American people which was our art work.

In arithmetic, we are using our four fundamental processes in problems with larger numbers. We have to be very careful or we make many errors.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

An Iowa law passed 40 years ago this April ruled that automobiles "must not emit undue steam or smoke at anytime." Mechanical improvements probably have eased that law off the books by now, but perhaps it should be revived—only this time aimed at the driver.

Drivers who "emit undue steam or smoke" in traffic are about as welcome as boll weevils at a cotton festival. The angry man behind the wheel is, at the moment his rage flashes hottest, no more gentle or dependable creature than a hoodlum behind a gun. Tragic examples are plentiful.

Then was the Iowan who said he "got mad" at the car ahead because it was going so slowly through a residential area. At first opportunity, he roared vengefully past the car, at the same time turning to glare at its driver.

He happened to be passing in an intersection. He happened to hit an elderly man who died after a week of intense pain. It all happened because he was blind with rage.

Then they tell the almost incredible story of a man who became angry at his own automobile because it was persistantly sluggish on pick-up. He got a rock and broke out both of the car's headlights.

When he realized the stupid thing he had done, he got even madder. He jumped into the car and began to drive down the road with only the dim moon to show him the way. He collected two weeks in a hospital ward to think things over.

Every day an incident occurs somewhere to prove that the quick tempered driver is really a slow thinker.

LETTER

At Marengo, Ray Gilbert has just received a letter from his son, a Chinese prisoner of war. The letter was dated December 24, 1952.

TOWN CRIER DIES

Many Iowans have seen and heard Prof. George Francis Sadler, Pella musican, who died at his home there recently. He was for many years the "Town Crier" of Pella's famous annual Tulip Time.

30 YEARS

At Red Oak, Mrs. Carmelita Cozad has been the Methodist church organist for 30 years. And she has rarely missed a service.

SENIOR INTERVIEW

Marie Caroline Nuehring, our senior of the week, was born on a farm southeast of Klemme, March 30, 1936. She has brown hair, blue eyes and is 5', 3½" tall. The schools she has attended are Ell No. 3 for 3 years, Ell No. 4 for 4 years and then came to Klemme.

Her most embarrassing moment happened when Mr. Andreae thought she should have her picture taken with him, and her pet peeve is people who are "fairweather" friends. Her favorites are: food, tomatoes; songs, "Back Street Affair" and "Mockingbird Hill"; singers, Webb Pierce and Doris Day; bands, Klemme High School and Russ Morgan; favorite movie stars, Esther Williams, Jane Wyman, Victor Mature, and Bing Crosby; and her favorite movie was "Million Dollar Mermaid". "Some fun, huh?" and "You dumb head" are her favorite sayings, and reading is her pastime.

Marie's activities in school consist of: interviewer for the paper, proofreader for the yearbook, plays on the girls softball team, was in the junior class play and was prompter for the senior class play.

Her future plans are to become an elementary teacher.

EIGHTH GRADE

A week ago Tuesday we went to Des Moines on a tour. The day started out with the weather being real nice, but in the afternoon, it began to rain. The rain didn't stop anything, we went to every place scheduled. We left in the morning at 6:15, arrived home at 8:30. This tour was very educational and we enjoyed it very much. We all want to thank Mr. Juhl and Mr. Ahrenkiel for giving us this privilege of going. We also want to thank the parents who drove to Des Moines for us.

Last week we presented Robert Ausborn with some money that we all had contributed to, as a gift, because of the fire at his home that destroyed some of his clothes.

In English, we are interviewing people and bringing the interviews to class.

The Junior High boys have a base ball game April 23, vs. Kanawha there and April 27, Kanawha here.

Motto for this week is: "One of the troubles of the world today is the fact that we have allowed the Golden Rule to become a bit tarnished".

Seniors Should Do Well if They Heed

Since we are nearing the end of our education at Klemme High School, we decided to ask each high school teacher to give his advice to the senior class.

Mr. Ahrenkiel—"My advice to every senior is to continue your education if at all possible. Education is something that can never be taken away from you and can always be used. Don't let our present economy give you the idea that additional education isn't needed because once we start to recede, then your education will increase in value."

Mr. Andreae—"The world wants things done, not excuses. One thing well done is worth a million excuses. In other words, when your life's tasks are put before you, use your energy to tackle the jobs rather than to avoid them. For the past 12 years school has been your job. Have you gotten by on excuses, or do you feel you have gotten the job done and are now ready for the work that lies ahead? My advice to you seniors is to apply yourself diligently to your chosen professions, and you need not make excuses to anyone."

Mr. Johnson—"I think all graduates should try to attend college or enter some training program and have a definite goal or sight which they should attempt to attain. You, who are seniors have lived only in prosperous times. It is bound to change in the future, so you should all try to prepare for it in some way. You have to live with yourself so, be good to yourself".

Mr. Smith—"My advice to you as a graduating class is of twofold.

"Always keep an open mind to what ever problem you are challenged with. Bear in mind that each problem has two sides to it. Try to see the other person's point of view, because in his mind he is right also.

"What ever you set out to do, don't put forth just enough so as to do a passable job of it, but put forth your best and do it well. Any task worth a little effort is worth your utmost".

Mr. Cappon—"The expression, "Ladder of Success" is trite; better we use the simile climbing the "Rope of Success." It is easy to climb a ladder; however it is difficult to climb the "Rope of Success." It takes persistence and fortitude. It takes ambition and perseverance It takes humility and humanity. Yes, my advice, that free commodity, is to use these words — perseverance, humility, and humanity—as the muscles to lift you up the "Rope of Success."

Mr. Fischer—"Choose your occupation with an eye to the future. Will you find satisfaction in what you are doing? Do you like the work? Are you helping make someone else happy as well as yourself? Is it honorable? Are you doing the work as though it were your own business, or are you doing it just for the money that is in it? Remember, money isn't everything! It can't buy happiness, satisfaction, joy, love, character, peace of mind, or eternity."

Mr. Whitford—"Learn to meet reverses gracefully. You will learn, as you grow older, that you can not always have your own way. Many things will go against you. Learn to smile at defeat and try again."

Thanks to the teachers for this good advice which, if we follow, will surely make our life more successful.

Miriam and Margaret

EDITORIAL

No doubt everyone has read the poster on the bulletin board about the prom April 29th at the Surf Ballroom in Clear Lake. We hope all the Klemme juniors and seniors will make a special effort to attend this prom. Parents and friends have also been invited so there should be a large crowd. Jules Herman's orchestra will provide the music. He has a swell band and there will undoubtedly be a variety of good dancing music. Personally, we think this dance will prove itself to be well worth the $1.10 admission that will be charged.

Let's all come out and have a good time. The more the merrier.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

There doesn't seem to be much gossip this week, but there should be plenty of it next week after the Jr. - Sr. prom and senior skip day.

Who is the girl who is going for the city slickers now? None other than Neva Anderson. Since she has seen Walley she is all in a dither. I bet she'll never get her shorthand for sure now. I thought Jo was going to be the lucky gal as he did take her riding one night.

What's this I hear about Dorothy going to Meservey with a Galen somebody and coming home with someone else? You just better watch it, Dorothy.

It sure seems unusual to see Bill without Sharon. I think every one looked twice the other day when they saw him alone at dinner. What a shock!

When the girls played Thornton the other day, Dorothy struck out three times. It must have been that she had Paul on her mind cause he was in Klemme before we went and was in Thornton the same time we were. (Incidently we lost.)

It seems like Harlan has lost interest in Dorothy for he has a habit of going to Britt quite regularly.

What's this we hear about Joan L. having a crush on "Wally" Green.

The library must be quite the lovers nest. What about it, Leola and Tom, Shirley and Noel?

Faye and Gene are quite a steady couple. I hear he visits her every night and goes to church with her also.

Harriet and Stanley seem to be getting along quite well. She'll probably be wearing his ring soon.

Cub Scouts Receive Awards at April Meeting

The Cub Scout April Pack meeting was held in the grade school basement April 21.

The meeting opened with the parade of the Cub Scouts in their various Hawaiian costumes, the theme for April being "Life in the Hawaiian Islands". The boys made leis for their mothers which were presented to them at this time. This was followed by community singing.

Raymond Swalve then gave a very interesting talk on life on the Hawaiian Islands. A short business discussion followed. It was reported that a little over $40.00 was cleared on the carnival held the previous month.

Awards were presented to the deserving boys, the Wolf badge to Collyn Bridges, and Arrow Points to the following; Jimmy Clements, Jimmy Bock, James Christians, Billy DeMerritt, and Jerry Stokesbary.

The meeting was closed with the Cub Scouts giving the Promise, Laws, and Motto.

Lunch of fruit and fruit juices was served to the sixty persons present.

Farmers will have more land in feed grains this year than in 1952, according to USDA reports.

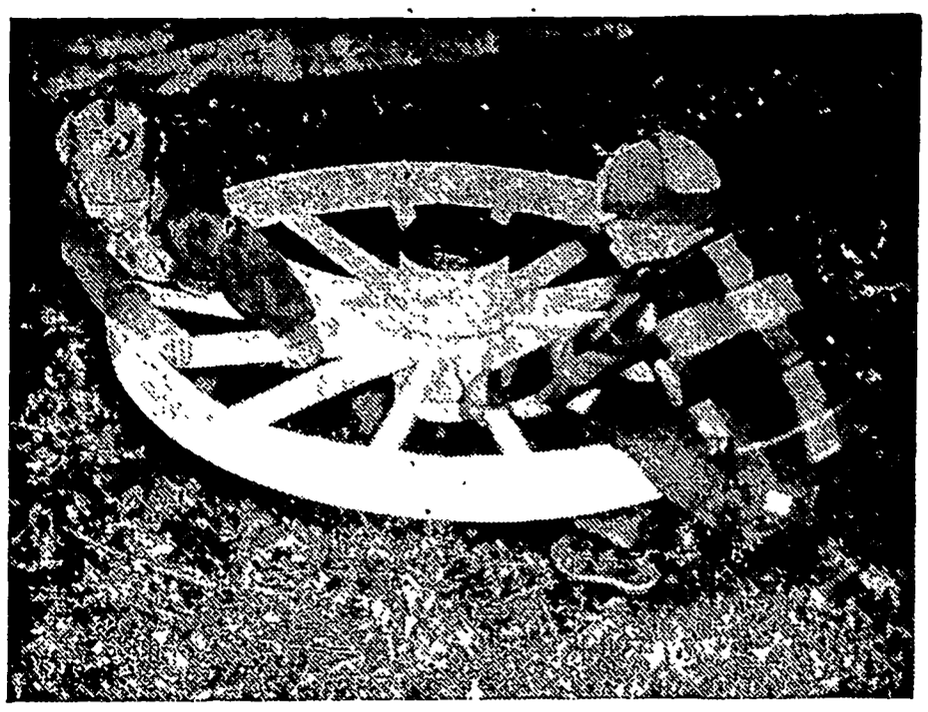
Build Strong Bodies, Active Minds in—

Your Youngsters' Outdoor Playtime



This merry-go-round, made from a wagon wheel with its axle sunk in the ground, teaches good balance and builds strong leg muscle. Other simple outdoor play equipment—like boxes, planks, and building blocks—give youngsters a chance for more imaginative play as they pull, push, pile and "make something" out of them.

The coming of spring and the promise of summer draw youngsters out of doors the live-long day. And luckily you can supply them, at little expense, with the kinds of play equipment their boisterous spirits, imaginative minds and active bodies crave.

Playthings they'll learn the most from are the ones they have to make things out of and do things with, according to Edith Sunderlin of the Iowa State College child development staff. Tricycle, wagon, swing jump rope are standard equipment for outdoor fun in most families and are good for strengthening muscles and teaching body coordination. But don't stop with these, for there are dozens of even more important "do-with" playthings that teach a youngster to think independently, explore and learn and experiment.

BOXES AND PLANKS

Put several large wooden or cardboard boxes, planks and hollow building blocks in the yard and just see the different kinds of activities they inspire in a toddler of 2, 3 or 4 years. The boxes make good hiding places, a playhouse, boat or car. The planks get lugged around, walked on, tipped up off the ground on one end to make a slide. The hollow building blocks are piled, strung out, pushed and climbed on.

An older younster will need more planks and boxes and may build anything from a space ship to a submarine. Give him some scrap lumber, a steering wheel and seat salvaged from a car graveyard, and he and his pals will create other amazing contraptions. He can make kites from newspaper and sticks "walk the plank" of a pirate ship on your discarded ironing board, organize a wonderfully noisy band with old pan lids, scrub board, comb, pie tin and metal spoon.

SCRAP LUMBER

If you fall heir to a piano crate or huge packing box, it will make a fine playhouse with holes cut for windows and doors. The children may need some grown-up help in cutting the windows and doors. Packing boxes and scraps will make handy lumber for a tree house, too.

A wash tub or large dishpan filled with water will be perfect for splashing in the summer's sun, especially for the smallest tots. And a sandbox is a must in every yard for youngsters from 2 to 10.

Several sawhorses and planks can be transformed into a house, barn, fortress or mountains spanned by a bridge. A sheet or blanket pulled over the clothsline and anchored with bricks makes a tent or igloo. There's no end to the possibilities when an imaginative youngster teams up with those boxes and boards, blankets and bricks, odds and ends.

WATERPROOF PAINT

Give the play equipment a uniform look and make it last longer with a coat of waterproof outdoor paint, Miss Sunderlin suggests. Wooden equipment should be sanded and splinter-free. Planks should be ¾ inch thick and 10 inches wide in different lengths from 4 to 6 or 7 feet. Cleats will keep them from slipping.

"Come on over to my house and watch TV this afternoon," Billy says to his friend Pete. "No," answers Pete, "I have some digging to do." And two small boys spend the afternoon in the sunshine, digging a hole—looking for the buried island treasure they read about in school, mining for gold out west, or digging a foundation for a new house just like the construction crew down the street. Much as children love to be on the business end of a shovel, it's a thoughtful parent who finds them a digging spot and gives the go-ahead signal.

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

A good many Hancock County Farmers probably are wondering whether it will pay to continue feeding their cattle longer and finish them out to a higher grade.

The answer, according to Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, depends upon many things: The business outlook for the next few months, the number of other feeders with the same question in mind, feed cost for the rest of the feeding program, how fat the cattle are, and other opportunities for using feed and labor.

WATCH COST OF GAINS

Cost of gains is one of the most important under today's prices, Kutish points out. Cattle make their cheapest gains during the early part of the feeding period. With 2-year-old steers, the cost may become high if they are fed a long time.

With calves, it takes twice as much feed to put on a pound of gain when they weigh 900 lbs. as it did at the beginning of the feeding period, Kutish stresses. Yearling steers use twice as much feed per pound of gain by the time they have added 450 pound of gain as when they started on feed. Feed needs double for 2-year-olds by the time they have gained 350 pounds. There hardly is a Hancock County cattle feeder who doesn't know these facts. But a lot of feeders probably will be surprised at how these costs go up with $1.50 corn. This is important when cattle are bringing $19 to $23 these days.

Don't Burn Down— Clean Up

If your home should burn down tonight, what would be the likely cause? The National Fire Protection Association, sponsor of the annual spring clean-up drive now being observed, will answer that question, and without visiting your home, will bet nine to one on being right. Every farmer will brand the careless smoker, or defective and dirty heating plants or lightning as principal cause of fire, but how many will name rubbish? Very few, according to the NFPA; yet, rubbish is one of just eight major causes of fire on farms.

A primary reason for the accumulation of rubbish is the tendency to keep articles that are no longer useful or valuable, such as old mattresses, worn clothing, broken pieces of furniture and toys, and magazines, newspapers and rags. Invariably these articles are stored away in back bedrooms, attics, closets, basements and other out-of-the-way places where they are perfect tinder for any spark, and sometimes cause spontaneous ignition. Seldom does fire strike a clean, orderly farm home.

Rubbish is not confined to the farm home, or to other buildings. Dead vines, bushes, and weeds along fence rows should be cut down and raked away; otherwise dead plant growth forms a perfect path for field and swamp fires to follow to farm buildings.

Sometimes in the very act of cleaning up the farm, fires get their start. The NFPA says it is alright to burn rubbish, but gives this warning—"Do so with care." Fires burn briskly when fanned by high winds, and sparks can be carried long distances to set fire to roofs not protected with fire-resistant materials such as asphalt shingles. Don't start fires near buildings, or after a long dry spell. Use a good stout incinerator if rubbish is being burned.

If rubbish is disposed of as it appears, clean-up days will be unnecessary, says the NFPA. It is better, safer and easier to clean up every day than it is to clean up once or twice a year.

Celebrate Anniversary

Walter Rosendahls Married 25 Years

Saturday May, 2nd was the Silver Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rosendahl and in honor of the occasion a dinner was held in the grade school dining room for the immediate families of the couple. The dinner was served by the Music Mothers.

The tables were beautifully decorated with jonquils, sweet peas and candles.

After the dinner, Rev. Jaberg gave a splendid talk and the couple was presented with a purse of silver. The evening was spent playing court whist and visiting.

Sunday afternoon, open house was held at home from 2 p. m. until 5 p. m.

Mrs. Richard Snyder and Ione Rosendahl poured and Rosalie Rosendahl had charge of the guest book.

The center piece was a beautiful cake decorated in white and surrounded by ferns and sweet peas.

There are four children in their family; Ardell of Travis A. F. B., California, who was unable to get home for the occasion; Iris (Mrs. Richard Snyder) Newton, Iowa and Ione and Rosalie at home.

History

One day in January, the 20th to be exact, somewhere between 25 and 50 years ago, there arrived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rosendahl a blonde, blue-eyed boy whom the proud parents named Walter.

A few years later, on March 24th, to be exact, a little blue eyed, dark haired maiden came to make her home wih Mr. and Mrs Fred Barz, whom they named Ella.

It seems strange to us that these two young people did not meet for many years, but we must remember in those days automobiles were not as plentiful as they are today. And so, it was not until baby Walter grew up and had a car all his own that he met Ella, who had of course, also grown up, and become a school teacher east of Klemme. Walter was farming with his father northwest of Klemme so you see they disproved the famous words of Kipling who said, "East is east, and west is west and never the twain shall meet."

After some time these two young people decided that it was "not good for man to live alone", and so on May 2, 1928 they were married in a beautiful home wedding in the presence of many relatives and friends. Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch was the officiating Clergyman and they were attended by Adela Schroeder, cousin of the bride, and Harvey Barz, brother of the bride.

After an evening of merry-making and happy fellowship with relatives and friends, the couple left on a short trip into southern Iowa, and then returned to make their home on a farm east of Klemme.

This home was blessed with four children, One son, Ardell, who is now married and stationed at. Travis A. F. B., California; daughter Iris, who with her husband Richard Snyder, lives at Newton, Iowa, and two younger daughters, Ione and Rosalie who daily keep the home a happy one with their love and devotion.

And so on this day, we all join with many in wishing these two fine people years of continued happiness and joy together, and may we think of the words of Robert Browning that we find so many times on the sundials of our parks.

"Grow old along with me
The best is yet to be
The last of life for which the first was made.
Our times are in His hand
Who saith "A whole I've planned
Fear not, nor be afraid."

May Court Convenes

The Honorable District Judge T. A. Beardmore of Charles City convened the May term of the Hancock County District Court Monday. Cases were set for trial on Tuesday afternoon. The grand jury which usually convenes on the second day of the term, did not meet this term as no cases for their attention were pending.

New Marshal

George Buseman, who for the past several months has been Marshal of the town of Klemme, has resigned his position.

Richard Finders, who recently returned to Klemme after four years in the army, has been appointed new Marshal by Mayor Cook.

Early Plans for County-Wide X-Ray Survey

Plans for the biggest health project ever undertaken in Hancock County were discussed May 4th at Garner, at a meeting of the executive committee of the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The tuberculosis association is planning to sponsor a county-wide X-ray survey of all adults and students in the seventh grade of school and above, in the county. The object of the survey will be to find unknown cases of tuberculosis—unknown even to those who might have it.

It is anticipated that the survey will begin in the county about June 14, according to Mrs. Ernest Lewis, Klemme, president of the local tuberculosis association.

"Approval for this survey has been given by the Hancock County Medical Society," Mrs. Lewis said. "The doctors in our community feel that by X-raying the chests of as many adults as possible in the county, tuberculosis of the lungs may be more easily detected and controlled in Hancock county".

The program is for all adults and school children of seventh grade and over. "It is especially important that elderly persons have a chest X-ray," said the president. "Statistics indicate that more new cases of tuberculosis are found in this age group."

The executive committee of the tuberculosis association reviewed the costs of the survey and found that purchases of Christmas Seals for several years by residents of Hancock county had built up enough funds to bring the program to the community. Part of the expenses are borne by tax funds through the State Department of Health.

"While it is true that the tuberculosis association is initiating this community health project," the tuberculosis association president said, "assistance from all organized groups in the community will be needed. During the next few weeks, every organization will be asked to take part in this project."

Meeting with the officers of the tuberculosis association were Mrs. Nita Nolan and Herbert Fromm, representing the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association.

Farewell Party

Employees and board members of the Klemme Cooperative Creamery, and those who were employees and members of the board last year, gave a farewell party at the grade school basement on the evening of April 24 for Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Medin and family. "500" was played during the evening and those giving the party furnished lunch. The Medins were presented with a gift at the close of the evening.

Those present besides the Medins were: Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Buseman, Mr. and Mrs. George Buseman, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Buseman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sobek, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lenz, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hueneman, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Goll, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beier and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hinman and son, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Schlei, Mr. and Mrs. Elridge Alden, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barkema and son, Mr. Quentin Stille, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thiemann and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Bock and family. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klinge were unable to attend.

Stork Club

Mr. and Mrs. Seabo Lamfers of Kanawha are the parents of an eight pound, one ounce baby boy. They have named him Vern Seabo, and he is the fourth boy for the Lamfers. He was born at the Belmond Hospital, April 22.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schoenwetter have received word from their son, Howard, in Champaign, Illinois, that he and his wife are the parents of a six pound, twelve ounce girl. She was born on April 27 and has been named Carol Ann. She has a sister, Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Ausborn are the parents of a boy, born to them at the Belmond Hospital Saturday, May 2nd. The young fellow weighed ten pounds and has been named Terry Ervin. He has one sister.

Klemme Cancer Drive Goes Over Quota

The fund-raising campaign for the American Cancer Society has been successfully completed in the town of Klemme. The quota for the town was set at $200 and Mrs. Gilbert Jones, campaign chairman announces that $214.70 has been collected and turned over to Rev. Klaus at Garner.

The volunteer workers are certainly to be commended for their time and effort spent in this cause and Mrs. Jones wishes to again thank them. Those who worked were: Mrs. Carl Wille, Mrs. Lloyd Lau, Mrs. Raymond Barz, Mrs John Clements, Mrs. Thomas Roths, Jr., Mrs. Vern Bisom, Mrs. Don Christiance and Mrs. Myrtle Jacobs.

Anyone who may have been overlooked and who would still care to make a contribution may call Mrs Jones and she will be glad to take your donation.

Mrs. Lena Medaus, 77 Passed Away Sunday

Funeral services were held this afternoon (Wednesday) at the Methodist Church in Klemme for Mrs. Lena Medaus, 77, lifelong resident of this community, who died Sunday at the Good Samaritan Home at Mason City. Rev. E. Morris Egeland was in charge of the service and interment was in the Ell Township Cemetery at Klemme.

Mrs. Medaus was carried to her final resting place by Luther Schmidt, Erwin Priebe, Robert Baack, Carol Brager, Merlin Neuberger and Benn Coobs.

Funeral arrangements were in charge of the Wellemeyer Funeral Service.

An obituary of Mrs. Medaus appears on page seven of this issue of The Times.

Nation To Honor War Dead May 23

Poppy Day will be observed in Klemme and throughout most of the nation on May 23, the Saturday before Memorial Day, it has been announced by Mrs. Benn Coobs, Poppy Chairman of Adam-Schaefer Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary.

On that day everyone in the city will be asked to wear a memorial poppy in honor of the two World Wars and the Korean conflict.

Crepe paper poppies, made by disabled veterans of the three wars will be distributed on the streets throughout the day by volunteer workers from the Auxiliary workers and cooperating groups. The poppies will be replicas of the wild poppies which grew "between the crosses, row on row," in the World War I battle cemeteries in France and Flanders, thus becoming the memorial flower for America's war dead.

In exchange for the poppies, the Auxiliary will accept contributions for its work for disabled veterans and for needy children of veterans which is largely supported by these contributions.

Marlin Dean Olson, Forest City; Donald E. Smith, Woden; John P. Schisel, Garner; Donald J. Peterson, Algona; and James L. Wilhite, Corwith.

Homer Lee Van Oort of Garner has volunteered for induction and will be delivered with the May call.

Deadline For Corn Loans Is May 31st

A. E. Rasmussen, chairman of PMA committee, has informed this office that the deadline on loans and purchase agreements on corn is May 31, 1953.

"Those wanting loans should apply two or three weeks prior to the deadline, so the loans can be processed by that date," Mr. Rasmussen commented.

Pictured above are the members of the squad of the Klemme Shamrocks baseball team. This outfit has won more games the past two seasons than has any other KHS baseball team in years. Monday, they gave the highly rated Garner nine just about all they wanted in a close game which they lost by a score of 7 to 6.

Clean up week in Klemme is now well underway and results are noticeable all over town. Junk piles have been disappearing, yards have been getting the season's first mowing, and a general face lifting has given our town a more pleasing appearance.

There are still some places to be cleaned up, but we are sure they will be taken care of before the end of the week.

The Klemme Lions Club has had committees at work for the past couple of months making arrangements for a "Kids' Fish Derby". This affair will be one that all the kids in the surrounding territory will want to take part in, and we think the grown ups will have as much fun watching as the kids will fishing. There are going to be prizes for different age groups, too. June 24th is the date set for the "Derby", so mark your calender, and keep the day open for the kids.

We have heard about the absent minded professor, but it seems that professors are not the only ones who suffer from this malady.

One of our blacksmiths—we won't mention any names—is getting in the same category with the professors. Sunday he and his wife were to take a trip to Rolfe, and then friend blacksmith was to go on to Mallard to a meeting. Everyone eventually got where they were going, but not without considerable confusion.

When our smithy got ready to go, he piled in the family car and went. Forgot his wife. She had to enlist the aid of Johnny Clements, who after some rather fast driving managed to run down the absent minded one somewhere west of Clarion.

We would certainly like to have seen our baseball team take the measure of Garner in the sectional tournament. They almost did it, too. Led six to three going into the seventh inning, and then in some manner allowed Garner four runs in the seventh. Too bad.

Dandelion time will soon be here, and then everyone will be trying every which way to kill all the pesky plants that show up in their lawns. Lots of remedies will be advanced, but we think the surest one is one that we read a number of years ago.

"Dig a hole 12 feet in circumference around the offending plant, and about two feet deep. Get rid of the dirt in whatever way is most convenient, and fill the hole with concrete."

The writer said that he would guarantee this method.

We are beginning to think that there is only one way to do any negotiating with the communists. Get tough!

Somebody once said that the taxpayer was the forgotten man. Don't worry, the guy that foots the bill isn't going to be forgotten.

We have been printing programs for the annual Junior-Senior banquet, and we have copy on hand for programs for Baccalaureate and Commencement. Guess the end of the school year is rapidly approaching. We imagine all the kids are eagerly awaiting picnic day and the three-months vacation that follows. Most of those that graduate this year, though, will soon be wishing that they could be back in school.

Don't forget that the tickets you buy for the Horace Heidt show at Roosevelt Field house in Mason City, on May 19, are going to help make it possible for a lot of youngsters to enjoy themselves at Camp Roosevelt at Clear Lake this summer. You can get them from Dr. Dulmes.

Taken from Our Files

30 YEARS AGO—

The Times Print Shop force is on the blink this week. The plumbers have the joint torn up and we are having some difficulty in getting the type located. Then the burner on the linotype machine decided to take a vacation and refused to work and even high class swearing by the operator refuses to budge it and so we are practically doomed to be late with the paper this week. Printers have troubles just the same as the rest of the animals in the world.

Some nice strings of bullheads have been caught at Clear Lake the past few days.

Clarence Bachman went to Iowa City the fore part of the week and got some chap to take care of his barber business. We understand the fellow got homesick, had a date, or something so he left on the evening train last night—borrowing the money in the till and locked up the shop. Clarence's dad had to get busy on the phone and was able to get Will Ziesemer of Garner to take charge of the business during the Wednesday evening rush. Mean trick we call it for a fellow to beat it when he is hired to work for a man during his absence.

20 YEARS AGO—

Since an ad appeared last week in the Times regarding a watch that had been found, there have been at least a dozen people who have called to see if it was their watch. So far the particular watch we have has not been claimed by the owner. The watches which still remain lost are quite a varied assortment, both ladies and mens, pocket and wrist watches, gold watches, silver watches, or what have you. Some have been lost for two years and many for a lesser time.

Mrs. David Schwichtenberg, the president of the local Legion Auxiliary, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grange to a convention at Fort Dodge Tuesday.

A dance was held at the Wm. Bell home last Saturday evening in honor of their son, Kenneth's birthday. Delightful refreshments were served to the guests present.

Clarice Wellemeyer closed a very successful school year Friday and had a picnic at the school house at noon. Miss Clarice plans to attend summer school.

May Day was a rainy day here in Klemme. It was very cold most of the day and late in the afternoon, when the kiddies usually have a big time hanging their may baskets, it started to rain and proved to be a very disagreeable evening for the children.

10 YEARS AGO—

Iowa is experiencing a rather cold spring. The past week north Iowa has had several light frosts and the weather stays cold, in fact, to cold to please the farmers who are anxious for warm weather for corn planting.

Walter Kimball closed his harness and shoe shop here Saturday night, and Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Kimball went to Boone where Mr. Kimball is now employed in a shoe repair shop. The Kimball children will remain in Klemme until the close of school.

Fishing in the Iowa river near Klemme Tuesday, Eckard Zeidler hooked and landed a nine pound carp. This is probably the biggest carp a local fisherman has ever caught by hook and line in the river here.

Notifying Local Board of Change of Status

This is the fifth in a series of short articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.

Few realize that severe penalties are provided by law for registrants who fail to keep their Local Boards informed of their current address and of any changes in status which may affect the registrant's classification.

Section 15 (b) of the Universal Military Training and Service Act reads as follows:

"It shall be the duty of every registrant to keep his Local Board informed as to his current address and changes in status as required by such rules and regulation as may be prescribed by the President."

Frequently registrants ask what type of information should be furnished to the Local Boards. The following are typical examples:

(1) Change of address. It is helpful to give the old address as well as then new.

(2) Change of marital status - marriage, divorce, separation.

(3) Birth of a child or expected birth of any child as soon as a doctor verifies the fact of expected birth. Also death of any child or expected child.

(4) Change in employment status -- change in type of work, any material increase or decrease in agricultural production, and change in the family labor set-up, etc.

(5) Change in military status —enlistment, discharge, separation, etc.

(6) Change in student status —enrollment, discontinuance, or graduation, material change in graduation, material change in course of study.

(7) Change affecting a dependent of registrant -- disability, serious illness or accident, deaths recoveries, etc.

Every registrant should remember that he can be classified properly only on the basis of the information in his file (Cover Sheet). The law places upon the registrant (not upon members of the Local Board) the responsibility to furnish promptly the pertinent information to the Local Board of jurisdiction. The responsibility does not cease at the age of 26, or even age 35 in the case of a registrant whose military liability has been extended. Registrants who have served on active duty in the Armed Forces are required, chiefly for their protection, to furnish information of their status to their Local Boards.

The best way to notify the Local Board of any change in status is in writing.

Iowa 6th In U. S. Milk Production

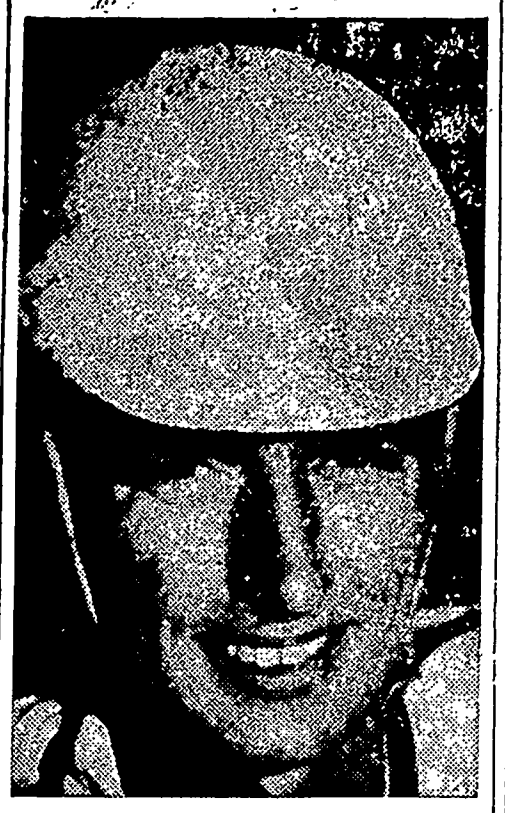
Iowa's dairy herd in 1952 placed the state fourth in the nation for number of milk cows and sixth in total milk production, according to the U. S. department of agriculture.

Last year Iowa's dairy cows numbered 1,059,000, a drop of 29,000 from the 1951 count. The state's total milk production for 1952 was 5,676,000,000 pounds, nearly 300 million pounds less than 1951.

Marriage License

Hancock County Clerk Doris Young issued a marriage license on Saturday to Gaylord B. Larson, 20, Kanawha, and Joan M. Hovland, 19, Kanawha.

First Entry



Skinny Bob "Slats" Slater, above, of Kansas City, Mo., was first entry for the 50-lap feature big car racing program scheduled for the Iowa State Fair Grounds half-mile dirt track on Sunday, May 24, according to Fair Secretary Lloyd B. Cunningham. Slater, who swept three straight feature victories during the State Fair racing program last year, is driving the Blue Crown Special Offenhauser this year.

DROWNS

Two year old Wayne Esbeck, of near Elk Horn, drowned recently in a stock tank on the family farm.

HOBBY

At Clarinda, Mrs. Roy Harmons has found enjoyment in assembling a collection of dolls, china and glass. Some of the dolls in her collection date back ninety years. She has been collecting about ten years.

JUNIOR

Economics

We are studying about credit and installment buying. We made a budget in which we would buy furniture on the installment plan.

Business Law

We just had a test over Bailments and until we recover from the grades there won't be much doing.

Drivers Training

We are still driving away. Mud and rain doesn't stop us. I guess it's cause it's such nice weather for ducks.

Typing

We have been typing manuscripts and have made a booklet out of one of them.

Shorthand

We are still taking from dictation. Mr. Johnson decides every now and then to give us a spell down and what a time.

Literature

We have begun to do our themes again. It isn't quite as bad as we all thought it was. I guess we'll survive at that.

THIRD GRADE

Keith Christians and Leland Barz had a birthday Wednesday. They treated us to candy bars.

Keith Christians' mother visited our room Wednesday afternoon.

We had 2 visitors in our room last Friday. They were Mrs. Groen and Mrs. Nelson, who teach school in Wright County.

FOURTH GRADE

Mrs. Walter Bachman was a visitor during the past week.

We are making notebooks for health. It is a review of our year's work.

The Bar 20 reading group finished their basic readers this week. They will begin a new reader Monday.

Claudia Neuberger has been absent for three weeks because of illness. Reports are that she will be back with us next week.

We are now adding and subtracting fractions in arithmetic.

Band Wins Division I Rating At Contest; Has Busy Schedule

May 2nd found our band headed for Ventura. They were to play in the large group contest. They played very well and came home with a Division I rating. Seven other schools received the same rating. They were Ventura, Rake, Floyd, Goldfield, Renwick, Lakota, and Vernon Consolidated. The eight winners were chosen from 28 bands entered in the contest.

The mixed chorus will sing two numbers for Baccalaureate, "To Thee We Sing" and "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones". The woodwind trio will give the seniors a push on their way by playing at Commencement.

Now back to the band. Our next big thing is the band festival at Mason City. Marching practice has already begun and will be continued on each nice day. We must make an appeal to the high school girls. We need one more twirler from your ranks. You know that's a good band to be marching with. Mr. Whitford tells us he has eight grade girls out and from this group, five will be picked.

Before we quit, we had better tell you the summer plans. There will be ten concerts given during the summer and lessons will continue the same as they have during the school year. Mr. Whitford would like to have a big new group of beginners this year to even up for those lost through graduation.

Girls Softball

Monday night we played Rockwell in the tournament. The experienced Rockwell team won 16 to 0. This was the second game we have ever played and we have had little practice.

We have no more games scheduled for this season, but we hope to have another team this fall.

After our game, we saw a good game between Swadedale and Ventura, with Ventura wining 10 to 8.

Algebra

We are just finishing chapter ten, which is on square root, by having a test. We really had a struggle on these problems because they are all worked in a different manner.

History

We are studying the last chapter of the book. It is a chapter over the trials and mistakes of World War II, called "From One War to Another".

English

Mr. Cappon has assigned us a 1500 word theme on "Character". The groaning we did, didn't do much good so it will have to be finished in two weeks.

Biology

We are studying chapter 29 on "Factors of Inheritance". In order to study this chapter before we took a trip to Woodward, we had to skip over several previous ones. We plan to leave at 8 o'clock Friday morning. There will be a two hour program in the morning and afternoon. We are taking a picnic lunch and plan to be home for supper.

Drivers Training

We are reviewing all the things we learned in the past weeks. Friday, Patrolman Hahn will be here to give us a drivers test.

Drain All Antifreezes From Radiators Soon

When cars, trucks and tractors are changed over for summer operating conditions, include draining permanent-type antifreeze from the radiators.

That's the advice of Dale Hull, Iowa State College extension agricultural engineer.

Hull reports that a full season of winter service will likely use up the inhibitors included in permanent anti-freeze solutions, to prevent rust. And during service they may pick up sediments and foreign materials that make them unsuitable for continued use.

The engineer also says that permanent type anti-freeze solutions cause engines to operate at higher temperatures, and if they are left in the cooling system through the summer, fuel knock may occur. He says that the Federal Bureau of Standards and companies producing the solutions agree that the antifreeze should not be used during the summer months.

Drain the cooling system, Hull recommends. Then flush with clean water to remove rust and foreign materials. And when you fill the system with water for summer operation, add a corrosion inhibitor.

This spring attention to cooling systems will mean more trouble-free operation and longer engine life.

Music and Lunch Both, Very Good

A large number of people attended the spring concert Tuesday evening at the high school gynasium.

The program began with the mixed chorus singing four numbers. This was followed by a cornet solo by Carrol Priebe. The drum ensemble presented a good unusual selection. Eva Thiemann played a clarinet solo, "Scale Waltz". The trombone quartet, who was one of the several groups getting a I rating at Perry in the State Contest, played their contest piece. The last part of the program consisted of the junior and senior bands. Several short selections were given by the junior band. A variation of pieces, marches, novelties, and overtures, were presented by the senior band.

A delicious lunch was served by the Music Mothers after the concert.

The next event for the band is May 2, when the band will play in the state contest at Ventura. We hope the band will again get a I rating as in previous years.

EDITORIAL

From the very earliest times the first of May has been a time for out-of-door festivities. The customs connected with May Day, as the first day of May is called, were beautiful and interesting. On the night before, the young people and children of England were all excitement for the Maypole had been erected on the village green, the gayest finery had been made ready, and every girl went to bed hoping that she might be chosen "May Queen." In the morning the Maypole was wreathed with "May" or hawthorn blossoms. The queen, chosen by popular vote, set up her court in a lovely flowery bower, which she left at times to dance with her loyal subjects around the Maypole.

In recent times Maypole festivities have been revived in England. In the United States, it is the custom to exchange May baskets on the evening of the first day of May. It is usually the point of honor for the donor to slip away without being discovered.

TRY AGAIN

All eleven applicants for the job of postmaster at Anamosa must "try again", the department has ruled. All applications were rejected and a new examination has been called.

Say what subject held Miriam and Reverdy's attention so well? Could this be the beginning of a new romance?

Why did everyone except Mr. Cappon's car get lost on the way home from Skip Day? Was it just by accident?

Where were Dorothy and Ila Mae when it was time to go home? We wonder.

Since most of us were at the Hancock County Prom at the Surf, maybe I can dig up a little gossip.

I see that Lee and Gracka were there. Who was with them? It couldn't have been Ione and Bobby Beier could it? I guess Miriam turned out to be the doggy in the window.

Darlene, Lois J., Jo Ann Burgess and a few of the other girls were there stag. To bad a certain senior boy didn't know it Dar. But I bet you're glad he didn't.

Of course Lois and Richard, and Lois and Francis were there. They looked like sardines in a can when they were all in one booth. Whenever anyone didn't know where to sit, they sat in these kids booth. What a squashed up mess. Huh?

Janice and Gene, Daisy and Clarence were there also. They came together and had quite a time from the sound of it. They are already planning on the banquet. "Oh, Happy Night."

Did you see who Neva was with? I think Calvin, but maybe John. I really don't know. I bet you didn't know they cared, did you Neva?

In our business meeting, Faye Janssen was chosen to go to 4-H covention at Ames, Norma Lacey and Marcella Nuehring to 4-H camp and Betty Louden and Dorothy Roul will sing in the chorus on Rally Day. Marcella Nuehring and Dorothy Roul are the junior demonstration team.

We had a picture study and the frames for our pictures. Marcella Nuehring gave a talk on "Weekly, Daily, and Yearly Cleaning". We also had a group discussion on "Family Heirloom Furniture and its Value.

After the meeting we practiced for the program for our Mother's Tea.

Government Announces Corn Re-seal Program

A re-seal program on farm-stored 1952 corn and oats on which farmers have obtained government loans has been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it was reported this week by the Hancock County PMA committee.

Farmers having purchase agreements on 1952 corn and oats will be permitted to convert them to loans.

The extended loans on corn will be for a one-year period from July 31, 1953, the date on which the present loans mature. Farmers desiring to extend their loans under the re-seal program must make application to their county PMA committee not later than the final date specified in delivery instructions issued by the county committees between August 1 and September 30, 1953.

Farmers who intend to deliver sealed corn under purchase agreement must so notify the county committee within a 30-day period ending July 31, 1953. Those who wish to convert purchase agreements into loans, must make application not later than July 31, 1953.

Applications for extension of oats loans, which mature April 30, must be made to county PMA committees prior to the final date for delivery specified in delivery instructions to be issued by the county offices. Those who wish to convert purchase agreements into loans must notify their county committees to that effect immediately.

Farmers re-sealing corn and oats will receive a storage payment. For the full one-year period, the storage payment will be 13 cents a bushel on corn and 10 cents a bushel on oats.

Music Department

Ernest Gerardi has done some rearranging in his cafe the past week, and now has his musical instruments and accessories displayed in one section of his building.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gerardi are musicians. Not only do they sell musical instruments of all kinds, but they are kept busy a good share of the time giving lessons. Mrs. Gerardi takes care of the piano students and Mr. Gerardi gives accordion lessons.

The stock at Gerardi's is quite complete, and few towns the size of Klemme can boast such a busy musical concern.

Key to a Work-Saving Kitchen—

Well-Planned Kitchen Sink

Plan your kitchen sink to give you convenient running water free of kitchen traffic. Favored spot for the sink is under a window, but if you can't have 3 feet of counter space on either side, another location would be much better.

* * *

Starting point of a convenient, work-saving kitchen is a well-planned sink. This well-planned sink, according to an Iowa State College extension home management specialist, should have hot and cold running water, be located out of the line of traffic and have adequate, adjacent counter and storage space.

Since almost half of the farm homes in the state are without running water, let's take that first, says Naomi Shank. Even if you have to start with just a drain and cold water faucet, make sure the pipe size used is adequate for other pipelines to automatic hot and cold, hard and soft running water.

PLAN MODERN KITCHEN

Let your goal be a completely modern kitchen, and plan with that in mind. You want to make space available for an automatic dishwasher, so have the plumbing and wiring done now. The job will be easier to do at this time, as well as less expensive.

Before you install running water, study your kitchen. Chances are you'll want to rearrange it first for maximum convenience and step-saving. Start with the placement of your sink.

LOCATION OF SINK

Results of countless surveys turn up the same answer-75 percent of both farm and town homemakers want their sink located under a window.

This is fine, if your don't have to sacrifice counter space and storage space to do so. You'll need at least three feet of counter and space on either side of the sink for both convenience and efficiency, particularly in a farm home. If you can't work this out in locating your sink under a window, you might want to consider other possible locations. Today's kitchen sinks are made for installation just about anywhere. You might like a corner sink, one on an inside wall, or perhaps in a peninsula or island dividing the kitchen and dinette or breakfast area. A good step-saving location is between the range and the refrigerator centers.

DOUBLE-BASIN SINK

Homemakers are showing a preference for double-basin sinks. A double sink holds large utensils and reduces the time and effort of washing up throughout the day. Clean-up work is definitely easier. You can have correctly tempered and sudsed water in one basin and a free open drain in the other. Food preservation work goes much faster, too.

If there's rust n your waetr, if children will be using the sink a great deal, or if you work with many heavy pots and pans, you might want to put in a stainless steel sink. It will cost more than other types of sinks, but its appearance improves with age and it won't chip or become rust-stained.

WORK HEIGHT

Another point to consider is the working height that is best for you. You should be able to work comfortably without either having to lean over or raise your arms uncomfortably high.

For additional help in kitchen planning, study the two Iowa State College booklets "Running Water for Your Farm Home" and "Make Your Kitchen Modern," available at your county extension office.

What were the main forces behind the April spurt in the hog market?

Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist, believes there were two: First, farmers' decisions to hold back more gilts for breeding and second, management decisions of the meat packing industry.

Farmers were mighty pessimistic about the hog picture a year ago. They sold down on breeding gilts. USDA estimates that they kept 9 percent fewer sows for farrowing in the fall of 1952.

Then the hog market began to improve in December—just about the time that the USDA pig survey pointed to a 15-percent smaller 1953 spring pig crop.

Held Back Gilts

Farmers everywhere respond by holding back gilts for late spring, summer and fall farrowing. Demand for boars shot up.

We won't be able to tell how many gilts were held back for breeding until the June USDA pig survey is released. But a lot must have been held back, Kutish believes—judging by the way that marketings have fallen off the last 2 months.

Backing up this belief is the poll of about 400 farmers made by one interior packer. These men were planning a 33-percent boost in June, July and August farrowings over last year.

The kind of a shift now going ing on could account for a 5 to 7 percent smaller marketings of hogs compared with a year ago. It is a big factor in the hog market spurt, says Kutish.

Hand in hand with this go the management decisions of the packing industry. Packers, too, became optimistic about the pork outlook. They raised the price at which they would sell pork out of storage.

Packers Try to Keep Going

And as marketings dwindled the past month, each packer looked at his relatively large overhead costs. In view of the bright summer pork outlook, each packer bid for hogs to keep his killing gang busy.

This type of thing will work for one packer, Kutish points out—but not if everyone tries it. For every packer can't get a larger share of a smaller total hog market run. All that is accomplished is to bid up the prices of hogs. It takes a couple of weeks of bad cut-out losses to bring packers to the point where they reconcile themselves to lay off part of their killing gangs.

This decision apparently was reached by some of the packers after the sharp price rise of late April. What's more the price of wholesale pork shot up to the point where packers began to sell pork out of storage. The price of pork loins had reached a higher point than the public would take—and hog prices backed away as April ended.

CASHED IT

When Merle Wood, Denison high school instructor, told his class that a check could be "negotiable" even if not printed on ordinary check-paper, his students scoffed. They wrote a check on a 5x8 inch slab of pine, and cashed it at the First National bank there.

Water!...it's Wonderful!
... Especially if you have it

WHEN AND WHERE YOU WANT IT!

Your BEST Investment
AN AUTOMATIC PRESSURIZED
Water System

You Benefit 5 WAYS!

1 PROFITS.
All types of livestock, when provided with all the water they will drink, turn regular feeds into profitable weight in less time. Cattle, hogs, horses . . . most every farm animal gives a better performance when thirst is no problem.

2 HEALTH.
Epidemics are not as likely to get started if your farm has a "closed system" of water distribution.

3 BETTER LIVING.
Every family enjoys doing away with the back-breaking job of carrying water. And in the home, it's hours of time saved for the housewife and family, when water is always "on tap."

4 SAFETY.
With a pressurized, automatic water system installed, on your farm, you will find that insurance rates for fire protection are reduced. You'll enjoy the security of knowing you can "fight fire."

5 ADD VALUE.
A farm with an automatic water system is more attractive to the tenant, renter or prospective buyer and will add many more dollars of value than the actual cost of installation.

In just a matter of a few years, a farm water system will pay for itself. Why not start your plans now? Many new developments are available that you should know about. They're convenience-packed—for your benefit.

In the Barnyard . . . Barns . . . Chicken House Feed Lot . . . Dairy Milk House . . . Work Buildings and in the Home . . . Let Your Water Boy, Reddy Kilowatt, furnish lots of Water for More Production.

IT MEANS BIGGER INCOME . . . BETTER LIVING!

● Good help is still hard to get on most farms. So it's up to Dad to do a little more in the farm yard—and Mother to take some more of her time to help out.

Reddy Kilowatt suggests that letting him pump your water — into an automatic pressurized water system — will lift a big load from your back — and produce a good return on your investment.

Fewer than 50 per cent of Iowa's farms have adequate pressure water systems. Even in counties where over three-fourths of the farms enjoy electrically pumped water, less than half are taking advantage of a pressurized system. An automatic water system carries gallons and gallons of water to the places where it will contribute most to better production. — Besides increasing your property value, you'll feel more secure because there's water on the spot to put out fires before they get a good start. Insurance rates drop rapidly when water is available.

When you turn your water-carrying job over to Reddy Kilowatt, you release your entire family for more productive farm operation. Everyone will enjoy the better living and better health which better production provides.

MAY IS FARM-WATER SYSTEM MONTH!

ASK YOUR DEALER — He will be glad to go over your requirements with you. And if Reddy can help, feel free to call upon him. Start now and enjoy better living — with automatic, pressurized water system.

IOWA ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER Company

Obituary of Mrs. Lena Medaus

By Arthur Wellemeyer

LENA MEDAUS was born April 18, 1876, on a farm near Charles City, Floyd County, Iowa, the third of a family of three daughters born to her parents, Joe and Dora Schlichting Juers. Her two sisters, Mrs. William Guth and Mrs. Jake Blumer, preceded her in death.

When Mrs. Medaus was two years old, the family moved to the Albert Lange farm in Liberty Township, which they then owned. It was here that she attended the Liberty Township Schools and the Liberty Methodist Church and grew to womanhood.

On March 24, 1898, at the age of 22, Lena Juers and Henry Medaus were married at the home of the bride's parents. They commenced housekeeping on the Twin Lake Township farm which Henry Medaus owned at the time. After five years of farming, the husband became ill. They purchased a home in Klemme and lived here for two years, after which they moved to the farm again for another five years. Then, because of the continued ill health of Henry Medaus, they retired and moved back to their Klemme home, where they remained.

Having no children of their own, Henry and Lena Medaus adopted a daughter in 1911. The daughter, Blanche, was six years old when she came to live with them, and they were happy to have the little one in their home.

Blanche grew to womanhood and in 1922 became the bride of George Johnson. This couple became the parents of three children.

Henry Medaus died in 1929, and a few years later it was necessary for Mrs. Lena Medaus to provide a home for the three grandchildren. At this time, Dwaine was 9, Eugene 6, and Emily 3½ years old.

The father, George Johnson, helped in many ways, but the grandmother, Mrs. Lena Medaus, assumed the main responsibility for their care. She mothered these homeless children, kept them clean, took them to church, sent them to school and provided for them as though they were her own until they were old enough to do for themselves.

The grandchildren, when grown, found mates and established homes of their own, and now, for a number of years, Lena Medaus has lived alone. She was a regular attendant at church services, and with her cane would be seen walking to church.

A few weeks ago, she became ill. Her granddaughter, Emily, stayed with her for awhile, until at her request, she was taken to the Good Samaritan Home in Mason City. She was there one day, and was contented. But she laid down for a noon nap and quietly slept on into eternity.

The little folks, whom she mothered, have grown into quite a large family, and with love and respect, they are gathered today to attend her burial. They are: one daughter, Blanche, Mrs. Harold Brown, California; four grandchildren, Dwaine Johnson, Virginia; Eugene Johnson, Mason City; Emily, Mrs. Carl Swearingen, Marshalltown; and Robert Brown, California; six great grandchildren, George Joseph Johnson, Linda Jean Johnson, Eugene Johnson, Jr., Deborah Sue Johson, Michael Johnson, and John Brown; seven nieces and nephews, Mrs. G. T. Waddingham, Mrs. Herman Baack, Miss Minnie Blumer, Emil Blumer, Mrs. J. J. Lemke, Walter Blumer, and Jake Blumer, and other more distant relatives and friends.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

After 21 years Arthur knew he could walk down town with his eyes closed. Out the door and down three steps. Take 14 more steps to the sidewalk and turn right. Walk six blocks and, just beyond the early morning smell of coffee from the drug store, turn into the shop and go to work.

He never tried making the walk with his eyes closed. After all, what would he have said if he met a friend? It would not have been dignified. But it was something he thought about and was sure he could do.

Sometimes he would talk to his wife about a little bitterly. "Up and down this street two times a day, six days a week for 21 years. I've walked enough to go around the world a couple of times and never got more than six blocks away."

Arthur was a man lapsing into a dream of disappointment, moving back and forth through a changeless scenery of his own frustrations.

So it was that though he walked to and from town each day with his eyes properly open, he really saw nothing. All the seasonal and human changes along the friendly street escaped him. His eyes were turned to look inside himself.

The man at the filling station was closer to the truth than he thought when he described the end of Arthur. "He stepped off the curb like he had his eyes closed. He didn't look either way at all.

"The car hit him and threw him clear over into my driveway here. I went over to look at him. He was dead, but his eyes were wide open, just staring."

Plan Water System for Easier, Better Living

May is National Water Systems month.

And it's a good time for Iowa farm folks to think about harnessing water on their farms to make living more comfortable, chores easier and livestock gains more efficient. These are all benefits of an adequate, well planned farm system, says Ken McFate, Iowa State College extension agricultural engineer.

A water system is good business, too, McFate emphasizes. It is just like having an extra hired hand on the place—and one that works for low wages. Records in Iowa show that on the average you can pump 100 gallons of water with electrical power for about 5½ cents.

Piped water eliminates much time and work in carrying or hauling water to livestock. In Indiana, a study showed that one-fifth of the work that went into producing hogs was in watering. Another study in Iowa showed that a farmer was walking 40 miles a year and carrying 32 tons of water for 300 laying hens.

Livestock make better gains and get more value from feeds when there's plenty of water available at all times. Research has shown that repeatedly.

The water supply also gives the family more sanitary living conditions as well as making both living and working in the house more pleasant. And, don't overlook another value of a water system—for controlling fires. McFate says a system that will supply 500 to 600 gallons of water per hour is usually capable of putting out small fires and holding larger ones until fire-fighting equipment can reach the scene.

Plannng is important before the system is installed, McFate emphasizes. The water supply should be adequate and safe. And location of pipes lines as well as capacity should be well planned and geared to meet present and future needs.

DHIA Compares Herd Costs on Milk Production

Dairy cows tested in the Hancock Dairy Herd Improvement Association last year averaged 10,335 pounds of milk containing 421 pounds of butterfat per cow. That production is 5,135 pounds more milk and 214 pounds more butterfat than the average for all Iowa dairy cows.

These facts were among many brought out in the annaul summary of production records of 331.81 cows tested in the Hancock DHIA. At their annual meeting held, April 28, at the REA in Garner, association members compared the records of their herds for the results of feeding according to production, careful culling in the herd and other dairy practices they follow in the DHIA program.

The herd of 15 Holsteins owned by Huling Bros. of Britt recorded the highest average production per cow, 14,992 pounds of milk and 565.4 pounds of butterfat. The next highest ranking herd was 18 Holsteins owned by Fern Huling & Sons of Britt, which averaged 14,033 pounds of milk and 555.3 pounds of butterfat per cow. 14 Holsteins owned Fred Rasmussen of Wesley, ranked third with average production of 13,236 pounds of milk and 514 pounds of butterfat per cow.

A comparison to the five high herds in the association with the five low herds show the following differences. The average production per cow in the high herds was 12,870 pounds of milk and 509 pounds of fat; in the low herds, average production was 8,521 pounds of milk and 346 pounds fat.

The herds in the high group were fed more hay, silage and grain than were the low herds resulting in a higher feed costs per cow. The average cost per cow in the high herds was $167 while it was $123 in the low group. The feed cost represents about one-half of the total cost of production.

While the feed costs were greater in the high group, their returns above the costs of feed was also greater. The value of the milk and cream above the cost of feed was $310 per cow in the five herds compared to $204 in the five low herds. The 15 registered cows in the Holstein herd of Huling Bros. of Britt had the highest average return over feed costs with $439. The average return for all cows in the Hancock association was $250.

Robert C. Fincham, extension dairy specialist at Iowa State College, met with Hancock DHIA members to present the association's annual summary and discuss recommended dairy farming practices. Dale McClure serves the association as supervisor.

Better Crops, 2 Ways

Visited Cousin Joe the other day. And he showed me how soil conservation had restored that old, wornout farm he took over in '42.

Some neighbors certainly scoffed when he started filling gullies, contour plowing. But now they're convinced—and all working together on one big project.

Yes, a new farm idea is sometimes hard to get across, until folks can actually see the bigger yields. Some of it's just plain prejudice, or maybe stubborness. It's the same kind of bull-headedness that made Joe's neighbor Ed hold out on hybrid corn for five years.

But as a rule, open-mindedness is the Iowa way. And it's the best way for us all . . . whether in deciding how we'll farm, or between choosing a cup of coffee or a temperate glass of beer with our dinner.

There's room in Iowa for all kinds of methods, tastes and opinions. By merging and respecting them all, we keep our state growing, thriving, good to live in.

Fire and water left the inside of the John Costello house in rather bad shape, Monday. The rocking chair in the picture had the varnish blistered and cracked, wall paper was charred, the ceiling and roof were burned through, and everything was soaked.

Origin of the fire is undetermined. Mr. Costello had been up town most of the morning and when he went home shortly afternoon, he discovered the fire.

The fire department was called, and soon had the fire out, but much damage was done before the fire was discovered.

Eugene Haberkamp Has Huxley Mixed Chorus Sing at Guild Meeting

This afternoon (Wednesday) at the regular meeting of the Guild of the Reformed Church, the ladies were privileged to hear a concert of sacred music sung by the mixed chorus of the Huxley High School.

The chorus is under the direction of Eugene Haberkamp, who is a Klemme High School graduate. According to Rev. Jaberg, Eugene has a very fine chorus and is to be complimented on his control of the group and the selections of numbers for them to sing.

The chorus, composed of 45 voices, had been at Forest City where they sang at a convocation at Waldorf College. Since their return to Huxley took them through Klemme at the time of the Guild meeting, arrangements were made to have them appear here. The appearance was a special treat for the members of the Guild.

According to R. E. Nesbit, Deputy Sheriff, the Shied car rammed the rear end of a car driven by Vance Paulson of Dows when Shied attempted to pass and his car rolled over several times pinning him in the wreckage. Passing motorists succeeded in releasing him.

The rear end of the Paulson car was badly damaged and the Shied car badly wrecked according to Deputy Sheriff, R. E. Nesbit. Both cars were traveling in a westerly direction.

Annual School Picnic Will Be May 22nd

The annual school picnic will be held in the city park on Friday, May 22nd . . . unless it rains that day. If it rains the picnic will be held in the high school gymnasium.

Each family that attends is asked to bring two covered dishes and their own sandwiches and service (silverware, dishes, cups). The school will furnish ice cream and a drink.

This is the one event of the year in Klemme that seems to get everyone together, and it is always one of the most looked forward to affairs . . . especially for the kids. They know that they can loaf for three months when the picnic is over.

Big Storm Blows by Klemme on Way to Minnesota

Less Than 3 Miles From Town When Destruction Starts

The big storm that caused so much damage from Ventura to Hollandale, Minnesota, Sunday, started getting in its licks just east of Klemme. Of course there was minor damage on both sides of the storm, but the main force traveled in a narrow band and really tore things to pieces.

We took a drive Monday evening to see some of the storm damage. First extensive damage that we know of was on the Mitchell Bock farm, two and three-fourths miles east of town, where the barn was pushed off the foundation. Just east of the Bock farm we turned north. At the Albert Katuin place, a mile and a half north, the storm took its first shot that really told. The sides of the barn were pushed out, the chicken house was destroyed, a large tree fell on the machine shed causing considerable damage, and a good fifty percent of the trees in the grove were either uprooted or snapped off. Albert said that he didn't know how many chickens he lost, but said that they were piled up against the fence about two feet deep.

From the Katuin place, we kept working north and east until we finally ended our trip near Hanlontown. We saw enough storm damage to be glad that we weren't in it, and to feel very sorry for those who were. Every place where there was extensive damage, neighbors were on hand getting things cleaned up. In times of trouble neighbors are wonderful things to have . . . and those folks that were hit by the storm certainly have trouble.

Curtis Riehm Memorial Day Speaker for Klemme

At the regular meeting of Adam-Schaefer Post No. 625 of the American Legion, Tuesday night, plans were completed for the annual Memorial Day program, which weather permitting, will be held in the city park

Curtis Riehm, Garner attorney has been secured as speaker for the program, and with his military background and work in both the Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars organizations, should be well fitted to make an appropriate address for the occasion.

Shamrocks in Win 8 to 5 Over Thornton

The Klemme Shamorcks baseball team won another game Tuesday when they took on the Thornton nine. The game was a five inning affair and saw the Shamrocks come out on the long end of an 8 to 0 score.

Thiemann pitched for the locals and allowed only one hit while striking out 11.

Junior-Senior Banquet Held Saturday Night

The Jr. - Sr. Banquet was held at the Klemme High school Gym on Saturday, May 9, 1953. "The Oriental Garden," which was the theme the Juniors chose to carry out, was decorated beautifully. The garden was dimly lighted by candles on the tables and Chinese lanterns hanging from streamers, which extended from the middle light on the ceiling to the outside of the gym. As you came into the garden you first had to cross a log bridge, which was covered with grass. The bleachers were covered with grass and the Senior Class Motto was printed on it. There were streamers from the ceiling to the floor with also a house made of streamers at one end. In a corner at the other end of the gym there was a tree with pretty pink blossoms on it. In the middle was a beautiful spring surounded by grass and some stones with water spraying all the time. The steam from the water was very pretty in the dim light.

Lois Christians gave an interesting speech to open the banquet, after which was served ham and all the trimmings. It was served by freshmen attired in Chinese clothes. Other speeches were given by Noel Egeland Elaine Neuberger, and Galen Gruis. The will, history, and prophecy were read by Emily Goll, Sharon Bridges, Neva Ann Anderson and Miriam Priebe, respectively. During the whole banquet, Ruth Pringnitz played piano music. Also a group of freshman girls sang a song.

The juniors should be congratulated on their fine job.

Poppies Arrive in Klemme for Poppy Day

Poppies which will be worn here on Poppy Day, May 23, in honor of the nation's war dead, have arrived from Iowa Soldiers Home in Marshalltown, Iowa, where they were made by Edward F. Smith, disabled war veteran. The flowers are crepe paper replicas of the "Flanders Fields" poppy, and each is labeled "In Memoriam."

"Making these poppies has provided the disabled men profitable and beneficial employment," said Mrs. Benn Coobs, Auxiliary Poppy Chairman. "It gives them something to do during long days of convalescence and also the encouraging experience of earning money once more. They take pride in making attractive flowers to be worn in tribute to their fallen comrades.."

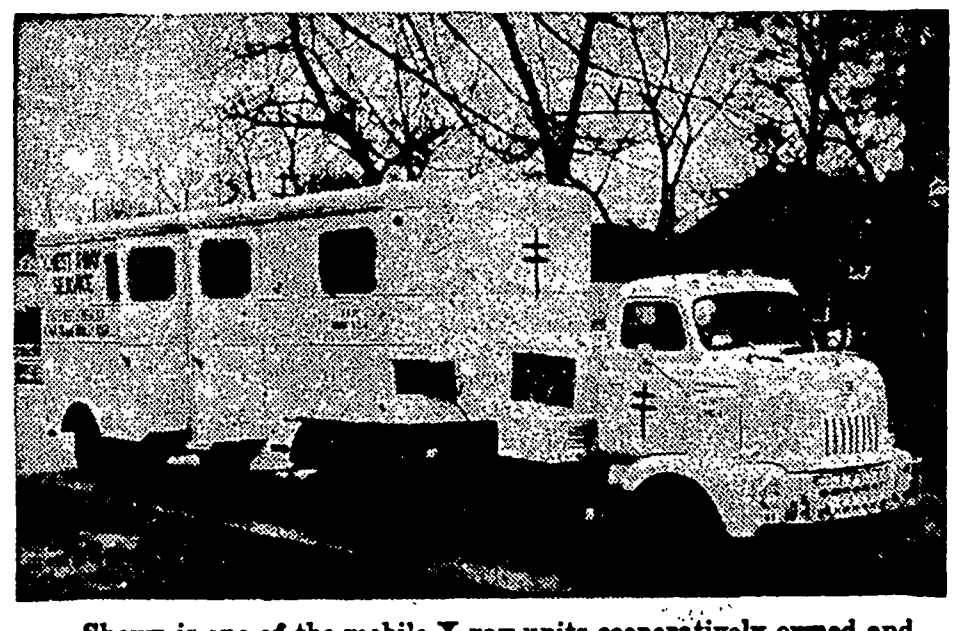
Stores to be Open On Wednesday and Saturday Nights

According to announcement made today by Kenneth Kluckhohn, president of the Klemme Commercial Club, free movies will start in Klemme on June third. The Commercial Club has rented a machine for the year, and three operators will be trained to run it. Movies will continue for fifteen weeks with Wednesday night being movie night.

Klemme merchants have decided on a new policy for movie nights and will have the stores open until nine o'clock each Wednesday evening. They will be open on Saturday nights, as usual, with the exception of Memorial Day and the Fourth of July. These two holidays fall on Saturday this year. Consequently, stores will be open on Friday nights of the weeks in which these two days fall.

Expense of the free movie is born by the merchants, and other business people of Klemme. Movies will be shown throughout the summer months as a good will gesture, and some good entertainment is in store. The Times will carry the title of each week's film, so watch for it, and bring the family in for an evening of entertainment "on the house."

X-RAY UNITS COMING SOON



Shown is one of the mobile X-ray units cooperatively owned and operated by the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association and the State Department of Health which will be in this county soon for the County-Wide Chest X-Ray Survey. We had a nice mild winter . . . but it sure is a die-hard. Got down to 28 degrees around here last night and the forecast for tonight is even worse. Last night's temperature broke a record that has stood since 1888. Don't know how far back they'll have to go to find a May 13th that was colder than tonight is supposed to be. Wonderful corn planting weather!

Lucky

Sunday's storm, that started about three miles east of Klemme and cut a path of destruction clear to Hollandale, Minnesota, makes one feel pretty lucky. We can find plenty of things to complain about, normally, but when we saw what had happened to the property of so many people we were glad that we had a roof over our head.

Between cleaning up after the storm and trying to get their crops in, it would seem like they would feel like it was just more than they could handle. However, they are already digging into their work . . . and we suppose are thankful they are alive.

Invasion

Klemme residents were startled last Thursday night when a veritable barrage of explosions let loose on the air in the vicinity of the post office. Some jokingly said they thought the Russians were coming, and others said they thought the world was coming to an end. However, before it was over with, all agreed that they got pretty provoked about the situation.

We were not at home to hear the disturbance, nor do we know what occasioned it, but we heard plenty about it on the street the next morning. No one was very happy about it, either.

Besides the fact that there was a little lawlessness, (firecrackers are banned in Iowa), apparently there was no consideration for the feelings of anyone. Most of the noise was right in front of the apartment of the J. W. Johnsons, and Mrs. Johnson has been bedridden for many months.

We hope that those responsible for Thursday's disturbance were not aware of conditions as they exist. Regardless, we think that they would do well to think twice before they again participate in such an affair.

30 YEARS AGO—

The Fire Company was called out to the Koerner residence last night at about nine o'clock as their barn and garage was in flames and a danger to the house near by. The barn and combination garage was a frame building 22 x 60. It is now a mass of ashes. The cars were not in the garage at the time of the fire. Koerner estimated the loss in the neighborhood of $900.

Aaron Grieman is more than araising cain in general around his Ford garage. He is doing about a carload of remodeling in the shop. A new concrete floor is being laid in the shop and he is fixing things up in general. His garage will be a fine appearing place when he gets it all in shape the way he wants it. Now if he would install a couple of of plush easy chairs and provide us with a couple of ten center smokes we will make him a few more visits each week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss drove up from Goodell Friday for a visit with relatives in this vicinity. Harry reports the garage business good.

Miss Georga Ford, Miss Norma Barz and Miss Agnes Galbreth drove to Redfield Friday evening to spend the week end visiting at the home Miss Ford's parents.

Local gasoline dealers hung out new prices Monday morning announcing lower gasoline prices. Regular grade gasoline dropped 2.1 cents per gallon and now retails at 12.1 cents per gallon, tax included. Special test gasoline sells for 13.1 cents per gallon in Klemme.

Gene Schaefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schaefer had the misfortune Wednesday night to fall in such a way as to severely injure one of his eyes. He was rushed at once to Klemme where a physician dressed the wound. It was thought at first that the eye ball was injured but it was later found that the most severe injury was on the lower lid. Gene is doing nicely but still requires the care of a doctor.

W. C. Keraus was at Northwood one day last week where he spoke at a meeting of the agents of the Equitable Life Insurance Co. Mr. Keraus is the local representative of this company.

10 YEARS AGO—

Miss Dorothy Baack, who is employed in a war plant in Detroit, Michigan, left for that city after spending a two weeks vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Baack.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Perkins enjoyed having their children with them for Mother's Day dinner. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Vic Perkins and the Misses Darlene and Verla Jean Perkins, all of Estherville.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Speer are closing their cafe here Saturday and will leave for the west coast where Mr. Speer will work in the shipyards for the duration. Don's father, Mr. C. E. Speer, is working in one of the great ship yards on the west coast.

Petition Approved

Hancock County Supervisors Monday approved the petition of Ben F. Hull and C. E. Barnes for the establishment of a highway which would continue Allen Street in Garner to connect with new highway No. 18 north of Garner. The new highway will give another approach to the town of Garner and be of convenience to the general public.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

If Hancock County farmers are like many other farmers in Iowa, they still have soybeans to sell.

Stocks of soybeans were at record levels when the U. S. Department made its April 1 count.

Here are the major facts in the soybean situation, as outlined by Francis A. Kutish, Iowa State College farm economist:

Crushing of soybeans by processors during the next 6 months likely will be about the same as during the previous 6 months. This would leave a carry over of about 10 million bushels of soybeans next October 1. Carryout of old beans in recent years has been only nominal.

Soybean oil has been selling for about 13 cents per pound. Close market observers do not expect over a cent further rise in the price of oil. And some observers do not look for any further strength over the present market.

Soybean Meal Demand

Demand for soybean meal may pick up later in the year, however. Farmers are making a whopping increase in late spring and summer farrowings. These pigs will be taking more protein supplement. There may be some boost in the late chick hatch, also.

Meanwhile, supply of soybean meal in feed mixers hand is small—although the processors hold large supplies. Some trade observers look for a $5 to $10 price rise in soybean meal later this summer or early fall. Such a rise would not develop, however, if procesors decided to liquidate their stocks of soybean meal at once.

Price Outlook

In view of this outlook, the most likely prospect, Kutish believes, is for soybean price to fluctuate within a price range of 10 cents above or below present prices. But bets are off if farmers as a group decide to unload their beans all at once. Farm stocks are large enough that a general dumping of farm stored beans could break the market.

Pedestrian Safety Is Problem as Death Rate Increases

Iowa's pedestrian traffic deaths increased 280 percent during the first three months of this year.

Pearl W. McMurry, state safety commissioner, said Thursday a report just completed shows that 19 Iowans died as pedestrians between January 1 and April 1, this year compared to only five pedestrians deaths during the same period in 1952.

He said nine of the pedestrian victims this year were 15 years old or younger and six were over 60 years. Three of the fatal pedestrian accidents involved excessive speeds and one involved a drunken driver.

"This tragic increase indicates that pedestrians saftey has become one of the most urgent saftey problems in the state," McMurry said.

"I urge all civic and municipal groups to take immediate steps to institute pedestrian safety campaigns in communities— especially for the protection of the very young and the elderly."

David Herrick, highway patrol chief, joined McMurry in warning drivers to control their speeds during the spring and summer months.

"The higher the speed, the greater the stopping distance," Herrick said. "An additional 10 miles per hour can mean death to the pedestrian who steps out in front of you unexpectedly.

FIFTH GRADE

In arithmetic we are adding and subtracting decimals. This work is very easy but we must keep on our toes or we make careless mistakes.

We are studying about World War II in history. This is our last chapter in our book.

Our science class has been studying ants. Buddy Evans brought an ant hill in a jar for us to watch. We hope they will make tunnels so we can observe the way they live.

This and That Around K.H.S. - - -

Who were the five girls who had to swim in and swim out of a certain restroom at Storm Lake on Skip Day?

It seems Dorothy and Ila almost got left at Storm Lake. They could have had a flying trip home, but they had to wait for Larry and Elaine.

It seems we had all the articles we needed on skip day except a sewing machine. It's lucky Ila came to the rescue.

We are sure that Marie would have had a good time if she had been able to go to Storm Lake on Skip Day. There were a lot of boys there from South Dakota, Marie.

How come Mr. Cappon wanted Margaret to have an airplane ride. It couldn't be he wanted to hold hands with her in case she got sick, could it?

How come every time all the rest of the seniors had their backs turned Miriam would try to catch the eye of one of our guides?

What happened to Emily after that car load of boys went by?

It seemed that after we had been in Storm Lake all day, Neva decided to change cars for the trip home.

Reverdy and Miriam were surely afraid to go around sharp curves or maybe they wanted to.

It seems Virgil S. is really hated by two of the senior girls after the party Wednesday night.

Roger Terhufen, you'd better be careful and act your best around the sophomores. I hear Lorraine Meyers has a heavy crush on you.

So Lyle Goll has come back to be put on Joan Lemkes list once again. And how long will his name be there before she erases it. No one knows.

Why is it, that everything you see of Robert Cavitt's has Wanda written all over it. I'm afraid you'll really have to hurry to catch up with her, Robert.

Has anyone noticed that Dick G. hasn't been to Neva's lately? Has he gone back to Cooky or has Wally beat his time in just the short while he was home?

Ila and Dorothy! You two gals should be ashamed of yourselves chasing Virgil to the car. I bet he acted just like a little heartbroken puppy dog. I also bet it made you two girls feel like heroes. Give your "get rid of" formula to Darlene. She may need it in the future.

Why was Lois kind of mad at Daisy Monday morning? Was it because Daisy saw Francis in Garner Friday night and talked to him, or is it 'cause she thinks Daisy will steal her man. You know Daze better than that, Lois.

Was Ila Mae chasing John or was John chasing Ila. You didn't know she cared did you, John.

Miriam and Bob were back together again last night. (Miriam said Beverly was along to chaperone, but I bet she came to drive)!

Have you heard the latest gambling bet? "I bet you a nickel that if you give me a dime I'll give you a quarter." Try it some time but be sure you know all strings before someone pulls it on you. Just ask Daisy—she knows.

Did you know that Marlene and Cecil are going together the night of the banquet? They'll probably be sitting on the rail in front of the school house soon.

I also heard that on the night of the banquet Alan and Margaret are going somewhere with Noel and Shirley. Could this be true?

We haven't heard to much from Carol and Graydon lately, but they still go together. Lots of luck on your merry ways.

Sharon Bridges wills her alertness in bookkeeping class to Eleanor Priebe.

Virgil Stahl wills his flirtatious eyes to Delwyn Brede.

Marie Neuhring wills her bright ideas to Jo Ann Burgess.

John Bisom wills his ability to talk continuously to Ralph Draves. Personally we don't see how he'll ever get along without it.

Janet Stahl wills her quiet dignity to Lois Christians. It might help you win a position in the principal's office.

Emily Goll wills her quaintness to Janice Swanson.

Ila Mae Anderson wills her height to JoAnn Bacon.

Bob Beier wills his way with the girls to Tom Waddingham. Don't carry this thing too far, Tom.

Douglas Shoop wills his innocent look after he has gotten into trouble to Dennis Ridder. We're sure you will be able to make good use of it.

Neva Ann Anderson wills her Marilyn Monroe look to Lois Jacobs. We really don't think you need it.

JUNIOR

English

Mr. Cappon is giving us a few lessons in spelling, and don't think we don't need it.

Economics

We are studying about the different things our government does for us.

Typing

We had our papers given back from different book forms etc. that we typed. Some of us were afraid to look at our grades for fear it was catching.

Shorthand

This class is about the same, day in and day out. Once in a while he will tell us to type up our dictation and is that ever a "lulu"!

Driver Training

We are just driving and working on our accident scrapbooks.

SIXTH GRADE

Learning to multiply decimals has been keeping us on our toes in arithmetic. At first we were quite confused, but now it is fun.

We are very sorry that Dorothy Roul is ill and will not be able to be with us for the rest of the year.

Our goal in spelling this year has been for everyone to have a perfect weekly spelling grade. This week we very nearly reached that goal, the lowest score being A-.

We are enjoying the flowers which the boys and girls have been bringing. They make our room very attractive.

Stille Honored as King's Attendent

Skip day, the day all seniors had anticipated for months, finally came last Friday, May 1st.

The day was spent at Storm Lake, where special activities were held for seniors from Iowa and several neighboring states.

Five cars left Klemme at seven forty five a.m. With Mr. Cappon, our sponsor, leading the way, we arrived a mile outside of Storm Lake. Here, with siren sounding, we were escorted into the city by a police car.

We stopped at the shelter house in the park to register and have a class picture taken. Here we met our guides and were given cards which entitled us to a free "skipper" hat. The cards stated the name of the store from which these hats were to be obtained. The guides then directed us to the business district and we picked up our hats.

It was then time to return to the park where the coronation of the king and queen was to take place. Larry, our candidate for king was chosen as one of the two attendants of the reigning king. At 5:15 Larry was interviewed over the radio at the Storm Lake radio station.

Immediately after the coronation our guides, both freshman in college took us on a tour through Buena Vista College.

Leaving our guides here, we returned to the lake and ate our picnic dinner. Although it was cold and wet, we enjoyed it.

The afternoon was spent seeing a movie, skating or taking airplane and motor boat rides.

About 5:30 we met again at the lake and had a weiner roast. Before the picnic was over, 12 seniors rushed off to take an airplane ride. Though this was the first plane ride for most of the kids, no one became sick or disappointed. The thrills amounted to a lot of fun.

Later we all met at the Cobblestone Inn. The rest of the evening was spent dancing or seeing a movie. This concluded our skip day at Storm Lake and we started our long trip home.

Although the day included several mishaps, such as flat tires, getting lost, and disagreeable weather, we all arrived home safely, but tired.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

The painful history of light-mindedness in Iowa traffic has now been distinguished by a crowning event—a fatal accident involving the highest speed ever reported in the state.

The record was set by a driver who pushed his car up to 110 miles per hour then found himself going into an unexpected curve. Needless to say, he will never be able to make the attempt to break his own record.

What is probably another record was discovered by a highway patrolman investigating a serious accident. He took a second look at the tires on one of the cars involved and found that they were nearly 20 years old.

A high-point in frantic and misdirected action probably was reached by the driver passing through Iowa at about 70 miles per hour when one of the car's rear doors came open.

Reaching back across the seat, he attempted to grab the door and get it closed without reducing his speed. He lost control of the car and was dead when it stopped rolling over.

Then there was the man riding in the truck who dropped a pack of cigarettes on the floor close to the door. He opened the door to get at the smokes and pitched out onto the highway where he died.

The case was thought to be similar to the accident in which the dead driver was found with a partly opened pack of cigarettes nearby. Officers covering the case decided the driver had lost control of the car while opening the cigarettes.

Obituary of Hermann F. Barz

By Rev. Vernon E. Jaberg

MR. HERMANN FRIEDRICH BARZ, whose earthly departure is sorrowfully mourned by his family, neighbors and friends, was born on September 19, 1878, one-half mile east of Klemme. He was the son of August and Bertha nee Priebe Barz. He was dedicated to the Lord in the Sacrament of Holy Baptism at the Peace Reformed Church (Elltown) by the Rev. F. Mosebach.

After having been instructed in the Christian faith and teaching, he was received into the membership of the Church on Good Friday, April 3, 1896, at Peace Reformed Church (Elltown) through the rite of Confirmation by Rev. Henry Treik. His confirmation blessing was taken from the Gospel of John 15:5 "I am the vine, ye are the branches. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing."

As a youth, Mr. Herman Barz received his elementary schooling in the public schools of Klemme.

On February 21, 1906, he was united in the bonds of Holy Marriage with Miss Olga Mary Ratzlaff in Woodbury, Washington County in Minnesota. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. John F. Steiner. God in His providence blessed this marriage with five children.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Barz have made their home two miles north and a half mile east of Klemme. Mr. Barz has enjoyed a very active life and has been a very industrious farmer who was always willing to be of help to his neighbors and friends. At one time Mr. Barz served on the Board of Directors in his school district.

Mr. Barz was a member of Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church of Klemme, Iowa.

In the course of the past year, Mr. Barz has suffered from the infirmities of the flesh, being hospitalized at Mercy Hospital in Mason City about a year ago. In recent days he mentioned that he was not feeling well and on Saturday, May 9, he departed from this life, having attained the age of 74 years 7 months and 20 days.

Those who survive are his wife, Mrs. Hermann Barz, sons and daughters, Martin, Gerald, Stella, Paul and Marcedia, all of Klemme. He is also survived by one daughter-in-law, Mrs. Martin Barz, and one granddaughter, Miss Maxine Barz. In addition, he is survived by three sisters, Anna (Mrs. Henry Lau) of Tracy, Minnesota, Mrs. Lena Schroeder of Klemme, and Bertha (Mrs. Otto Baack) also of Tracy, Minnesota, two brothers, Fred of Klemme and Emil of Lamont, Iowa. Mr. Barz was preceded in death by his parents, and five brothers, Charley, Henry, Albert, August and William.

"In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14:2 & 3.

GOD'S HANDWRITING

He writes in characters too grand
For our short sight to understand;
We catch but broken strokes, and try
To fathom all the mystery
Of withered hopes, of death, of life,
The endless war, the useless strife,—
But there, with larger, clearer sight,
We shall see this—His way was right.

In language we have been reviewing parts of speech, compound sentences, and the use of prepositional phrases.

We have finished learning all the new processes in arithmetic, and now we are trying to become more accurate in using them.

This week we had a test over the principal bones of the body. We are still waiting for some of the members of the class to learn to spell the names of the bones.

One of the most popular art projects we had this year was painting plaques.

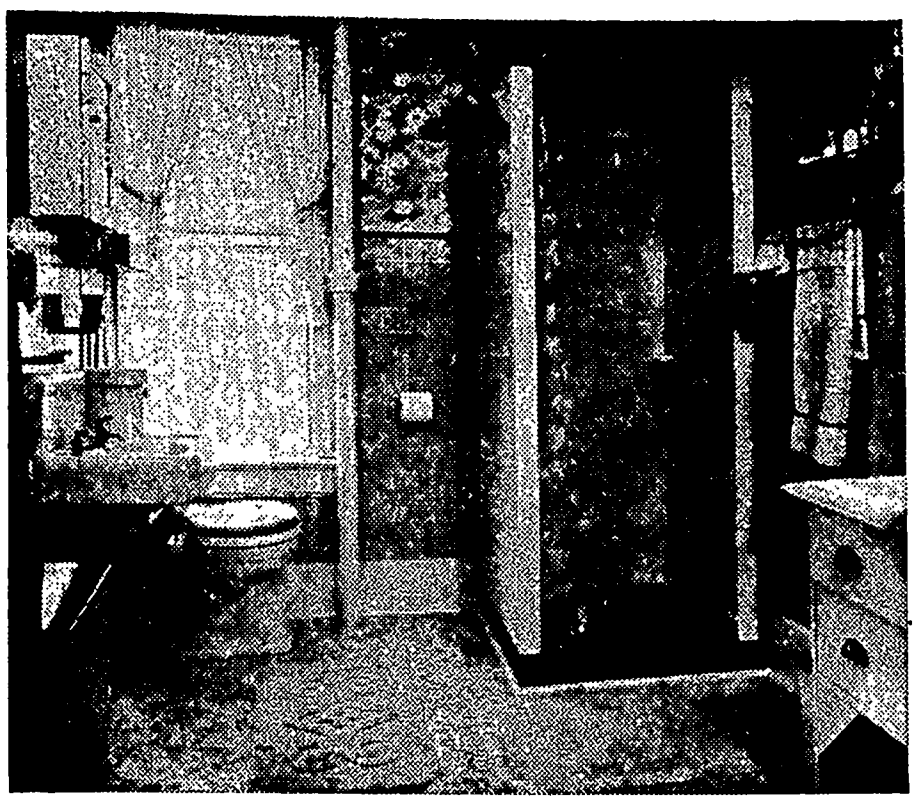
Here Are Points to Consider—

When You Plan Your Bathroom



This bathroom with shower stall is roomy enough so that a tub can be added later on when the budget permits. There's also ample space for storage and dressing.

It usually takes tall planning to work out the best bathroom location and arrangement possible in a home built before running water and modern plumbing facilities became a sought-after reality. Perhaps you're financially set to put in your first family bathroom this year—and just lots of folks are, in his state where 50 percent of the farm homes and a good many town homes too, haven't running water and are looking forward to this convenience. Your first hurdle will be to figure out a good bathroom location.

LOCATION

Before you jump to what may seem the easiest solution—converting that pantry just off the kitchen into a bathroom—think about what the ideal location should offer.

According to Naomi Shank, extension home mangement specialist of Iowa State College, the bathroom should offer maximum privacy and should be easily accessible to youngsters and indoor and outdoor workers. A first-floor bathroom close to the second-floor stairway and accessible from a hallway is usually the best location from the standpoint of both convenience and privacy.

SIZE

It should be large enough for uncrowded arrangement of water closet (toilet), tub or shower stall, lavatory and shelf and drawer space for storage. And if there are young children in the home or an invalid who needs help, you'll want extra space to take care of their special needs. It's better to have too large a bathroom than too small.

With all this in mind, check your home's floor plan,, Miss Shank suggests. Perhap you can partition off the end of a living or dining room for the bathroom with a doorway opening into a hallway. Or, if that pantry is the only space available, try closing off the door to the kitchen, enlarging the bathroom in some way, and make it accessible from a hall.

ARRANGEMENT

Bathroom fixtures come in standard basic sizes. If you take time to make cardboard cutouts to scale, you can experiment with arranging them on a floor plan of the proposed bathroom. Allow enough free space around each fixture for convenient use, cleaning and servicing.

The most popular measurements for fixtures are: tub 30 x 60 inches; water closet and space in front 30 x 48 inches; lavatory and space in front 20 x 40 inches. If you're pressed for space, you might use a shower stall 36 inches square instead of a tub. Another space saver is a 4-foot square tub that fits into a corner. Be sure to allow for storage, too Perhaps you'll want counter and drawer space on either side of the lavatory if the bathroom will be used as a dressing room, too.

MUITIPLE-USE BATHROOM

If you have a large family or if there's a rush on the bathroom each morning and evening, plan a bathroom that several persons can use at once and still have a degree of privacy.

You can have twin lavatories; or two water closets, with one or both partitioned off from the rest of the bathroom. You might have a recessed tub with a shower stall in a compartment or separate room. There are many ways you might work out a multiple-use bathroom, depending on available space and your own families needs. Or perhaps an additional half-bath with water closet, shower stall and lavavory elsewhere in the house would be the best solution.

Tradgedy of Errors Being Performed on Iowa's Highways

The state safety department Thursday released a story with the same old plot, the same old characters, and the same unhappy ending that's been repeated ever since the first life was lost in an automobile.

The story is a summary of the 83 fatal traffic accidents that took 95 lives in the state during the first three months of this year—nine more fatal accidents and four more deaths than in the same period last year.

The plot is once more a tragedy of errors performed by the 123 drivers involved in the death crashes and the unknown number of drivers and pedestrians who blunder through the scenes but escaped unhurt.

It was a bigger production during the first quarter of this year than last year when only 105 drivers had fatal accidents.

The chracters in the life and mostly death drama were all familiar types. Eighteen of the drivers fatally involved this year were 19 years old or younger. Forty-three had previous records of accidents, violations or both. Eight had been drinking or were drunk. Eight were driving 70 miles per hour or faster when a close call became the last call.

Commenting on the report, State Saftey Commissioner Pearl W. McMurry called it, "repetition in a deadly form; proof that we have not learned enough from our mistakes to stop making them."

In detail, the summary shows that fatal accidents in urban areas increased from 19 last year to 26 this year; pedestrian deaths jumped from 30 to 36; car-train fatals decreased from 10 to 4; and accidents due to defective vehicles decreased from 6 to 3.

Who Is Designated Sole Surviving Son

This is the sixth in a series of short articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.

A sole surviving son cannot be inducted into the Armed Forces through Selective Service under provisions of the Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended. A registrant who is a sole surviving son is given an exemption in Class IV-A and because of this Congressional exemption there is no extension of military liability to age 35. A sole surviving son cannot even volunteer for the Armed Force through Selective Service. (Whether or not he can volunteer for service through the regular recruiting agencies is for the recruiting agencies to determine.)

Who is a sole surviving son? The law provides that (Section 6 (o) UMT & S ACT) —

"Where one or more sons or daughters of a family were killed in action or died in line of duty while serving in the Armed Forces of the United States, or subsequently died as a result of injuries received or disease incurred during such service, the sole of such family shall not be inducted."

It thus becomes evident from the law that an only son in the family is not a sole surviving son; such condition of sole survivorship exists only where one or more sons or daughters have already died as a result of military service.

A registrant may not be considered as a sole surviving son by virtue of the fact that a son or daughter is being held a prisoner of war. There is a presumtion that a prisoner of war is alive. It is otherwise where a son or daughter is reported missing in action. Under such circumstances the one remaining living son is considered a sole surviving son and is eligible for classification in Class IV-A until such time as there is evidence that the son or daughter missing in action has survived.

Where a registrant claims to be a sole surviving son, it is his responsibility and that of his father or mother, to bring such claim to the attention of the Local Board.

Give Wildlife Babies A Break

Spring is finally here, and so so are wildlife babies. They have a strong appeal to everyone, and few persons would intentionally harm them. However, thousands of these young animals and birds are "rescued" each year by well-meaning kidnappers. In most cases these wilderness children are doomed, for even if they survive captivity, they can never again live successfully in the wild.

Iowan going into the woods and fields during late spring and summer are also reminded that capturing baby game birds and animals is unlawful. With the exceptions of a few species, most wild creatures are protected by law during this season.

Some animals and birds are unprotected by law, and may be taken at any time. These include red and gray foxes, coyotes, pocket gophers, chipmunks, groundhogs, ground squirrels, flying squirrels, bats, field mice, meadow mice, shrews, bobcats, crows, great horned owls, sharp-shinned hawks, Cooper's hawks, starlings, and English sparrows.

A person may possess not more than two game birds or furbearing animals confined as pets without being required to hold a game breeder's license, but he cannot increase his stock above the original number or kill or sell such animals or birds. Such protected game birds and furbearers may be taken legally only during the open season, and a pet permit must be secured from a state conservation officer.

If young protected birds or animals are captured, the local conservation officer must be notified, and they will be sent to the State Game Farm at Boone.

All birds designated as "song birds" are completely protected by state and federal law, and may not be take at any time.

Local Couple Has Close Call with Storm Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Keraus spent Sunday with Otho Keraus and family at Osage. On their return trip they very nearly got blown away in the big storm.

Mr. Keraus had planned to return home through Mason City, but when he got to Manly. it was so windy and Highway 65 north of Mason City is so narrow and rough, that he decided to go on across to Forest City on Highway No. 9. After they got a couple of miles west of Manly, Mr. Keraus said that it rained so hard and the wind blew so hard that it was all he could do to hold his car on the road.

They drove through this kind of weather until they got a couple of miles west of Fertile. There the wind forced them off the highway onto the shoulder. Mr. Keraus decided to set there a bit and see if the storm wouldn't let up a little. About that time a car coming from the west went right up in the air turned over a couple of times and wound up against the fence. Mr. Keraus said, "Look there, that fellow lost control of his car." He no more than got that said than a large block barn on the north side of the highway, just two or three blocks to the west of where they were sitting, caved in and fell in a heap. That's when he decided that they were in quite a storm.

Immediately, the storm began to abate, so Mr. and Mrs. Keraus again started for home. As they drew abreast of the car that was overturned, the driver was just emerging. Bill asked if he was hurt and he said that he wasn't, so they went on.

Just down the road was a large truck that had been overturned by the wind. It was blocking traffic in one lane, but the driver was okay and was out directing traffic around.

After they got down the highway a couple of miles, the sun came out, but they were worried what might have happened in Klemme until they got home.

We imagine that Mr. and Mrs. Keraus were two pretty scared people, and we'll bet that the experience is one that they won't soon forget.

Due to some confusion in the minds of Klemme residents as to whether a fire is in town or in the country, a new code has been announced by the fire department.

Two blasts on the fire whistle means that the fire is in town.

One whistle blast means a practice run. These practice runs, when held, will always be in the evening.

The whistle will still be blown the one long blast at noon as it has in the past.

This was the first such group established in the state of Iowa.

Poppy Day Funds Assist Disabled

Every coin dropped into a Poppy Day contribution box next Saturday will mean that the American Legion Auxiliary will be able to give just that much more for disabled war veterans during the coming year.

Volunteer workers from the Auxiliary are busy constantly bringing aid, comfort and cheer to the disabled veterans of the two world wars and the Korean conflict, their activities financed largely by Poppy Day funds. Because of the growing number of war disabled, Poppy Chairman expressed the hope that Poppy Day contributions would be especially generous this year.

"Auxiliary volunteers are going constantly into hospitals and homes where disabled veterans are fighting the long battle to regain health and a place in the normal life of the country they defended," she said. "Thanks to the generosity of the people who wear poppies on Poppy Day, they do not have to go empty handed but are able to bring material aid to these courageous men.

"We now have Korean War veterans to serve, as well as those from the earlier conflicts. Our Auxiliary members are grateful for every assistance given them in their work for the welfare of these men who have given so much for America."

"Dutch" Elder Gets Recognition for Service

C. R. (Dutch) Elder, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Elder of Klemme, Tuesday (May 19) received a superior award from the United States Department of Agriculture. "Dutch", extension editor and director of information at Iowa State College, was one of three members of the Iowa agricultural and home economics extension staff honored this year by USDA. Others named were E. P. Sylwester, extension botanist at Iowa State and Mrs. Lois Reid Stewart, Dubuque county extension home economist.

Presentation of the silver medal and certificate emblematic of the recognition was made during a program at the Sylvan Theatre on Washington Monument Grounds at Washington, D. C. Each year employees of the USDA and state extension services are selected for citation by the department.

Born and raised on a farm east of Klemme, "Dutch" served an early apprenticeship in the shop of The Klemme Times. After he was graduated from Klemme High School in 1924 he worked full time for a year and then attended Iowa State College where he received a degree in technical journalism in 1929.

Following his graduation he was employed by the Farmer's Wife magazine, St .Paul, Minn., and the Blooming Prairie, Minn., Times. From this latter position he went to Osceola, Iowa, in 1930, where he was editor of the Osceola Tribune until 1941. Since November, 1941, he has been at Iowa State College. Starting as associate extension editor, he was named editor in 1942 and in 1948 was given added responsibilities of director of information for the college.

His citation for the award was for leadership in developing and cooridnating information work and for initiative in aiding in organizing the college's radio and TV station for the purpose of disseminating extension and research achievements to the public.

With the outbreak of World War II much of "Dutch's" time was spent in developing aids for the extension educational program relating to food production. During subsequent years he was instrumental in bringing about a stepped-up program of press and radio services and improved educational bulletins and pamphlets. He also stimulated the production and widespread usage of visual aids including displays, models and exhibits in the extension educational program.

He has encouraged and provided leadership for the development of a visual aids production unit at Iowa State which has produced 20 major motion picture films since 1948 and which now has more than 14 films in production. The unit also has processed and edited more than 400 short subjects.

"Dutch" has been secretary-treasurer, vice-president and president of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors. He has served as chairman of the press committee of the National Land-Grant College Association's annual meeting and was the first coordinator of the press and radio committee of the National 4-H Congress, a position he held 2 years.

He was accompanied to Washington by Mrs. Elder.

Poppy Day

Don't forget to buy a Poppy this Saturday, May 23. The Legion Auxiliary ladies and the Girl Scouts will be on the street Saturday selling these Memorial Poppies, and the money you spend for these little flowers is well spent. It helps the Legion Auxiliary in their work to make things more pleasant for disabled veterans of three wars in hospitals all over the United States.

By wearing a Poppy on Poppy Day, you automatically honor the war dead of our country. It is important that these men, and the cause for which they died, be honored, but in our minds it is even more important that we do what we can to help those who will have to spend the rest of their days in the hospital. They have not made the supreme sacrifice but they have had to give up life as we know it . . . and they did this so that the rest of us might continue to live as free and independent men as all men were intended to live.

Buy a Poppy! Buy several of them, and help show these men that they are not entirely forgotten.

X-ray Chairmen Appointed; Facts About X-ray Told

A mass meeting of all persons interested in health of residents of Hancock county will be held at Klemme, Garner, Britt, and Kanawha at times to be announced.

This meeting was announced at the close of a planning meeting for the forth-coming county-wide X-ray survey to begin about June 17th. It is sponsored by the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association with the approval of the Hancock County Medical Society.

Personnel and equipment for the survey are being supplied by the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association and the State Department of Health. A number of other local organizations have joined in supporting the program.

The recent meeting, town and township chairmen were named and were instructed on how to organize their areas. An X-ray unit will visit every town and township trading center during the program. Local chairmen are asking the assistance of all groups which can help get 100 per cent participation in this program for their area.

The town and township chairmen and volunteers from their communities will attend the mass meeting for their area according to a schedule which will be announced. The general public is also invited to this rally.

"For many years, residents of Hancock County have contributed generously to the Christmas Seal Sale," Mrs. Lewis said. "As the result, we are able to offer them a free chest X-ray".

"To have four mobile units come to the county to provide free X-rays is in the nature of a dividend on the contributions," the chairman said. "You can claim this dividend by taking no more than a minute to stop at the mobile unit when is comes to your community.

"It's just like having your picture taken," she said. She added that there was no need to remove any clothing. Metallic jewelry, pens and pencils should be removed from the chest area, however.

The simple procedure of having an X-ray was outlined by Mrs. Lewis: As the person enters the mobile X-ray unit, he gives his name, address, and age to volunteer registrars. They will also ask for the name of his physician. Then the individual moves to the other end of the X-ray trailer to have the chest picture taken.

Each X-ray will appear on a film about the size of a post card which will be carefully examined by a doctor trained in X-ray interpretation. Results of the X-ray will be mailed to the individual about three weeks after the close of the program.

Should any unusual or abnormal shadows appear on the X-ray film, the radiologist will recommend the person return for a large X-ray. This is also free. In Hancock county, it is planned that one mobile unit will return about three weeks after the survey is completed to take the large X-rays.

These films, too, are interpreted and confidential reports are sent to the family doctor.

"The purpose of having these X-rays taken of every adolescent and adult is to find any unsuspected tuberculosis", said Mrs. Lewis, president of the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association. She pointed out that many persons have tuberculosis and may not be aware of it.

"A chest X-ray is an important step in discovering hidden or unsuspected tuberculosis," Mrs. Lewis said. "It can't hurt you, and the only possible harm lies in NOT having a chest X-ray.

"It should be understood," added Mrs. Lewis, that the chest X-ray is simply a means of finding out quickly and painlessly if there are any signs of TB present in the lungs. Early TB usually has no signs or symptons. The X-ray may reveal enlarged hearts, tumors and other chest abnomalities.

"An X-ray of your chest is a protection to you. If you do have tuberculosis, the earlier it is discovered, the sooner treatment may begin. If you ae healthy—then you are sure", she concluded.

Clock

When the Lucas county courthouse clock failed to function, a factory expert told the board of supervisors it would cost about $1,100 to get the clock running again. The board turned to local workmen to manufacture new "hands" and put the clock back in operation—for $25.

Prophecy of the Class of '53 of KLEMME HIGH SCHOOL

The following is our prediction of the 1953 Senior Class five years from the present.

Ila Anderson, as several other girls in our class was attracted to telephone operating during her senior year. Now five years later we find her very happy in this kind of work.

Neva Ann Anderson has completed a business course at Hamilton's School of Commerce at Mason City, and now leads the life of career girl and wife. She is now married to her high school sweetheart, Bill Roths.

Bob Beier is now a farmer, using all the latest methods of the agricultural field. Bob has also become a specialist in dairy farming.

John Bisom, who was a very efficient typist in high school now is making very good use of his talent in the newspaper business.

Margaret Boland's one ambition was to become a grade school teacher. Having completed her teachers training at Waldorf College in Forest City, she is now fulfilling this desire by teaching a class of second-grade pupils.

Sharon Bridges is now making very fine use of her sewing and embroidery ability. For Sharon, as you might well guess is happily married to Dick.

Emily Goll, one of the more serious scholars of our class, we find in a vocation which very few are qualified to enter, namely that of an airline hostess.

Galen Gruis, a natural born fisherman, knows exactly where the fishing is good, for he is a game warden.

Eunice Helps also has responded to the desperate need of elementary teachers and has entered the teaching profession.

Kay Jacobs, who displayed a beautiful diamond her senior year, we now find is a very good housewife.

Dorothy Lacey, following her sisters footsteps, has become a telephone operator and likes it very much.

Reverdy Mace, the boy who was always late for physics class proved to be much more serious minded than we gave him credit for. He is now in medical school with a year of interneship to complete.

Elaine Neuberger's course in shorthand and office experience has proved a big help to her. Elaine is a secretary at the present time.

Marie Nuehring, the girl with the answers in English class, also became an elementary teacher.

Elda Polsdofer, after summer experience as a telephone operator, decided it was the job for her, and now she has made this occupation her career.

Miriam Priebe, turning her interests to the more serious things of life, has graduated from college where she majored in Christian Education. She is now engaged in religious teaching and also does some writing which was one of her favorite pastimes.

Calvin Sandry, the carefree, happy lad of our class immediately after graduation, enlisted in the army which he plans to make his life work.

Doug Shoop drew pictures of airplanes in high school and could have filled a book. No more does he only day dream of airplanes for he has become a full fledged aviator.

Beverly Clark, formerly, Beverly Sobek, is as happily married today as she was the day she came back to school a new blushing bride back in "52".

Janet Stahl's advanced typing and working in Mr. Andreae's office proved a good foundation for her later plans. Janet, we find has become a receptionist and is very pleased with this work.

Virgil Stahl, it seems, always wanted to be a farmer. Perhaps that explains his prosperity after only five years of farming by himself.

Larry Stille, the best example of a sportsman our class could boast, has found an occupation which suits his interest. He is a lineman for the electric company and spends his spare time hunting, trapping, fishing, and what have you in the field of sports.

Bill Velau, another natural born farmer, now owns his own land and machinery and is doing very well too.

Bill Waddingham has just been discharged from the army where he had experience as an engineer. Bill plans to be an engineer in civilian life.

Sharon Ward, last but not least, the girl with a love for beatuy operator, a pet desire since her senior days in K. H. S.

History of the Class

of '53 of KLEMME HIGH SCHOOL

On the 14th of October, 1940, 11 angelic little angels started on their careers of crime and destruction in the Klemme School system. The children were: Luverne Heginger, Gary Smith, Ronald Karsjens, Bill Waddingham, Neva Anderson, Elaine Neuberger, Jacqueline Bilberry, Sharon Bridges, Beverly Sobek, Miriam Priebe, and Donno Waddingham.

Kindergarten was taught by Miss Potter. Mr. Galbreth was superintendent. There were three classes in our room, kindergarten, first grade, and second grade. We made a train this year. It consisted of an engine and two pullman cars. We all worked very hard on our studies; so we could get our work done first and paint the engine. Our one great achievement this year was learning to tie our shoes. This took most of the year.

On to the first grade where Miss Hardcuff was our teacher. Neva and Miriam got into a little fight this year. While at the library they started stamping on each others feet. They both ended up out in the hall. We had a play house in one corner of our room. Jacqueline Billberry did not return to school this fall when it started; therefore we only had ten in our class. Donna Waddingham and Ronald Karsjens moved away during the year, and we gained Robert Wilson.

When we entered in second grade, we got a new superintendent, Mr. Mickalek. Miss Hardcuff thought she could stand us for one more year though the going would be rough. In one corner of the room this year, we made a post office, out of orange crates. This worked much better than throwing notes across the room. Larry Stille joined our class this year, so we had ten in our class once again. Everyone was carrying their extra pennies to school to buy defense stamps on stamp-day, which came once a week. Mumps and chicken pox made their way around the class during this year.

In third grade we had Miss Holm as our teacher. Mr. Esbeck was our new superintendent. Robert Wilson did not return to school that fall so once again we had only nine in our class. We gave our first operetta that year. Miss Sherril was our music teacher. The name of the operetta was. "Old Folks Concert". This was the year Elaine talked Sharon and Beverly into following Neva home after school and washing her face in the snow.

In fourth grade we had another new superintendent, Mr. Kingery. Miss Holm stayed as our teacher. We started with 11 in our class. The new ones were: Bill Wilson, Eric Meyer, and Reverdy Mace. Gary Smith and Bill Wilson moved away during the year and innocent little John Bisom moved in. We had another operetta this year. The name of it was "A Midsummers Eve". We all were either flower fairies or little green elves. I still wonder how those paper costumes ever held together the way we jumped all over.

In fifth grade our teacher was Mrs. Norma Voetburg. Mrs. Leland Lieuwen was our music teacher. New faces this year were: Margaret Boland, Kay Jacobs, and Sharon Ward. They got the first school busses this year. The name of our operetta was, "Lazy Town". Eric Meyer moved away during the year.

In the sixth grade we had Mrs. Voetburg as teacher again. Eunice Helps and Galen Gruis came to town school this year. The name of our operetta that year was, "The Obliging Clock". The whole grade school went to Kanawha to see the show, "Pinochio". Remember how red all the girls eyes were when they came out?

In seventh grade we had Mrs. Smith for our teacher. We had a Halloween party at Elaine's house. Can anybody remember Larry's costume? Those of us who played in the band that year were very proud of ourselves. Mr. Bulka was our instuctor and we got a first in the state music contest. Mrs. Patterson was our music teacher this year, and the name of our operetta was, "A Midsummers Day."

In eighth grade we had our first man teacher, Mr. Juhl. This was the first year for some time that Klemme had a girls basketball team. Mr. Juhl was the coach. We all had to write a book on our life history. Boy, what Mr. Juhl didn't find out. We put out our eighth grade paper called the "Live Wire". Our eighth grade graduation was held with the seniors.

We entered high school on the 29th of August, with 32 in our grade. (This was the biggest class in high school that year.) We really thought we were wheels, but by the end of the first two weeks, we thought different. Mr. Ahrenkiel was superintendent and Mr. Patterson was principal. Those in our class were: Reverdy Mace, Beverly Sobeck, Galen Gruis, Elaine Neuberger, Larry Stille, Miriam Priebe, Margaret Boland, Neva Anderson, Sharon Ward, John Bisom, Kay Jacobs, LuVerne Heginger, Eunice Helps, Bill Waddingham, Sharon Bridges, Ila Anderson, Bob Beier, Emily Goll, Dorothy Lacey, Eric Meyer, Marie Nuehring, Duane Polsdofer, Elda Polsdofer, Calvin Sandry, Douglas Shoop, Janet Stahl, Virgil Stahl, Bill Velau, Gene Stevens, Jo Ann Vick, Donald Fjetland, and Larry Fjetland. The only teachers we had this year were Mr. and Mrs. Andreae and Mr. Patterson. Mrs. Hanson was our class sponsor. Mr. Ahrenkiel was the girls' coach and Mr. Patterson was the boys. On October 14th we were initiated, (what a time). The girls wore 20 braids in their hair and the boys wore their clothes inside out and backwards. On the 21st of May, we had a high school prom. The boys basketball team won the county tournament this year. Duane P. left school during the year and Gene S., Jo Ann V., LuVerne H., Donald F., and Lary F., were other who left at the end of the year.

Mr. Andreae was our class sponsor for the sophomore year The first girls' county tournament was held this year. Klemme placed second. Elaine Neuberger was a cheerleader from our grade this year.

During our Junior year, we had Mr. Andreae as principal. Mr. Ellingson was girls' coach and Mr. Cappon was boys'. Mr. Whitford was our new band instructor, and Mr. Fischer taught drivers education. Mrs. Andreae was onr class sponsor. We got our class rings the last part of February. On October 17th we gave our junior class play, "Finders Creepers". Sharon and Elaine were cheerleaders from our class that year. Miriam was band queen. Our Jr.-Sr. banquet was held on May 10th and we carried out a gypsy theme.

Our last year of high school began September 2, 1952. Our senior class had 25 members, 15 girls and 10 boys. Mr. Cappon and Mr. Andreae were our class sponsors. On Oct. 21 we journeyed to Mason City to have our class pictures taken. Mr. Andreae accompanied us. The girls basketball team placed third in the county tournament which was held at Hayfield. The boys got to the final game of the district. We presented our senior class play, "We Shook the Family Tree," on March 31, 1953, under the direction of Mr. Cappon. On May 1, we went to Storm Lake to attend their annual skip day for seniors. We took Mr. Cappon along on this trip. The Jr.-Sr. banquet was held on May 9th, and an Oriental theme was carried out. On the 17th of May, Baccalaureate was held in the high school gym. Commencement exercises were held on May 21st, with Bob Roach, editor of Listen magazine as speaker. The seniors were dismissed from school on the 15th of May. We edited the school paper which appeared weekly in the Klemme Times, and we published the first yearbook that Klemme has had. Our class colors were red and white, our flower the red rose, and our motto, "We've Crossed the Bay, the Ocean Lies Before Us." Those in our class were: Ila Anderson, Neva Anderson, Margaret Boland, Marie Nuehring, Emily Goll, Elaine Neuberger, Sharon Bridges, Dorothy Lacey, Sharon Ward, Kay Jacobs, Eunice Helps, Miriam Priebe, Janet Stahl, Elda Polsdofer, Beverly Clark, Larry Stille, Galen Gruis, Bill Waddingham, Bill Velau, John Bisom, Douglas Shoop, Bob Beier, Calvin Sandry, Virgil Stahl, and Reverdy Mace.

Gymnasium was the Scene of Junior-Senior Banquet

Chinese Theme was Quite Beautiful

The Junior - Senior banquet was held Saturday evening, May 9th. The juniors are to be commended for the fine job they did decorating the gymnasium and planning an excellent program.

The scene was a beautiful, gaily decorated oriental garden. Entering the gymnasium, a bridge was crossed bringing you right up to a flowing fountain. The fountain was enhanced by colored lights focused on the spraying water.

To one side of the fountain stood a white picket fence. Inside the gate was a charming wishing well from which a dark haired Chinese maiden attired in native dress, served punch. Near the well blossomed a large apple tree.

On the opposite side of the well was found an oriental hut. The bleachers were covered with green grass and our motto, "We Have Crossed the Bay, the Ocean Lies Before Us", writen in large silver letters upon the grass.

The only lighting throughout the banquet was provided by brilliantly colored lanterns above our heads and candles set on each of the tables. This resulted in a very impressive scene and gave a peaceful atmosphere long to be remembered.

Freshmen boys and girls dresser in Chinese costume acted as waiters and waitresses The meal was prepared by the mothers of the junior class and was enjoyed by everyone.

The program consisted of a Chinese lullaby, a vocal selection by four freshman girls, and speeches by Lois Christians, Noel Egeland, Elaine Neuberger and Galen Gruis. Each person presented very stimulating thoughts in their talks, making us aware of the seriousness of life as well as the joys. The class history was read by Sharon Bridges. and Neva Anderson, followed by the prophecy read by Miriam Priebe, and the class will read by Emily Goll.

The banquet meant a lot to us seniors and will present many happy memories in the future. Because of the impossibility of thanking all of you juniors individually for the fine job that you did, the senior class will now extend our thanks!

FIRST GRADE

Merlin Bachman missed a week of school because of illness. Merlin also treated his class to candy bars for his birthday several weeks ago. His mother, Mrs. Walter Bachman, was a visitor that day.

Jerry Clements celebrated his seventh birthday by treating the class to candy bars.

We are finishing our work for the year and are looking forward to the picnic and vacation.

For a Neat, Convenient Bathroom—

Count on Well-Planned Storage

Even a small bathroom has big storage possibilities. Built-in shelves above bathtub provide storage for cleaning supplies, soap, towels and washcloths and clean overalls. Space to left of window could be utilized for a floor-to-ceiling storage unit incorporating shelves, drawers and clothes hamper.

Build plenty of storage space into your bathroom if you want it to be a real convenience to every member of the family. Well-planned storage will ease your job of keeping the bathroom neat and clean, too.

Even the smallest bathroom has storage possibilities, says Naomi Shank, extension home management specialist of Iowa State College. Study your floor plan and work storage into all the waste spaces. Place shelves and cupboards within the studding, partially recessed or as cabinets that are flush with walls.

STORAGE NEEDS

Get the family together, Miss Shank suggests, and make a listing of all the supplies each one of you would like to see stored in the bathroom. Your list might include soiled clothes, cleaning supplies, medicine, first-aid and other medical supplies; bathroom supplies, grooming supplies, and bathroom scales.

If there are small children in the family, you might add to your list: training seat, step stool, bathinette, diaper pail, mirror, brush and other such items.

If the bathroom is used as a dressing room, as it often is in a farm home, you'll need hanging space for clothes in use and drawer or shelf space for clean clothes.

You can see that you'll have to make good use of all the waste space in your bathroom if you're to find a place for all these items.

STORAGE POSSIBILITIES

Good space to utilize for storage in any size bathroom is usually over the water closet (toilet) and under and over the lavatory. You could recess a towel cabinet into the wall over the water closet—if the soil stack or vent pipe is not in the way—and let it stand out from the wall even with the front edge of the tank. Place cabinet at least 14 inches above the tank so there's room for servicing it.

You might use cabinet shelf space under the lavatory for cleaning supplies and soap. Utilize space over the lavatory for one or more recessed or wall-hung cabinets. For medicines, you'll need a cabinet that can be locked. You might also like to have a low-set cabinet at one side of the lavatory where the children can keep their own toilet articles.

FLOOR-TO-CEILING UNIT

If you can find space for a floor-to-ceiling cabinet, it will provide room for a great many bathroom supplies. This cabinet might include shelves and drawers of varied depths for towels, linens and clean, folded clothing; a pull-out shelf for sorting linens, and perhaps a clothes chute or well-ventilated hamper for soiled clothes and linens. You could keep additional supplies of toilet tissue, face tissues, bath powders, shampoo, soap, etc.; on the top shelf. You might also use a shelf here for heating pad, hot water bottle and other sickroom items.

Just how much and what kind of storage you work into your bathroom will depend on your family, the size of the bathroom and how it's used. But be sure to get just as much storage included as you possibly can. You can never have too much storage for the many small items that accumulate in the bathroom.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

As the lights of the patrol car flashed over the scene, the patrolman saw the automobile piled up like a drift of junk against the wall of the underpass. Two men were pulling at the wreckage with their bare hands.

The unbelievable thought hit both patrolmen at the same time: "Someone's still alive in there." Almost before the patrol car stopped, the younger officer was running back up the highway to set out warning flares while the older officer hurried toward the wreck.

One look and he knew it was the kind of accident he sometimes had nightmares about. Two teen-age boys were dead in the front seat, their faces incredibly young in the glare from the flashlight.

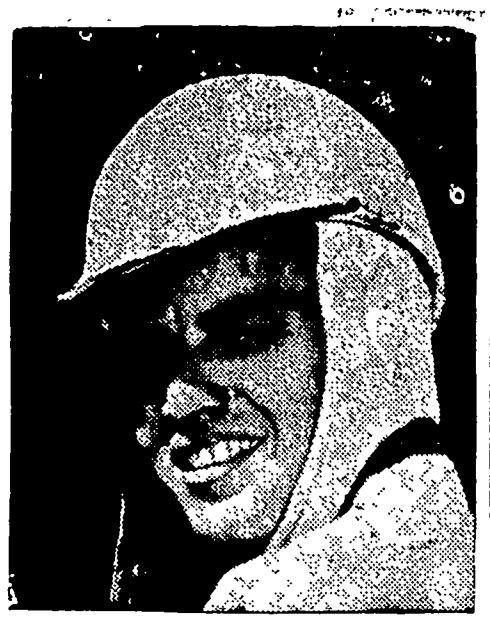
From the back the white, drained face of another boy stared at the light. He was apparently so far beyond the threshold of pain and fear that his mind did not comprehend all that had happened.

"Lie quietly, son. We'll get you out of there in a second, the patrolman said. He turned and shouted for the other officer to bring the crowbar from the patrol car.

When he heard a voice, the boy began to talk. "We didn't mean it," he said. He kept repeating the phrase while the patrolmen worked to pry away the twisted metal. When he stopped talking, the patrolmen stopped for a moment and one reached in to feel for a pulse. There was none.

From down the dark highway came the wail of the approaching ambulance. The young patrolman held his light on the face of the dead boy. "I guess there's no hurry now," he said softly.

"Turn off the flash," the older man said. "He almost looks like my own boy in there. I guess they all look something alike when they die that young."



Young Bobby Grim, Indianapolis Ind., dirt track daredevil, who holds two world's speed records, has entered and will drive the brand new Honore Offenhauser in the championship big car auto races scheduled for Iowa State Fair Grounds half-mile track, Sunday afternoon, May 24. This year's six-race program will be a test of endurance for the sprinters with a 50-lap feature event scheduled.

Garden or Golf?

"A garden is a good way to save on food," Bill the barber told Counsin Joe as he climbed into the chair yesterday.

But Joe couldn't see it—says Bill loses money if he figures the hours he spends gardening.

"I'd sooner pay food bills and relax with a game of golf," says Joe.

Then they wanted me to decide the argument. I told them they were both right—that we were lucky everyone didn't have the same hobbies and tastes. Bill does his gardening and cools off, afterwards, with a glass of ice tea. Joe plays his golf and enjoys a temperate glass of beer. Each to his own taste, and that's the way it should be. It's when we try to force the other fellow to our way of thinking, or doing, that we get into trouble.

I guess I made my point, because I saw Bill going down the street yesterday with a new rake, and Joe a new golf bag.

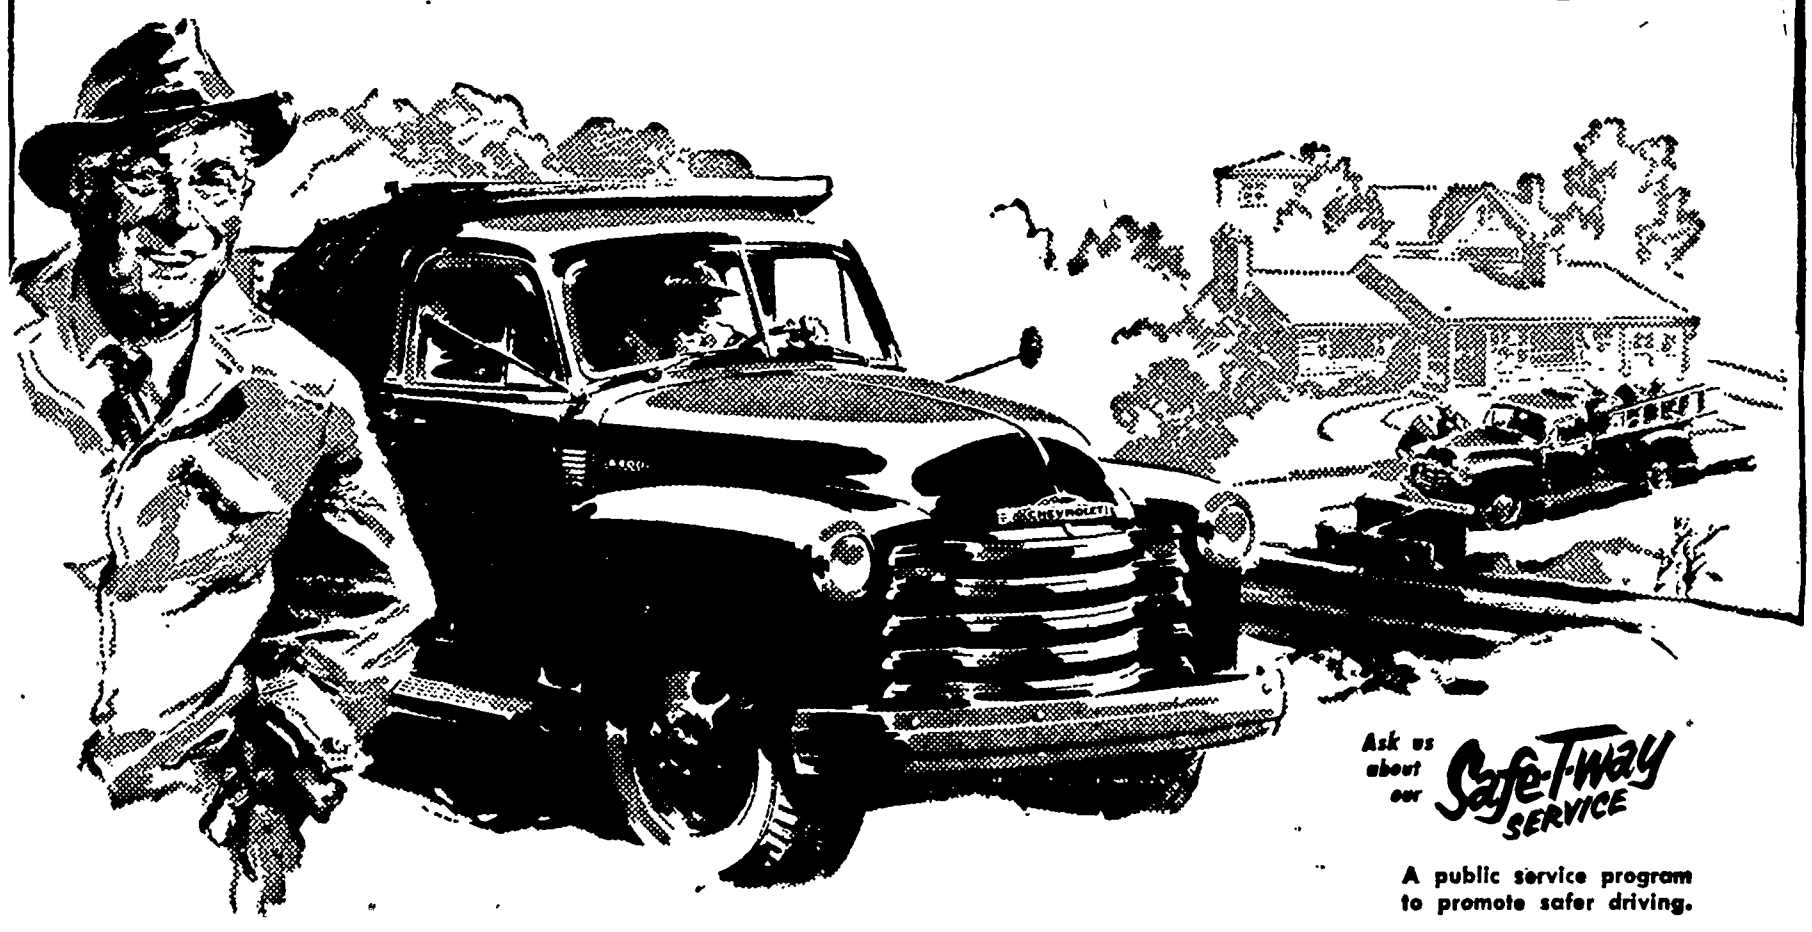
Chevrolet trucks must be the best buy!



Ask us about our Safe-T-Way SERVICE

A public service program to promote safer driving.

This year—for the 12th straight production year—truck users are buying more Chevrolet trucks than any other make. That couldn't be true unless Chevrolet trucks offered more of what you want.

Already, 1953's official sales figures tell a remarkable story of clear-cut and decisive preference for Chevrolet trucks. But, this is not surprising, for truck users everywhere are discovering how far ahead of all others Chevrolet trucks really are.

They are discovering things like the tremendous new power in advanced Loadmaster engines in heavy-duty models . . . the remarkable gasoline economy . . . the extra ruggedness and strength of heavier, more rigid frame construction.

And, in addition to all these advantages, the Chevrolet line lists for less than any other trucks of comparable size and capacity. So, before you buy any truck, stop in and see us.

Riehm To Speak At Memorial Day Services Here

Services At Park And At Cemetery

Memorial Day services, in charge of the local American Legion and Auxiliary, will be held in the Klemme park on Saturday morning, May 30th.

Curtis Riehm, Garner attorney, will give the principal address. He has a service record and a background of work with veterans' organizations that should fit him quite well for a Memorial Day address. Mr. Riehm had four years of active duty with the Engineers during World War II, serving in Africa, Italy, and the Pacific araes. From the time of his separation from the service until April 1st of this year, he was Commander of the Reserve Field Artillery Battery at Garner, and has attended summer camp each year. He is a member of both the Legion and the V. F. W., and has served both organizations in the capacity of service officer. In addition, he is a Past Commander of the Garner Post of the American Legion. He was County Attorney for Hancock County for four years, and served as county chairman of the Eisenhower Committee during the November election campaign.

Case Settled Out of Court; Jury Dismissed

In the cause of William Phillips and Warren Phillips, plaintiffs vs Alvin Stecker and Herbert Klassie, defendant, in which plaintiffs claimed damage of $1200 to a field of sugar beets allegedly damaged by a chemical commonly known as 2 4-D which defendant used to spray a field of oats adjoining the beet field and a part of a chemical allegedly drifted over on the beet field, was settled out of court late Monday by agreement of parties and the jury was dismissed for the term.

Judge T. A. Beardmore of Charles City was the presiding judge. Senneff and Buck of Britt represented the plaintiff's and Linnan and Lynch of Algona the defendants.

Lions Hear Mason City Doctor Speak

The Lions Club held their regular dinner meeting, May 20th.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Don Schaefer with eighteen members answering roll call. A delicious meal of fried chicken was served by the Band Mothers and the Lions showed their appreciation by cleaning up their plates to the last crumb.

Guest speaker was Dr. Morgan of Mason City. He gave a very interesting talk about his experiences in the field of Pathology. Special attention was given to his work on autopsy reports and also the affect of alcohol on the system in regard to drunken driving. After his talk, he answered many interesting questions in regard to this subject.

Plans are rapidly shaping up for the big Fish Day. You kids better get your rods and reels in top shape as those bullheads are really going to be biting.

To Be June Bride

JEAN MANNES

Mrs. Anna Mannes of Thompson announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Alice Jean, to Mr. Herbert Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pearson of Klemme. The wedding will take place on June 14th.

Cars Damaged In Wreck at "Y"

Tuesday, evening about 4:30, cars driven by Mrs. Wilma Owens of Mineapolis, and Menno Frohling of Goodell, were damaged when the Owens car rammed into the rear of the Frohling car at the "Y" just west of Klemme.

Frohling was driving his Dodge north on highway 69 and slowed to turn into Klemme. Mrs. Owens, who with her husband and baby daughter, was returning from a vacation trip in Texas, apparently failed to notice that the Frohling car had slowed, until it was too late. As a result, the Owens Cadillac was badly damaged in front, and the Frohling car had the trunk pushed right in against the back seat.

Luckily, no one was hurt.

School Picnic

Despite the cold and damp weather last Friday, the school picnic which was held in the town park, was well attended. The large crowd put away huge quantities of food, and the men on the ice cream dippers did a "land office" business . . . despite the fact that many people sat and shivered while they ate.

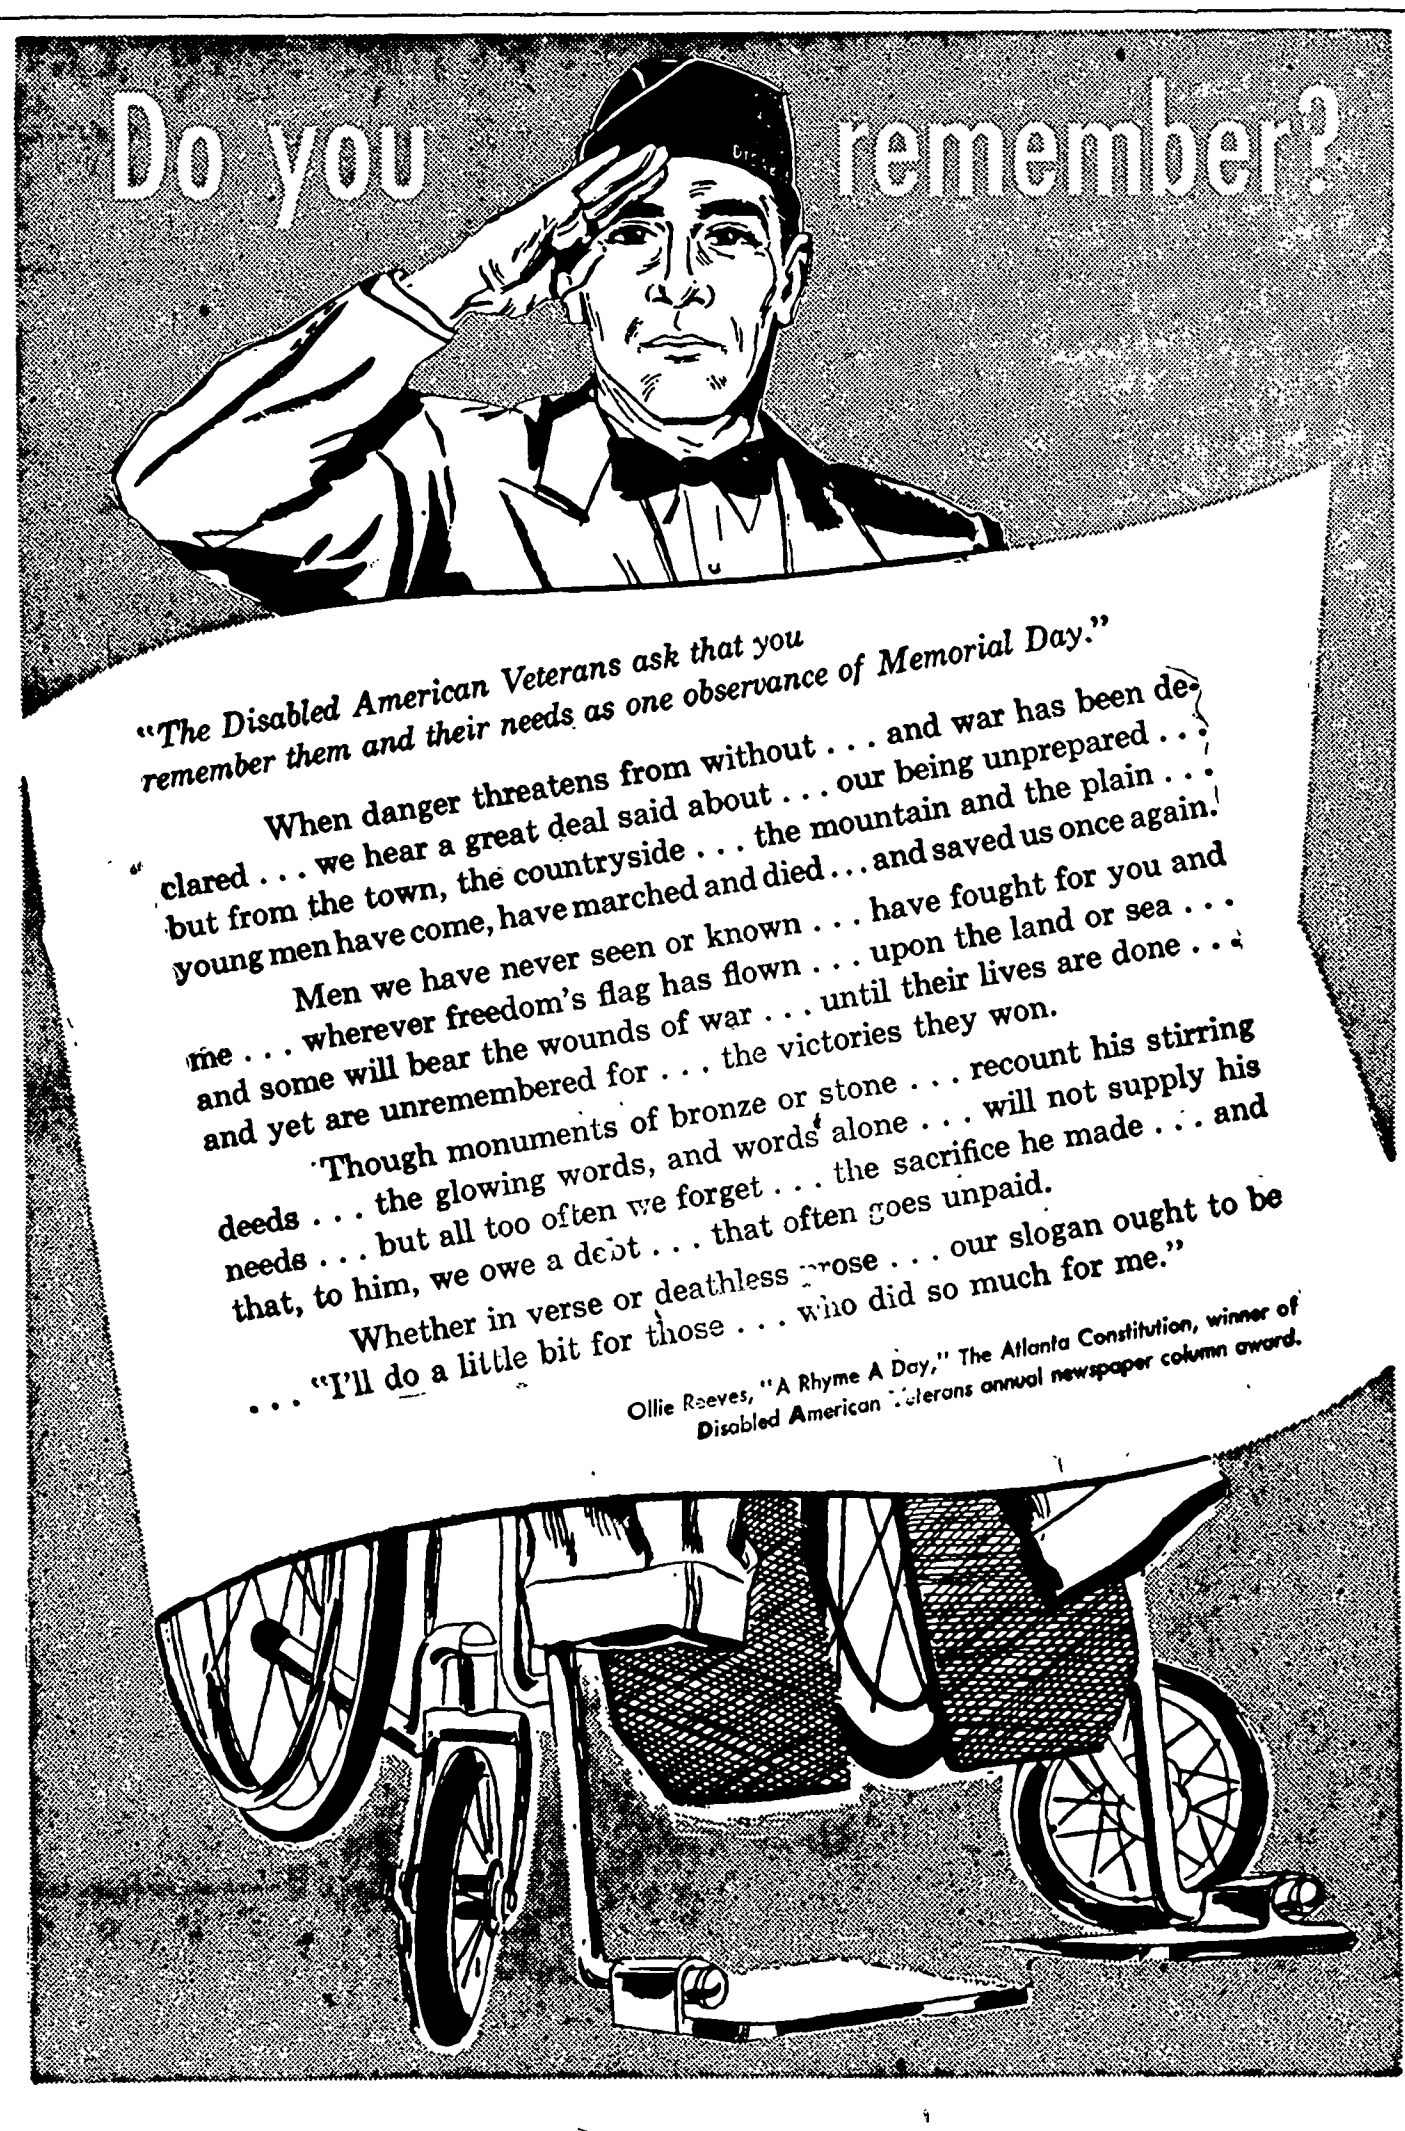
Band Concerts and Movies to Begin Next Week

Memorial Day falls on Saturday this year, and in order that all people working in Klemme business places might have the day off, Klemme stores and other business places will be closed. So that everyone can take care of their week end shopping needs, stores will be open on Friday night this week instead of the usual Saturday open date. During the rest of the summer, with the exception of the week end of the Fourth of July, stores will be open on Saturdays.

The summer entertainment schedule begins in Klemme next week. Wednesday night June 3rd will see the first free movie of the season. Movies will be shown at the same location as they have been the past two years, but rather than hiring an outside concern to put on the movies, the Klemme Commercial Club has leased a machine for the season. The concern from whom they leased the machine has trained local men in the operation of the projector, and it is hoped that savings in cost of machine and operation will enable the club to put on better movies. There will be a show each Wednesday evening throughout the summer and stores will be open.

Saturday night, June 6, the first band concert of the season will be presented. Instead of playing in the park, this year the band will be back at the old band stand next to the Wellemeyer Building. People of this vicinity have been enjoying these Saturday night band concerts for years, and the business men of Klemme hope that they will continue to derive a great deal of pleasure from them this year.

Through the cooperation of Klemme merchants some good entertainment is in store for those who are in Klemme on Wednesday and Saturday nights.



Do you remember?
"The Disabled American Veterans ask that you remember them and their needs as one observance of Memorial Day."
When danger threatens from without . . . and war has been declared . . . we hear a great deal said about . . . our being unprepared . . . but from the town, the countryside . . . the mountain and the plain . . . young men have come, have marched and died . . . and saved us once again.
Men we have never seen or known . . . have fought for you and me . . . wherever freedom's flag has flown . . . upon the land or sea . . . and some will bear the wounds of war . . . until their lives are done . . . and yet are unremembered for . . . the victories they won.
Though monuments of bronze or stone . . . recount his stirring deeds . . . the glowing words, and words alone . . . will not supply his needs . . . but all too often we forget . . . the sacrifice he made . . . and that, to him, we owe a debt . . . that often goes unpaid.
Whether in verse or deathless prose . . . our slogan ought to be . . . "I'll do a little bit for those . . . who did so much for me."

Recital Well Attended

The piano and accordion recital presented by the students of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gerardi, Tuesday evening was well attended. In fact, the gym was full. The evening's entertainment, though long, was enjoyed and the recital participants are to be commended for the way in which they presented their numbers.

Memorial Day

Don't forget that on Memorial Day you are paying tribute to a large group of people, both living and dead, who when duty called, made their sacrifices so that we might continue to live in this wonderful country in the way in which the signers of the Declaration of Independence intended.

And don't forget that right now their are a lot of our young men who have been called into the service and who are doing their part to keep our country free . . . and to lift the mantle of oppression for the peoples of other countries.

On Memorial Day, honor the dead of two world wars, and those who have died in the Korean action . . . and don't forget those who are now soldiering in the name of Freedom.

Atomic Artillery

We have watched on TV, practice firing of our country's new atomic cannon. It's a whopper! It looks pretty cumbersome, and we wonder just how maneuverable it is. In rugged terrain and inclement weather, it seems to us that it would be useless.

However, the fact that one such large field piece has been developed, seems to indicate that it will prove possible for our ordnance men and scientists to eventually come out with a lighter, more maneuverable weapon . . . one that will be able to be employed much the same as our normal artillery pieces.

Recital

Last night we went to the piano and accordion recital presented by the students of Mr. and Mrs. Gerardi. We were agreeably surprised. Watching the youngsters come on to the stage and play their numbers was a lot of fun.

We have always been sorry that in our younger days we did not have the patience to practice when we had our chance to learn piano. There were to many footballs, baseballs, fishing poles, swimming holes, etc. We wouldn't have missed out on all these outdoor sports, and are not sorry that we took part in them, but we know that there was also plenty of time to spend on music . . . if we had spent it.

Now that we are older, we find that we don't partake so much of the more violent physical recreation, and we wish that we were able to relax for an hour or so, occasionally, with a musical instrument.

Our advice to the youngsters who took part in the recital last night is that they continue to practice, and get as much out of their music as they possibly can. Even if they don't get to be professional entertainers, we think that someday they will be able to get a lot of personal enjoyment out of being able to make their own music.

10 YEARS AGO—

Thieves broke into the Kluckhohn Store sometime Saturday night and stole a small amount of change and a quantity of candy bars. Nothing else seemed to have been disturbed. Entrance to the store was gained by breaking out a pane of glass in a rear door and sliding a bolt that held the door shut.

Pfc. Wayne Buseman, of Los Angeles, arrived home Saturday to spend a furlough visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Buseman and other relatives.

Mrs. A. H. Dulmes, of Brigham, Utah, came Tuesday for a visit until Saturday with Klemme friends. Her son, Dick is visiting with his grandmother and aunt at Grundy Center. Mrs. Dulmes and Dick expect to spend a month visting relatives in Iowa, Ilinios and Wisconsin. Capt. Dulmes visited here a few days ago for a day when he convoyed a trainload of patients from Brigham to an army hospital in Texas.

20 YEARS AGO—

Miss Novella Bredbenner received a certificate as evidence of superior scholarship by her performance in the Every Pupil contest in American Literature and is thereby made eligible to participate in the state scholarship contest to be held in Iowa City on June 5 and 6. We congratulate Novella on this achievment. Miss Galbreth, who is her American Literature teacher will accompany her to Iowa City.

Gerald Koerner returned home from the hospital at Sioux City last week Monday. He has been there since he fell from a pole onto icy ground and injured his heels. He is surely glad to be home as he is able to be up and around the house and yard and it is much more enjoyable then being in a hospital. However, he expects to go back about June first and see if everything is coming alright.

Miss Norma Barz gave her fifth and sixth graders a real treat Saturday afternoon, taking them all as her guests to the show at the Avery Theartre in Garner. They certainly had a very enjoyable afternoon and all declare Miss Barz a delightful hostess.

30 YEARS AGO—

Mr. Hoffman, of Mason City, who has the contract for the construction of the school house addition, was in Klemme the past few days looking over the ground. We understand building will begin very soon.

Reva Elder had a birthday last week Tuesday, and in honor of the great event her mother invited six of her little girl friends to a supper with her. They all declare a fine time was had.

A Iowa Falls ice cream manufacturer now trucks his ice cream instead of shipping by express. The truck comes through here about every day now and makes all of the towns along the line. We presume they send trucks out in every direction in the same manner.

The new Fairbanks 10 ton scale is being installed at the Farmer's Elevator this week. The office will be extended also, so we understand. This will make a good improvement.

Commencement Exercises are to be held at the Camp Grounds at Garner tonight. The following students from Klemme are in the graduating class: Fred Arnold, Ella Barz, George Bergmann, Edna Bergmann, Edwin Bock, Adolph Lauritzen, Donald Stille and Howard Wiles.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

Del was kissing the children goodbye when Charlie walked into the front room, ready to go. When the kids turned their small faces toward him, he suddenly wondered if he were smart trying to cram a quick trip into the Memorial Day weekend.

The youngsters would be safe with their grandparents, of course, but what if he and Del didn't come back? There could be an accident. He had never had such a thought before. He must be getting old, losing confidence. When he kissed the youngsters he could not shake off the touch of fear. It was as though he were risking too much for nothing.

"Don't get impatient on this trip," he said to Del as they drove out of town. "I've decided we'll just take it easy—drive about 55 maybe."

For an hour he moved easily along the highway. He watched approaching cars carefully. The vague worry in his mind had settled into a fear that some oncoming car would swerve across the line and leave him helpless to avoid an accident.

But traffic was surprisingly light. He began to think about the office and a new system that would speed up work. When once he looked down, he was doing 63 miles an hour.

The trip was really too long for the time they had. The rich, uneventful land slipped past monotonously. Driving became a chore. Traffic became thicker and delays and slow-downs more irritating. By late morning, all he wanted to do was "get there and get started back."

When he glanced down for the last time the speedometer was showing 78 miles an hour and yearning for 80. Well, he had to go that fast to get around the "goof" ahead poking along at 60.

Let's leave Charlie there. What we might see in the next few minutes would be too terrible—considering the two youngsters waiting at home.

Schooldays For Lost Island Bullheads

For probably the first time in history, an airplane has been used to study bullhead populations in a lake.

Two weeks ago Conservation Officer Supervisor Joe Hopkins was flying over Lost Island Lake when he noticed large numbers of bullheads just below the surface. He immediately notified state fisheries biologists, Earl Rose and Tom Moen, who flew over the lake to study the phenomenon.

Flying at low altitude, they saw hundreds of schools of large, adult bullheads about a foot below the surface. Some of the schools were circular, some were hour-glass shaped, and the larger ones were about a half-acre in size. Rose reported that most of the fish were of the same size that have been appearing in traps: 9 and 10-inch bullheads. The fliers had a much better look than could be had by boat, since such large schools often sound when approached by boat.

The reason for such schooling of bullheads is unknown, and does not seem to be connected with either mating activities or lack of oxygen in a lake. Schooling may occur almost anytime during the spring and summer, sometimes so near the surface that bullheads even "sunburn" their heads by sticking their noses out of the water.

Rose stated that the schools at Lost Island covered half the lake, and that there were more large bullheads just under the surface than will ever be caught by anglers.

And there wasn't a single fisherman.

Bass Season Opens

Every species of game fish in Iowa may be legally taken after midnight, May 30, when the season opens on Smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, and rock bass. Fishing for largemouth and smallmouth has been legal since May 2 in the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers and the inland waters of Lee County. Daily catch and possession limits of black bass are five fish, limits of rock bass are fifteen, with no minimum length.

With summer here, don't overlook Iowa's larger frogs, which provide delicate and delicious meat. Bullfrogs may be found in most of the southern part of the state, and may be taken at night with frog gigs or spears. The daily catch and possession limits of bullfrogs is one dozen, and for all other species the daily limit is four dozen and the possesson limit eight dozen.

Rock Island Lines To Give Scholarships

The Rock Island Lines today announced plans for setting up university scholarships for present employees of the railroad or their sons.

J. D. Farrington, president, said certain universities are being contacted regarding the program which will provide tuition and books for a four-year course in enginnering.

Two scholarships will be arranged for the Fall quarter, and next year two additional scholarships will be provided, making four in all on a continuing basis.

In addition, the students will be provided with summertime jobs on the railroad. On completion of their college courses, the young men will be offered appointments to the railroad training program, although they will not be required to remain with the railroad as a condition of the scholarships. The training program will be for a period of one to two years, at which time the employee-trainee may be qualified to assume officer status in the operating department, Mr. Farrington said.

The universities being contacted are in the area served by the railroad. Students will be required to pass the regular entance requirements and maintain a satisfactory academic record to stay in the program, Mr. Farington said. He added that work peformed during summer vacations will be credited to the student's on-job training program following college graduation.

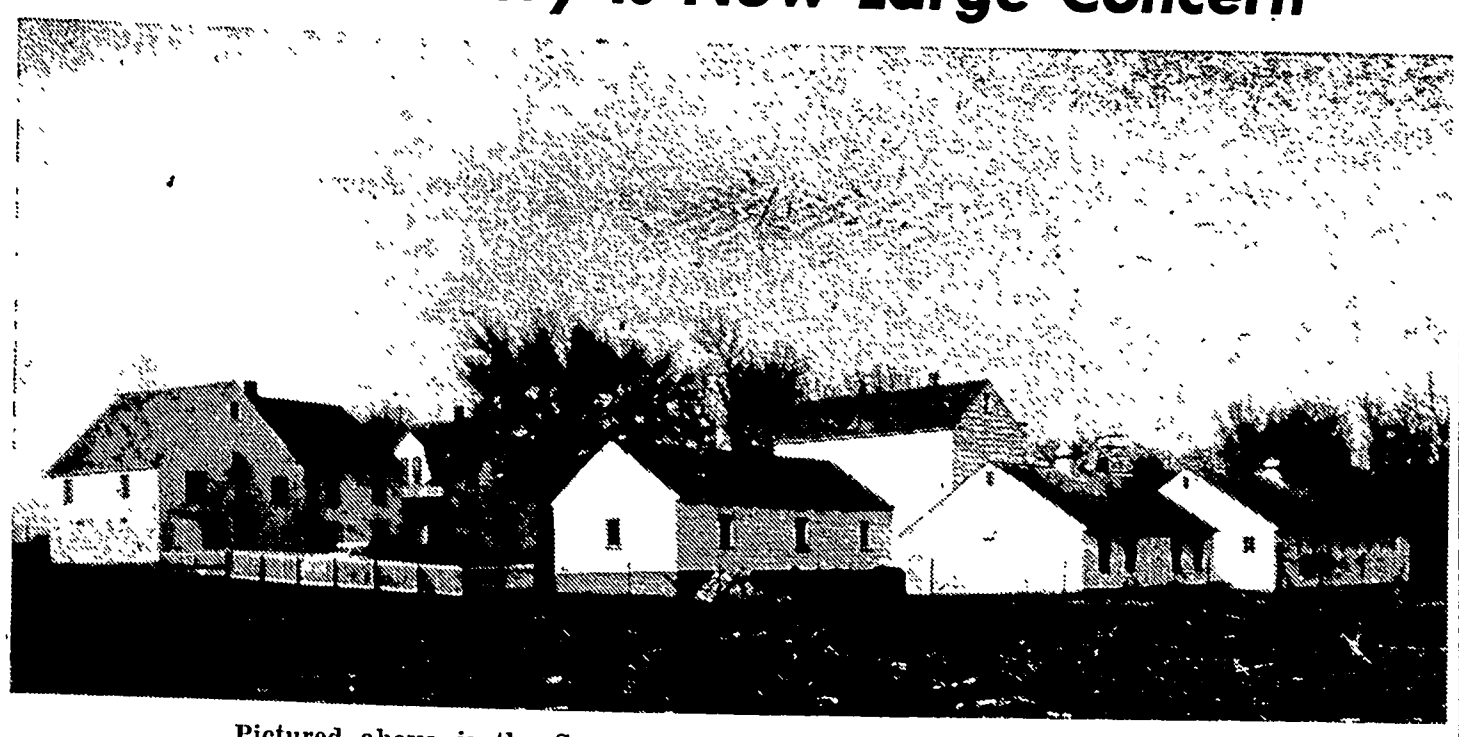
Swanson Hatchery Is Now Large Concern



Pictured above is the Swanson Hatchery, located in the southwest part of Klemme. This business was started in 1927 by Albert Swanson on his farm northeast of Klemme. In 1938, it was moved to its present location so that it would be more accessible to customers. Since that time it has continued to grow. Present incubators have a capacity of 80,000 eggs.

Leonard Swanson, managing partner of the hatchery, is shown here with one of his helpers and some of the chicks that are ready to be shipped out. The "pooch" helps in the hatchery routine by catching and holding any chicks that might happen to get loose.

Shown here are just a few of the 150,000 Leghorn chicks that are hatched during a normal season at the Swanson Hatchery. Most customers prefer to get their chicks when they are about ten days old, but some take them right from the incubators, like the little fellows shown above.

School for Firemen at Garner During June

The firemen of Hancock County are invited to attend a firemanship training school according to Chief Ed Ziesmer of Garner, Ia. Arrangements have been made for the Garner fire department and the Engineering Extension Service of Iowa State College to co-sponsor a county-wide fire school at Garner, on Wednesday evenings, June 3, 10, 17, and 24, 1953 at 7:30 p. m.

The instructor will be Mr. Charles F. Lucke, Field Instructor in Firemanship Training of Iowa State College, who will conduct classes in the handling of fire equipment, pumper operation, fire department organization, inspection, fire prevention and equipment maintainance. Mr. Lucke will be in Garner on four Wednesday evenings, to teach these classes.

Certificate of attendance will be issued by Iowa State College, Engineering Extension Service, Firemanship Training program to all those who attend this school.

Chief Ziesmer states, "This program of firemanship training in Iowa has met with success. Iowa firemen are interested in learning better firemanship. Firemen are frequently called upon to risk their personal safety in situations that are rapidly changing for the worse. For their own protection as well as to permit them to use their equipment and apparatus wisely, a school such as this is worthwhile. All of firemen of Hancock County are urged to attend these sessions."

"There were many fires in Iowa last year; well over a hundred citizens of this state lost their lives from fire accidents", Chief Ziesmer continued. "We urge every citizen of Garner and Hancock County to give thought to preventing fires.

According to Mark Brosier of Iowa State College who is in charge of the firemanship training program there are hundreds of Iowa firemen who attend these schools each year. The Iowa Firemanship Training Advisory Committee, consisting of representatives from Iowa firemen's organization, the State Fire Marshal and others interested in firemanship training, are interested in seeing that every community in the state has an opportunity to better trained firemen.

When Is Military Liability Extended To Age Thirty-Five?

This is the seventh in a series of short articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.

Registrants who were in a deferred classification on June 19, 1951, or who have been given a deferred classification after the date of June 19, 1951, remain liable for military training and service until they attain the age of 35. Thus a registrant who is now classified in deferred category has his military liability extended by law for a period of 9 years. Ordinarily one is not liable for military training and service after he reaches 26 years of age.

It is important to distinguish between a classification which is a "deferment" and one which is not a deferment—the latter sometimes called an "exemption". The so-called "exemption" does not carry with it the extension of liability to age 35. It is the deferment which extends military liability.

The following classifications, existing on or after June 19, 1951, and before the registrant reaches the age 26, constitutes deferments which extend military liability to age 35;

(a) Class I-D—as member of National Guard who enlisted prior to reaching age 18 years 6 months.

(b) Class I-D—as member or ROTC or other officer training program.

(c) Class I-D—as accepted aviation cadet applicant.

(d) Class I-S—as high school or college student.

(e) Class II-A—as registrant occupationally deferred.

(f) Class 11-C— as registrant given agricultural deferment.

(g) Class II-S—as registrant given college deferment.

(h) Class III-A—as registrant maintaining bona fide family relationship with child or children or because of extreme hardship or privation to dependents. (This does not include registrant in III-A on June 19, 1951, because of wife only. His liability was not extended).

(i) Class IV-B—deferment extended to certain government officials.

(j) Class IV-F—as registrant who is physically, mentally or morally unacceptable.

Safe Water Supply is Essential for Health

An adequate and safe water water supply is the first essential for a farm water system, Paul Henderson, County Extension Director.

Sanitary engineers of the Iowa State Health Department tell us that from 70 to 75 percent of the private water supply samples sent to the laboratory for test are found to be unsafe for human consumption.

The number of shallow, dug wells found contaminated is higher than the number of deep, drilled wells. This can usually be traced to surface runoff from nearby sources of pollution such as barnlots, pit privies, septic tank, cesspools, etc. In limestone areas pollution can seep into a well along underground crevices and through a poorly constructed pit or well wall.

Henderson recommends that a well should meet certain minimum construction standards. He says it should have a water-tight casing extending below ground level a distance of 10 to 20 feet, depending on soil conditions and well location.

A sample submitted from a well with a wooded platform will be tested by the laboratory, but even though found safe, it can easily and soon after become contaminated.

Dug well walls can be repaired by replacing the stone or brick with water-tight concrete. An easy method of doing this repair work is to place large sewer tile in the well so there is a 6 to 8 inch wall between the tile and the old stone or brick wall. After some graded sand and gravel is placed in the bottom of this trench, it should be filled with concrete.

Any well, whether dug or drilled, should be equipped with a water-tight top, preferably reinforced concrete. There should also be a water-tight seal installed between the drop pipe and well casing, which in turn should extend at least 6 inches above platform floor.

Because well pits are often damp, poorly drained and subject to flooding and contamination from surface runoff, Henderson suggests that an above ground insulated pump house be constructed to shelter the pump, pipes and pressure tank. One or two thermostatically controlled heat lamps will provide enough heat to keep water from freezing and will use only a small amount of electrical energy during the season.

Whether you're putting a new pressure system on a new or old well, you should safeguard the health of your family and your farm visitors by making sure that your drinking water supply is bacteriologically safe, says Henderson. You can get more information on well sanitation and water supply testing from the health department or from Henderson's office.

Safety Dept. Expects 450 Traffic Accidents Over Coming Week End

What drivers forget to do this Memorial weekend will cause at least six deaths, 190 injuries and 450 traffic accidents, the state safety department estimated Thursday.

Pearl W. McMurry, safety commisioner, said the prediction is based on the accident record for Memorial Day weekend last year. "Moments when drivers forget safe practice will cause most of the tragic and costly accidents," he said.

According to department records, the worst Memorial Day weekend in the history of the state occured in 1941 when 11 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

McMurry pointed out that traffic and travel have "increased enormously since then. This fact alone should warn drivers of the dangers they will face this weekend."

Highway Patrol Chief David Herrick joined McMurry in urging drivers to remember these safety rules for Memorial Day driving:

1. Start your trip early enough so that you can arrive on time without speeding. Drive a car that has been checked for mechanical safety.

2. Never pass unless you are sure there is plenty of clear distance ahead. Obey the yellow no-passing lines.

3. Keep your attention on the road and traffic. Keep your patience.

4. Don't depend on the other driver to do the right thing. You do it. Yield the right of way when in doubt.

5. Don't turn temper or impatience into high speed. Keep your car under control by keeping a conservative foot on the gas pedal.

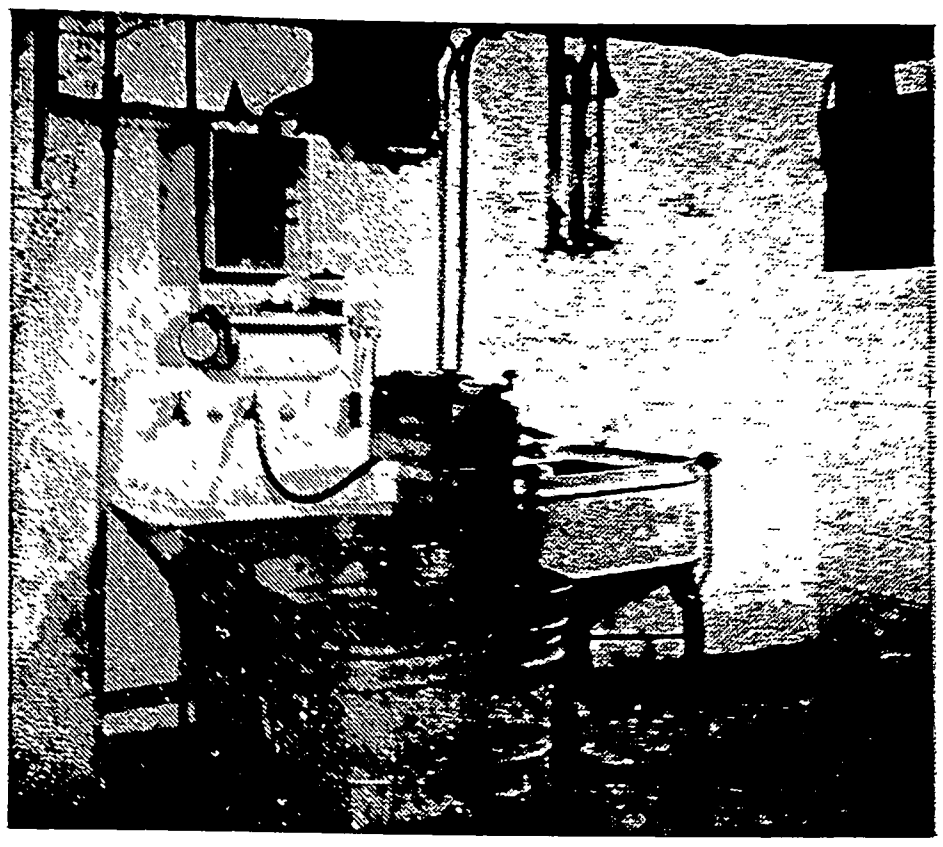
Consider Location, Equipment, Arrangement in—

Planning Your Laundry Center



This laundry equipment used to be on the back porch. But there is no more water carrying for the homemaker now that her equipment has been moved into a well-lighted basement with hot and cold running water. A shower head utilizing the same floor drain and an old kitchen sink allow the laundry area to serve double duty as a family clean-up center.

One of the greatest savings of human energy in installing running water in your home is a well-planned laundry center. The convenience of hot and cold running water will save you lifting at least 90 gallons of water each time you do the family washing according to Naomi Shank, Iowa State College extension home management specialist.

A convenient laundry center can save countless steps, backache and weariness, so it's well worth the time and effort you put into its planning.

Location

The ideal location to work toward is a first-floor workroom, says Miss Shank. Your laundry equipment should be somewhere other than the kitchen, particularly in a farm home. That's because of the extreme humidity and also the variety of odors, chemicals and greases on work clothes that go into the family wash.

If you're remodeling your home, perhaps your old kitchen would make a good workroom. Or you might use an old porch that can be insulated and heated. In a small house, the basement may be the only space available—but do consider other possibilities first, for you'll want to eliminate rather than add the carrying of heavy loads up and down steps in the years ahead.

Arrangement

Before you install faucets and drain outlets, it's well to plan your laundry space so that you are sure you'll have the most convenience from it. You'll need at least 10 x 14 feet of space, even with automatic equipment.

It's a good idea to draw the proposed space to scale and make cutout spaces of equipment. Then experiment with different arrangements to see how you can work around it.

You'll save the most time and energy if you arrange your equipment so that your work flows from right to left. And you can save lead carrying if your laundry basket is on a wagon or on a platform with free-wheeling casters to use a cart to transport your clothes and keep the clothes basket at a non-stooping work height.

Equipment

Locate your water heater near your laundry center, Miss Shank advises. This will give you the most efficient use if your hot water for it won't have a chance to cool off flowing through the pipes.

Tubs can be plumbed in with their own drains. But if space is limited you may prefer portable tubs on casters as they can be stored under counter tops when not in use. Plan on sufficient counter space and convenient ventilated storage not only for soiled clothes but also for clean clothes awaiting ironing.

Convenience Outlets

Locate safe convenience outlets close by and at least 4' up from the floor to avoid the hazardous practice of plugging into a light socket or extension cord.

About lighting—choose fixtures that will reflect all the light downward. For complete safety, have all lighting switch-controlled. You'll get the best use of both daylight and artificial light if you paint walls and ceiling white or off-white.

'53 Road Program OK'd

Hancock County supervisors Monday approved the report of Hancock County Engineer C. F. Marten recommending a public letting on the local road construction program for 1953. The board set the 2nd day of June at the hour of 1:30 p. m. as a time for letting which will be held at the courthouse in Garner. The project will consist of approximately 17.3 miles of grading which will involve approximately 75,000 cubic yards of soil and and 125,000 cubic yards of rock. Engineer Marten estimated the total cost including the purchase of right way and construction at $32,400. Work on the project is to get under way as soon after the letting as feasible.

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | KLEMME, IOWA, JUNE 3, 1953 | VOLUME 58 NUMBER 26

$1,000 Scholarship to Novella Bredbenner

CEDAR FALLS, IA.—Iowa State Teachers college here is one of five colleges in the nation to be awarded a $1,000 graduate "Ding Darling" fellowship in conservation education for 1953-54 by the National Wildlife federation, President J. W. Maucker announced Wednesday.

Official approval to the acceptance of the fellowship has been given by the finance committee of the Iowa state board of education, President Maucker said.

The fellowship is designed to support research studies in the field of conservation education and is named after J. N. (Ding) Darling, longtime champion of conservation and former cartoonist for The Des Moines Register.

Recipient of the fellowship awarded to Teachers college is Novella Bredbenner, a teacher at the Maple Grove school in Des Moines. A graduate of Teachers college, Miss Bredbenner received her two-year elementary diploma in 1939 and her bachelor's degree in 1948.

Miss Bredbenner went to Des Moines in 1944, and taught at Brooks school for two years and Greenwood for one year before going to Maple Grove in 1948.

Nature of the fellowship project at Teachers college involves an evaluation of the conservation-education training given teachers who have attended the Iowa Teachers Conservation camp during the summer sessions of 1950-53.

The evaluation will comprise Miss Bredbenner's master's degree thesis at Teachers college. She will begin work on the evaluation this summer while attending the second study session at the camp. Next fall she will begin her residence study on campus for the master of arts in education degree.

The conservation camp, in Springbrook state park near Guthrie Center, is conducted and sponsored by the Iowa state conservation commission, Iowa department of public instruction and Teachers college.

Other institutions awarded the fellowships are Long Beach, California, State college, Yale university, Cornell university and the University of Oklahoma.

Memorial Day Address By Riehm Shows Way To Honor War Dead

People who were not hand at the Memorial Day services at the Klemme Park missed out on a good address. Curtis Riehm, Garner attorney, gave a brief address, but he had considerable good material in it. He stated that flowers or words could not in any way express the feelings that were in the hearts of all who had lost loved ones through wars, but that he felt some words were necessary.

He spoke briefly, telling of the sacrifices made by these young men who have died in defense of freedom; told how they wanted to live just as badly as anyone, but were struck down in their prime. He then suggested that the best way that we could honor these men was to work constantly for peace in the world, do all that we possibly can to stop aggression, and talk up the merits of democracy at every opportunity.

In conclusion, Mr. Riehm said that these things are what these men fought and died for, and if we don't constantly strive to better things in this world then we break faith and do them no honor . . . regardless of the flowers and words.

After the services at the park, the parade formed and marched to the cemetery where the American Legion and Auxiliary held brief services honoring our war dead. Graves were decorated and a salute was rendered by a Legion firing squad.

30 YEARS AGO—

The Creamery is putting in a paved driveway at the Creamery. The paving extends from the front at the street to the rear of the building. Art Kuck and his gang of men are doing the work. When this is finished it will make a fine improvement for the creamery and will add to the convenience for the patrons and the creamery force.

This week Aaron Griemann is further improving the appearance of his garage with a coat of paint on the interior. The new cement floor is now completed and looks pretty good.

There were a lot of black bass and also pike caught at Clear Lake Sunday. Local fishermen brought in their share of the catch.

Work has begun on the school house addition. Workmen are on the job excavating and laying concrete forms. The work will be pushed rapidly as it has to be finished about September 1st.

The new speed warning signs for Klemme read like this, "Drive slow and see our city",—Drive fast and see our jail!" Old stuff but it says a mouthful.

20 YEARS AGO—

Darlene Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Barz, and Darlene June, daughter of Mr .and Mrs. Albert Etchen, were baptized Sunday by Rev. Grosshuesch at the Reformed Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Karsjens and daughter Delores visited at the Tony Tebben home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kahler had the misfortune to have a valuable horse killed by lightning last week.

Kermit Schlei was quite severely hurt in a runaway Friday when his team became frightened while hitched to a hayrack. He was badly bruised and injured and although no bones were broken he is under the care of a physician.

10 YEARS AGO—

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. "Happy" Johnson and children, Barbara, Peter and Nancy, of Humboldt, came Sunday to attend the Memorial Day Services and to enjoy their annual picnic with the Benn Coobs family and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grange of Mason City. For several years these three families have held a picnic together on Memorial Day.

Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Klotzbach of Fort Wayne, Indiana, arrived in Klemme this Wednesday morning for a visit at the parental Levi Klotzbach home.

Miss Ellen Kilgore, who has been at Las Vegas, Nevada for several months is now at Dry Lake, Nevada. Miss Kilgore is employed by the Union Pacific Railroad.

Corp. Wayne Buesman left Sunday night for his camp at Los Angeles, California, after visiting for a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Buseman and other relatives in this community.

Sgt. Asa R. Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Arnold, who has been stationed at Camp Adair, Oregon for several months, has been transferred to Salt Lake City, Utah for special schooling and training. Sgt. Arnold arrived at his new post Friday.

Final Plans For X-ray Program

"Operation X-ray with a target a free chest X-ray for every adult and child of seventh grade and above will start June 17th in Hancock county.

The program was described at a mass meeting May 18, in Garner, as the "greatest health project ever undertaken in this community." It is sponored by the Hancock County Tuberculosis and Health Association and has the approval of the Hancock County Medical Society.

Four mobile X-ray units cooperately owned by the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association and the Iowa State Department of Health will be in the county for 8 days beginning June 17th.

Complete schedules of the location of the units and the times they will be in operation will be published in all newspapers.

During the meeting June 3rd and 4th of volunteers and others interested in the X-ray program, the procedures for the health project will be outlined by Mr Fromm, Field Advisor, representing the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health Association and the State Department of Health.

"Plans have been made to X-ray all students in the seventh grade and over. Children beneath the seventh grade who have been in close contact with a known case of tuberculosis will be X-rayed if a request is made by the family physician."

Hancock is the 64th county in the state to have the mass X-ray survey. Enthusiasm of organizations cooperating in sponsoring the drive indicates the county may rank among the highest in percentage of population X-rayed.

In most counties 60 to 75 per cent of the eligibles have been X-rayed; this county is aiming at more than 80 per cent.

It takes only a few moments to have an X-ray taken on a film which is about the size of a post card. These films are then viewed by a physician trained in interpreting X-rays, noting any abnormalities.

It is possible to have a report on your chest X-ray within three or four weeks after it is taken. A little less than a month after the close of the X-ray survey, one mobile unit returns to the county. All persons whose X-rays indicate further study is needed will receive a letter giving the date, hour and place to report for the large film. Invitation to return for a large X-ray does not necessarily mean that tuberculosis is present.

The large X-rays, which are almost life-size, are also interpreted. Frequently the X-ray will show that the chest is healthy. However, if there are abnormalities, they are reported confidentially.

There is no charge made for the large X-rays, the cost of the X-ray program is supported in part from the funds contributed in the purchase of Christmas Seals.

PMA Election Plans Announced

The annual PMA township elections will be held in July and those named to the county and community committees will begin serving their one-year terms on August 3, it has been announced by A. E. Rasmussen, chairman of the Hancock County PMA committee. Similar elections will be held in every county of the state at the same time.

All voting in the townships will be done by mail this year, the same as in the past two years Chairman Rasmussen stated. However, every possible effort will be made to at least double the number of land owners and operators who mark and return the secret ballots which will be sent them by the county PMA office.

The period from July 24 has been fixed as the time for casting ballots in each township for election of three community committeemen, two alternate committeemen, and a delegate and alternate delegate to the county convention to be held in Garner on Saturday, August 1.

A county committee consisting of a chairman, vice-chairman, regular member and two alternates will be named at the county convention.

Until last year, the county and township committees were named in Iowa in December but the 1952 elections were held in midsummer due to changes in procedure which greatly advanced dates of rush periods in PMA activities. Chairman Rasmussen said it was especially important that the precedent be followed this year because it will permit the newly elected men to take office at the very start of the tremendous task of handling delivery or resealing of the near-record amount of 1952 corn placed under price support.

Also Iowa leads the nation in total capacity for generating electricity by internal combustion engines.

The FPC reports that Iowa now has 202 plants capable of generating 1,270, 895 kilowatts. New York with 211 generating plants leads the nation in plant facilities, Michigan is second by nosing out Iowa with 206 plants.

A breakdown of generating capacity shows Iowa with 30 hydro plants, 48 steam plants and 124 internal combustion engine plants.

The 124 Hawkeye internal combustion engine plants have a capacity of generating 233,353 kilowatts to lead the nation.

THE FARM OUTLOOK

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

Cow prices usually begin dropping in late spring. Last year canner and cutter cows dropped $9 per 100 pounds between late May and December. This price drop more than offset any weight gain that they put on, Francis A. Kutish, extension farm economist at Iowa State College reports.

Commercial cows dropped $10.50 per 100 pounds during the same time span a year ago. Here, also, farmers lost money by keeping cows until fall to sell.

Hancock County farmers can expect similiar trends this year, Kutish believes. Wholesale prices of commercial cow beef are beginning to weaken. Cows are harder to move steady prices on the terminal markets.

Meanwhile, the BAE is predicting that we will have trouble moving the large amounts of utility, commercial and good grade beef that is going to hit the market this fall. Western cattle groups are urging their rancher members to sell down on cows this fall.

It all adds up to this: Hancock county farmers who will be selling cows, off-quality heifers or low-grade steers that carry any weight this fall off grass are likely to be money ahead by selling them now.

At the same time, it is mighty risky to be buying cattle to go on grass at current prices. Cattle to go on grass are selling as high or higher than fat cattle. Hancock county farmers who buy cattle to go on grass this spring should be in a position and willing to take greater than usual risks, Kutish cautions.

POULTRY PICTURE

America's chick hatcheries turned out 4 percent more chicks during April than a year ago. After lagging behind last year's mark all spring, hatchings now are running ahead of the 1952 figures.

The next six weeks will write the story of how profitable eggs will be next year, Kutish believes. For in the past as slight a change in supply as 5 eggs per person has been accompanied by a drastic change on price.

Per person production of eggs this spring is estimated at 236 eggs. Prices are good. Output in 1952 was 245 eggs. Prices were punk. Back in 1951, output was 240 eggs—and prices were satisfactory.

Come January, if we have only 3 percent more pullets, our per person supply of eggs will be 237—about the same as this year. If we have 5 percent more pullets (which is probably where we will end up) we will have prices about the same as in 1951. But if we have 8 percent more pullets on hand, we will have a repeat of last year's disasterous price for eggs.

See Bang's-Free Certificate When Buying Breeding Stock

There's a big difference between an accredited brucellosis-free herd of swine and a "Bang's-tested" or "Brucellosis-tested" herd or animal, according to Extension Director Paul Henderson of Garner.

Henderson says Dr. Maynard Spear, extension veterinarian at Iowa State College, reports there are now 58 accredited brucellosis free swine herds in Iowa. Dr. Spear advises producers to see the certificate showing the herd is accredited before they buy breeding stock from it. The State Department of Agriculture issues certificates for all accredited brucellosis-free herds.

If a breeder tells you his herd or the boar he sells you is "Bang's tested" or brucellosis-tested" it means little, Dr. Spear says. Testing does not free the animal of disease. Several Iowa farmers recently have found their herds have been infected with brucellosis by boars they bought on an assurance they were Bang's or brucellosis "tested". Names of accredited herds in this county can be obtained from Extension Director Henderson or by writing to Dr. Spear.

A herd is accredited only after all the breeding stock in the herd has passed two absolutely negative tests and the owner has met the sanitary requirements necessary to keep Bang's disease or brucellosis out of the herd. Besides this, Dr. Spear points ont, the owner of an accredited herd can add new stock to the herd only from another accredited herd or after a period of isolation during which the new stock passes two clean brucellosis tests. This make a total of three tests the new stock actually passes before entering the accredited herd, as the stock must pass one clean test before it is purchased.

Interest in the accredited brucellosis-free program has been high during the past year, Dr. Spear says, with the number of accredited herds more than three times as great now as it was at this time last year.

Field Day at Ames To Be June 6

The second annual Iowa State College Agricultural Engineering Field Day will be held at Ames, Saturday, June 6, according to the announcement of Paul Henderson, Hancock County Extension Director.

The all-day program, Henderson says, will feature field demonstrations and exhibits of farm machinery and equipment that are being widely discussed by farmers these days.

A few of the highlights include field demonstrations of ridge farming equipment, application of liquid and gaseous fertilizers, corn stalk harvesters, corn cob crushers, tractor fuels, strength of different fasteners used in building construction, electrical equipment—including a new tractor-mounted arc welder, crop drying eqiupment and others.

Exhibits planned include labor saving livestock equipment, water systems, tile quality, field shelling equipment and others.

The program will begin at 9:30 a. m., Henderson reports. And he urges Hancock County farmers who are interested in what's new in farm equipment to make plans to attend the Agricultrual Engineering Field Day.

Reemployment Rights Of The Veteran

This is the eighth in a series of short articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.

Any person who leaves a permanent position to enter the Armed Forces, and satisfactorily completes his period of training and service, is entitled upon separation from service to be reinstated in his old position or to a position of like seniority, status or pay.

Reemployment rights are conditioned upon the following:

1- If the position was other than temporary and was in the employ of a private employer or the U. S. Government. (State employers are covered by State laws, if at all).

2- If the position was left to enter upon active military or naval service.

3- If the person satisfactorily completes his period of training and service.

4- If the person is still qualified to perform the duties of the position.

5- If application for reinstatement is made within 90 days from separation from service.

6- If the employer's status has not so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to reinstate the ex-serviceman.

An ex-serviceman who is thus reinstated in his old position, or to a position of like seniority, status or pay, is considered as having been on furlough and is entitled to the usual benefits in effect when he entered the service. He is not to be discharged within one year without cause from the position to which he has been restored. This job protection extends up to 4 years of military service.

Registrants who now leave a position for the purpose of being inducted into service, or for determination of physical fitness to enter service, are upon rejection to be reinstated in their old jobs if they make application for the same within a period of 30 days.

The reemployment-rights provision of the Universal Military Training and Service Act is administered by the Secretary of Labor through the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment rights. If any ex-serviceman has any problems relative to reemployment he may go to the Local Board office of Selective Service and the clerk will assist him, through the use of a referral card, to get his problem before the proper officials.

Hogs need a constant supply of water, and there should be plenty of drinking space at the troughs so the hogs can drink without effort or crowding.

June is Dairy Month...

Milk, Cream, Butter, Ice Cream, Cheese, Nonfat Dry Milk, and Evaporated Milk — healthful dairy foods from the nation's milk pail. No foods do more than dairy foods to help you feel better and live longer, stronger. They're the key to American standards of good health. That's why the whole nation salutes the dairy farmers and the dairy industry in proclaiming June as Dairy Month.

Here in Iowa dairying is vital to economic good health as well as physical health. A mainstay of Iowa's historic prosperity, last year dairying contributed over $350,000,000 to the State's wealth. That's an average of more than $3,500,000 from every Iowa county! And every penny goes into circulation to make business better for the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker!

But all these big figures don't mean dairy foods are expensive. Remember: Dairy foods are 30% of all you eat yet cost only 15% of your food dollar!

Driving Through Water is Not the Time to Make a "Big Splash"

—PHOTOS BY CHEVROLET MOTOR DIVISION

Although today's automobile has progressed far beyond the point where a severe spring rain will stall the engine, it still is not an amphibious vehicle.

Failure of the engine to bring you through normal flood waters, which might cover highways, can be attributed mostly to water on the ignition system caused by splashing. Today's engines are better equipped to combat excessive moisture and driving through water, by the use of such things as improved rubber housings on the spark plug terminals.

These pictures show the splash effect when a car "plows" into a seven-inch depth on a flooded highway.

At 20 m.p.h., the water shoots high, completely drenching the underneath part of the car. At 3 m.p.h., the forward motion of the car creates a small wave running ahead of the front bumper, with control of the vehicle greatly improved.

When you encounter an inundated highway, slow your car down and approach with caution. As a safety tip, on driving through flooded areas, remember to try out your brakes at slow speed immediately after reaching dry ground. When wet brakes do not respond to pedal action, hold brake-pedal down moderately with left foot, while right foot feeds enough power to carry car forward and dry out brakes. This action, over a few hundred yards, should restore your brakes to safe driving condition.

4-H Camp to be Held June 10 - 12

Hancock County Girls and Boys 4-H Clubs are sending 52 delegates to 4-H District camp to be held at the Methodist Camp Grounds at Clear Lake, June 10-12. Two members per club are selected to attend each year from the 11 counties in the district. Approximately 450 4-H members, 4-H leaders and extension personel attend camp.

The campers will participate in leather crafts, photography, swimming, boating and various other outdoor activities.

The 4-H members will report to camp between 11 and 12 A. M. on Wednesday, June 10. They will be dismissed from camp on Friday June 12th by 3 P. M.

The members attending from this vicinity include the following girls: Darlene Ostendorf and Eunice Helps, Avery Sunbeams; Eva Thiemann and Gracka Gerardi, Ell Tip Toppers; Susan Haberkamp and Barbara Hughes, Liberty Busy Bees; Marcella Nuehring and Norma Lacey, Twin Lake Go Getters.

Boys attending are: Byron Heginger and Kenny Langlitz, Avery-Twin Lake Hustlers; Egon Weaver and LuVerne Josten, Ell Midgets; Jerry Zrostlik and Vincent Buzicky, Liberty Go Getters;

Mrs. August Josten and Mrs. LuVerne Nelson are the girls' leaders attending.

Water Aids In Efficient Livestock Feeding

Hancock County farmers can insure efficient use of feed supplies and efficient gains by providing an adequate supply of water at all times for their livestock, according to Extension Director Paul Henderson.

Henderson advises keeping the feed and water supply close together so livestock will not have to travel long distances. The water supply should also be convenient to shade, he suggests.

During the fattening period, pigs need a gallon or more of water per day per 100 pounds of live weight. Dairy calves need an ample supply of fresh water even when they are being fed skim milk. They drink water several times a day, sipping a little at a time. Two-year-old fattening steers need about 10 gallons of water per head per day.

Henderson suggests that if you use a pond as your source of water supply it would be advisable to fence it and to lead the water from it by a pipe emptying into a drink tank. There is danger of foot rot and contamination of the water when stock wades into a pond or reservior.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowans to the Rescue!

You can't keep a good man down . . . or a good Iowa town, either.

I suppose few Iowans know that the town of Pomeroy, Ia. was blown right off the map back in 1893. A terrific cyclone literally wiped it out.

But that just gave folks a chance to show what fine neighbors they were. Money, lumber, everything poured in to rebuild Pomeroy, aid its survivors.

Everyone helped. And everyone in Pomeroy received help, regardless of who he was.

That's the kind of neighborliness which has made Iowa great. Right in our own neighborhood, we don't determine the quality of a man's citizenship by the size of his house, or whether he prefers coffee or a temperate glass of beer, or what lodge he belongs to. We judge him by his helpfulness to others, his tolerance for the rights of others . . . the way he follows the Golden Rule of "do unto others."

Isn't it wonderful to live in Iowa, where folks are like that?

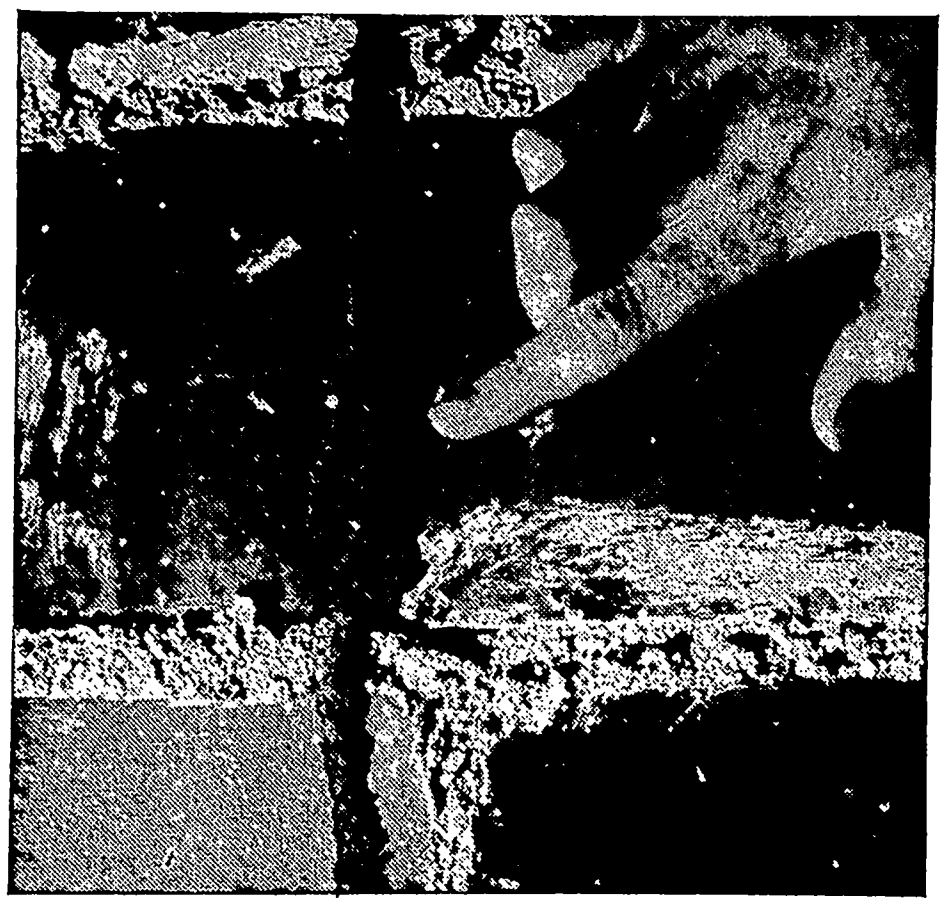
Here Are Danger Signals That Can Mean—

Termites at Work!



Here's a sure sign of termites—a crumbly-looking brown shelter tube running over foundations or up the inside of basement walls. Termites build these tubes to take them from the soil to the wood they feast upon, but often they have direct access to the wood because of careless construction and don't need to build these tell-tale tubes.

Any house can fall prey to termites. They may start in the day a building goes up and chew away, unsuspected, for years—until a weakened structure and bulging or sagging floors show up. Learn to recognize danger signs early. You can either stop termites from doing further damage or kill chances of their getting into your house undetected.

Termites live underground and eat cellulose to survive, explains Harold Gunderson, Iowa State College extension entomologist. The workers are wingless, about 1/8 to 3/16 inches long, and white or yellowish in color. They have no "wasp waist."

Careless Construction

In poorly-constructed houses where wood touches the soil or is easily accessible from the soil around cement edges, termites can get in without being seen.

In well-constructed buildings where supporting pillars, porch and basement stair stringers are set on concrete above floor level, termites have to build a shelter tube to get to the wood and this gives them away. (Termites would dry out and die if exposed to open air.)

If your house or barn has any of the poor construction features mentioned or has unexcavated areas that are not opened up, watch out. To play it safe and protect your investment, you should break contact with the soil by having pillars and steps set on concrete. It's advisable to replace wooden porch steps with pre-cast concrete steps, available at most lumber yards. Also open up unexcavated areas (often found under porches or additions) so that you can inspect them. Here's where you're most apt to find tell-tale brown shelter tubes.

Termite-Control

If you find any sign of termites call a professional termite control operator. Here's what he should do to termite-proof your house.

(1) He'll make sure all contact between soil and the wood of the building is broken and may replace badly damaged timbers. Some operators simply designate necessary carpentry work. (2) He'll drill into voids in the foundation wall and treat them with arsenic, DDT, chlordane or other poisonous compound.

(3) He'll dig a deep trench around the outside of the building next to the foundation, poison foundation and soil that refills the trench. This is important.

(4) He'll open up all unexcavated areas, poison the soil and inside walls and put in a inspection door. (5) He should be contracted to reinspect your house twice a year.

When You Build

If you are getting ready to build, look over the blueprints critically for termite-thwarting construction features. Better still have a termite control operator check them.

Portable Shade Serves Two Purposes

Pigs do better when they have plenty of shade in summer. But most hog producers find it hard to provide enough good shade.

Here is a portable metal shade. It was first developed by practical Iowa hog producers and proved successful. The shelter is 10 by 20 feet. The back wall is hinged so it can be raised in summer to make 4 or 5 feet of added shade. It provides shade for 70 to 75 growing pigs. It can be pulled easily by a tractor.

Detailed working plans for making it have been completed this spring by agricultural engineers at Iowa State College. You can get the plans through your local county extension director or from the agricultural engineering service at Iowa State College for the "Summer and Winter Portable Hog Shelter."

John Shepard, Master Swine Producer at Boxholm, first used such a shed a few years ago. Then a like shed was used on the Max Bailey farm at Ames. The idea was picked up and brought to the college by E. L. Quaife, extension animal husbandman. Agricultural engineers examined the structure, worked out minor changes and developed plans and specifications for construction.

In winter the open sides of two shelters are faced together and fastened with a piece of wire around the uprights at the sides, making a shed 20 by 20 feet.

Being light, it is staked down with fence posts at each corner in summer to hold it in case of wind. Bailey says he has avoided trouble from wind by being sure the back flaps are secured in the open position and by setting the shelter east and west. Southwest winds are most likely to hit hard enough to cause trouble unless the shelter is staked down.

Bailey says when he first used this kind of shed he set it beside his old straw-top shade. The pig preferred the metal shade, evidently because it reflected the heat and was cooler beneath.

When the ground under this shelter gets dusty, the shelter is moved to new ground. When it is used in fall or winter it can be moved to new ground whenever the bedding needs changing. Bailey says he likes clean corncobs for bedding.

Agricultural engineers say that though it is light, its size makes it hard to load on a truck. Tenant farmers, they say may prefer a portable shade measuring 10 by 10 feet, which loads easier for moving on the road. If you want the smaller portable shade, ask for Midwest plan 72690 from your county extension director.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

The busy citizens who passed the boys on the street that afternoon had no idea they were brushing close to the joint holders of incredible wealth. The boys were just out of school for the summer. Among them they owned every summer day coming for the next three months.

Every dollar in the Farmers bank on the corner couldn't buy what these 10-year-olds inherited when the teacher rubbed the last chalk mark off the blackboard.

The boys passed through town, sometimes idling along as though overwhelmed with good fortune, sometimes running and jumping in the dance children must have originated when the first school closed its doors.

They were soon out of the business district and some urge to express their freedom turned them into the alleyways in the residential section. Walking there along an unaccustomed way behind the sunflowers and the fences seemed more appropriate to the adventure.

They were running again when they burst out of an alley into the street. It was an hour before the usual time for school to let out. It was a place children were not expected. It was the first fatal accident in three years in that town when the boy leading the group went under the wheels of the car.

He lay in the street while all the unspent wealth of his summer days drained away from him. All the dollars in the Farmers bank back on the corner could not buy it back, or buy forgetfulness for the driver.

The schools are letting out. Look for children wherever they might conceivably be, not just where you expect them to be.

Dean Luhman of Radcliff had a narrow escape when a boiler blew up on the U. S. naval carrier Bennington in late April. Luhman had just stepped out of the boiler room and was on a ladder leading to the upper deck, when the explosion occured. He was slightly singed in the blast which killed eleven members of the crew.

Feeding Grain on Pasture May Help Cattlemen as Prices Decline

Hancock County cattle feeders may find pasture a valuable part of their feeding program this year, if they combine it with grain, according to Hancock County Extension Agent, Paul Henderson, of Garner.

Yearling cattle full-fed grain on good grass-legume pasture at Western Iowa Experimental Farm, at Castana, were ready for market as soon and with as good finish as those fed in drylot. The pasture replaced the protein supplement and hay in drylot program. The pasture cattle sold a little lower because of the chance of yellow color in the fat.

Another possibility is to put the cattle on pasture alone for 50 to 60 days in May and June, Henderson says. Then full-feed with grain beginning July 1. This system makes use of forage when it is in lush growth and high-producing. Over the years, Iowa State College test cattle fed on grass alone made nearly half their total summer grains during May and June on alfalfa-brome pasture. This program delays the market day somewhat, but it uses more pasture and saves on grain costs as well as protein supplement and hay.

Henderson says Richard McWilliams, extension animal husbandman at Iowa State College, believes the tests indicate that local farmers can work out a practical method of combining grass and grain under 1953 conditions.

Cattle that have been wintered mainly on roughage with minimum grain to gain about 1 pound per day could graze without grain during May and June, McWilliams suggests. Then after 1½ pounds per day, might well go to pasture on a full feed on grain.

Pasture can be used in the 1953 cattle feeding program. But adjust to the times, McWilliams advises. A grain-pasture combination in 1952 put cattle on the market earlier in the fall at higher prices than cattle grazed all summer without grain. As 1953 also appears to be one of declining fat cattle prices, the feed-cost savings to be made on pasture should be used in a program that gets the cattle to market before the peak of fall prices is past.

Iowa Farm Labor Wages Per Hour Highest in U. S.

Iowa's farm hands are the highest paid in the nation, according to a U. S. department of agriculture report.

On an hourly wage scale, Iowa's hired men for farm work receive $1.07 without board and room. This is 13 cents an hour higher than the other "dirt" farming states pay.

However, the state development commission points out that when classed with fruit raising states Iowa's farm hands rank third highest for hourly pay.

Washington fruit growers pay their hired men without board and room $1.18, Oregon, $1.10.

Also, Iowa's farm hands rank 10th in the nation for monthly pay with board and room compared to fruit raising and cattle ranching states, but still the highest for grain and livestock farming states.

With board and room, Iowa's hired men receive $142 a month, this is $23 above the national average for farm hands.

Washington state's $196 a month with board and room is the nation's top pay. Montana pays $164; Idaho, $171; Wyoming, $160; Arizona, $150; Utah, $190; Nevada, $168; Oregon, $173; and California, $171.

Dairy chore time goes down with the introduction of running water and water heaters to the milk room.

County Delegates to 4-H Convention Announced

Fifteen 4-H club girls and two leaders will make up the Hancock County delegation to the 24th Annual 4-H Girl's State Convention, June 17 - 20, at Iowa State College, according to Elsie Mae VanWert, county extension home economist.

Delegates from this vicinity include: JoAnn Burgess, Klemme, Avery Sunbeams; Doreen Lackore, Garner, Ell Tip Toppers; Patty Legge, Garner, Liberty Busy Bees; and Faye Janssen, Goodell, Twin Lake Go Getters, and County president, Eunice Hueneman, Garner, Liberty Busy Bees.

The 24th annual session will open Wednesday evening, June 17, although delegates and their leaders will register in on the Iowa State campus early Wednesday and immediately begin participation in chorus, solo, 4-H creed and Better Grooming activities.

Central theme for the 3-day program will feature the 4-H girl as a growing personality and a vital member of her home and group. Highlights of the Convention will include election of a new slate of state officers, Thursday evening, and a dramatic presentation, "The Home We Build", Friday evening. The Hancock delegation will be represented in this part of Convention. Eight of the girls will present the Square Dance "Red River Valley" and other members will sing in the chorus.

Special programs on foods and nutrition, clothing and home furnishings will be given each afternoon.

California Behind Iowa In Farm Income Race

In the race for national leadership in cash receipts from farm marketings, Iowa has set a hot pace for her perennial rival, California.

Iowa trailed California in 1952 by $478 million in total cash receipts, but the Hawkeye state led the nation in livestock receipts last year.

The state developement commission says reports from the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics indicated Iowa is leading the nation in total farm cash receipts for January and February of this year with $452. 393.000.

This is nearly $100 million more than cash receipts from farm marketings listed by California and nearly double the total figure reported by Texas.

Iowa's current rate of farm market receipts is about $50 million ahead of 1952.

The increase in Iowa's cash receipts was noted in crops. Last year for the first two-month period marketing of crops amounted to $47,521,000 while the figure for the same period this year has jumped to $149,-812,000.

The report noted a drop in the 1953 receipts for livestock and products during the January-February period.

In 1952 livestock receipts in the two-month period were $360,058,000 while this year's livestock receipts dropped to $302,581,000 for the same period.

Died

When a windstorm nudged a barn off its footings and across the barnyard lot at the Carl White farm near Waverly, four cows were killed.

KILLED

Two southern Iowa men were electrocuted, within a single hour, in two separate accidents in Marion county recently. William McNeil, of Albia, was killed by a high voltage line in a coal mine, Charles Anderson, of Chariton, was killed while drilling a well, when an iron pipe came in contact with a high voltage line.

Tornado Sunday Caused Damage Near Klemme

Buildings Destroyed, Some Stock Lost

Sunday night's severe electrical storm, accompanied by high winds and heavy rain, gave Klemme a good 2 inches of rain. The rain was good for crops in this vicinity, but the wind got out of hand in places.

We got word Monday morning that there had been a tornado in the section southeast of Klemme, so we went out and looked over the damage.

As near as we could tell the storm started southeast of Goodell, and cut its destructive path from there to the Linden Ranch straight east of Klemme. The storm traveled in the usual northeasterly direction, but at times it was a twister. We saw one place where a group of large cottonwoods were uprooted and laying in every direction.

First farm to receive damage, was that of Pete Bohning, 2 miles south and a mile east of Goodell. From there it traveled northeast to the Virgil Nolte farm. Both of these places lost their barns, and had other minor damage. Melvin Buseman was next hit. He had lots of trees broken off in his grove and lost the roof from his kitchen and back porch. Steve Dorenkamp lost his barn, and a large chimney was toppled from the house at the Edgar Mayhew farm. In the same area, Ed Smalley, mink rancher, had over 200 mink loose during the storm. By morning he caught all but 20 or so of them. They were silver blue mink and quite expensive.

From this area southeast of Goodell, the storm moved onto the Harvey Steenblock place, 2½ miles east of Goodell. There it really cleaned house. Nothing was left but the house and the machine shed, and the machine shed had a great long stringer from the barn drove squarely into the roof. Another Steenblock, living just a mile north and a mile east also had considerable damage and power lines were down near the Avery Center School. Next damage was 3½ miles south and 3 miles east of Klemme at the Andrew Lauen farm, were a barn and a small corn crib were destroyed. From there it traveled on east to Hilko Barkemas where it got a silo and we believe a barn. Next place damaged was Linden Ranch. They lost a silo and some other buildings damaged.

Closer to Klemme, Bill Finn, who lives a mile and a half east of town, lost a silo.

Neighbors were busy at many of the places we visited, helping to clean up the debris left by the storm. We don't know how much damage was done as far as cash evaluation is concerned, but we do know that it looked mighty big to the people whose places were involved.

For Your Benefit

Through the efforts of the Hancock County Tuberculosis Association and the County Medical Society, a county-wide chest X-ray program is being carried on, and it's for your benefit.

A mobile X-ray unit will be in Klemme on three different days in order that everyone may avail themselves of the opportunity of this free check on their health. Many chest abnormalities can be brought to light through the medium of the small X-rays taken by the mobile unit . . . and at no charge. If there is anything suspicious that shows up in these small X-rays, subjects will be invited to submit to having larger X-rays taken so that a more complete study can be made . . . still with no charge. Among the things that may show up are enlarged hearts, tumors, tuberculosis, and other abnormalities.

Certainly, if a person has any of these things, he would want to know about it. Ordinarily, such things as X-rays and examinations are put off, due to expense and one thing another. Now, however, it can be had free. We hope that everyone will see fit to take advantage of this offer. We know of a man in Clarion who went into one of these mobile units, never dreaming that there was anything wrong with him. X-rays revealed that he had an enlarged heart. He had always been very active, engaged in sports and worked hard. Doctors told him that if he kept on at that pace, he was not long for this world, but if he would slow things down a bit, he would be able to enjoy life for many more years. This free X-ray service was certainly worth a lot to this man. He has found other less strenuous hobbies, takes it easier at his work, and is enjoying life.

This mobile unit will be in Klemme on the following dates:

Wednesday, June 17, from 2:00 to 5:30 P. M. and from 6:30 to 9:00 P. M.

Saturday, June 20, from 2:00 to 5:30 P. M. and from 6:30 to 9:00 P. M.

Thursday, June 25, from 9:00 to 11:30 A. M.

The unit will be on main street and the time it will require for you to have an X-ray will be very short. We're planning on taking advantage of this opportunity and we hope that evervone else will do the same.

Booming

In this neck of the woods, the corn crop is really booming. With all the moisture we have had recently, and with the warm weather that we are getting now, we don't see how it can keep from growing. If nothing happens to it, it will take a mighty tall man to measure it knee high on the Fourth of July.

Publicity

We see that some Senator wants a full investigation into the weather to see whether or not the atomic bomb testing is to blame. They were having tornadoes long before they had atomic bombs. Wonder if he thinks the bombs are responsible for the Texas drought, too? Oh well, it's one way of getting some free publicity.

30 YEARS AGO—

The ex-service men of this county will have a picnic at Twin Lakes on Thursday, June 21, to which the public is invited. Bring your own lunch. There will be four baseball games, horse shoe pitching contests, boxing and wrestling and water sports, a good speaker and several bands are also expected to be there.

We have had some real warm weather the past week. Friday and Saturday the thermometer registered around 90 degrees in the shade.

The Klemme Boy Scout Troop enjoyed a hike to the Goodell woods Monday morning. They were in quest of Indian relics. We did not learn if they found any.

20 YEARS AGO—

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wille and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Priebe and daughter were visiting at the Henry Buseman home Sunday afternoon.

Dorance Day drove over to the Bert Mathews farm southeast of Clear Lake, Thursday, to spend the balance of the week helping Bert plow corn.

Herman Stromer brought home a nice string of pike which he caught over at Clear Lake Thursday.

Mrs. Sumner Trumbell, Mrs. Martin Barz and Mrs. Ed Buntenbach visited Thursday afternoon in the country with Mrs. Orville Bridges.

Miss Clarice Wellemeyer left on Sunday for Cedar Falls where she is attending summer school. James Carlson, Miss Ethel Wellemeyer and Don Bacon of Titonka accompanied her.

10 YEARS AGO—

With good catches being brought home from the lake, even our confirmed golfers are beginning "to see the light" and are now swinging over to join the ranks of Klemme nimrods. The Klemme fishermen scored a big win the other day when Art Kudje, a dyed in the wool, diehard golfing enthusiast was seen sneaking into Jacobs Hardware the other morning and come out with an armful of fishing tackle. Art has come to his senses and realizes that he can't eat golf balls. And, Doc. Missman, Pete Wilson, and C. G. Waterman are beginning to ask questions about fishing. The boys are really slipping. Maybe they are running low on red ration stamps and can use a few fish to tide them over.

Carpenters from the Northern Lumber Co. Tuesday rebuilt the stairway leading from the office to the shop at the Klemme Times. In order to install a new press the stairway had to be made wider.

Verner Priebe, of Klemme, had a load of steers to the Chicago market Monday which averaged 988 pounds and they brought $15.25. These cattle were consigned to the Quinn Commission Company and were sold by John Quinn, head of the firm. Mr. Priebe's father and uncles have been shippers to Mr. Quinn for nearly 45 years.

Seaman Evert Barz came home last Thursday morning to spend a ten day furlough visiting with his wife and children and other relatives in the community. Mr. Barz is in the submarine service on the east coast. He had not been well for a few weeks and was home at this time on "sick leave" to recuperate.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

It's easy to make a mistake while driving. A highway patrolman, for example, recently stopped a truck with improper lights and asked the driver for his license. The driver fished in his pocket and brought out a two-month old traffic ticket he had failed to answer. That night in the local jail, the trucker had time to ponder the first rule of smart driving: Stay alert.

A judge has found a new way to make a driver pay for an accident. He has sentenced a motorist to spend as many days in jail as the pedestrian he ran down will have to spend in the hospital.

Police in Iowa towns plagued with double parking might try this chilling approach that's been successful in a Kentucky city. Police there move up beside a double parker, smile, and say, "Good morning, were you waiting for me?"

Nobody's safe. The recent meeting of the governing body of an Iowa safety group was marred by the absence of one member. The member was at home in bed recovering from the effects of a traffic accident.

The right answer. A safety educator trying to discover the safety attitudes in a small town asked an aged idler in front of a hotel: "What's the death rate here?"

"About one to a person, I guess," replied the idle man. One's enough when it comes early and violently in a traffic accident.

Obituary of Lois B. Stille

(By Arthur Wellemeyer)

LOIS BEVERLY STILLE was born on the Stille farm two miles west of Klemme on the 23rd day of November, 1930, the youngest of three children, born to her parents, Lester and Helen Hartzell Stille.

Her childhood years were spent on the farm, where she completed her common school education in a rural school nearby. She attended the Klemme High School, graduating with a class of 32 in 1948. She attended Waldorf College for one year, and then completed a course of training in an Airline School at Kansas City.

She attended religious instruction, was confirmed and became a member of the Methodist Church in 1940. Later she taught some of the classes in the Church Bible School. She was also a member of the Legion Auxiliary. She was employed for a while in the office of the Ordinance Plant at Burlington, Iowa and then moved to Des Moines, Iowa, where she found employment as a stenographer in the "Out-Patient" division of the Veteran's Administration.

She was kind and affectionate to the family at home, and was well liked by her classmates and the younger set of our community.

On Sunday morning, June 7th, her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartzell of Des Moines, called for Lois Stille and Marilyn Ludeke, and this group intended to motor to Cedar Falls to attend a reunion of the Hartzell family.

But, while traveling on Highway 14, near Conrad, Iowa, an accident occurred, which placed three of their party in the hospital, and abruptly ended the life of Lois Stille.

She was preceeded in death by a brother, who died as an infant, and by her father, Lester Stille, who died in 1952.

She reached the age of 22 years, 8 months, and 15 days, and leaves to mourn her passing: her mother, Mrs. Helen Stille, Klemme; one sister, Ruth, Mrs. Lavon Tue, Clear Lake; one Grandmother, Mrs. Lydia Hartzell, 91, Cedar Falls, and a host of more distant relatives and friends.

Gone

There seems to be a shadow on the day,
Her smile no longer cheers;
A dimness on the stars at night,
Like eyes that look through tears.
Alone unto our Father's will
One thought hath reconciled;
That He whose love exceedeth ours,
Hath taken home His child.
Fold her, O Father, in Thine arms,
And let her henceforth be
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and Thee.

Compute Chances of Rain Damage to Hay On Basis of Fourty-four Years of Weather Records

When blooms start coloring Iowa hayfields, weather becomes a mighty important question mark.

And it's little wonder. It generally takes about 30 hours of sunshine to field cure hay to a safe point for barn storage, and for many farmers the times are few and far between that they get that much sunshine uninterrupted by rain.

Agricultural climatologists at Iowa State College have dug through weather records of 44 years and have figured up the odds—based on past happenings—of rain damage on hay. The records studied were hour-by-hour precipitation and cloudiness reports covering the period 1907 to 1950 for Charles City and Sioux City areas.

Here Are Odds

These are the odds, according to Gerald Barger, a climatologist with the U. S. Weather Bureau and Iowa State College.

Where a farmer mows his whole field on a clear morning, he has 59 chances out of 100 of putting it up undamaged by rain in the Charles City area. In Sioux City area the odds are a little better, 66 out of 100. That's for first cutting.

The odds are better on second cutting and still better on third in both areas. Barger's analysis shows that Charles City farmers have 70 chances in 100 of getting up second cutting without damage and 80 out of 100 on third cutting. At Sioux City the chances are 75 out of 100 on second cutting and 80 out 100 on third cutting.

Split Cuttings

Of course, Barger points out, most farmers don't cut all of the hay at one time. And that increases the probability that part of the hay will be damaged but decreases the probability that all of the hay will be damaged. The figures on split cuttings at Charles City on first-cutting hay are 65 chances out of 100 that part of the hay will be rained on, and only 17 chances out of 100 that all of it will be damaged. When Barger figured the odds on getting all cuttings up for the season without rain damage, he found chances getting slimmer. Where all the hay of each crop is cut at one time, the chances of getting it all up without damage are 33 out of 100 at Charles City and 38 out of 100 at Sioux City. And where each crop is devided into two mowings for each of the three cuttings, the odds are slimmer still—11 out of 100 in Charles City and 38 out of 100 at Sioux City.

Barger's analysis shows that the chances of rain damage to field- cured hay run pretty high. But they are not as high as farmers in two northeastern counties estimated. A survey in those counties showed that farmers estimated they had first-cutting hay damaged by rain as high as eight to nine times out of ten. Partly responsible for these high estimates, Barger thinks, it particularly unfavorable first-cutting hay weather in recent years.

The Hancock County 4-H Girls elected their new officers at their annual Rally Day held at the Hayfield High School on Saturday, June 6. Doreen Lackore daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Lackore of Ell Township was elected County President; Frances Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Anderson of Ellington Township, vice-president; Margaret Kelch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kelch of Magor Township, Secretary and Treasurer; and Elizabeth Lemke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lemke of Avery Township, historian.

The 4-H girls honored the 27 club leaders, 5 county committee members, Mrs. W. F. Dorow, Miss Ruby Schram and the County Extension Home Economist by presenting them with corsages made by the 4-H girls.

The business meeting was conducted by the county 4-H president, Eunice Hueneman. The 4-H girls voted to donate the same amount of money for 4-H building fund for Fair Building as they did last year.

A picture contest was held o the pictures studied by the 4-H girls in the Home Furnishing project this year. Marilyn Rasmusson, Britt Busy Beavers and Shirley Meyer, Bingham Boosters tied for the 1st place in the picture contest.

Ten girls tried out for reciting the "Country Girl's Creed". Mrs. W. F. Dorow and Miss Ruby Schram were judges and selected Laurel, Helvick of Ellington Experts to open the afternoon program with the Country Girl's Creed. Barbara Boehnke of Concord Nimble Fingers was selected to say it at the County 4-H Achievement Show in August. Honorable mention went to Patricia Legge of Liberty Busy Bees and Emily Goll of Ell Tip Toppers.

Paul Henderson, County Extension Director, spoke on the county 4-H Building Fund and county 4-H Achievment Show.

The 1953 County Officers installed the County Officers for 1954. Margaret Kelch was soloist for this ceromony.

Richard Formanek, County 4-H Boys President gave greetings from the County 4-H Organization.

Mrs. Aaron Stromer gave greetings from the Hancock County Farm Bureau.

"The House We Build" was a dramatic presentation given by the 4-H girls. It portrayed the pioneers coming to our western land and settling. Rachel Hueneman and Georgia Gaskill were narrators for this production.

The County 4-H girls chorus of 43 voices sang several numbers during the presentation. 4-H girls attending State 4-H Convention next week presented the Square Dance "Red River Vally". The speaking cast consisted of Joan Nelson, Train Commander; Patricia Legge 1st cap't.; Ruth Ann Lauster 2nd cap't.; Dorothy Fast, 3rd cap't.; Marlene Brown, 4th cap't.; 1st girl was played by Margaret Kelch; 2nd girl by JoAnn Burgess, Daniel by Eleanor Kluver; 1st boy Marian Nedved.

Miss Ruby Schram of Ell Township who has helped with 4-H activities for many years was chosen to be initiated as Honorary Member of the Hancok County 4-H Girls Organization. The Ell Tip Toppers, the club to which Miss Schram belonged as a 4-H member and later as a 4-H leader, conducted the ceremony with the help of the county 4-H officers. Barbara Boehnke sang the Four Leaf Clover Song by Combs and Doreen Lackore played the Ceremonial march as the Ell Tip Toppers carried in the Clover Chain for the Ceremony.

Awards were given to the club with the most mothers attending Rally Day. Concord Nimble Fingers had 6 mothers present.

Grading In County To Start July First

Harry Rehm, Garner Contractor, was the successful bidder at a letting held at the court house in Garner at 1:30 P. M. on Wednesday on the grading of approximately 17 miles of local road in Hancock county. His bid was $27,050.00 on the project and was low among three bids filed. The bid was 10c a cubic yard on casting and 13c on end haul work. Hancock county supervisors accepted his bid and awarded a contract to him. Work on the project is to get under way by July 1st and must be completed by October 30, according to Hancock County Engineer Charles F. Merten.

By Paul Henderson
County Extension Director

The average American is eating more food than before the war. Per person food consumption last year was 12 percent over the prewar average.

But while the average person is eating slightly more pounds of food, the average number of calories consumed is about the same as before the war. The reason: Mr. and Mrs. America eats more meat, poultry, eggs, dairy products, vegetables and friuts than they did in the late thirties—but less potatoes and grain products.

Income Level Important

Consumers are getting more of the foods they want most. More famlilies with a higher level of income tend to have the quantities of the most important food elements recommended by diet spcialists than do lower income families. That's why the level of comsumer income is so important to Corn Belt farmers, who produce mainly the high quality foods, Francis A. Kutish Iowa State College farm economist points out.

Dietary specialists hurry to point out that no matter what the income, many people still do not consume enough calcium, ascorbic acid and Vitamin A. Thus, although the consumption of milk has increased, it still falls short of the desired amount. Here is a challenge to the dairy industry, educational agencies and the general public, Kutish believes.

Cattle Numbers Climbing

Kutish points out that current cattle slaughter would result in about 33 million head winding up in the butcher shops this year—if the killing pace of the past 5 months continue for the rest of 1953. This would be 5 million more head than a year ago.

That seems like a lot of cattle going to market. And it is. But our best information indicates that the current increase in cattle population (births minus deaths) is in the neighborhood of 35 to 36 million head, Kutish reveals. Thus, at the present rate of slaughter we still would make some addition to total cattle numbers by the end of the year.

Wheat Allotment For New Farms

Farmers on land on which no wheat was seeded for any of the years 1951, 1952, and 1953 may apply for a 1954 wheat acreage allotment, according to the Hancock County Production and Marketing Administration Committee. To be considered for an allotment on a farm which had no wheat seeded for any of those years, the farmer must apply in writing to his county PMA committe by June 30, 1953.

Blank application forms are available at the county PMA office for use in filing request for allotments.

Reports On Grass Silage Preservatives

The grass silage making season has brought many questions on use of preservatives to Hancock County Extension Director Paul Henderson.

And he cites this report which he received from dairymen at Iowa State College.

Several chemicals have been tested as grass silage preservatives in experiments at the college, but the experimental evidence is not conclusive enough to be the basis of recommendations on their use, according to A. R. Porter, who is in charge of dairy husbandry work at the college.

Tests last year were made using sodium metabisulfite, sodium sulfite and sodium formate, as well as liquid and dried molasses. Some of these materials will be tested again this year, and Porter expects to have another chemical—calcium formate—tested this year. This material has shown promise in experiments conducted in Europe and will be tested here.

Porter says that under moisture conditions good grass silage can be made without use of preservatives. But since these conditions are not always realized, a preservative may need to be added. Porter recommends use of ground corn, molasses or other carbohydrate material for the preservative at least until enough experimental evidence is gathered that will conclusively determine the place of chemical preservatives.

PROPHECY

When Alonzo Benn, now of Chicago, rode an east bound train from Osceola, his first trip, he predicted that some day a train would go round the curve a little too fast and leave the track. This was in 1883. Seventy years later his prediction came true. when a Burlington train left the tracks there recently.

Deputy Sheriff Kept Busy Sunday With Escort Duty and Accidents

Hancock County Deputy Sheriff R. E. Nesbit had a busy day Sunday. At 11 a. m. he was called out to escort a caravan of Junior Chamber of Commerce members consisting of approximately 65 cars from Southern States on highway 69 North enroute to Minneapolis. Traffic was halted on highway No. 18 while the caravan passed.

At 10 P. M. he was called to investigate two collisions during the terrific rainstorm of Sunday night, one four miles east of Garner where a car ran into a 400 pound calf and one at the Evergreen Cemetery on the east edge of Britt where a car driven by Jake Leerar rammed the rear end of another machine which was stalled by the storm.

At 11 P. M. another caravan of Jaycees enroute to the National convention at Minneapolis was escorted through the county on highway 69, and on Monday afternoon another caravan of 60, 1953 Buicks of all the same color carrying a Texas delegation of Jaycees was escorted through the county.

The board also approved the contract of Yohn and Stone as approved by the State Highway commission on the construction of two wooden bridges and approved the report on the final estimate on the contract of Earl Stille for the construction of drainage district No. 162, petitioned for by William Jannssen et al. The board fixed June 15 at the hour of 1:30 as a time for inal hearing on the engineer's report and the final estimate. Said hearing will be held at the courthouse in Garner. The final estimate due Stille on the contract is $788.36.

Selective Service Explains Agricultural Deferments

(This is the ninth in a series of short articles designed to better acquaint the registrant and the general public with the operation of Selective Service.)

The Universal Military Training and Service Act provides that the obligation and priviledge to serve in the Armed Forces should be shared generally in accordance with a system which is fair and just and which is consistent with the maintenance of an effective economy. An agricultural deferment is Class II-C is primarily a "loan" of the agricultural worker to the employer in order not to impair a subststantial production of products for the market and in order to give the employer an opportunity to secure a replacement or make adjustments in the type of operation.

To merit consideration for agricultural deferment the following conditions must exist;

1- The registrant must be regularly engaged in agricultural activities.

2- Produces for market a substantial quantity of products necessary to the maintenance of national health, safety and interest.

3- No replacements with reasonably comparable qualifications or skills available.

4- Removal of registrant would cause a material loss of effectiveness in the activity in its relation to all-out food production requirements.

It thus is evident that an agricultural deferment is essentially a temporary expedient—a postponement of military service during a period in which the employer is making serious efforts, through the employment services and otherwise, to secure a reasonably suitable replacement, or to adjust the type of farming. That a replacement would cost more than the present agricultural help (who is usually a son) is not a determining factor. The important thing is to share generally the obligations and priviledges of military service.

An agricultural deferment in Class II-C may be given for 1 year or lesss. Quite generally it is given for 6 months. An agricultural deferment may be renewed, if the local board determines that continued classification in II-C is warranted under very unusual circumstances.

An employer who has requested the occupational deferment of a registrant is under a legal obligation to inform the Local Board of any change in the registrant's employment status—that he has quit, for instance, or a replacement for him has been obtained.

Since a II-C classification is a deferment, such classification extends a registrant's liability for military service for a period of 9 years—that is, until he reaches 35 years of age.

Research Turns Up Do's and Dont's on—

Care of Cotton Carpeting

Most cotton rugs smaller than 9 x 12 can be laundered at home unless backing is particularly heavy and unmanageable.

Increased use of cotton carpeting and rugs in American homes has prompted much research on ways to launder these colorful floor coverings successfully at home. Research has also gone ahead on better methods of "on location" or at-the-plant cleaning of cotton carpeting by professional cleaners.

Most cotton carpeting is washable, June Brown, Iowa State College home furnishings specialist, reports. Most of it has already gone through washing, extracting and tumble finishing as part of the manufacturing process. But do check the label when you buy, just in case another method of cleaning is recommended.

Large rugs—9x12 or larger, or even smaller sizes depending on total dry weight and on whether or not the backing is particularly heavy and stiff—are usually too voluminous to handle in your washer. But smaller sizes will do up beautifully, if you follow the method worked out in research laboratories of the American Institute of Laundering.

Washing Tips

Wash dark and light-colored rugs separately, say reseachers. Other recommendations from the Institute: Keep the washing period as short as possible according to the amout of soil; keep sudsing and rinsing water levels high, and load the washer only about one-third to two-thirds capacity to avoid matting the tufts. Use an all-purpose soap or a built (heavy-duty) synthetic detergent. Keep the washing and rinsing waters warm. Higher temperature may make the colors bleed. Don't use bleaches of any sort on any colored carpeting.

To wash rugs in a non-automatic washer, put them through a 5-minute sudsing, then through two or three 10-minute sudsing using fresh sudsy water each time. That's so dirt won't have a chance to soak right back into the rug. Number of sudsings will depend on amount of soil. Then put the rug through a series of three or four clear rinses.

Automatic Washer

If you have an automatic washer, follow the manufacturer's directions for washing cotton rugs.

Cotton rugs will dry their fluffiest if tumbler-dried. However, the larger rugs may be too big for your drier to handle. If the rug is too large or if you haven't an automatic drier, dry it over several lines or drying rack inside or in the shade outdoors. An electric fan will speed drying indoors. Brush up the surface of air- or fan-dried carpeting to raise the pile, give that soft feel and bring out the color.

Surface Brightnening

You can brighten the surface of wall-to-wall carpets and rugs too large to wash by brushing or rubbing with dry cleaning fluid about once a month. This will take up surface soil that dulls the color, but it won't remove embedded dirt.

Daily vacumming especially during dusty summer months, will lengthen the time between surface cleanings. The motor-driven brush and beater-bar type electric cleaner will do the most thorough cleaning job, according to actual tests conducted in the carpet industry.

Absorbent powder and suds-type cleaners for on-the-floor cleaning have so far proved ineffectual on most cotton rugs. Remember, says Mrs. Brown, most of these commercial shampoos and powders were originally designed for use on wool carpeting.

Professional Cleaning

You'll be wise to leave a thorough deep-down cleaning of any wall-to-wall carpeting to a commercial rug cleaning firm, for even the experts find it a complicated job. Recent research by the National Institute of Rug Cleaning attributes the difficulty of "on location" cleaning of cotton carpeting to the basic differences between cotton and wool. Cleaning methods that work on wool carpeting give unsatisfactory results with cotton.

Cotton, say the researchers, is harder to clean than wool. Minute particles of soil adhere very tightly to the cotton fibers. Also, the tuft yarns flatten when wet and are not as easily reached by brush bristles. This tuft flabbiness also makes it harder to vacuum-remove spent suds.

Two more difficulties: Cotton has a tendency to brown at the pile tips when it dries slowly. Special steps must be taken to either destroy or prevent this discoloration. Cotton tufts are matted and crushed after cleaning and drying, and it takes an extra process to fluff them up again.

So you can see why that thorough laundering should be left to a professional rug cleaner who's had previous experience with cotton carpeting. Your large rugs and carpets will need professional cleaning at least once a year, perhaps oftener.

Commercial cleaners can do the best job at their cleaning plant if it's equipped to handle cotton rugs. This isn't practical for wall-to-wall carpeting, but it's by far the best way to handle those cotton rugs that are too large for washing at home or have to heavy a backing.

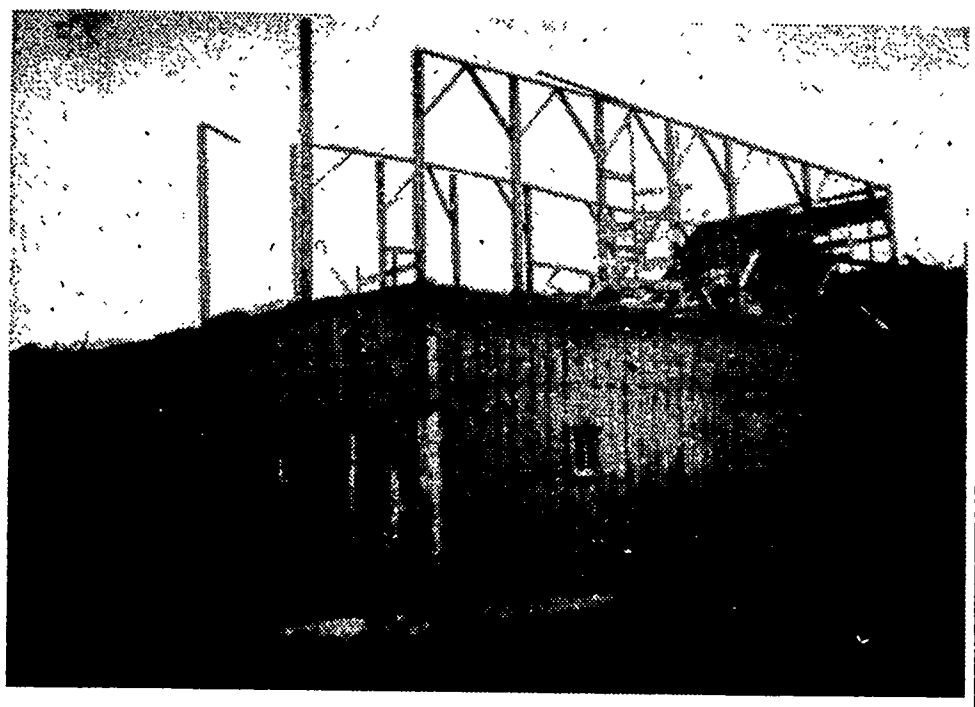
Two miles south of Goodell and a mile east is the farm home of Pete Bohning. The above picture shows what was left of his barn after the tornado of Sunday night. Other small buildings were damaged, but this barn got it the worst. Debris was scattered all through the Bohning grove, yard fences were down, and spring pigs were all over the place.



Virgil Nolte lives a half mile east and a half mile north of the Bohning place. At his place the wind snapped off a large pole with a transformer on it and left his barn in the shape shown above. It was a huge barn and just about everything above the hay mow floor is gone. Much of the barn came down on a feeding floor just to the north of the barn and when we were there, Mr. Nolte didn't know whether he had lost any stock or not.

Hardest hit of all the places that we saw, was this one just 2½ miles east of Goodell. It is the Harvey Steenblock place, and all that was left in usable condition was the house and the machine shed. When we were there about ten o'clock Monday morning, they had found nothing that they could recognize as any part of the hog house. The car in the left part of the picture was in the garage until the wind came. It picked up the garage, gave it a quarter turn and mashed it about twenty feet in front of the car. The place was really in a mess, and the Steenblocks were up north fishing when it hit. Neighbors had pitched in and were doing what they could to clean up.

This was the big nice looking round-roofed babrn on the Andrew Lauen farm, 3½ miles south and three miles east of Klemme. The storm split it in half, and pushed it over on a feeding floor. Mr. Lauen lost a beautiful palomino riding horse crushed under the hay mow floor, and possibly a dozen pigs that would weigh in the neighborhood of 150 pounds. Neighbors were on hand to help in clearing away the debris. Neighbors are wonderful things to have in times like this.

Iowa Banks Show Stepped Up Trend In Check Writing

Check transactions in nine Iowa cities during the month of April showed increases ranging from four percent at Waterloo to 23 percent at Dubuque as compared to figures reported in April, 1952.

Federal reserve bank of Chicago said the April, 1953 check transaction percentage increases on daily basis for the nine Iowa cities were:

Cedar Rapids, 11.1; Des Moines 18.8; Dubuque, 23.8; Sioux City, 11.8; Waterloo, 4.1; Burlington, 10.2; Clinton, 21.6; Mason City, 10.9; and Ottumwa, 8.6.

Last March five of these cities showed a decrease in check transactions ranging from seven percent drop at Cedar Rapids, which shows a 11 percent hike over April, 1952, and 1.7 percent drop at Sioux City which now reports an 11.8 percent increase over April, 1952.

New Keokuk Lock To Aid Industrial Traffic On River

Construction of a 25-million-dollar lock on the Mississippi river at Keokuk will begin this summer to eliminate a final "bottleneck" in the river's 27-lock system.

The new lock in the 9-foot channel waterway will be 1,200 feet long. One million dollars for the beginning of the construction work by the U. S. army corps of engineer has already been appropriated by congress. Final costs have been estimated between 18 and 25 million dollars.

The canalization of the upper Mississippi river by a system of locks and dams built during the 1930's started a marked increase in waterway traffic.

The over-all trend in the traffic tonnage carried since completion of the project has been upward from year to year.

The Iowa development commission said the new lock will meet all needs of navigation.

Commission officials said the new lock will be the second in the river which will have the capacity to quickly handle not only the present traffic but also the increased volume of traffic created by new river industries.

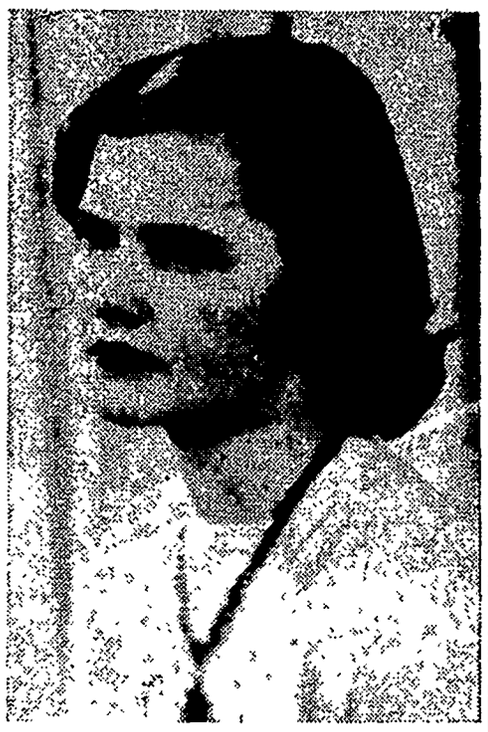
Lois Christians Attending Hawkeye Girls State

Miss Lois Christians has been chosen by the Adam Schaefer unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, to attend the eighth annual Hawkeye Girls State to be held at Iowa State Teachers' college, Cedar Falls, from June 14 to 21, inclusive. Annoucement was made by Mrs. Flora Back, president of the Adam Schaefer Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Lois Ann is the daughter is the of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Christians, of Klemme, and has completed her junior year in the Klemme High School.



LOIS CHRISTIANS

Girls State is a project of the American Legion Auxiliary, Inc., to inculcate a better knowledge of government and promote a higher patriotism among high school students. Throughout the country, for one week during the summer, this program of citizenship training is conducted with Auxiliary members acting as Counselors and Staff workers.

Selection of the girls is made by local American Legion Auxiliary Units. Eligibility is based on leadership, scholarship, and character. The girl must be completing her third year in senior high, she must rank scholastically in the upper half of her class, and have good health.

A complete political system is set up on the campus, extending from the city and precinct offices to the State Governship. The girls are automatically assigned to two parties, through which they carry out the government of their mythical political Sate. Thus our whole civic picture becomes a reality.

Although planned primarily on an educational basis, the week holds many carefree hours, when entertainment and fellowship prevail. As she returns to her community, each participant has a keener and more active interest in the affairs of her city, state and nation.

One-half to two kilowatt hours of electric power are needed per chick for electric chick brooding.

Legion Celebration To Be Friday and Saturday

Units of the George Nelson Shows were pulling into Klemme the fore part of the week. Starting Friday they will set up on the main street of Klemme for a two-day stand at the Legion-sponsored celebration.

Just what rides and concessions they woill have, we don't know, but we imagine that they will have pretty much the same set up that they had last year. Just a few good rides and some clean concessions . . . things that the whole family can enjoy.

The American Legion Auxiliary will have a food stand at the celebration, and will serve sandwiches, coffee, pie, etc.

Paula Goll Graduates From Teachers College

Miss Paula C. Goll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goll, was among the 491 spring graduates of the Iowa State Teachers College. The Commencement exercises were held on the 6th of June.

While in college, she was active in the Pi Phi Omega social sorority, Sigma Eta Chi, a religious sorority, 1st and 2nd year K-P clubs, I. F. T. A., Plymouth Club, and Women's Chorus. She received a 2 year Elementary Certificate and will teach Kindergarten in Greene, this fall.

No Methodist Services On Sunday, June 21

Next Sunday, June 21st, will be Conference Sunday and there will be no services in the Klemme or Liberty Methodist Churches on that day. Rev. and Mrs. Egeland left on Tuesday of this week to attend the Conference which will be in session beginning Wedesday morning and through Sunday on the Campus of Cornell College at Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Lions To Sponsor Kid's Fish Day

Next Wednesday Day Set for Fish Derby

That Kid's Fish Derby that you have been hearing about for the past month or so, is going to take palce next week, Wednesday, June 24th at 2:00 P. M. at the pond near the Riverside School 1½ miles south of Klemme.

The Klemme Lions Club is sponsoring this event, and you no doubt have been approached by one of them selling a Fish Day pin. In case you haven't, the pins are 50c, and the money raised from the sale of them is to go toward the purchase of prizes and free refreshments for contestants.

The pond will be stocked with Bullheads the day before the Fish Derby, and they should bite pretty good. Prizes will be offered in various age groups for both boys and girls, and a grand prize will be awarded for the heaviest string of fish.

Registration will start at the pond at 1:00 P. M., and no contestant under any circumstances will be allowed to fish unless his or her registration slip is properly filled out and signed. Registration will close at 1:45 P. M., and there is no entry fee.

Children between the ages of 6 to 15 inclusive may participate and each contestant must furnish his own tackle and bait. No rods and reels will be allowed at the pond, and contestants must do their own fishing in order to qualify for prizes.

Prizes are on display in the window of the Klemme Hardware Store this week, and there look too be some worthwhile ones. Besides the prizes, each contestant will get free pop and ice cream at the pond.

Red Cross Making Special Appeal for Disaster Funds

The American Red Cross is making a special appeal for disaster funds following the devastation of spring tornados and floods throughout Iowa and the Nation. 1953 is one of the worst disaster years since 1927 and since April 18 there have been fourteen major disaster operations according to President E. Roland Harriman.

C. L. Strate, chairman of the Garner chapter of the Red Cross, comprising the east half of Hancock County, has issued an appeal for emergency funds and states that tornadoes have cost the local chapter $4,000 in two years and it is possbile that more will be needed. This was money actually expended in Hancock county.

Citizens of the east half of Hancock county are requested to make their donations and leave them at any of the three banks located in the chapter area, The Savings Bank at Goodell, The First National Bank at Klemme and the Hancock County National Bank at Garner.

Stork Club

Mr. and Mrs. William Neuberger of Ventura, are the parents of a baby girl born Saturday, June 13th, at the Mercy Hospital, Mason City. The little miss weighed in at eight pounds, four ounces, and has been named Marilyn Emma.

GOOD NEIGHBORS — Last week, Bob Hartzell was kept busy, helping with funeral arrangements for his cousin Lois Stille. Consequently, he got behind in his field work. He got a pleasant surprise, Saturday, when neighbors pulled into his fields with six tractors and cultivated his corn.

X-rays

It's gratifying to look up the street and see how busy the chest x-ray mobile unit is. Looks to us like nearly everyone is going to get in on this good deal.

In case you don't get around to having your picture taken today (Wednesday), don't give up. The mobile unit will be back in town this Saturday and on Thursday, June 25.

Punishment

We don't want to argue the rights and wrongs of capital punishment, but we think that anyone who is caught in treasonous acts is due for just about the maximum punishment. We know what the articles of war say about a soldier during time of war, "Death, or such other punishment as the courts martial may direct." And in order for that sentence to be invoked, it isn't necessary that the soldier give away any atomic secrets, either.

Mess!

We never had any dreams of being a consulted expert on world affairs, and if we did have, we think that now they would be night mares. Things are really in a muddled mess, and it seems to us that everyone is agin us. Just goes to show, the more you put out to help some people, the more they turn against you. If they want to bite the hand that's feeding them, let's pull back the hand.

We Like It Here

Everytime we go out of the state of Iowa for any distance, we realize how fortunate are the people who live in this state . . . and especially those who live in the north central section. We've got it! Just about the richest land and the best growing climate of any place in the world. We have only one complaint to register. Next winter it will get down around 20 below again, and snow will get yea deep. Guess you have to take the bad with the good.

Dairy Month

This month is "Dairy Month", and one of the most important of special months for people all over the country. Look at all the health foods that come from dairying. Look at how the dairy cow helps to enrich our land. Check that jingling noise in the pocket of the farmer who milks a few cows Ask yourself if it weren't for the dairy cow and the dairy industry how many things that you use in your daily living you would have to do without.

Yep, it's an important month, not just to the dairy farmer, but to everyone in the country.

Play It Safe

Each week, we receive from the State Conservation Commission, news releases dealing with some phase or other of outdoor sport. This week one of their releases was entitled, "Beware of the River". They go to great lengths in telling about the changeability of rivers, and how treacherous they can be. They give a few hints on what to do to cut down your chances of being drowned if you get in trouble in a river, but end their story with the admonition, "Just don't swim in rivers."

To this we would like to add, that even though you are an experienced swimmer, it is well to never go in the water alone, and your chances of being the victim of a drowning accident will be much less, if you swim only in supervised areas. That means, "stay out of gravel pits." We think that gravel pits claim more lives from drowning in this section of the state, than any other particular type body of water.

We think that everyone, who possibly can, should learn to swim. Don't be afraid of the water, but respect it. Learn all that you can about how to get along in it, and do your swimming in supervised areas.

30 YEARS AGO—

Ben Griemann still remains the champion horse shoe pitcher of Hancock County. At the Farm Bureau Picnic last Thursday, a twelve year old lad from near Forest City, by the name of Nelson took the first place and Aaron Griemann of this city came out with second place. The lad was a good pitcher but he could not beat Ben so the latter is still carrying the Championship belt.

Dr. D. P. Anderson, a graduate veterinarian has located in Klemme. Dr. Anderson is not an entire stranger here as he is a brother-in-law of Dr. Wesson of Garner. Dr. Anderson is a graduate of the Kansas City School of Veterinary and has had five years of experience.

Wes Schuldt is driving a new Stephens, purchased of the Lau Auto Company of Mason City.

The Camp Fire Girls hiked it to Avery Bridge last Friday. They report that it was great sport. It is rumored that one young lady sent out the S-O-S call of distress and did not hoof it back so her beau came out in a car and took her home. How sad is life?

20 YEARS AGO—

Miss Lillian Brown was chosen at the last 4-H meeting to represent Liberty girls at the 4-H meeting at Ames this week. Miss Margaret Haberkamp and Lois Lenz also got to go on merits they received on Achievement Day last fall. The girls went from Garner with other 4-H girls from this part of the county.

Byrnes Missman, Harold Jost, Verle Keraus, Kenneth Kluckhohn, Dutch Turgasen, Clarence Kluckhohn and Alvin Keeper are all busy boys at present as they have contracted with R. C. Ludeke for pulling weeds in his beet field.

Dwight Hummel accompanied the Garner Co-op Oil men from Garner on a fishing trip Saturday night and Sunday, going to Lost Island Lake.

Miss Hazel Dallenbaugh, teacher in the Klemme High School this year, will become the bride of Orion A. Moe at her home near Pocahontas this afternoon.

There was a barn dance held at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Back Thursday evening and a large crowd attended. A Bohemian orchestra furnished the music.

Miss Marie Stille who has been confined to her home the past week or so, is much better and her many friends are glad that she is getting along so nicely.

10 YEARS AGO—

A cyclone which formed north of Klemme Tuesday evening was seen by quite a few Klemme residents. The cloud was plainly seen as it began to roll and form into a funnel shaped cyclone and began to rotate and dipped toward the earth several times. However, the twister must have remained high as we have no reports of damage done.

Marie's Beauty Shop is undergoing a beauty treatment itself, as the shop is being redecorated.

The residences of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Buntenbach and Mrs. Edna Thada were landscaped by a Mason City firm last week. It is a nice improvement to their property.

Tech 5 John Clements of Camp Beaumont, Louisiana, arrived in Klemme this Wednesday morning on a fifteen day furlough which he will spend visiting with his wife here and with his mother at Estherville.

. . . and dairy month means a lot to all of us!

We're mighty proud of the dairy production of Iowa farmers — and we think Dairy Month is a good time to say so.

We know dairying brings "new dollars" into our community and our state — millions of them into Iowa each month. We know those dollars help to build Iowa business, schools, churches.

We know those dollars help to give Iowa "good business" and superior living standards.

And we know that dairying makes men and women — builds character as it builds wealth — just as dairy foods build health!

So — more power to Iowa's Dairy Industry. Let's all observe Dairy Month by using plenty of Iowa's fine dairy foods.

It Can be Fun, Carefree, Educational—

Your Family Vacation Trip

And finally it's here. The day to pack up the car and start rolling on that much-looked-forward-to vacation trip. Here's your chance to take life at a leisurely pace and enjoy your family. Children make good travelers if you just remember to spice your trip with frequent stops at points of intrest along the way, picnic meals and the inevitable "something to do" enroute.

A vacation trip that's planned and paced with the younger members of the clan in mind—and that's flexible enough to allow lingering at spots the children find fascinating—can be a memory-making experience that binds the whole family closer together.

That's the opinion of Dr. Glenn Hawkes, head of the Child Developement Department at Iowa State College. Give that vacation trip a bit of special thought and you can make it an educational experience for the youngsters as well—a chance for them to find out what other parts of the state or country are like and how oher people live. And if you visit any places where something exciting or interesting has happened in bygone day, you can weave in a bit of history.

Traveling Comfort

You can make the back seat into a traveling play area for younger children by building the floor up to the level of the seat with suitcases and boxes. Cover with blankets and a rubber sheet, if posible. If there's a baby along, you'll find a car bed that converts into a seat very handy. But get him used to it before you start on the trip so he isn't introduced to too many new things at once, Dr. Hawkes suggests.

Choose traveling clothes for the whole family that won't muss and are easy to take care of. Let cotton plisse, seersucker, corduroy, jersey and nylon be the basis of the family wardrobe. If you run out of clean clothes enroute, you can wash and dry them quickly at a self-service laundry.

Something to Do

Let the children bring along their favorite games, toys and coloring books to help keep them amused while traveling. And stock up on ideas for games the whole family can play. Games that keep everyone on the lookout for certain objects or animals in the approaching scenery are especially interesting and can last for hours.

Stop Often

Whether you spend the night at a motel or a large hotel, the small fry will probably want to do some exploring first thing. Plan on stopping around four or five in the afternoon so there'll be time for a long night's sleep and an unhurried start in the morning. If younger children have their own suitcases, they'll take pride in lugging them back and forth, packing and unpacking them.

Make frequent stops so the children have a chance for some exercise and diversion. Picnic meals are ideal, as well as money-saving. Spots to stop are countless—a five and dime store dle visitors, a souvenir shop, a roadside vegetable stand, a pasture fence where some farm animals are congregating, a park or sight-seeing tower, a statue that has a special story behind it.

It may take you days to get where you're going, but the fun, the unexpected little side trips along the way, and the leisurely pace will be worth it. A harness or collapsible stroller will keep a toddler from wandering off each time you stop.

the Highway Story

IOWA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

By Bob Hullihan

Harry hustled out of the house early on the first morning of the vacation and packed the suitcases in the trunk of the car with a precision that made him feel proud. When he finished, the lid and lock worked perfectly as he closed the trunk.

Later, with the whole family in the car, Harry's wife stowed a few last small items in the glove compartment. It was working well, also. Then Harry touched the starter, the things that happen under the hood happened without a hitch, and they were off.

As they moved down the highway things continued to work as they should. Harry turned on the radio and they had music—radio worked fine. As the day warmed the kids in back rolled down the windows with no trouble at all—windows were in good working order.

Just before they stopped for lunch, Mrs. Harry turned the rear vision mirror so she could get a look at her lipstick. The mirror swiveled on its ball joint as well as it ever had.

So it went through most of the afternoon. All the parts of the car worked smoothly except, perhaps, the tie rods They were coming loose.

But Harry, driving the car every day, had failed to notice that more and more play was coming into the steering wheel. He hadn't bothered to have his car checked for safety before the trip.

He was traveling 65 when he gave the steering wheel a slight turn that should have brought the car away from the edge of the high slab. It didn't. He didn't have that kind of precision control. A wheel hit the shoulder.

No doubt, all the minor and convenient parts of the car worked perfectly until the very last moment.

More Iowa Chicks Than West States

Commercial hatcheries in Iowa during the month of April hatched more chicks than the combined total of 11 western states, the state developement commission reports.

Last month Iowa's hatcheries produced 23,100,000 chicks to lead the nation. This was almost a million more chicks hatched last month than a year go.

For the first qurter of 1953 Iowa's total number of chicks produced by commercial hatcheries was 46,950,000.

Women at Work

The Development Commission says that nearly 25 per cent of all Iowa employed people are women.

Think of that! Yet 50 years ago folks said "Women's place is in the home."

Maybe that was just a way to keep them from competing with us men. Or, perhaps we were simply too set in our ways. Now, women are welding in war plants, running farm tractors, managing offices—doing a thousand and one things just as well as men.

It shows you how unjust an old prejudice can be. Whether it involves a woman's right to hold a job, a man's right to be an amateur cook, or a simple thing like our right to a temperate glass of beer on a hot day—we should think twice before we make the rules for the other fellow.

Women are making a great contribution both in industry and agriculture and they couldn't be doing that if we hadn't all become more open-minded through the years.

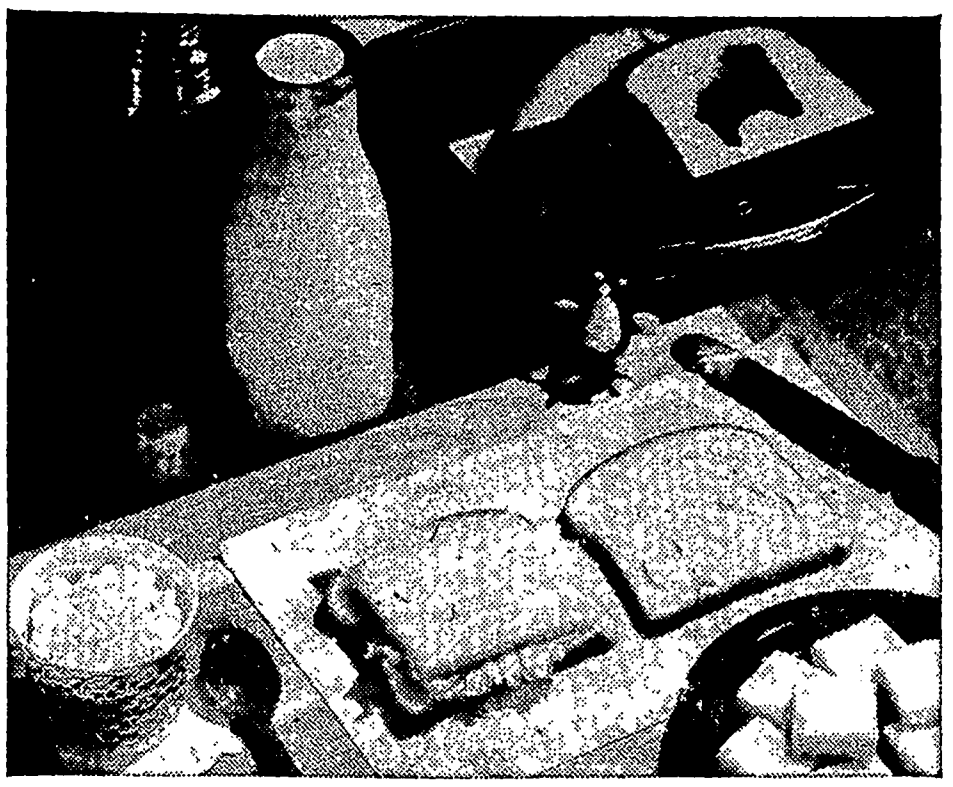
PACK AND CARRY LUNCHES



His first lunch box, complete with initials and thermos bottle, is a mighty proud possession of the little fellow starting off to school. And what a lot of surprises — and disappointments — it can hold. Packing a lunch can be as much fun and just as exciting for the mother as for That Very Important Person. A little imagination, a bit of planning, that's all it takes!

The basic pattern is as simple as your favorite wrap-around dress—sandwiches both hearty and sweet, fruit, cookies; something hot or something cold in the thermos, depending upon the weather and the youngster's taste. A nibble for recess, and of course a surprise! The unexpected always pleases children.

As to the makings of lunch-in-a-box, breads come in many varieties to add interest to the portable meal—the sandwich. Just for a change, have you thought of using buns, split and spread, or hollowed out and filled? When you're tired of thinking up fillings, to the rescue come the canned meat and fish shelves of the grocery stores, the counters of table-ready meats and cheeses in near-endless array, to slice and to spread.

And the delight that thermos can hold—nice cold milk for the warmish days, a hot milk beverage on the cold days, or maybe a good cream soup. There's such a variety of "flavors" that can be given to milk — the addition of mashed fruit, of honey, fruit and chocolate syrups, malted milk and prepared mixes, that no child should ever refuse to drink his milk.

But don't stop there. He can eat it too, in the form of cottage cheese and other cheeses, ice cream, custards and puddings made with milk, good to have on hand when he comes home after school—"starved". Use milk in the meat loaf you'll have hot for dinner tonight, sliced cold in the lunchbox tomorrow. Use cheese in the sandwiches, a little container of cottage cheese in the lunchbox.

State Fair To Feature Big Car Races Under Lights

Des Moines, Iowa—Big car races under the lights will be featured for the first time on the auto racing program at this year's Iowa State Fair, August 29 - September 7.

Fair officials said today two days and one night of racing are scheduled for auto race fans, with purses of over $7,000. Such driving stars as Jimmy Campbell, defending IMCA circuit champion; Bob "Slats" Slater, who swept three feature events at the fair last year, and Bobby Grim, a favorite here last year, are already included among the expected starters.

"This will be the first time in history when race fans have had a chance to see big car racing under lights at the Iowa State Fair," officials said. "Special installations are being made so the entire half mile oval will be brilliantly lighted."

The day sessions will be held August 30 and Sept 4, with night racing set for Labor Day, September 7, the closing night of the fair.

Americans Are Growing Taller; Food Cost Less

Americans are growing taller and doing it at less cost than ever before. These two developments are among the most significant facts in our modern society, Lynn Thompson, Clarion, Iowa, June Dairy Month chairman, said today.

Pointing out that better health through better food is resulting in a taller, stronger nation, Thompson cited a recent scientific report which confirmed that the average Yale University freshman last year was 2½ inches taller than the average Yale freshman of 1893. The 1952 Yale freshman was also 18 pounds heavier and one year younger than his 1893 predecessor.

"Fine food and enlightened eating habits are primary factors in the American record of increased growth," Thompson said, "yet today's line food actually costs less than in previous years.

"For example," Thompson continued, "let's talk about the dairy industry's basic product — milk!

"A quart of milk cost the average industrial worker 11 minutes of his wages in 1940. Today, it costs him only eight minutes' work. Similary, other dairy foods such as butter, cheese and ice cream cost less today in terms of real purchasing power than they used to."

June Dairy Month is a gigantic nationwide effort to explain these nutritional and economic facts, Mr. Thompson said. In communities from coast to coast through newspapers, radio, television, and the lecture platform the tremendous story of the dairy industry is being told.

Mr. Thompson said that in developing a wider use of dairy foods, the value of the June Dairy Month campaign is "incalculable."

He pointed out that 10 million people depend on the multi-million-dollar dairy industry for their livelihood.

"The greatest significance of the industry, however," he said, "lies in the fact that it supplies 30% of all the food Americans eat for only 15% of their food dollars."

More than 3,875,000 REA-financed electric farmers now share ownership in cooperatives in the United States.

Butter Itself Isn't Fattening Says Spokesman

"Butter, in itself, is not fattening," (insert June Dairy Month county chairman's name) said today in connection with the national observance of June Dairy Month.

"Many people have the idea that if you eat butter, or fat of any kind, you'll get fat," (county chairman) continued.

"Actually, most foods will make you fat if you eat too much. The trick in keeping one's weight down is to consume each day enough food for an adequate diet at a calorie level sufficient to your needs."

If your job calls for you to be physically active, you'll need more calories per day than someone working at a desk, according to (county chairman).

The best advice for anyone is to check with his physician on the number of calories he needs daily either to sustain ideal weight, or get down to it. The same holds true for persons consistently underweight.

"Maybe it's the word 'fat' that mixes people up," (county chairman) said. "Nutritionists say fat such as meat fat or butter, consumed as part of an adequate diet, is usually burned up in the form of expended energy. But apparently, because it's called fat (professionaly it's known as dietary fat), people think it's sure to become fat in their bodies.

"Reducers," (county chairman) says, "have one most important problem: That of staying on their diet. If they'd go ahead and eat regular protective foods such as butter, meat, cheese, and eggs, at a prescribed calorie level, they would have less trouble feeling hungry between meals.

"Butter makes the meal more deliciously palatable and satisfying. Then you can wait for the next meal comfortably, and get slim," (county chairman) said.

for GREATER dairy profits make Power your partner

The network of power lines throughout Iowa has helped make today's dairy farms as modern as today's factories.

Yes, Electricity is always on the job — ready to serve the dairy farmer economically — at the flick of a switch. Milkers, coolers, separators, cleaners, ventilators — these and many other electrically-operated items help build greater dairy profits.

To Iowa's Dairy Industry, we say "More power to you!" Let's all observe Dairy Month by using plenty of Iowa's fine dairy foods.

Miss Helen Lemke to Be Co. Public Health Nurse

Miss Helen M. Lemke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lemke of Garner, will begin her duties as Public Health Nurse in Hancock County on August 1st. Miss Lemke will occupy the office in the basement of the courthouse formerly occupied by the County nurse and used recently by the County Assessor and Auditor.

Miss Lemke is a registered nurse, a graduate of Klemme high school and the Methodist Hospital at Sioux City. She is also a graduate of the St. Paul Bible Institute where she majored in Theology and Christian Education. She attended Kletzing college at University Park, Iowa, and is a graduate of William Penn college at Oskaloosa where she had a major in Religion and a minor in Science. She took her Public Health training at the University of Minnesota.

She worked at Sioux City hospitals several years and also has been employed at both Mercy and Park hospitals in Mason City. Miss Lemke has traveled extensively and worked in six states for the Youth Home Mission with headquarters in Kansas City, Missouri. She will leave shortly on a trip that will take her into Canada. While employed by the Youth Home Mission she worked in schools with children of all ages. She taught Child Evangelism in St. Paul Bible Institute and for two years at Kletzing college. Her hobby is reading, working with children and ceramics.

Miss Lemke is an accomplished public speaker and has done considerable home visitation work. Her work in Hancock county will be her first Public Health position. She will employ a stenographer and any girl interested in a position in her office as office assistant and stenographer is advised to contact her for an interview.

Although not officially on duty at the present time, Miss Lemke urges all Hancock County citizens to avail themselves of the opportunity of having their chests X-rayed when the Mobile unit sponsored by the Hancock County Health Association is in the county.

X-rays See Inside The Chest

One of the first persons to go through the mobile X-ray unit in a county in another part of Iowa recently was a retired minister. As he left the unit, he agreed with the technician that it certainly had been quick and easy to get an X-ray; it had been painless indeed.

He loitered around the X-ray unit all afternoon and at last, he asked one of the technicians this question:

"Do you suppose you could take a picture of my back? I had a fall last winter and I guess I sprained my back—it sure hurts me".

The technician explained that when a person is placed firmly against the X-ray machine, a picture in not only taken of the chest, but of the back and all that is inside the chest. The X-ray itself is a powerful beam that shines from a heavy metal box back of the person being X-rayed through the film in a camera which is in front of the individual.
